An extra west-bound train on the Rock Island road, in charge of Conductor Burns, consisting of some twenty-five or thirty cars of freight, was wrecked about two miles east of Joliet, Ill., by the trucks on a car of salt about the middle of the train breaking and letting the car down on the track. Some eight or ten cars were ditched. Three tramps, Mike Foley, James O'Hearn, and Lawrence Smith, who were stealing a ride in one of the wrecked cars, were seriously injured.

Roasted Alive.

Queen City (Texas) special: The negro Lee Green, who murdered the family of Farmer Lowe, was arrested and put in the jail at Lindon. Next morning a mob of 500 to 1,000 appeared, and taking him to the scene of the tragedy, made him confess his crime, then bound him to a stake, piled fagots about him and he was burned to death. Mrs. Lowe and children were buried side by side in a common grave. The other child is doing well and is out of danger.

Earthquake in South Carolina.

A special from Charleston, S. C., says that two sharp earthquake shocks were felt there shortly after midnight Wednesday morning. The shocks were but a few minutes apart and those who were awakened by the first shock were robbed of much sleep by shock number two. There was a boom and quick jerk, then a reverberating sound dying gradually away in the distance—this in each case.

Kodak Outdone.

Vienna special: A remarkable invention in the photograph line has just been announced. It is a complete miniature apparatus for taking photos in a rifle, the apparatus closing itself every time a shot is fired. The photograph will show the object aimed at in a circular picture in the center of which is the shot. A fallen target or game and even a poacher might be photographed in this way, and then show exactly the spot which had been hit.

An Interesting Question.

London special: It is said that leading Tory lawyers have been engaged to ascertain whether there is any precedent for the admission of an ex-convict, who has been in penal servitude, to Parliament. There is no doubt that a strong Tory protest will be offered against permitting Davitt to take his seat. His election is already assured.

Hunting a Wife for the Prince.

It is reported that King Humbert of Italy will shortly visit St. Petersburg to arrange a marriage between the Prince of Naples and the Russian Grand Duchess. There is no secret about the difficulty of getting a wife for the Prince among the Roman Catholic royalties of Europe.

Tried to Roast Himself.

Ralph Cunningham, son of a prominent business man of Fostoria, Ohio, tried to kill himself by crawling into a red hot furnace of the spoke factory of which his father is a part owner. The engineer pulled him out but not until the body and head had been almost roasted. He will die. Poor health was the cause.

Washed Each Other's Feet.

The followers of Mrs. Woodworth, the Indiana evangelist, who recently organized the Church of God at Topeka, Kan., with 400 members, assembled recently and washed each other's feet. One hundred and seventy-five people had their feet washed, and 1,750 toes were turned up for inspection.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

INDEMNITY AND AN APOLOGY DEMANDED.

'Twill Be a Chilly Day for Chili If Uncle Sam Undertakes to Trounce Her—Naval Officers Say That the Situation Is Really a Serious One.

Sharp Talk to Chili.

Further persistent inquiry of the officers of the government in regard to the Valparaiso incident shows conclusively that the administration does not regard it as a simple street row for which the Chilian government can not be held accountable, but as an insult to the honor and flag of the United States, calling for the most vigorous diplomatic treatment.

The official report of the occurrence, made by Capt. Schley, of the Baltimore, after a careful investigation of all the surrounding circumstances, shows clearly not only that the assault upon the American sailors was cowardly and unprovoked, but that it was inspired purely by hatred for the uniform they wore and the country it represented; or, in other words, that it was not an attack on them as individuals, but as representatives of the United States.

The report also indicates that the local police, instead of protecting the Americans from the violence of the mob, in several instances assisted in the onslaught.

This, the report says, is demonstrated by the fact that several of the sailors were wounded by bayonets such as are usually carried by the Chilian police.

The outrage is not regarded by President Harrison as the work of an unruly mob. The wounds on the dead men were made by bayonets, and therefore the soldiers and police of Chili were the butchers. Moreover, the unanimity of the attack shows that it was premeditated. The assaulted men were riding peacefully in a street car, when suddenly they were knocked down, dragged from the car, shot and stabbed. Then, not daring to face the Americans, even though the latter were unarmed, the savages shot and bayonetted them in the back.

There is but one vessel in Chili now, the Baltimore, but the San Francisco is at Callao, only four days off, and unless an immediate answer of a favorable kind is made by the Chilian Government to the demands of President Harrison she will be ordered to sail at once for Valparaiso. The Yorktown is now on her way there and the Boston will sail at once from New York for the scene of the trouble.

It is stated at the Navy Department that there is a decided difference between this case and that of the Mafia tragedy at New Orleans. The Italians who were killed there were residents of this country or intended to become so, and the United States caused the arrest of the leaders who participated in the affray, and an investigation was made of the affair, but in the case of the American sailors who were killed and assaulted no action whatever has been taken, as far as can be ascertained, by the Chilian authorities toward investigating the riot caused by the Chilian sailors, and as the attack was upon American sailors it is considered a direct insult to the American flag.

The action of the Chilian Government in the present difficulty with the United States was similar to the position of Paraguay in 1857, when that country was brought to terms by the vigorous action of President Buchanan. The Government of Paraguay had, upon frivolous and even insulting pretexts, refused to ratify the treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation concluded with it March 4, 1853, as amended by the United States Senate. It had seized and appropriated the property of American citizens residing in Paraguay, in a violent and arbitrary manner, and finally on Feb. 1, 1855, by order of President Lopez, it had fired upon the United States ship Water Witch, under Commander Thomas J. Page, of the navy, and killed the sailor at the helm, while the vessel was peacefully employed in surveying the Parana River, to ascertain its fitness for steam navigation. The honor as well as the interests of this country demanded satisfaction. The President brought the subject to the notice of Congress in his first annual message, Dec. 8, 1857. In this he informed Congress that he would make a demand for redress on the Government of Paraguay in a firm but conciliatory manner, but at the same time observed that "this will the more probably be granted if the Executive shall have authority to use other means in the event of refusal. This is accordingly recommended."

Congress responded favorably to this recommendation. On the 2d of June, 1858, Congress passed a joint resolution authorizing the President "to adopt such measures and use such force as, in his judgment, may be necessary and advisable in the event of a refusal of just satisfaction by the Government of Paraguay in connection with the attack on the United States steamer Water Witch, and with other matters referred to in the annual message." Congress also made an appropriation to defray the expenses of a commissioner to Paraguay, should he deem it proper to appoint one, "for the adjustment of difficulties" with that republic.

Paraguay is situated far in the interior of South America, and its capital, the city of Asuncion, on the left bank of the River Paraguay, is more than a thousand miles from the mouth of the La Plate. Protected by his remote and secluded position, President Lopez but little apprehended that a navy from a far distant country could ascend the La Plata, the Parana and the Paraguay and reach the capital. This was doubtless the reason why he had ventured to place us at defiance. Under these circumstances President Buchanan deemed it advisable to send with James B. Bowling, our Commissioner to Paraguay, a naval force sufficient to exact justice should negotiation fail. This consisted of nineteen armed vessels, great and small, carrying 200 guns and 2,500 sailors and marines, all under the command of Commodore Shubrick.

Soon after the arrival of the expedition at Montevideo, Commissioner Bowling and Commodore Shubrick proceeded to ascend the rivers to Asuncion in the steamer Fulton, accompanied by the Water Witch. Meanwhile the remaining vessels rendezvoused in the Parana, near Rosario, a position from which they could act promptly in case of need.

The commissioner arrived at Asuncion on Jan. 25, 1859, and left it Feb. 10. Within this brief period he had ably and successfully accomplished all the objects of his mission. In addition to ample apologies, he obtained from President Lopez the payment of $10,000 for the family of Seaman Chaney, who had been killed in the attack upon the Water Witch, and also concluded satisfactory treaties of indemnity and of navigation and commerce with the Paraguayan government.

Mrs. A. C. Swope, aged 44, Harrisburg, Pa.; slight leg bruise.
A. C. Swope, aged 47, Harrisburg, Pa.; slightly bruised.
George Allen, Lamoni, Iowa; slight bruise.
E. D. Evans, Genesee, Wis.; right shoulder injured.
James Scarborough, aged 45, Monmouth; slight cut.
P. E. Nelson, Anacortes, Wash.; head badly cut.

The wonder is that a hundred lives were not lost, for the train of ten cars was heavily loaded and the destruction of the coaches, with the exception of two sleepers, is complete.

No. 5, the ill-fated train, was made up of two sleepers, three chair cars, one smoker, one baggage car, one express and two mail cars. Many of the passengers were Chicagoans, but, strange to say, not one seriously injured is from that city.

The train had been running at a high rate of speed when, without a moment's warning, it was hurled off the rails and into the empty freight cars standing on the side track. All the cars except two sleepers were overturned and completely ruined. Those passengers who were not injured were scared out of their senses. Women screamed and fainted, and the cries from among the debris were frightful.

Shortly after the accident Superintendent Wilson and Superintendent Rice with a force of assistants arrived and began caring for the hurt. All those who were able to be moved were taken by Mr. Wilson to Burlington, where he will have them cared for.

The company states that the cause of the accident was the malicious displacement of the switch leading to the pottery works. Certain it is the open switch caused the disaster. Nobody knows how it was opened. Superintendent Wilson says seven trains passed over the line since the switch was used. Yet after the crash one of the train officials ran to the switch and found it partly thrown, with the lock gone and the pin out. The Superintendent says the switch could not have been partly turned and a train pass over it without being derailed. He declares that to be an impossibility, and states that the switch was turned between the time the seventh train passed the switch and the hour when the express was due. He believes that some malicious scoundrel purposely turned the switch.

George Courtney, the traveling engineer, was one of the oldest employes of the road. He boarded the engine and took a seat by the engineer to see how the locomotive, which was a brand-new one, was working. His first work for the road was done long before the war, and probably no man on the division was more popular among the men or honored with more confidence by the company.

There were some remarkable escapes. Oscar Zimmerman was pitched through the window of the smoking car and was unhurt. A terrible scene and loss of life was prevented by the prompt action of Baggageman John Dore, of Chicago, who extinguished the flames that caught in the car immediately after the crash. One of the saddest casualties occurred in the first chair car. George Allen, his wife, and baby were sitting in the front of the car when the wreck occurred. Mrs. Allen was thrown against the window and killed. The child was hurled across the car, but escaped injury. Mr. Allen was also unhurt, but heartbroken by the death of his wife.

When the train left the main track and started on the siding Engineer Emery reversed his engine and stuck to his post, but the engine left the track after running a few feet on the siding, and all of the seven cars, with the exception of the rear one, a Pullman sleeper, went into the ditch. Engineer Emery, Traveling Engineer Courtney and Fireman Peter Anderson went down with the engine. The two engineers were killed instantly and the fireman is probably fatally injured. Those in the smoking car escaped with their lives. Standing on the steps of the next car were two students of Hedding College, Frank L. Johnson, of Avon, and W. R. Harding, of Abingdon. They jumped, and Johnson was killed by a blow on the head from a flying timber. Few on the train escaped without being cut by broken glass or badly bruised by being thrown against seats when the shock came.

As the train was running behind time when it reached Galesburg, Conductor Hughes laughingly blamed the engineer. "All right; hold on to your hats this time," replied Emery, as he pulled the throttle and started on the ride to his death. At the time the train ran onto the open switch it was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

As far as the matter has thus far been investigated it looks as if the wrecking of the train was the result of a well-laid plan. The target light had been extinguished, and everything tends to show that the wreck was prearranged. The road's officials are looking for the person or persons who turned the switch.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Dr. Briggs' Case.

There is every prospect of a very interesting and edifying time at the trial.—Brooklyn Times.

It is apparent a large number of clergymen stand about where the accused does.—New York Herald.

So Dr. Briggs is to be tried for heresy after all. The old spirit of the inquisition has not wholly died out yet.—Boston Record.

The worst thing that the judges have found against Dr. Briggs seems to be that he dared to speak his mind freely.—Boston News.

The Briggs case is up again and we shall soon know whether the eminent professor is bigger than the creed of his church.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Prominent Presbyterian ministers assert that the action now taken will cause a strife in the denomination which will imperil its very existence.—Albany Times.

The point of chief interest in the case is that not only Dr. Brigg, but the doctrines of the confession of faith are likely to be on trial.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Taking it altogether the present crisis is the most serious one Presbyterianism in America has had to face for more than half a century, or since the division of 1837.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The New York Presbyterians are trying Dr. Briggs for heresy because his views do not coincide with theirs. A little more Christian charity and a little less prating about orthodoxy would improve a great many people.—Memphis Avalanche.

The majority of the clergymen in the New York Presbytery thought it would be better to let Prof. Briggs and his opinions take their course than to force to trial a case which cannot fail to result in heart-burnings and in loss to Presbyterianism.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Trials for "heresy" are in most cases of doubtful wisdom. Whatever of added guarantee the church "standards" receive in the result of such trials scarcely weighs against the popular sympathy for the "heretic" usually excited and manipulations of the secular press which almost invariably favor the accused party.—Chicago Standard.

Aggressive Russia.

Russia will hesitate to strike where an English army is going to defend.—Rochester Herald.

Another printing press has been seized at Kieff, Russia. The printing press is an infernal machine in the eyes of tyrants the world over.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The Chinese are commanding Russia to keep off "the roof of the world," otherwise an altitudinous tract known as Pameer in Central Asia.—Grand Rapids Telegram-Herald.

The Russian Foreign Minister is in Italy on a mission to promote peace. Famine's grip on the bear's vitals must be strong when it thus forgets its instincts.—Montreal Gazette.

The chief objection neighboring nations have to letting Russia get up on "the roof of the world" is that they can't tell on which side she proposes to slide down.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Russia now wants to take Pameer, "the roof of the world." Now let the modern despotism walk around and try to take the United States of America, roof of nineteenth century liberty.—Baltimore Herald.

In 1876 Russia declared war against Turkey because the Turks were persecuting and massacring their Christian subjects. If any nation were looking for a good excuse to make war on Russia the present persecution of the Jews might furnish it.—Buffalo Express.

Another conspiracy against the life of the Czar has been discovered in Russia. Such announcements always suggest the query whether it is really a new conspiracy or a fresh development of the one which is supposed to be simmering in Russia all the time.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

China seems to be between the devil and the deep sea. She is looking to Russia for an ally to save her cities from bombardment by Great Britain and depending upon Great Britain for an ally to defend her territory from invasion and seizure by Russia.—Birmingham Republican.

The Chilian Row.

If it is found that the United States sailors were attacked wantonly and without provocation our Government should insist upon ample reparation for the affront from the junta.—New York Press.

We should demand redress for any outrage upon our seamen, but we should discipline our naval officers if during the Chilian war they took any other than a strictly neutral position.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

It is of importance that Chili and the United States come to an amicable and honest understanding. Whatever cause of irritation Chili may have that is not in itself frivolous or unreasonable should be removed.—Washington Post.

The Chilians should have some of the conceit taken out of them. It would not be a bad idea to put their army on board some of the American vessels, bring it up here, and let it see what kind of a country this is.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

On the whole it may be well to reserve judgment until the details are fully ascertained. The complications between the United States and Chili are already grave enough without jumping to the conclusion that a fatal row between a lot of marines on one side and the Chilian mob on the other necessitates a further international quarrel.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It cannot be supposed for a moment that the Chilian authorities will refuse to make prompt reparation for their outrage upon Americans, but nothing but the fullest reparation and apologies can be accepted, and if they are not accorded promptly it will behoove this Government to act with firmness.—New Orleans Picayune.

Sam Small.

Sam Small, professional revivalist, is under arrest for obtaining money under false pretenses in a real-estate deal. But for his pretense of preaching the gospel he draws wages unquestioned.—New York World.

If Rev. Sam Small is a perfectly honest man, he is continually in hard luck. There was a misunderstanding as to his use of certain funds connected with the university at Ogden, which caused his retirement therefrom, and now he is accused of obtaining $1,000 under false pretenses. It looks very much as if Mr. Small had mistaken his vocation.—New Haven Register.

"Rev." Sam Small's real-estate transactions are likely to dim the brilliancy of his fame as a gospel headlight. A man who has brains enough to clear $300 on a $1,000 deal ought to have untold possibilities before him, but Small made a fatal mistake in neglecting to cover up certain peculiarities of the deal for which he is now under arrest.—St. Paul Dispatch.

SAVED AT LAST.

AUBURN, IND., Oct. 3, 1890.

Dr. F. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,
R. McDOUGALL.

DOUBLE DICK AND JOE;

OR

The Poorhouse Waifs.

BY DAVID LOWRY.

He held out a paper which a policeman scanned closely, saying as he passed it to Monsieur Dufaur, who in his turn passed it to the clown, "Why, it is dated to-day."

"Yes—we were married this night—here is the notary who married us."

The notary bowed assent, and Madame Dufaur again exclaimed in her native tongue, as she held her hands up deprecatingly, "It is impossible—it cannot be!"

"Is it true, tell me?" said Monsieur Dufaur, turning to Joe.

"It is false; he wanted me to marry him. He said Mr. Caper and Mr. Wonder here, who paid them to bring me here——"

"Who said that? Who said it?" Job could not restrain his temper. His face grew red as he turned to Joe.

"He told me you planned it all—and Mr. Caper was to pretend you didn't. He said it. And he said you and Mr. Caper would take me no matter where I went—by law—that the only way to keep from going to Barnesville Poorhouse was to marry him."

"You thievin'—you lying—you ornary raskal!!" shouted Job, making a rush for Ike, but an officer interposed.

"You will have to settle this some where else. Don't fret, old man. You've a clear case against this young man, by the looks of things."

"I've given you all warning—I'll sue you for false imprisonment—and for alienating my wife's affections," shouted Jenks desperately, as the officers proceeded to handcuff him with the notary.

"Yes," said the notary, who, influenced by Jenks, hoped to swear himself out of the difficulty. It was two to one, he argued, until Dick spoke up. Dick waited until the notary ended his threat in these words:

"Yes, gentlemen — you are making trouble for yourselves—all of you. I'll prosecute you if it costs me my last penny."

"No, you won't," exclaimed Dick. "I heard that man there plan the whole thing; he was talking to these two men here," and Dick indicated two ruffians near him who were handcuffed together. "I heard them plan to pretend to let in the notary as a friend—and Joe couldn't have married him after getting my note."

"What note?" demanded Jenks, savagely.

Joe quickly produced the bit of paper, and Ben Brown read it aloud. As he finished reading it, the ruffian next to Dick blurted out angrily:

"Blast it all! That's the bootblack that was in here a while ago that you wouldn't let me kick out. We may as well own up, Jenks; the game's up, so far as I am concerned."

"That's right," said Job Wonder, dryly. "You may as well own up, 'speshally as we've 'bout got all we want to know without you."

Then the policemen proceeded with their prisoners to the station, and closed up the vile den, after providing lodgings for its denizens.

CHAPTER XXVI.

UNCLE AND NEPHEW—DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND.

It will be necessary, to explain events in their order, to return to the morning of the day on which Joe fell into the hands of Ike Jenks' accomplices.

Jeremiah Jenks was not inclined to pin much faith on his nephew. Certain signs — Ike's apparently preoccupied manner, when there was no excuse or reason for "preoccupation" to borrow one of Jeremiah Jenks' ideas; his whistling, very low, to be sure, but yet it was a clear whistle—caused his uncle to observe more narrowly his nephew's movements.

As Ike was whistling softly to himself in the back room, Jeremiah Jenks sat biting his finger nails. Then he rose softly, and looked in at his hopeful nephew.

Ike's hand was tracing certain "whereases" and "be it covenanted" upon a clean sheet of legal-cap paper. The nephew did not dream his uncle was looking at him. He had just returned, made his report concerning the girl, Joe, at Monsieur Dafaur's, and was congratulating himself upon his success. Jeremiah looked at the young man steadily, then returned to his desk, and stood beside it thinking.

Jeremiah Jenks put out a hand quickly, opened a drawer, and the next moment his head was bent over a package of letters. As he placed his hand on the package, he started and turned pale He put down the package, and bit his finger nails nervously. Then he turned the package over in his hand—remarking the tape around it closely—then with trembling hands he untied it and was soon engaged handling, one by one, the letters the package contained.

Then he rose. His face was pale—his eyes glittering with suppressed emotion. He walked up and down his office several times, shaking his hand at the back room angrily.

Then he reseated himself. Still Ike whistled to himself softly—very softly.

"Ike!"

Why did Ike jump? He did jump. There was something in his uncle's voice that made him leap from his seat.

The whistle was cut right off. Ike's mouth, still puckered, gradually opened wider as he listened and looked askance at the office door.

"Yes, sir;-coming."

Then Ike's head was bent, and his hand was up to his head.

"He's found me out! Certain, sure! Well, who cares? I'll make a fight for it and see who's ahead."

He entered the office and stood waiting. His uncle eyed him steadily, coldly. The nephew did not flinch. His uncle tapped his desk.

"Somebody has been in my desk."

He did not answer. He took out a penknife and began to clean his finger-nails.

"Look at me."

Ike looked at him.

"Why don't you speak?"

"You are speaking."

"Was it you?"

"I don't need to criminate myself; nobody but a fool would do that."

"No; nobody but a fool would. Ike, you have been looking over my private papers."

Ike smiled.

"You have opened a package of letters."

Still Ike smiled in his uncle's face.

"I see you have. Well, now, what did you learn? All you have learned is not worth that" (Jeremiah snapped his fingers) "to you!"

"Then why are you making so much talk about it?"

"Because you have betrayed me—abused my confidence."

"Humph. You never betrayed any one. You never abused any one's confidence. Oh, no!"

Ike's sneering smile more than his words made his uncle furious. He sprang to his feet and advanced.

"Hold on, Nuncke, none o' that. Just you keep your hands off me. I won't have it."

Jeremiah Jenks stood aghast.

"You—you villain! You ingrate! You hound! You—you——"

"Take time. You can't do justice to it in a heat," said Ike, seating himself leisurely.

"Now see here. I did read the letters, but I wouldn't if you hadn't excited my suspicions. You tempted me."

"How—how did I tempt you?"

"Why, you were so awful mysterious when Mrs. Howson called, I couldn't help noticing it. Then you gave yourself dead away, Nuncke.

"Gave myself away!"

"Dead away, Nuncke, the way you showed her to her carriage. If it was Queen Victoria you couldn't been more particular. Of course I noticed it. Then when you had me tell you all about the girl, don't you think I wondered. Lord! How stupid you are, Nuncke!"

"Am I? We'll see."

"That's what I'm coming to. Just what I'm getting at. Of course, I put on my studying cap. I says to myself, hello! Something's up. Something uncommon. Nuncke ain't wasting no time on that old woman. An' this here girl—she's worth money to him someway or he wouldn't have me keep her in sight so long and no move made—only just finding out who she lived with and how she was treated—such things as that. I says—what's Nuncke's little game? And what happened then? Why, I found them letters. Just all by accident—or maybe it was Providence put 'em right in my hands."

"I don't think you will. Not when you know it all. You'll not say a word, Nuncke. You'll just do like Crockett's coon—come right down."

"Go on! Go on, you scoundrel!"

"Yes—I am a scoundrel. Yes—that's so. But I'm not half as big a scoundrel as you are, Nuncke. What made you keep Mrs. Howson ignorant of the whereabouts of her granddaughter? Eh?"

"How do you know I did?"

"How? How? Why—I heard you tell her—I heard you putting her off with lies, until that morning she said she would put it in another lawyer's hands—and then—then what did you say?"

Jeremiah Jenks did not answer. He was dumb with rage.

"You said, 'Very well, Mrs. Howson. I will gladly retire, and shall take pleasure in giving all the aid in my power to whomever you select.' Then you called me in, and asked me a lot of no-account questions, and when I went out—I held the door open—I was bound to get at the truth that day. Why, you discovered all at once the girl was in the city—was seen in the city only the day before. Then she got mollified like—let up on you—gave you another trial and a hundred dollars! A hundred dollars!"

"You lie, Nuncke."

"How do you know what she gave me?"

"I opened the door. Your backs were turned, and I saw you turn up five twenty-dollar bills—ah! am I lying? And she said, 'That makes five hundred dollars I've given you, Mr. Jenks.'"

Jeremiah groaned.

"O! you may groan. You ought to. Five hundred dollars for a job many another man would have been glad to do for five or ten. What trouble was there? Didn't I do all the work? Who found the girl? Wasn't it me? And what was you keeping her living place hid from the old women for—eh? What was you doing it for—eh? Tell me that."

Now Jeremiah Jenks smiled craftily. He looked wickedly at his nephew, and said, very deliberately:

"You would like to know. Find out. You'd best do it soon. Because you're game's played, young man. You've talked too much. My turn is coming. Now"—he rose, and threatened Ike with look and hand—"go! go at once—and never let me see you again—go!"

Ike laughed in his uncle's face.

"What do you mean?"

"Why—I know all about it."

"What do you know?"

"I know you've been milking two cows."

"Milking ——"

"Yes—yes, yes. Now you sit down. Best get yourself a glass of water, because like as not you'll faint when I'm done."

"It ain't a great head—no? Never said it was, did I? Did I, Nuncke? But it's level—perfectly level. Now, I'll just open out. Why, the girl's worth two millions cash. Two millions. She'll get that from Mrs. Howson, who ain't Mrs. Howson, by a long shot. Well, who's she, then? Why, she's Lady Howson—or not Howson—that's the family name—Lady Morford. And that's the name on the top of her letters, and it's the Morford crest. You don't think I'm so awful green I don't know who to go to to find out all about the English aristocracy, even if there wasn't a book in the next block telling all I wanted to know. That old woman you're so attentive to is Lady Morford."

"You've said that twice."

"Well, I'll say it again, because it does me good to say it. Has a sort of rich, swelling sound. And the girl is her granddaughter."

"I'm glad you've found out," said Jeremiah, with a sneering laugh.

"You think so—you're almost sure of it. All you want to make dead sure is——."

"Well, what?"

"Why, the name of the girl's mother when she went to the poorhouse in Barnesville. If the girl isn't found, then the money and land goes to a nephew—a rich nephew of Lady Morford's, who don't speak to her. They've not spoken for years; and she hates him, because she's found out he was the fellow that introduced her daughter to the man who ran away with her. Good enough, ain't it? Ain't I right, Nuncke?"

"Go on, go on—I am listening."

"They want to find the name, and they want to find the name of the doctor in New York—in this very city, mind you—who was with her mother and attended her two years, and afterward accidentally saw her, and talked with her in Barnesville Poorhouse."

"Curse you! You've rummaged all my letters!" shouted Jenks.

"Of course, Nuncke, of course. You'd have done the same in my place. I read all you wrote to Mr. Israel Heber."

"Oh-h-h! Jeremiah Jenks groaned in mental anguish. "If I could kill you I'd do it."

"Yes; but you're afraid of hanging, Nuncke, and so you won't kill me. I read all you wrote to Mr. Heber. Nuncke, you've had a good pull at this thing. All you're sorry for is that you didn't get a few hundreds from Job Wonder; but the countryman sized you right up—he did for a fact, Nuncke—sized you right up, and sat down on you. I'm workin' the old man now."

"You!"

"Why, bless your soul—I'm working this for all it's worth. I'm keeping a little surprise back for you—you'll read it in the paper some day soon. I'm only telling you what will interest you, Nuncke—make you're mind easy on the sure thing, that the jig's up with you."

"You are talking too much again."

"Am I? Well, maybe I am. I've learned that Israel Heber paid you five hundred dollars to keep your mouth shut—when you hadn't anything to tell him. He thought you told the truth when you said you would inform Joe's relatives where she was—where they could put their hands on—and at that particular time, Nuncke, you didn't know, because I read an advertisement in the paper—and answered it, and went to the place you said to address—and you—you come and got the letters marked M. M. You was M. M."

"Ike—you'll be hanged some day, you will."

"Will I? Well, the devil will get you without hanging. I found where Dufaur's was for you—you were very anxious to see the girls there—and you seen Joe—you were pretty sure of her long before I found positively. You got money from Heber and Lady Morford, and was going for Wonder."

"Yes—you'll come to a bad end, Ike—I see it plainly."

"And you are sprouting angel's wings. Well—now, I've found out all about Joe's mother's name—and she is Lady Morford's heir, and I am going to have some of that pile of money, you bet."

"You'd best get it quickly then—for I'll telegraph Heber the truth, and I'll call upon Lady Morford inside of an hour—less time."

"I'm afraid—just a leetle afraid—you're too late, Nuncke. However—by-by, old man! Ta-ta—I'll give you all a surprise, Nuncke—ta-ta."

Jeremiah Jenks looked after him with a devilish smile; then he, too, went out and looked for a cab.

Globe Sights.

If life seems long, get to work, and you will find it all too short.

The world was made before some people, but, to hear them talk, you would never know it.

There are some people who think they have done their duty to the world when they have had children.

If half the things a man says about his friends should reach their ears, he would have to run to the jumping-off place.

You very often see a rich man who cannot be persuaded into matrimony by any woman, but rich women are easily coaxed.

It would be a great surprise to you if you could know how few people agree with the nice things that are occasionally said about you.

We have noticed that the man who says "If I were you," does not do a bit better when the circumstances change so that he is in your place.

A rapidly growing evil, and one that reformers would do well to tackle, is the custom of young people marrying without a cent in the world to marry on.

It must be the ambition of the average parent to raise giants in his family. You can always flatter a parent by telling him his child is large for its age.

You can always please a certain kind of man by saying flattering things to him, but the man who is pleased that way is the one you never feel nice things about.

The vacant place you will leave in the hearts of your friends when you die will have a new tenant before the memories you left behind can be decently swept out.

The air is full of the awful and horrible rumor that the old hoop skirt made so large that a woman wearing one can scarcely get through a doorway, is coming into style again.

A girl may take her love affairs to a fortune teller before she is married, but we have noticed that after she marries, they become so serious that she takes them to the Lord.

A nice man is one who can enjoy himself all the better when there are women present, but a nice woman is one who enjoys herself best when there are no men around.—Atchison Globe.

A Bone Eater.

There was an account recently given here, says the New York Sun, of a man who crunches the shells of the boiled eggs that he takes at breakfast. There is another man in town who eats bones, and who is known among his friends as the "great American bone eater." He is a scientist, and when a question was put to him he said: "I do not follow the habit for any fantastic reason. I believe that the organic chemical elements found in bones, such as phosphate and carbonate of lime, are greatly needed in the human frame for the development of the osseous system. I do not make a dinner of bones, but merely take a little bone delicacy at times, when not in company. I will go through the ribbones of a spring chicken or quail, or what not. I will have the grilled leg bones of a young chicken, which are easily eaten when well grilled, bones of a sucking pig or of a lamb, and, in fact, there are sundry bones that can be prepared in various ways to the advantage of the eater. I have had benefit from bone eating, and I know several bone eaters. Some of the African negroes, who are very strong, eat the bones of game after making them crisp at the fire, and the books tell of the bone eaters of Europe in olden times. I would advise you to get a few dainty bones in nice order and try them."

Utopian Schemes.

Utopian schemes are plans, whether of national improvement or of social operation, founded on impractical or visionary views. Sir Thomas Moore, in writing his curious philosophical work, "Utopia," added a new word to the English language, and delineated his ideas of a perfect commonwealth. Utopia, from the Greek, means "no place." On the imaginary island of Utopia, in the Atlantic Ocean, he places a people governed on the principle that no one shall have the right to separate property. Here all are contented with the necessaries of life, all are employed in useful labor, and no man desires in clothing any other quality than durability. Since wants are few, and every individual engages in labor, there is no need for them to work more than six hours per day. Neither laziness nor avarice finds a place in this happy region; for why should the people be indolent when they have such little toil; or greedy when they know there is an abundance for all? This is somewhat like the scheme proposed in Bellamy's "Looking Backward," and is as impracticable as it is ingenious.

A Bullet's Freak.

A few years ago there was in portions of the new West much lawlessness of one kind and another, checked only by an occasional piece of individual retribution or by an outburst of vigilance-committee work. A curious shooting affair which occurred in Medora, North Dakota, is thus described by Mr. Roosevelt:

I did not see the actual occurrence, but I saw both men immediately afterward, and I heard the shooting, which took place in a saloon on the bank, while I was swimming my horse across the river. I will not give the full names of the two contestants, as I am not certain what has become of them; though I was told that they had since been put in jail or hanged, I forget which.

One of them was a saloon-keeper, familiarly called Welshy. The other man, Hay, had been bickering with him for some time. One day Hay entered the saloon, and the quarrel became at once violent. Welshy suddenly whipped out his revolver and blazed away at Hay.

Hay staggered slightly, shook himself, stretched out his hand, and gave back to his would-be slayer the ball, saying, "Here, man, here's the bullet!"

It had glanced along his breastbone, gone a roundabout course, and come out at the point of the shoulder, when, being spent, it dropped down the sleeve into his hand.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DEKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.......OCTOBER, 29, 1891.

CANADA'S census is completed, and shows 4,823,344, and increase in ten years 11½ per cent.

THE county auditor at Washington in this state found himself short in his accounts, and the other day hired two men for $500 each to burn the court house They did it, and it has leaked out. Now all are in jail.

A TARIFF for revenue taxes the people only the amount of money the government receives. A tariff for protection is so arranged that while the people pay to the government $1, they have to pay to capitalists $4. So, a tariff for protection costs $5.

REPUBLICANS who are advocating higher tariff might stop and explain why this administration requires such vast sums of money, for they are using almost as much each year, as was used during the war, when everything was dear in price and we had vast armies in the field. And the tariff rate is higher than it was then.

The Dispatch still continues to heave dornicks at the commissioners. Well, that will give the poor city dads a rest. By the way it says we don't like to have them trying to boss everything on earth and in the heavens and in the waters beneath. On the contrary, we are perfectly willing. We have only been trying to make them see see how ridiculous they are becoming in the eyes of other people.

MCKINLEY says his top-notch tariff cheapens every article on which the duty was taken off, and also cheapens every article on which more tariff was put; that is, reducing the tariff cheapens a thing and increasing the tariff cheapens a thing. And this absurd stuff is echoed by republican papers everywhere. But the people are too intelligent to swallow such truck.

MCKINLEY at Ada told his hearers that Canadian farmers paid the duty on wheat they ship over to us. It now transpires that but three bushels of their wheat came over at Buffalo last year. This was for seed wheat, and the America farmer who bought it paid the Canadian farmer his price, and then when it was landed at Buffalo, he paid the duty, so that his seed wheat cost him just that much more.

IT IS laughable to hear republican papers boasts that the McKinley bill both reduces the revenue, and increases the amount of goods we buy abroad and ship to this country. Have they forgotten the promises made last year, that the McKinley bill would diminish imports and induce us to make all things at home? And is it good management to decrease the revenues of the government at a time when the last republican congress appropriated a thousand millions?

WE shall have over 200,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, more than we can consume. What nonsense for republican editors to talk of a home market for the sale of all this. We always have a surplus of farm products. No doubt we always will have. What we want is a foreign market in which to sell. Prices of wheat are always good when the crops are short in the old world. But republicans say, sell all our wheat at home Farmers know this to be a humbug.

REPUBLICAN orators, like republican newspapers, easily forget their own records and seem to think the people also forget. McKinley voted in congress for free silver, and last February in a speech at Toledo, abused Cleveland for his anti-silver letter. Now, he is making his campaign speeches against free silver. John Sherman is doing the same, and railing against greenbacks. Yet Sherman wrote a strong letter to A. P. Man, favoring greenbacks, and also voted in the Senate for an issue of three hundred millions more of greenbacks, a bill that Grant killed with a veto. Charlie Foster, now secretary of the treasury, when in congress, voted twice for free silver. Yet he is now helping McKinley fight silver in Ohio. A multitude of such cases could be cited.

Court.

The jury has not been at work this week, but several cases have been argued before the Judge, and much work done in the way of taking judgments, etc. The ditch case of Kelley vs Kennedy, goes back to the commissioners who will have to appoint a new set of viewers. The case of VanAuken against the commissioners about the surveyor business has been brought up and an effort to take a change of venue to some other county, which we think will be done. The case of Zimmerman vs Schrock has been dismissed. Francis Murray was adopted by Jacob and Annie C. Bogert, and name changed to Frank Sittig Bogert. The Beuchat ditch case has been brought up, but not finished, but Judge Powers went up to Fairfield yesterday afternoon to look over the ground in person. The jury will not be called in till next Wednesday, Nov. 4.

The New Feed Store.

Our friend and fellow townsman, A. P. Green, has opened out a feed store in the building occupied as a butcher shop, one door north of John Kruger's grocery. Mr. G. has a wide experience in this business, and will no doubt give the people at this place the benefit of his business qualifications. He is handling only the best grades of flour, corn meal, etc., and patrons can feel that they are getting good goods at the lowest possible prices. We are glad to know that he is a business man among us, and wish for him the greatest success in all his enterprising ventures.

Birthday Party.

At the residence of Abram Sherck in Concord, on Saturday, occurred a pleasant gathering. His aged mother, who resides with him, was 78 on Sunday, the 25th, so on Saturday, about ten o'clock, the neighbors, to the number of thirty-six gathered in and helped the old lady to celebrate the day. There was a generous repast, and a good visit that all heartily enjoyed, and then, numerous gifts. M. D. Ober made the presentation speech, and made the heart of the aged lady glad with gifts of useful articles and money. The occasion will be pleasant in her memory while she lives, and it was a pleasant affair to all present.

A recent letter from J. P. Ensley contains some pointers of value which being from a business source, will be valuable and will be put to good use soon. It also shows that J. P. has a level head, "just as he used to."

A neighborly letter from J. D. High, at Atchison, speaks of the interest he still has in old DeKalb. His mother was a daughter of the late David Butler, and his father, a brother of the late Peter High of this place, and of course he takes interest in our pioneer articles. We are glad to hear from him.

The art lecture at the M. E. church Monday evening was a grand treat to all who were there to enjoy it, and a great loss to those who were not. Of all the illustrated lectures we have had, we think this the best. It would be a good plan to arrange for Mrs. Crary to return at some time and give the remaining six lectures.

Prof. Coombs is still preaching at Opera House. Since Sunday 23 persons have united with the church. DeKalb county meeting of the Christian Church will be held in the Opera House next Sunday. Several ministers will be present. Prof. Coombs will preach at 11 a. m. and at 7 p. m. L. L. Carpenter at 3 p. m. Many of the congregations have dismissed their regular services to be present.

The democratic and independent papers of Ft. Wayne last week gave a splendid send off to prosecuting attorney James M. Robinson, who has made the work in that position a great success. Like our present Congressman, he worked his way up from poverty to business succes and a comfortable independence, which is certainly more popular with Americans generally than to take one's first paregoric from a golden spoon. Mr. Robinson is now in private life but has an eye to a rise in the future. He will be a candidate next year for Congress and we have the word of the Journal, Sentinel, News, the Labor Herald, and the Dispatch that he will be a good one. And even the "Freie Presse," the German paper published there, tells its fellow Germans that "Herr Robinson ist gefellig, freundlich und leicht zugaenglich, und besitzt alle yene Characterzuege, welche einen Mann populaer machen." We give this in the original for the benefit of Uncle Jerry Plum, Dan. Gonser, D. Y. Husselman, Fred. Gfeller, Commissioner Hoffelder, and many other readers of the COURIER to whom the language of the Fatherland comes natural.

Corset Litigation Ended.

It is seldom that the plaintiff in a suit for infringement of patent offers the defendant an inducement to be allowed to withdraw that suit without a judgment from the court, but such is said to be the case in the action of the Williamson Corset and Brace Company vs. the Western Corset Company; which was decided in favor of the defendant by Judge Thayer in the United States Circuit Court, on Wednesday. There had been nearly four years of bitter litigation, and for several days before the case came up for final hearing the plaintiffs urged the defendant to accept a compromise. This was persistently declined, and defendant says that after the case was called for trial, the plaintiff's attorney made final overtures to the same end, and was for the last time refused. The decision throws the manufacture of the corset under litigation open to any one, and furnishes one of the few instances of the triumph of a little corporation over a big one in a court of law. The defendants in the late suit claim that its actuating motive from the start was malice. Mrs. A. E. Stair of this place is the agent for these popular goods.

W. L. Penfield reached home last Thursday evening, after quite a stay at Tacoma and other points in Washington. He is not very enthusiastic over the country, for there are many drawbacks yet. Though wages are high, business is not very good and in many lines overdone. It will be some time, he thinks before the country has the attractions to be found in the older states.

THE Ft. Wayne Dispatch strongly favors a graduated income tax, and says Honorable A. H. Hamilton favors the same. We might add that this is sound democratic doctrine, sound to the core, and it will be remembered that Congressman McClellan brought this feature before congress in a bill especially prepared for the purpose. As the Dispatch says, it is the true way to raise revenue.

The Garrett Ki-yi complains that several Auburn ladies borrowed its filthiest number, and says it proves them to be old fogies. We should say it proves them to be shameless. If a woman in this place will admit without blushing, that she borrowed so nasty a thing, we shall be greatly surprised. And now in its last issue it says that the P. M. at St. Joe borrows it and goes "out to the rear to enjoy it." Mr. Abel being a decent man, feels that "out to the rear" is the proper place for such a shameless sheet. Same up this way. You never see any one carrying it in sight, although we suppose thirty or forty are taken here. Truly the Ki-yi is making some very frank acknowledgmets.

In the express car of the train wrecked the other day at Hicksville, according to the News of that place, there were 22 silver bricks, weighing about 100 pounds each. That would be about a ton of silver. It reminds one of the wreck this side of Corunna a few years ago, when packages of gold coin rolled out of the burning express car and were gathered up by the section men who were helping to save the goods.

We have received a fine specimen of the rare metal known as "aluminum," in the form of a match safe. It is from the great "Garland Stove Works" at Detroit, and is not only to gratify one's curiosity by the sight of a new metal that few have seen, but to call attention to the fact that this company are now using this new material in the manufacture of their stoves. Its combination with the iron, gives the latter metal many valuable properties, somewhat like that of the aluminum itself, rendering the stove more durable and not so liable to tarnish. This metal is likely to become very useful, as it is easily worked, is as beautiful as silver or nickel, does not tarnish, and is very light, not heavier than glass. It is very abundant, all clays having more or less of it, and it is only a cost of separating it, that has prevented its general use. The first pure aluminum metal was obtained in 1827, but till recently it was more valuable than silver although our farms and clay banks are full of it. Now we have discovered better methods of getting it, and it may become more common. The dealer for the "Garland" stoves here, J. L. Davis, will, we presume, have a specimen similar to ours. We shall be pleased to show this to our friends.

Friday evening, of last week, a pair of gloves were left on the writing desk on the east side of the postoffice. The Gandy & Nicky Co., are buying immense quantities of timber, and are still in the market for all they can get. It is surprising the amount of logs they take in. And they ship out from their different mills hereabouts, on an average, ten cars a day. This gives one an idea of the great business they do. THE elopement as a diversion for Chicago young people is getting a trifle too common. In the historical department of the woman's display at the World's Fair there should be a wax model of a sweet young girl asking her mother's consent to her marriage. THE destructive floods in Spain, which have caused the loss of over 3,000 lives, are directly traceable to the demolition of the forests by the woodman's ax. The lesson has already been brought home to America by the spring-time floods that do such damage along the Ohio Valley. No attention has ever been paid to the warning, however, and it is hardly to be hoped that the more serious disaster in Spain will operate more effectively to bring people to a realizing sense of the peril braved by permitting the destruction of the forests without any regulation whatever.

FRENCH journals are making much ado over the use of the field telegraph in the recent army maneuvers. The fact that the wires were kept well up with the front of the advancing army and that at all times the principal commanders had telegraphic communication with every part of their commands is regarded by the Parisians as something wholly new in military science. Veterans of the American civil war will be amused at this pretension. At a time when more serious business than holiday maneuvering was on hand the telegraphic corps of the Northern army followed the fighters and conducted its operations often under hot fire.

A CONNECTICUT Justice of the Peace has decided that when a barber begins to shave a face he enters upon an implied contract to finish the job. In the case on trial the barber and his victim entered on a political discussion, during which the barber uttered reflections upon Governor Bulkeley; the victim called the barber a blanked fool and the barber ordered the other out of the shop, though his face was but half shaved. The half-shaven man, who had a two weeks' growth of beard on one side of his face, having just returned from a protracted fishing trip, sued for $100 damages. The court thought the barber had great provocation and decreed that he should pay $2 and the costs.

THE modern tragedian who is in search of a theme for tragedy can hardly do better than select the story of ex-President Balmaceda, who has put the necessary climax to the story by his suicide. Of course, there must be a woman in the story, and that is the easiest of things for a clever dramatist to find. It is rather remarkable, it may be remarked in passing, that the story of Prince Rudolph is not on the boards; although it is probable that in European countries its production would not be allowed, while it is not the sort of theme to which the American playwright takes naturally. It will see the glare of the footlights sooner or later, however; of that one may easily be assured. It is too sensationally dramatic, and it is so full of mystery as to provoke the attempt of the imaginative dramatist to solve its mystery.

DR. MULLER, a prominent Methodist clergyman, until recently located at Canton, Ohio, has created intense excitement in the religious and social circles of that pretty town. The doctor, who is 45, has just taken unto himself an attractive bride of 20. The event caused much comment among the gossips and busybodies, who, among other things, accused the reverend gentleman of conducting his courtship with too great frivolity. Many old women, of both sexes, doubtless, wrote him insulting anonymous letters, expressing freely their ideas of his conduct. As a result the doctor preached a farewell sermon, in which he announced that he would return to Canton no more forever. He shook, as it were, the dust of the town off his feet, and took occasion to denounce the anonymous letter-writers in the most scathing terms. There may be some doubt as to the propriety of a minister's using the pulpit for such a purpose, but that he was perfectly right in turning his most picturesque rhetoric upon the anonymous letter-writers no one will deny. There is no more cowardly, despicable, sneaking, mongrel disgrace to humanity than the writer of anonymous letters. After all, a minister, to be of any service, must be a man. And no man will court a girl with a funereal expression on his face, nor will he allow any set of old women, of either sex, to tell him how it should be done.

Great Piece of Masonry.

The distinction is now said to belong to Bombay of possessing the greatest piece of solid masonry construction that the world has seen in modern times. It appears that for years past the water supply of Bombay depended upon works known to be defective, involving the possibility of a water famine in that great Eastern seaport, and in view of this, a consultation of eminent engineers was held under the direction of the government, with the result that a large dam was determined on to inclose the watershed of the valley which drains into the sea south of Bombay. This gigantic structure, designed and accomplished by the superior engineering skill of T. C. Glover, is two miles long, 118 feet high and 103 feet wide at the base, with a roadway on top twenty-four feet wide, the stone work alone costing $2,000,000. The lake of water which this dam imprisons, is eight miles in area and sixty miles of pipe perform the service. Twelve thousand Hindoos were specially trained by Engineer Glover for employment on this dam.

WHO PAYS THE TARIFF?

IT IS NOT PAID BY THE FOREIGNERS.

The Lessons Taught by the Duties on Crockery—Complete Refutation of Major McKinley's Assertion That the Foreigner Pays the Tax—Facts for Farmers to Consider—Tariff Shot.

The Tariff Is a Tax.

In a recent speech which he delivered in Ohio Major McKinley said: "Don't you believe those wicked Democrats when they tell you that the tariff is a tax. The foreigner pays it; you don't." And then without proving his assertion, he asked, "How, then, can the tariff be a burden to the people of this country?"

When Major McKinley was in Congress he was the special representative of the pottery and glass trust, which had many factories located in his district. During the tariff debates he always had a lot of chinaware upon his desk, to show his fellow Congressmen and the visitors in the galleries that his desk was the stand and he the champion of the pottery combines.

It is to be presumed, therefore, that when McKinley says the foreign manufacturers, and not the consumers in the United States, pay the tariff tax, he has in mind that upon crockery ware, with which he claims to be thoroughly conversant. Such being the case, he cannot dodge the following facts, since they deal with his own particular hobby. The time is past when mere assertions of general principles regarding the tariff, no matter by whom made, will be taken as gospel truth. They must be backed up by facts.

For over thirty years we have had very light duties upon crockery and earthenware. During this period combines have been formed among the manufacturers on the one hand to keep up prices and on the other to cut down the wages of the workmen employed in their factories.

These pottery combines charge for their goods all that the tariff will allow, as is shown in the following table, which gives for first quality white granite ware the net wholesale prices as charged by the East Liverpool and Trenton manufacturers in this country and by the pottery manufacturers in England, from which the greater part of our imports come. The prices given are absolutely correct, being taken in each instance from the price lists and discount sheets.

In the table the first column shows the foreign price per dozen, the second the American price, the third the amount which the American price exceeds the foreign price, and the fourth the amount of duties charged on the foreign ware when imported into the United States.

Total 22 doz. assort'd ware	$19.122	$32.042	$12.920	$10.5163

Add to the duties as given above on the ware alone, the duties on the packages and charges, and the cost of importation, the above figures show clearly that the pottery combine charges American consumers all that the tariff will allow.

What, in view of the above facts, becomes of the assertion of McKinley that "the foreigner pays the tax; you don't?"

A Dead Loss.

The standing bids for American tinplate are still unanswered, as the entire "output" seems to be required to supply the Republican campaign committees with badges which all sensible people are ashamed to wear. In the meantime the canning business is being very seriously cramped. Before the tax on tinplate was increased, small canning factories were beginning to spring up through the West, relying on neighborhood supply of fruits and vegetables, and making a living profit both for themselves and the farmers. The business, of course, depends wholly on having tin cans plentiful and cheap. Otherwise these small factories cannot preserve the food at a profit, and it is left to rot in the fields. The farmers of Howard county, Indiana, had such a canning factory at Kokomo, as a "home market" for their surplus vegetables, but the McKinley bill forced an advance of over 25 per cent. in the price of cans. The result is the demoralization of this new industry, which was one of the few the East could not take from the West. "The farmers of Howard county planted hundred of acres of tomatoes," says the Kokomo Dispatch. "The crop is excellent, and every grower stood to realize from $35 to $100 per acre. There is no chance of this now. To-day the Kokomo Canning Works refused to receive another bushel of the vegetable for an indefinite time. The reason given is that cans for packing the tomatoes cannot be had. Thousands of bushels are rotting in the yards at the works. Tons upon tons are decaying in the fields. The loss to Howard County farmers cannot be counted in less than five figures. No wonder they are asking for the whereabouts of the 'infant tin industries.'"

The loss here is a "dead loss." The tinplate combine does not gain it. They get their profit under the tax in other directions. Here this food, which under fair trade would have been marketed to feed the poor of the cities, is lost to them, and the labor required for its production is likewise lost. Where plenty is created as a natural result of labor and trade, artificial scarcity is produced by the tax on trade. The result is a dead loss, in this case as in every case of taxation levied to produce artificial scarcity.—St. Louis Republic.

One Result of Protection.

"I have the authority of the American Economist (the organ of the Protective Tariff League) that in 1889 the number of people in the United States who owned their own homes had in twenty-five years fallen from five-eighths to three-eighths. How long will it take them to fall to one-eighth or one-thousandth? History is not without lessons in this regard, and I quote from the Progress, published in Boston:

"'When Egypt went down 2 per cent. of her people owned 97 per cent. of her wealth. The people were starved to death. When Babylon went down 2 per cent. of her people owned all of her wealth. The people were starved to death. When Persia went down 1 per cent. of her population owned all the land. When Rome went down 1,800 men owned all the known world.'

"In 1850 in this country the capitalists owned 37½ per cent. of our wealth. To-day they own more than twice that amount of our wealth. Have they been more honest, more industrious, more enterprising? Have they lived closer? Have they deserved better at the hands of Providence or of their countrymen than the farmers and wage-workers, or even of the lawyers, doctors and preachers."—Gov. Campbell, at Ada.

COMMERCE AND TARIFFS.

High Tariffs Restrict, Low Tariffs Promote Commerce—What Lessons European Tariffs Teach—Shall the United States Be Classified with Russia and Portugal?

No statement is more commonly made by the advocates of high tariffs than that our example has been adopted by many of the European countries, such as France, Germany, Sweden, etc. It is asserted that these countries have been influenced by the example of Great Britain to follow in the track of the United States, and, finally, that their action in this regard affords the best possible reason why the United States should continue in its high-tariff policy.

A comparison of the imposts and customs duties collected by the leading nations of Europe will sufficiently show the falsity of such claims as the followers of McKinley are now making. Such a comparison is given in the following table:

Belgium, 1888	6.	307.5	5.5	1.82
Switzerland, 1890	3.	165.	5.1	3.39
Netherlands, 1889	4.5	508.	20.	3.93
U. Kingdom, 1889	37.3	2100.	100.	4.76
Germany, 1890	48.	860.	58.	6.74
Aus-Hungary, 1888	40.	267.5	20.	7.49
France, 1890	39.	821.	75.	9.13
Sweden, 1890	4.9	81.	10.	12.57
Norway, 1890	2.	42.7	5.5	12.89
Italy, 1890	30.	235.	53.	22.55
United States, 1889	62.	745.	224.	30.00
Russia in Europe, 1889	88.	159.	58.	36.49
Portugal, 1890	5.2	41.5	19.5	47.00

The duties imposed by the McKinley tariff will raise the average rate in the United States to over 40 per cent., thus placing us next to Portugal in this respect.

The McKinley tariff is regarded by its makers to be the lowest tariff consistent with our protective policy. Such being the case, the United States and Portugal are the only truly protective countries; while of all other countries Russia approaches nearest us in this respect. In accordance with the doctrines of McKinley, all other countries have free trade tariffs. If Germany and France, with duties averaging 6.74 per cent. and 9.13 per cent., respectively, are to be considered protectionist countries, how can McKinley justify an average rate on both free and dutiable goods of over 40 per cent. as but fair protection for the United States?

The above figures give a conclusive answer to Mr. McKinley's statements that a high tariff does not restrict foreign trade. The feebler European countries, as shown in the above table, have a combined population of 308,000,000 and import annually $5,588,000,000 of merchandise. The first four nations having strictly revenue tariffs, their combined duties averaging only 3.90 per cent., have only 16. per cent. of the population and over 55 per cent. of the total commerce.

The next three countries, or Austria, France and Germany, with tariffs which are largely for revenue and but slightly protective, their combined duties averaging only 8 per cent., have 41 per cent. of the population and 34.8 per cent of the commerce.

On the other hand, Italy, Portugal, and Russia are, like the United States, highly protective, their duties averaging over 30 per cent., have over 40 per cent. of the population, and only 7.7 per cent. of the total imports.

Briefly summarized, the amount of imports per head of population is as follows:

	Av. duty.	Per cap.
First group	3.90 per cent.	$60.58
Second group	8.00 per cent.	15.34
Third group	30.00 per cent.	3.53

Can any evidence establish more conclusively the destructive influence of high tariffs upon commerce? Leaving out of consideration the effect of high tariffs upon the advancement of nations in civilization, why should we follow the policy of Russia and Portugal, and restrict and pervert the development of our enormous resources?

TARIFF SHOT.

The Home Market for Wheat of Which Protectionists Boast.

In March, 1890, the statistician of the Department of Agriculture published a report showing the production and distribution of the wheat crop of 1888. In this report he "gave away" the home market, which protectionists boast has been established by high tariffs. The following are his figures, graphically illustrated:

Total wheat crop in 1888, 415,868,000 bushels, of which 181,750,078 bushels were consumed by the farmers themselves in the county where grown.

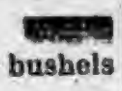
and 54,012,702 bushels were used by the farmers for seed.



Of the remainder, 88,600,743 bushels were exported, leaving 91,504,437 bushels, a part of which was held in reserve, a part consumed in markets claimed by no one to have been built up by protection, and the remainder consumed in home market provided by protection.

In 1888, or sixty-two years after Clay launched his "American System" to provide a "home market" for our surplus farm produce, we find that the boasted home market takes less than 25 per cent. of our crop of wheat, exclusive of that reserved for seed, while we continue to export over 24½ per cent. of it.

For the Farmers to Consider.

In its issue for Oct. 16 the American Economist, the organ of the Protective Tariff League, publishes a chart showing the price of wheat and flour under the low tariffs, from 1850 to 1860, and under the high tariff since 1860, which it points to as showing the triumphs of high tariffs.

It shows that wheat went up in price from 2.6c per pound in 1850 to 3c per pound in 1860, or over 15¼ per cent. Under the high tariffs it fell to 2.3c per pound in 1887, or a fall of over 23 per cent.

This fall in price of over 23 per cent. is ascribed by the Economist to the high tariff.

THE gold coming back from Europe, over which the Republicans are 'cackling so, is brought back by Western farm products dug out of the ground by unprotected Western work and sold under free trade. The products of the highly protected machines of the McKinley corporations are not bringing it back. The Plutocratic machine-owners do not trouble themselves to go abroad after gold. They content themselves with taking it after it gets here. If the farmer, whose products brought it, demands his share, they call him a "crank" and a "calamity shrieker."

THE water of the central basin of the Mediterranean has been found to be warmer, denser and richer in dissolved salts than the western. While a white disk was only visible at forty-three meters, photographic plates were affected at 500 meters.

WITH AN UNSEEN POWER.

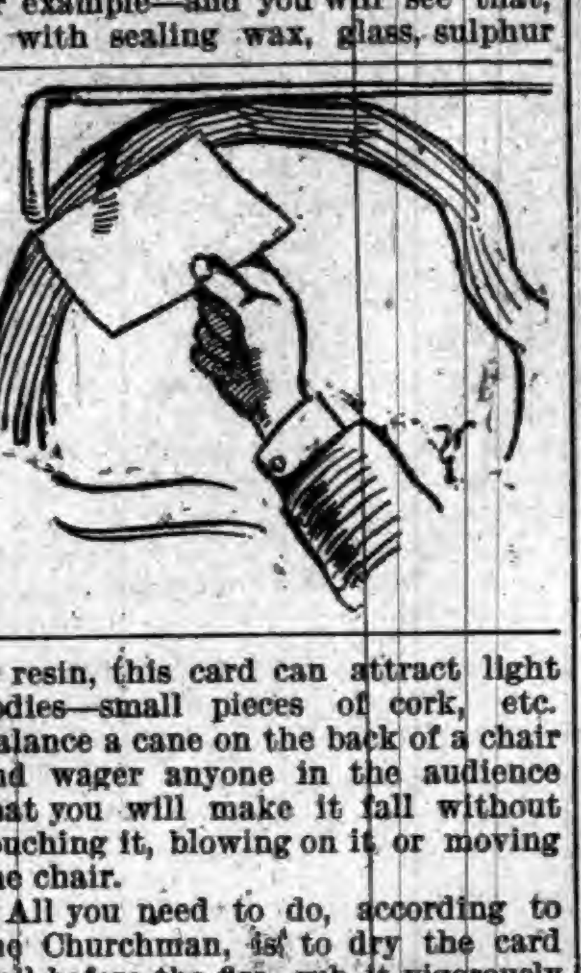
On a dry day rub with a brush, or with the hand, a thin piece of paper; it will become electrified in a short time and adhere to your hand, your face or your coat as if it had glue on it, and you will not be able to get rid of it.

Electrify, in the same manner, a thick piece of paper—a postal card, for example—and you will see that, as with sealing wax, glass, sulphur or resin, this card can attract light bodies—small pieces of cork, etc. Balance a cane on the back of a chair and wager anyone in the audience that you will make it fall without touching it, blowing on it or moving the chair.



All you need to do, according to the Churchman, is to dry the card well before the fire, rub it vigorously with your sleeve and put it close to one end of the cane, which will follow it as iron follows a magnet, until, having lost its equilibrium, the cane will fall to the floor.

A Woman's Memory.

"Memory, the warder of the brain," says Shakspeare, but with many it would seem that the full meaning of the aphorism is sadly lost. Almost everyone has some sort of a memory, good, bad or indifferent, as the case may be, but one person out of every fifty has some process or other intended to aid their memory, hoping in time to be able to retain in mind all matters worthy of retention.

This recalls to a writer in the Kansas City Times a story told of a young lady friend, who has lately taken on the fad of "memory brushing." She confided in a gentleman acquaintance that she was poor at dates, a sad failure on place and weak on events.

"How may I learn to retain things in my mind as they should be?" she exclaimed, as if in disgust at her intellectual shortcomings.

"Oh, that is easy," replied he, "as all you have to do in each case is to form some little couplet with anything you wish to remember and you will never forget it."

"Explain," she said.

"For instance," the gentleman replied,

"In fourteen hundred and ninety-two Columbus sailed the ocean blue."

The young lady was in a high state of glee at such a practical and really beautiful manner of aiding memory, and her thanks were profuse.

Time went by—two days, I believe—when the two met again.

"How are you getting on with the couplets?" asked he.

"Capitally?" she exclaimed.

"A pound of candy goes that you don't remember what I told you, verbatim," he banteringly said, and she took the bet on the spot. Then she rattled off the words:

"In fourteen hundred and ninety-three Columbus sailed the deep blue sea."

A Mystified Monkey.

An officer in India gave his tame monkey a lump of sugar inside a corked bottle of such stout glass that it could not well be broken. The monkey was of an inquiring mind, and it nearly killed it. Sometimes, in an impulse of disgust, it would throw the bottle away out of its own reach, and then be distracted until it was given back to it. At others it would sit with a countenance of most intense dejection contemplating the bottled sugar, and then, as if pulling itself together for another effort at solution, would take up the bottle afresh, and gaze into it.

It would tilt it up one way and try to get the sugar out of the neck, and then, suddenly reversing it, try to catch the sweet morsel as it fell out, under the impression that it would capture it by surprise. It kept rapping its teeth against the glass in futile bites, and, warming to the pursuit of the revolving lump, used to tie itself into regular knots round the bottle. Fits of the most ludicrous melancholy would alternate with these spasms of furious calculation, and how the matter would have ended it is impossible to say.

But the monkey one night got away, and took the bottle with it, and it has always been a delight to its former owner to think that whole forests full of monkeys have by this time puzzled themselves into fits over the great problem of bottled sugar. What profound theories these long-tailed philosophers must have evolved! What polemical acrimony that bottle must have provoked! And what a Confucius the original monkey must have become! A single morning with such a sanhedrim discussing such a matter would surely have satiated even Swift with satire.

CHARLES ALGERNON SWINBURNE, the fleshly poet, has been visiting in a house in Cheltenham which was originally built for and occupied by Sir Walter Raleigh. We should think Sir Walter's ghost would haunt him for the remark Swinburne once made, after going through every room in one of the London clubs, looking for one in which there was no tobacco being smoked: "King James was a scoundrel of the deepest dye; but I honor and respect him, because he slit the throat of that other villain, Sir Walter Raleigh, who introduced the custom of smoking in England."

IN Australia there is manufactured a hat which is said to resemble the Panama hat very closely. It is made from the unexpanded leaves of a native plant, which are immersed in boiling water and then dried. The fiber obtained from this treatment is plaited as in South America.

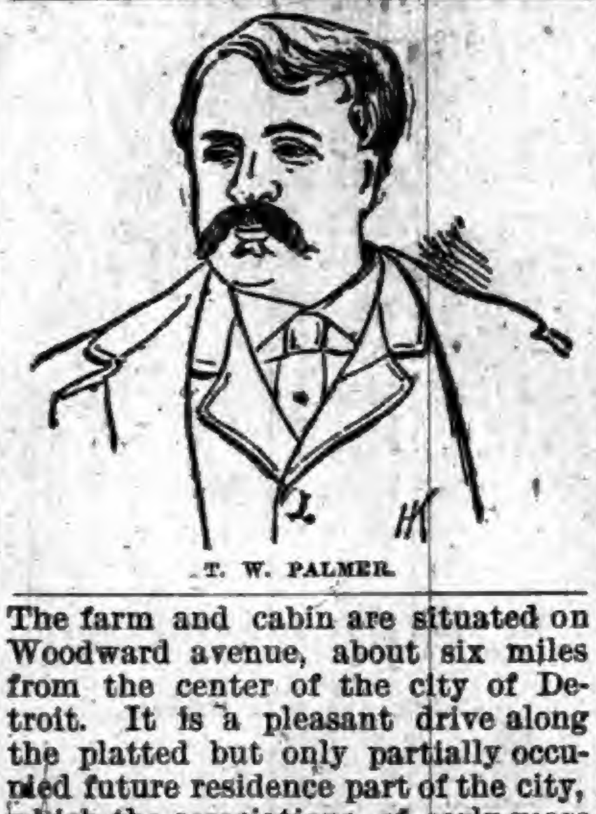
PALMER'S GREAT HOBBY.

Where the World's Fair President Has Lavished His Money.

It is a tableaux vivant, a living picture of colonial life in its most attractive phase, this log cabin, the summer home of the Hon. T. W. Palmer, ex-Minister to Spain, and the portly and genial President of the World's Fair. Next to the Spanish baby, the choicest treasure found on another continent, this is the most valued of his possessions. Here he forgets for a time the turmoil of public life and becomes—as he loves to call himself—a horny-handed farmer.



T. W. PALMER.

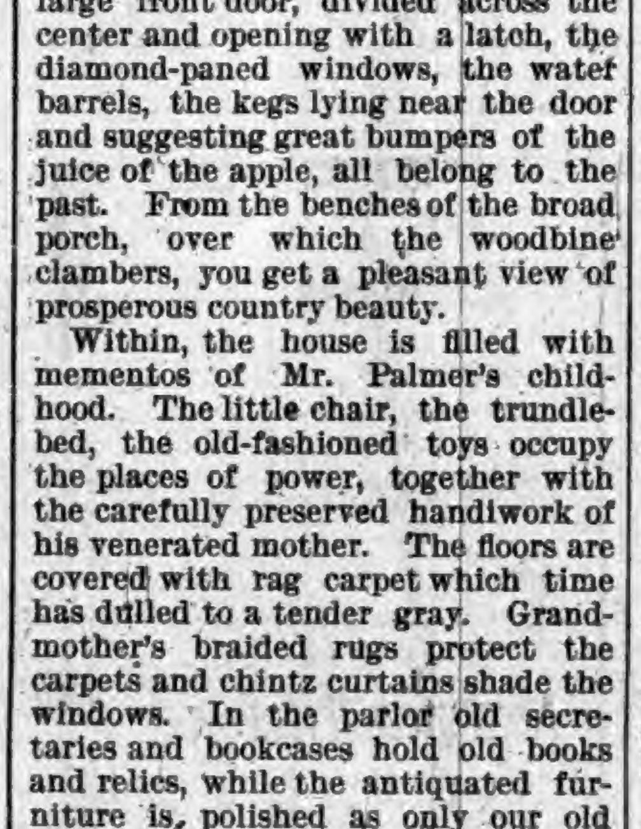
The farm and cabin are situated on Woodward avenue, about six miles from the center of the city of Detroit. It is a pleasant drive along the platted but only partially occupied future residence part of the city, which the associations of early years have made the Mecca of his wanderings. From Woodward avenue the cabin is reached by a maple-lined driveway skirted to the right by tiers of natural woods, the foliage a perfect study of beautiful coloring, while on the left a willow-fringed stream

Sparkles out among the fern
To bicker down the valley.

A rail fence incloses the lawn, a rustic gate opens the way to the well-house, where an old-time bucket gives mute invitation to drink, and who could refuse a draught from such a poet-honored source.

A soft, sinking carpet-like sward slopes from the house to the river. The house is a veritable log house, built in colonial style, and in all the details carefully carrying out the characteristics of the time when our forefathers loyally cried out, "God bless the good Queen Anne." The large front door, divided across the center and opening with a latch, the diamond-paned windows, the water barrels, the kegs lying near the door and suggesting great bumpers of the juice of the apple, all belong to the past. From the benches of the broad porch, over which the woodbine clambers, you get a pleasant view of prosperous country beauty.

Within, the house is filled with mementos of Mr. Palmer's childhood. The little chair, the trundle-bed, the old-fashioned toys occupy the places of power, together with the carefully preserved handiwork of his venerated mother. The floors are covered with rag carpet which time has dulled to a tender gray. Grandmother's braided rugs protect the carpets and chintz curtains shade the windows. In the parlor old secretaries and bookcases hold old books and relics, while the antiquated furniture is, polished as only our old grandmothers could do it. The straight-backed chairs are adorned with patch-work cushions, and from cords fastened across the raftered ceiling are hung hanks of yarn such as were spun by the good wife's busy hand. In the dining-room a venerable four-poster, valanced and covered with a patchwork quilt, shares the room with the large dining-table. The dash churn and a spinning-wheel, innocent of ribbons or gilding, stand by the hearth. On a shell rests the well-scoured brass kettle in which were compounded all manner of jams and conserves, while fragrant and pungent herbs droop from the ceiling. Antique furniture fills the upper rooms, where ingeniously constructed trap-doors open to hiding-places in case of Indian attack. All through the house is carried out the same thought of the past, and the visitor unconsciously expects to meet some white-capped dame walking with stately digntiy through the rooms or greet a rosy-cheeked Ruth or Priscilla hastening backward or forward to the music of the hurrying wheel. But the house, withal so homely, has yet that air of beauty and luxury which only wealth and good taste can give.



AN ARTISTIC OLD CABIN.

Near to the house is a wood of some extent, where a great amount of ingenuity has been exercised. It is as nature made it except for drives that have been cleared through it and made to cross and recross in such a labyrinthine style that the puzzled traveler would be lost but for the many signboards nailed to the trees. By their aid he passes from Surprise avenue to Sassafras lane, from Sylvan avenue to the bower where Senator Palmer has entertained many distinguished guests, who, coming expecting little, have had indifference turned to admiration. One of the features of the lawn is the group of trees planted by Senators who have visited the farm. Among the names of those who have performed the task are some of the most notable of American statesmen.

Jersey avenue leads from the woods to the barns and offices of the farm. The farm has 700 acres, and is in a perfect state of cultivation. If the house is antiquated, all the agricultural operations are carried on with the latest improvements and conveniences. The stables are filled with noble Percheron horses, about 150 in all. Even those that are employed in daily work seem to disdain the earth they tread. The animals in the sale stables are types of massive power and beauty, from the snow-white Anchovite, who for thirty years has been the pride of the farm, to the latest addition, Fenelon, whose jetty form seems a fit dwelling-place for some hero of the Valhalla.

On the farm there is a large herd of Jersey cows, who graze quietly indifferent to the fact that theirs is a long pedigree, and that to possess them means a small fortune; equally careless, too, that Mrs. Palmer should pass them by to lavish her attentions upon the common red cow which is her special pet.

Speculators cast covetous eyes upon this property, and many inducements are offered Mr. Palmer to part with it. One syndicate offered a million for it, but was refused.

"I almost parted with it a short time ago," said Mr. Palmer to a friend, "but I am thankful ever since that I did not, for then I would have been left without a hobby."

Not in the Line of Election.

We do not hear much of the religious views or denominational predilection of men in political life, but as a matter of fact these views and predilections are often very pronounced, albeit with statesmen who are not pillars of the church nor even sleepers in it.

Senator Vance, of North Carolina, unquestionably the champion story teller of the Senate, has a broad stripe of Calvinism down his back, though he is not a communicant in the church. It is told of him that riding along in Buncombe County one day he overtook a darky, with whom he thought to have "a little fun."

"Uncle," said the Governor, "are you going to church?"

"No sah, not edzactly—I'm gwine back from church."

"You're a Baptist, I reckon—now, ain't you?"

"No, sah, I ain't no Baptist, do most of de brederen and sisters about here has been under de water."

"Methodist, then?"

"No, sah, I ain't no Mefodis nudder."

"Campbellite?"

"Well, what in the name of goodness are you, then?" rejoined the Governor, remembering the narrow range of choice in religions among the North Carolina negroes.

"Well, de fac' is, sah, my old marster was a Herruld of de Cross in de Presbyterian Church and I was fetch up in dat faith."

"What! You don't mean it? Why, that is my church."

The negro making no comment on this announcement, Governor Vance went at him again:

"And do you believe in all of the Presbyterian creed?"

"Yes, sah, dat I does."

"Do you believe in the doctrine of predestination?"

"I dunno dat I recognize de name, sah."

"Why, do you believe that if a man is elected to be saved he will be saved and that if he is elected to be damned he will be damned?"

"Oh, yes, boss, I believe dat. It's gospel talk, dat is."

"Well, now, take my case. Do you believe that I am elected to be saved?"

The old man struggled for a minute with his desire to be respectful and polite, and then shook his head dubiously.

"Come, now, answer my question," pressed the Governor. "What do you say?"

"Well—I tell you what 'tis, Marse Zeb: Ise been libin' in dis hyah world nigh on sixty years, and I nebber yit hyard of any man bein' 'lected 'dout he was a candidate."—Mercury.

Mock Battles in the Sixteenth Century.

Grand army maneuvers are not a modern institution in central Europe. Already in the sixteenth century small German states got their militia into camp at irregular intervals and gave them instructions in the work of the battlefield. Such maneuvers were comparatively frequent in Nassau-Dillenburg and the Pfalz and in many little Protestant states during the Dutch-Spanish wars. The greatest maneuvers of the old days, however, were held in France in 1698 in the vicinity of Compiegne under the command of Marshal Bouflers. Saint-Simon described them at length. The army of 60,000 men was assembled that the young Duke of Burgundy might have an object lesson in the art of war. The whole camp was, however, one big carousal. The Commander-in-chief, says Saint-Simon, "set the whole world in amazement at his pomp and the exquisite luxury of his court feasts." The best of food and wines were served in the officers' quarters to all men of rank who visited the field. A little city of palaces was erected for the maneuvers, and everybody except the privates lived as luxuriously as he could in Paris. As there were then no military attaches of foreign legations the ambassadors themselves were entertained by the Commander-in-chief. On the door of every prince and French cardinal was the inscription, "For—;" on the door of every other guest, however, only the name of the occupant of the house, without a preceding "for." This slight was very near to cansing real war, as the ambassadors protested against the slight involved in the omission of the preposition. Barrels of ink and reams of paper were wasted in the controversy over the door signs, but the King persisted that ordinary persons in camp must do without "for" on their doors. In the presence of the King, who appeared at camp with Mme. de Maintenon, several sham fights were conducted in open field, and there was even a sham attack on Compiegne. Bouflers received from the King eventually 100,000 livres as indemnification for his expenditure at the great carousal during the maneuvers, but this sum covered but a small part of the Marshal's personal expenses in the Sybaritic encampment.

The Dull Thudder.

It is evident that there will have to be a national party organized, perhaps a dynamite party, to annihilate the fiends who write for newspapers and everlastingly use the expression, "dull thud." With these writers anything and everything falls with a dull thud, from the carcass of a man who is hung for crime to the æsthetic and fairy-like maiden who experiments on roller skates. Every day for a month the dispatches have contained a "dull thud" or two, and the local writers of the city and country papers have described the falling of more things with "dull thuds" than would fill a box car. The expression originated with a reporter for a paper published in Europe, many centuries ago, in reference to a man who fell off the highest pinnacle of a mountain, and struck several miles below, with a "dull thud." It might have been an appropriate expression at that time, but during the hundreds of years that have passed since the dull thud has been worn so that it creates a smile when the wayfaring man reads about such a fall. The dull thud is almost equal, in amusement, to the expression always used by new reporters in describing a fire, "the scene beggars description." Many people have been driven to desperation by reading of the dull thud, and a stop should be put to it. Some newspapers make a rule that any person who uses the expression "dull thud" shall be at once discharged, but within a week the managing editor, or the proprietor of the paper will write something editorial, descriptive of a fall, and will unconsciously work in the dull thud, when, of course, the rule is suspended. There is no expression that seems to linger about in the recesses of the brain, ready to come forth unawares, like the dull thud. Dramatic critics, in speaking of some unusual bit of acting, describe the heroine falling, swooning, into the arms of the hero, with a dull thud. If we could have a sharp thud, for a change, it would brace newspaper readers up so they could stand another season of dull thud, but nobody seems to take the responsibility of making the change. What it wants is a society of desperate men, men who would not hesitate to commit murder, who shall band together and be bound by a bloody oath. It should be their duty to read the papers and when they see the expression "dull thud" they should haunt the newspaper office until they have discovered the perpetrator, and then follow him to the free-lunch counter, and while he is firing the liver sausage down his neck, poison his beer, or choke him to death, and place upon the body a paper with a skull and cross-bones, and a warning, "This shall be the fate of all dull thudders." A reign of terror could be inaugurated that would, after a few hundred dull thudders had been slain, wipe out the senseless practice of causing everything to fall with a dull thud. Let such a band be organized, and cause the first man who uses the expression, "dull thud," to fall in his tracks, by the hand of the avengers, with a dull thud.—Peck's Sun.

Come to Stay.

The terribly aggravated form of influenza, which physicians on the continent of Europe designate as "la grippe," seems to have effected a permanent lodgment this side the Atlantic. It makes its reappearance as soon as the cool weather sets in, and not infrequently [illegible] the summer months. In the spring it is rampant. Nothing checks its first attack, or so effectually counteracts its subsequent ravages, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The fortifying, invigorating influence of that beneficent tonic protects the system against the dangers which beset a feeble physique and a weakly constitution consequent upon abrupt transitions of temperature. It diffuses a genial warmth through the diaphragm, which is the best corrective or preventive of a chill, and is a means of neutralizing the effect of exposure in damp or rigorous weather. In dyspepsia, liver complaint, costiveness, rheumatism, malarial and kidney troubles it is never resorted to without good results.

Typewriter Champion.

Frank E. McGurrin, of Salt Lake City, claims the championship as the fastest typewriter in the world. He does not glance at the key-board while reading copy. He covers the board with his hands and uses the finger movement, instead of the wrist movement. His record is 124½ words, exclusive of errors, from dictation, in a minute. On a single memorized sentence he wrote at the rate of 156 words in a minute. Miss Orr and Miss Grant, of New York, are the only operators who approach McGurrin in swiftness and accuracy. McGurrin defeated Miss Orr by three words, and was afterward defeated by her. Miss Orr's best record is 93 4-5 words a minute.

A Mild Winter.

A Milwaukee weather prophet predicts another mild winter, with no severely cold weather until the latter part of February. He bases his conclusions upon the direction of the winds at the time of the autumnal equinox, which, he affirms, determines their prevailing direction for the ensuing three months.

Happy Baby!

Because he is healthy. There is no baby comfort but in health. There is no baby beauty but in health.

All his comfort is from fat, and most of his beauty. Fat is almost everything to him. That is why babies are fat. It is baby's wealth, his surplus laid by. What he does not need for immediate use he tucks under his velvet skin to cushion him out and keep the hard world from touching him.

This makes curves and dimples. Nature is fond of turning use into beauty.

All life inside; all fat outside. He has nothing to do but to sleep and grow.

You know all this—at least you feel it. When baby is plump you are as happy as he is. Keep him so.

But what if the fat is not there? Poor baby! we must get it there. To be thin for a baby, is to lose what belongs to him. Why should the little mortal begin his life with suffering.

Go to your doctor. Don't be dosing your baby when all it needs is a little management.

Surplus Production.

California has more than bountiful harvests this year. Not nearly all of her fruit can be disposed of and the potato crop is so enormously large that thousands of bushels are being allowed to rot in the fields. A prominent grower says that in one district, near Sacramento, no less than 60,000 bushels of potatoes were not dug, because it would not pay to market them. Some of the growers plowed up the potatoes and allowed them to remain on the ground as a fertilizer for the other crops which were put in.

IT gives us pleasure to refer to the advertisement of Dr. W. H. Tutt which appears in our columns. For over twenty-five years Tutt's Pills have been before the public, and each succeeding year their valuable properties become better appreciated. They now stand second to none for the relief of that much abused and overtaxed organ, the liver, and for the removal of that cause of so many ills, constipation. They are used in every civilized country, and carry with them voluminous testimonials of their safety and efficacy. Tutt's Liver Pills should have a place in every household.

LOGAN, Ohio, Oct. 18, 1890.

I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic in the case of a 13-year old boy for a case of St. Vitus Dance of two years' standing. His condition was most lamentable, as his limbs were constantly in motion, and at table his hands could not hold knife, fork or spoon. The effect of this medicine was at once noticeable to all, and the boy himself remarked, "I know it helps me," and before the second bottle was used up, he insisted that there was no necessity of taking more as he was entirely cured.

JOHN S. BOOTS,

Spencerville, Ind.

MY DEAR BROTHER:—It seems a long time since I wrote you or heard from you—I don't know how long. This Sunday evening we are alone; Charles is at Oakland, Willie at Stanford University and Mary away, so it seems so lonesome that I take my pen and paper to while away the moments.

The Stanford University opened on last Thursday. I took Willie over and left him there. It now is simply a grand outlook. I wish you could see it. The court contains five acres in an oblong square, all surrounded with solid cut stone buildings, and finished in the finest style. I will try and send you a paper with descriptions.

I am now very busy with our tomatoes. We are just about half through with a contract we have of thirty thousand boxes, 60 lbs. per box; which is equal to thirty thousand bushels. We are now sending away from 800, to a little over 1,000 per day and you may rest assured it makes a good deal of work; though twenty of us, all told, pick, haul and ship the whole amount. But there is a good deal of work attending the operation. One firm wants me to contract with it, next year, ninety thousand boxes. I don't think I will take it. I am growing too old. If I were as I was a few years ago, I would take it. But what is the use now. I get so tired after being on the wagon all the day and lifting boxes. This has been a bad year for me. I got tangled up in a big fruit failure, and nearly all my fruit crop went under in the operation. I may get 15 cents on the dollar. But I guess we will have enough left to pay the taxes, and that is better than many are.

Some how, I am feeling anxious, when I look back over the years. It will soon be forty years since I pulled out from the old home. It is a long time to be away. Do you know the hankering for our old play grounds never leaves us, for there has been no play grounds since. For us all, stone-hard work. But there is nothing in life worth the having without labor.

I have been thinking of Dr. Ford this evening; also of Swineford and Ralston, and, in fact, of so many others that are far away, and may be are no more—may be that is why I feel lonesome to-night. I hope you are all well. I have not been quite well for some time. I got overheated in June, and it hurt me.

Do you hear from the brothers and sisters? I seldom hear from them.

Ah San, the Chinaman, often asks about you. I expect he will go to China this winter, and if so, I fear he will not be able to get back again. He has been with me twenty-one years and is faithful still.

I have too much to tell you to put in a letter but must cease writing for the present. Your Brother, WILLIAM.

NEEDED LEGISLATION.

Baking Powder Bill by the Minnesota Senate.

[St. Paul Dispatch.]

The recent newspaper discussion of the dangerous qualities of ammonia comes from the alarming increase of its use in baking powders. People who absorb it from day to day suffer from slow ammonia poisoning. Taken internally in sufficient quantities it eats away the coatings of the stomach and intestines and causes death. Slow ammonia poisoning produces various forms of stomach trouble.

Not one woman in ten thousand would use an ammonia baking powder if she knew it. Such powders not only undermine the health, but ammonia imparts a sallow and blotched complexion.

Following is the bill recently passed by the Minnesota Senate. It's the danger signal which the law throws out for the protection of the people:

Section 1. Any person who shall knowingly sell or procure the sale, or offer for sale of any package or can of baking powder, containing any ammonia in it, not distinctly, legibly and durably branded, stamped or marked in a conspicuous place with the words in the English language "This Baking Powder contains Ammonia" in letters of great pica, or any letters equivalent thereto in length, shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and punished by a fine not less than ten or more than twenty days or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

Section 2—The sale or offer for sale of the substance mentioned in the foregoing section in packages not stamped, marked, branded or labeled as therein required, shall be prima-facie evidence of knowledge of the character of said substance, on the part of the person so selling or offering for sale and his employer.

Section 3—This act shall be in force on and after its passage.

NOTE.—An incident occurred in the house when the senate bill came up for passage, in reference to an amendment proposed by Mr. Diment. This was opposed by several members. Mr. Feig said that if the bill as it came from the senate was all right then the amendment was all wrong. The amendment compelling the printing of the word "Ammonia" on the label only affected the Royal Baking Powder, and no wonder they felt the senate bill was a blow at them.

Mrs. B. B. Long is another sufferer from some sneak-thief's depredation. A lovely calla was taken from the piazza, in the night. She valued it for its beauty, but far more because she brought it from California, selecting the bulb from Frank Long's collection.

Monday evening before dark, Mrs. Winslow was startled by something coming with great force against the dining room window in front of which her bird cage hangs. Investigation proved the aggressor to be an owl, after the canary bird for a dainty morsel. For a little the force with which it struck the window seemed to stun it, but presently it flew from the ground onto a new frame for a vine, where it remained in full view for fifteen minutes when it flew away. It would seem as if there is some cause for birds that usually are shy, to leave the forest and visit the homes of men. During fair week in Waterloo, a quail was in the willow tree in front of Mrs. W's. house for some time giving forth the sweet sounds peculiar to it. The last seen of it, it flew to the highest point on the house, where it seemed to have settled for the night.

Sowder's two miles northeast of Butler, last Friday, Mr. Sowder, who was feeding the machine had his left hand caught by the cylinder and before he could release it, he lost all of his hand but the thumb. The injured member was dressed by Dr. Fanning, who reports him doing as well as could be hoped for.

It is reported on what seems to be good authority that the Wabash has leased the Chicago and Erie, the line up on which it now enters Chicago for a period of twenty five years, that this has been accomplished through the Lake Shore, and that the Lake Shore has secured the right of way over the old Canada Southern recently purchased by men in the employ of the Wabash and that the Lake Shore will finish the Fayett branch to the Wabash line, then over that and its own lines open a line of travel from Detroit to Ft. Wayne and Indianapolis.

Fatal Accident.

Monday afternoon a fatal accident occurred at the Webster bridge across the St. Joe, in Stafford township. They were moving and getting into place some very heavy stones for the abutments and were using a derrick to move them. Albert Harris, of this place, was following behind a large stone that had to be moved, and, contrary to the orders of the contractor, Mr. Wheelock, he insisted on keeping close to it and hold of it to guide it along, between and over two other large stones that were in about the line it was to move. Mr. Wheelock told him to keep away, as the stone would go along anyway, but Harris kept up with it and with his hands on it as it passed over the two other stones, and as it cleared itself from them its whole weight came suddenly on the rope, which broke, letting the stone down, and the derrick, falling directly on Harris, crushed him instantly. He did not even move. Some of the other men had a narrow escape. At once they rushed to assist him, but he was dead. His back was broken, and his neck, while his head was crushed in. It was a sickening sight. Work stopped, of course, and they picked him up and did what they could to put his crushed form into shape, and sorrowfully started home to Auburn. It was a great shock to the relatives here, his wife, who is a daughter of J. J. Latson, and his brothers, three of whom reside in this place. The funeral was held the next day, services being at the Lutheran church by Rev. J. D. Brosy. Deceased was a hardworking man, and had always made a livelihood by labor. We believe he left little or no property. As we understand the case, no one was at fault, unless it may be his own want of care. The rope was a good two-inch one, and had sustained such weights before. But, as before stated, the sudden drop from its partial support on the two other stones, caused it to snap asunder. Mr. Wheelock is a careful man, and has had much experience in work of this kind and had often cautioned the men to be careful. It is a sad accident, and one that should teach better care in the future.

A Pure Baking Powder.

A baking powder that can be depended upon to be free from lime and alum is a desideratum in these days of adulterated food. So far as can be judged from the official reports, the "Royal" seems to be the only one yet found by chemical analyses to be entirely without one or the other of these substances, and absolutely pure. This, it is shown, results from the exclusive use by its manufacturers of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartarate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the Royal, the manufacturers of which control the patents under which it is refined.

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, and whose intimate knowledge of the ingredients of all of all those sold in this market enables him to speak authoritatively, says of the purity, wholesomeness, and superior quality of the Royal:

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by both the United States and Canadian Governments, show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power. It is not only the most economical in use, but makes the purest, finest flavored and most wholesome food.

AGAIN ON THE WING.

A few Items of Interest as they were picked up by our Office Bird in his Flight Across the Country.

The cool, pleasant and sunshiny fall days, together with the hard, dry roads, make pedestrianating in the country very exhilarating and delightful. Then too, there are so many attractive natural scenes to look upon—pretty pictures as it were, whose deep, rich colors were brushed and retouched by the strangely artistic hand of nature, calling out the noblest impulses and appreciative nature man possesses. Autumn is certainly a glorious season of the year.

James Bleeks of Newville township, was one of the jolly old fellows we met while touring through the St. Joe valley. "Uncle Jim," as the boys call him, now represents what was once a powerful man The bloom of youth no longer flushes his cheeks, and the tall, stately and well-built frame is bending low with age; instead of the quick elastic step, a cane is required to make his walking certain. It is said of him that when he was younger, he could bite or break a common nail in two, which feat, to say the least, would put many of our blacksmiths to no little disadvantage with pinchers.

I soon found myself Thursday afternoon, within the limits of the old and picturesque town of Spencerville. The town is not a large one, but serves its purpose as an important trading point. Had the B. & O., railroad run through there as the citizens desired, the place no doubt would have been quite large by this time. But being deprived of almost every stimulus for advancement, it settled down long years ago, to take things as they come, sustain as much of its original importance as possible and make the best of circumstances. The murky waters of the river flow along as serenely as in days of yore and many old landmarks still remain to remind the the pioneers of the days when that particular section of country was a dense forest where all nature seemed to be sole monarch of the wood. A few quaint old log cabins stand as monuments of the early settlers' pride. The business men are prospering and the community-at-large richly enjoy the beauty and wealth of the country.

Steward Brothers' sawmill and tile factory is an enterprise of which the people can well feel proud. Much valuable machinery is used in manufactureing a quality of goods to meet the demands of a modern trade.

O. W. Rummel, the good-natured harness maker, has been established about thirty years, enjoys a liberal patronage and reads the COURIER.

The blacksmith establishment of Baltz & Smith was found fully equipped to do almost every kind of work common to the trade. The proprietors are gentlemen of integrity, and by their honest industry have built up a business that is permanent. Mr. Baltz is also connected with a hotel, the only one in the village, and hereafter, the COURIER will be found where patrons can avail themselves of its rich, rare and newsy contents, after having eaten a good meal at the hotel table. Properly speaking, no hotel or restaurant is complete with all modern advantages, unless the COURIER is within easy reach of all who are anxious to read.

John H. Scott runs a cooper and general repair shop. He has facilities for doing a first-class grade of work in his line at reasonable rates, and every piece of work is sent out under a positive guarantee. The public is cordially invited to call when in need of his valuable assistance. Wisdom has induced him to seek culture and development as a support to his mental equilibruim by investigating the plain, simple, interesting and very accurate columns of the COURIER. His course is creditable and will bring happiness to him in the future.

W. C. McNabb, successor to I. N. Hursh, is conducting a first-class butcher shop. All kinds of fresh and cured meats, oysters, fish, etc., always kept in stock. He is a very pleasant young man and the short acquaintance with him evdenced the fact that industrious young fellows are to be found elsewhere, as well as in Auburn.

Scott & Silberg are running a lunch counter, confectionery and tobacco store. They are enjoying the returns of a profitable business, as do all those who are located along the Old St. Joe.

J. A. Provines is one of that jolly set of boys, who went out in the service of his country when it needed him. He is now the postmaster and has the postoffice located in his drug store. He has been established about nineteen years, and besides being postmaster and a first-class druggist, he owns a large dry goods establishment farther down the street, where can be seen a complete stock of dry goods, groceries, boots, shoes hats, caps and general furnishings. The acquaintance with him, though short, was very profitable.

It is said there is more mail matter is handled at Spencerville, which is actually received by local readers, than at any other office of its size near by. This is a powerful evidence that the people in the community are intelligent. Whenever you go into a farm house, from one to six newspapers are to found, which are studied with care by members of the family. To say that this study is of no avail would be erroneous, as a few minutes conversation will convince one that even the small boys are well-informed upon many of the leading topics of the day. The newpapers, as educators, are properly fulfilling their important mission.

Beams Brothers are conducting an extensive business in general dry goods, groceries, hardware, furniture, etc. Their undertaking department is very complete.

D. H. Dove is proprietor of the sample room. He is the only man in that business there, and of course, does a large business, and reads the COURIER.

Theodore Kressly runs a blacksmith and general repair shop. The muscles of his brawny arms are made strong by the good, healthy business he is in.

The inkslinger very suddenly came to the cider mill plant of B. F. Wasson. It is equipped with a late improved hydraulic press, which is a novel production of inventive genius, and proves by actual demonstration the power of a very small stream of water when forced through a pipe. For convenience and ready pressure it equals anything we ever saw.

At Orangeville, Adam Chubb, the grocer, was found in his new and roomy store room. He supplys the demand in that vicinity for light hardware, groceries, confectionery, tobacco, cigars, general produce, boots and shoes. He has qualities about him, which at once make the stranger feel at ease. His daughter attends the store most of the time.

Ed. Wyatt is postmaster at Newville, and is a very sociable sort of a fellow.

Newville is quite a little burg. Several business houses supply the necessities of life. While there, a pleasant chat was had with John W. Tarney, who conducts a wagon and general repair shop.

At Butler, we called upon Geo. Kehrer, the druggist, who is proprietor of one of the most extensive drug, book and stationery establishments in that town. Several clerks are employed in doing a large and profitable business. He is the oldest drugist there, and has been established for sixteen years.

C. J. Nedry, the once hustling clerk for E. M. Bishop, here, now occupies one of the neatest little business rooms in Butler. Clyde was always a neat fellow, and his well-stocked and carefully arranged room speaks in unmistakable terms of the interest he is taking to please his customers.

Strength and Health.

If you are not feeling strong and healthy, try Electric Bitters. If "La-Grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on liver, stomach and kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with sick headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Large bottles only 50c., at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 6

The Doctors are Guilty.

Grave mistakes are made by physicians in treating heart disease. The rate of sudden deaths is daily increasing. Hundreds become victims of the ignorance of physicians in the treatment of this disease. One in four persons has a diseased heart. Shortness of breath, palpitation and fluttering, irregular pulse, choking sensation, asthmatic breathing, pain or tenderness in side, shoulder or arm, weak or hungry spells, are symptoms of reliable remedy. Thousands testify to its wonderful cures. Books free. Sold by F. E. Davenport. 6

She Committed Suicide.

Mrs. F. C. Boe, at Watkins, left this letter: "My husband—Forgive me if I cause you trouble, but I suffer so. You do not know what these long, wakeful, wretched nights are to me, and I am so tired, darling—the pain will never be better. It is not easy to take my own life, but I have been sick so long. Good bye, my husband, I love you—your wife." This is but one of thousands that give up, instead of using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and become speedily cured of their wretchedness. Go to F. E. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1855—Continued.

The selections had in view the literary wants of all classes and ages and purposed the gratification of every calling and pursuit in life. With moral culture, taste and refinement, was blended the inculcation of virture, the fostering of temperance and the strengthening of patriotism.

It gave a wonderful impulse to popular reading, and the enterprise is an honor to its projectors.

The statute contemplated the distribution solely in townships under control of the trustee, and incorporated towns were only by construction included.

This difficulty was seen by thoughtful and public-spirited citizens of Auburn and to procure for the town's people the evident advantages of these cyclopediac libraries, a meeting was held on July 23, for the election of trustees of the farmer's and mechanic's association then formed, for the purpose of procuring and owning a library.

The capital stock was placed at $100, and seven directors were chosen, namely Messrs. Park, Morris, Houghton, Hutchinson, Hoover, Stimely and S. Dickinson. At this meeting Hutchinson was chairman and Houghton, clerk; and their success is to the writer problematical, something of like nature, intended to neutralize the charms of the billiard saloon, the skating rink and the theater and to throw around our young people a protection against the seductions of the pool table, and the beer glass, has been to some extent successfully attempted by the establishment about a year ago of a reading room, an institution creditable to the christian people of this place and steadily growing in popular favor with good results gradually becoming visible. Contribution of books was solicited and freely donated and to these was added what was left of the old township library of which we have spoken.

This reading room occupies a fine large room of the new Nickey & Gandy block; William Rose, an ex-soldier is the librarian and the tables are kept supplied with the best of current literature found in leading periodicals.

There is one peculiar thing about Honduras, one of the Central American republics and that is that the government owns the saloons. Whisky distilling is extensively carried on in that country and the nation reaps the profits of the liquor traffic. The spirits are all made from sugar cane, and when in good condition are bought by the government which owns all the taverns and has its officials in charge of them.

A scheme somewhat suggestive of the Honduras plan was tried by the commissioners of this county in 1855 but its result did not encourage its continuance.

Valentine Weaver, a prominent druggist of Auburn was appointed agent for Union township for the purchase of pure and unadulterated spirituous and intoxicating liquors and for the sale of these for medicinal, chemical and mechanical uses only, also, pure wine was to be bought and sold for sacramental use.

Mr. Weaver was authorized to invest $1000 of his own funds on which the board was to allow legal interest and he was to serve as such agent one year.

That the people of the county might share in whatever advantages this novel procedure offered, sub agencies were established in Richland township. Uniontown, Norristown, Spencerville, Newville and Fairfield Center. The sub agents were to obtain their stock of liquors at cost prices.

The following is the financial exhibit. The first quarterly report gives:

Investment	$1114 65
Sales	432 03
On hand	682 62
Profits	$86 40

EXPENSES.

Interest and freight	$10 78
Purchasing	20 03
Leakage	9 20
Allowance	36 39
Paid into treasury balance	10 00

In March, the commissioners settled by allowing Mr. Weaver $475 of a bill for $534.34 claimed and so ended county sales of liquors and down to this time the authorities have been content to leave the many saloons in the county to make what they can by their traffic, having paid into the county treasury the $100, each, required by existing law for annual license in the county and additional sums charged by town authorities.

It is generally thought that the work of drainage in this county has been pretty thoroughly done and the cost has been deemed excessive but the need was great. It is of interest in this connection to learn that the subject of drainage was in 1855 attracting the attention of farmers and took form in one instance in the organization of the "Bear Creek association for draining wet lands" and among the projectors we find the names of Mathew and Samuel Tarney, well known citizens.

Two successful fairs, held annually in the county, attest public interest in agriculture and stock raising. This interest had its precedent many years ago, when citizens organized an agricultural society of which S. W. Sprott was the first president.

It is said that the first attempt to hold a fair was a small exhibit made on the old Baker farm, then owned by Thomas Ford. Leonard Hoodlemire built the fence enclosing and a foot race was an attraction.

In the fall of 1855, a fair was held on the court house ground at which a horse race was a sensation. One horse got beyond control of his rider and the resulting panic made the occasion memorable.

We believe, the next fair was held at the same place in the fall of 1858 and the grounds were enclosed by muslin which later was in part disposed of as premiums.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her. but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones. Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 6

THE FALL ELECTIONS.

HOW THEY RESULTED IN THE DIFFERENT STATES.

McKinley Elected in Ohio, Flower in New York, Russell in Massachusetts, and Iowa in Doubt—Miscellaneous News Items.

The following is the result of the elections in the different States, based upon returns received up to noon on Wednesday:

OHIO.

Chairman Hahn was seen at Republican headquarters and said to a United Press representative: "I have not the slightest reason to change my estimate of Ohio going Republican by at least 19,000. Every return strengthens my belief. I lay claim to the Legislature, and three close Democratic counties, Hardin, Hancock and Paulding, which have heretofore been Democratic, and which I held in doubt, have been won by the Republican candidates for the Legislature. The entire Republican ticket will be elected."

Immediately afterward the Democratic committee rooms were visited. Chairman Neal said: "Everything is lost, McKinley will carry the State by at least 15,000; anything above that you can use your own figures, for we are snowed under." "How about the Legislature?" was asked. "Well, they take that too, but I cannot tell by what majority." This is the first news given out at Democratic headquarters, but it has been noticed that no high degree of animation has been felt all evening since the first returns were received. Hilarity reigns supreme in all Republican houses.

NEW YORK.

The Democrats have elected their State ticket by about 25,000 majority. The Legislature is in doubt. Returns from all parts of the State show that Fassett's majority in the fifty-five counties north of the Harlem River, will not exceed that of Davenport in 1885, which was 49,271. Flower's majority south of the Harlem River will be about 72,000.

IOWA.

A special from Des Moines to the Chicago Herald says that at midnight every indication points to the election of Boies and the entire Democratic ticket by a handsome majority. Dispatches received at the Democratic headquarters announce an increased vote all over the State and slightly increased majorities for Boies.

Two hundred and two precincts give a net Democratic gain of 596. This includes Polk County, where the Democrats made large gains.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Indications are that Gen. David McGregg, Republican candidate for Auditor-general, has defeated Robert E. Wright, Democrat, by 35,000. For State Treasurer, Morrison, Republican, has a majority of 32,000 over A. L. Tilden, Democrat. Philadelphia gave 25,000 for McGregg and Morrison.

MICHIGAN.

Estimates made on returns thus far received give the Republicans a sweeping victory at Grand Rapids. Congressman Belknap, Republican, will be returned by 1,500 majority.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Gov. Russell, Democrat, is re-elected by about 12,000 majority.

MARYLAND.

Frank Brown, the Democratic candidate, said: "Full returns are not yet in, and I can state nothing with certainty. I can say, however, that from the indications the Democratic State ticket will win by something like 20,000 majority. Returns from the counties so far show that the Legislature will be Democratic by a large majority. This insures the election of two United States Senators, one of whom, I am pleased to say, will certainly be Senator A. P. Gorman. My majority in Baltimore will be 10,000."

Col. W. J. Vannort, the Republican candidate, spent the day at his home in Kent County. He conceded his defeat before midnight, but seemed to be gratified at the vote he had polled, especially, as he said, "that of the farmer and soldier element." Returns from the counties show that the next Legislature will be Democratic by a majority of forty or more on joint ballot. Senator Gorman will certainly be returned. Who the other Senator will be is a matter of doubt, but he will be a man of Mr. Gorman's selection.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Returns from fifty precincts show that Jolly, Republican, for Congress leads both of his competitors Woods, Democrat, and Smith, Independent. He will probably be elected.

NEW JERSEY.

Jersey City, special: The Democrats elect R. S. Hudspath State Senator by about 8,000. Nine and possibly ten of the eleven assembly districts have been carried by the Democrats, together with all the county offices.

Gave Up Its Dead.

Wheeling (Pa.) special: News has reached here from Corapolis, Pa., between here and Pittsburgh, of a strange and terrible affair which occurred at that place. The Allegheny Cemetery Company started to bore a gas well on its property at Corapolis, when a terrific explosion occurred, causing a great upheaval of the earth in the vicinity. Hundreds of dead bodies in the cemetery were hurled from their resting place and many costly monuments were shattered.

Thrown Out and Killed.

Philip Kreigharson, an agricultural implement merchant of Huntington, Ind., was thrown from his buggy and received injuries that proved fatal.

Five Were Burned.

Berlin special: An exciting scene was witnessed at Bergedorf, a suburb of Hamburg, when the Hotel Schwerin was burned and five lives lost. Many of the inmates had narrow escapes, and the work of the firemen, owing to the construction of the building and the rapidity with which the flames spread, was full of danger. A company of negro minstrels, who had been playing in Hamburg, were lodged in the upper story of the hotel. Three of them found their escape cut off and, though their doom seemed to be sealed, two brave firemen volunteered, in the face of a most certain death, to go to their assistance. Just as the two rescuers had reached the floor upon which the three minstrels were hemmed in by flames, the building collapsed and all five perished in the blazing mass below.

PLOT TO KILL O'BRIEN.

Cork special: Wild excitement prevails in this city. The startling announcement is made that the police had unearthed a plot to assassinate William O'Brien, the noted leader of the McCarthy faction. At first the sensational story was believed to be a canard, but as the hours wore on the developments fully convinced the public that the report had a substantial basis of fact. Mr. O'Brien, it was learned, had hurriedly decamped, and fled no one knew whither, as a consequence of the discovery made by the police. When it became generally known that the aggressive editor had been frightened away the alarm for the public safety spread and the excitement became intense.

Soon the streets of the city were crowded with frenzied multitudes who threatened to arm themselves with more deadly weapons than blackthorns and stones. Strong guards of police were stationed in the vicinity of the gun shops and wherever else it was possible to obtain fire-arms. The officers did their utmost to keep the turbulent and bellicose mobs in motion, but it was a difficult task. The report of the murderous conspiracy has terribly enraged the McCarthyites, who threaten to cast aside even the slight restraint they have thus far put upon themselves and outdo the Parnellites in deeds of violence.

At an early hour Mr. Davitt arrived to fill the engagements of Mr. O'Brien. Meantime the self-respecting and law-abiding citizens are becoming seriously apprehensive that the events which are disgracing the Irish cause in this city will assume dimensions so great as to make imperative the calling out of British troops to protect the Irish people from themselves.

A RUINED TOWN.

The Pretty Village of North Baltimore Laid in Ashes—Loss Over $400,000.

North Baltimore (Ohio) special: This place, in the center of the Wood County oil fields, was visited by the most disastrous conflagration in its history. Five years ago it was a small hamlet, but in a short time developed into a city of over 5,000 inhabitants, and was one of the most prosperous towns in the State. Located at a distance from an adequate water supply and studded with derricks that marked the locations of gas and oil wells, with many thousands of barrels of the inflammable material stored up within the confines of the town, a fire such as this has long been feared. At about 12 o'clock the long expected calamity occurred and the blazes which started in an oil well just west of the main street of the town, soon gained such headway that the destruction of the entire place was threatened. The greater portion of the business center is now in ashes. The blaze swept Main street, from the Baltimore and Ohio railroad north, to Broadway on the east side, destroying more than twenty business houses, including the Beacon newspaper, People's Bank, Postoffice and some of the largest blocks in the place. On the west side of the street the fire destroyed thirteen business houses, including Hotel Burke, a portion of the opera house and many three story buildings. The entire loss is estimated at $400,000. The town is almost without fire protection, and help was summoned from Fostoria, but the scarcity of water rendered the work of the firemen useless. Thirteen residences were also burned.

Hicksville, Ohio, Swept by Fire.

Hicksville (Ohio) special: Fire was discovered in Kerr Bros. warehouse, and in one hour $40,000 worth of property lay in ruins. Kerr Bros.' are the largest implement handle manufacturers in the United States and their loss is complete on the warehouse and contents—finished handles and on logs, lumber and material on the grounds near the warehouse. The following buildings were destroyed:

The Hicksville Cart and Machine Company's factory. The City Flouring Mills, owned by Joseph Kerr, and the cooper shop, owned by C. A. Weaver.

A strong wind was blowing from the west and buildings across the street took fire and it was hard work to save the Baltimore and Ohio railroad depot and the handle factory of Maxwell & Co. and other valuable property. Embers were carried a half mile and set fire to a large barn in the east part of town, which was burned down. Forest fires are raging all about here and much damage is resulting. Both sides of the Baltimore and Ohio track are in flames and the ties are on fire. Much valuable logs, lumber and material were destroyed on the sidings.

Aggregate of interest and non-interest bearing debt, $980,309,976. Certificates and treasury notes offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury, $560,379,410. Aggregate of debt, including certificates and treasury notes, $1,540,689,386. Gold reserve, $100,000,000. Net cash balance, $139,671,920. This includes the subsidy coin and money deposited in National banks. The decrease in the cash balance during the month of October was $5,316,048.

Horrifying Reports from Japan.

Dispatches from Hioga, Japan, say that the earthquake destroyed the towns of Magoya, Gifu and Ogaki. All the public buildings and most of the smaller structures in these places were thrown down. A fire in Magoya completed the destruction in the most crowded quarters of the place. The shock was accompanied by a tidal wave, which submerged many districts. The towns of Okaua, Kano and Kasamutsa have been wiped out, few people escaping. Five thousand people were killed at Gifu alone, and 2,000 at Oroga. Twenty-three thousand houses were destroyed at these two places. The earthquake destroyed fifty miles of railway. As details are received the horror of the calamity grows.

Smacks Sunk.

A dispatch just received from Plymouth, states that while the gunboat Sabrina was engaged in gun practice some of her shots struck and immediately sank the fishing smacks "Sunbean" and "Aurora," both of which were anchored outside of the breakwater. One man belonging to the Aurora was drowned, while another was nearly so. Two of the crew of the Sunbeam were almost completely exhausted when they were taken out of the water. The accident is attributed to the gross negligence of the officers of the gunboat. The admiralty will order an investigation.

French Found Guilty.

After a protracted trial a jury in the Criminal Court at Indianapolis found Charles French (colored) guilty of killing Andrew Dillon, Marshal of Haughville, during a street fight in June, 1890, and he was sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Previous to trial French pleaded guilty to attempted murder of his own wife, and it was her "squeal" which led to implicating him in the Dillon affair. The desperate character of French contributed to his conviction, as the evidence connecting him with the Dillon affair was only circumstantial.

A Crisis in Canada.

Ottawa special: The Government crisis continues. Secretary Chaplau, with a number of followers, is here trying to force Premier Abbott to yield and give him the coveted position of Minister of Railways. All of the conservative members from the Catholic provinces of Quebec will, Secretary Chaplau says, bolt the party and wreck the Government if his claim is not conceded. The latest reports are bulletined outside newspaper offices throughout the Dominion and arousing considerable excitement.

A Deep Laid Plot.

Madrid special: The Queen regent has directed the authorities throughout Spain to make diligent search for all persons suspected of treasonable designs. The Spanish Government is said to have received information to the effect that a plot is in progress for the overthrow of the monarchy, and the establishment of a republic, and that the plot is shared in by persons of prominent standing. While no arrests have been made, the Government is keeping a vigilant watch for any signs of open disaffection.

Convicts Gain Liberty.

John Donovan, Walter Briquet and Chas. Keen escaped from the State Penitentiary at Jackson, Mich. Their escape was an exceeding clever one. They had tunnelled forty feet to the street. Each in some manner had secured overalls blouses and a dinner pail. While the other convicts were at dinner these three entered the tunnel, changed their prison garb for the stolen clothes and made off. The guards saw them but supposed they were laborers.

Marshall's Narrow Escape.

Ed. Marshall, night officer on the down-town beat at London, Ohio, narrowly escaped being killed. In going through the Pan Handle yard while the vestibule train was pulling in, a freight train made a running switch and the officer, stepping from one track onto another, was struck and horribly cut about the head. One gash, four inches long, and another two inches were cut on the forehead and face, besides several body bruises.

Young Hunter Wounded.

While hunting near Batavia, Ohio, Oliver Tatman, the 17-year-old son of Captain John Tatman, the leading tobacco dealer of the county, was accidentally shot in the thigh by his young companion, Allen Nichols. The wounded boy was removed to the home of his brother, J. C. Tatman, and medical aid summoned. He will probably recover, but will carry through life a crippled limb, the result of his sport.

Obliged to Flee from Russia.

The advance guard of a German colony, seeking homes in Kansas, passed through the New York barge office recently. The party numbered thirty-eight, and were compelled to fly from Pfeifer, a little town on the Volga, because of what they termed unjust tribute levied upon them by the Russian Government. They belong to the better class of peasantry.

Gold at Kansas City.

Gold was found on the banks of the Missouri at Kansas City at a depth of 117 feet. The discovery was made by borings that are being put down to find the location of rock under which to tunnel the Missouri River. The gold is rich, and is found in great quantities on both sides of the river. Several tons of the sand will be taken out at once.

LOOKS MUCH LIKE WAR.

CHILI'S BLUNT REFUSAL TO MAKE AMENDS.

Strong Language Used—It May Result in War—Decisive Action by Uncle Sam's Officials Is Expected—Officers and Sailors of the Baltimore Reported in Great Danger.

Dark Clouds Rising.

The Chilian Government has replied to United States Minister Egan's demand for reparation for the recent attack upon the United States steamship Baltimore's crew. It is a refusal to accept responsibility for the affair. Minister Egan has notified the State Department at Washington, and decisive action is looked for very quickly. The authorities of Valparaiso have gone so far as to refuse to guarantee the safety of market boats coming to that city from the United States war-ship Baltimore, or the safety of officers of that vessel coming ashore at night. Minister Egan has notified our Government that the crew of the Baltimore are practically boycotted, and no American sailors are permitted to land at that port. Much surprise is expressed at the very strong language in which the Chilian Government's reply is couched.

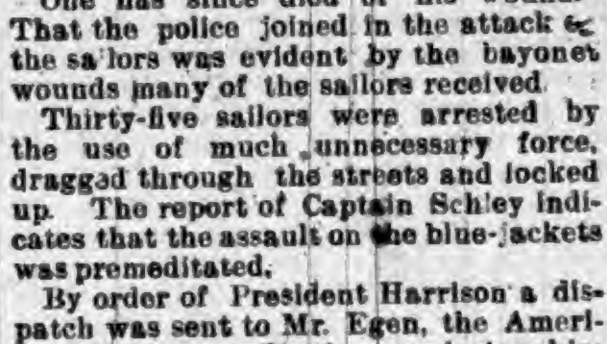
The attack on the blue-jackets of the cruiser Baltimore occurred in the streets of Valparaiso on Oct. 16, and was, in the opinion of the officers of the Baltimore, due mainly to the feeling of hostility entertained by the mass of Chilians toward Americans. The police of the city, as the investigation of the affair by Captain W. S. Schley and the officers of the Baltimore showed, assisted the mob in its assault upon the sailors. The Chilians were armed with knives and pistols, and the blue-jackets had no weapons.

One of the blue-jackets, Charles Riggin, a boatswain's mate, was dragged from a street car by a mob and shot to death. Five more men were dangerously wounded with knives and bayonets.

One has since died of his wounds. That the police joined in the attack on the sailors was evident by the bayonet wounds many of the sailors received.

Thirty-five sailors were arrested by the use of much unnecessary force, dragged through the streets and locked up. The report of Captain Schley indicates that the assault on the blue-jackets was premeditated.

By order of President Harrison a dispatch was sent to Mr. Egen, the American Minister at Santiago, ordering him to bring the matter to the attention of the Chilian Government and inquire whether there were any qualifying facts in the possession of that Government, and whether it had any explanations to offer for its failure to inquire into the matter and punish the guilty persons. The reply, as stated above, is a most defiant one, and may call for speedy action by the United States.



U. S. CRUISER DETROIT.

In view of the trouble that seems to be imminent Secretary Tracy has reported to the President that the following war vessels can be made ready and equipped in ninety days:

The Philadelphia, of 4,413 tons, is 315 feet long, 10,500-horse power, and can steam nineteen knots an hour. She carries four 8-inch and six 6-inch breech loading rifles. She also has torpedo tubes.

The Kearsarge is a wooden vessel of 1,550 tons, 822 horse power and can steam along nine knots an hour. She carries two 8-inch 8-ton and four 9-inch 4-ton smooth bores and one 60-pounder breech-loader.

The cruiser Concord is of 1,700 tons burden, 230 feet long, 3,400 horse power, and can make sixteen knots an hour. Her armament consists of six 6-inch breech-loading rifles and several rapid-fire guns.

The Chicago is 4,500 tons burden, 415 feet long, and has 5,000 horse power and can cover fifteen knots an hour. She carries four 8-inch, eight 6-inch and two 5-inch breech-loading rifles; also several rapid-fire guns.

The Newark is of 4,083 tons displacement, 310 feet long, 8,500 horse power, and makes eighteen knots an hour. Twelve 6-inch guns of five tons each, and four six-pounders (rapid fire) constitute her equipment.

The Petrel is of 890 tons burden and only 175 feet long. She has 1,300-horse power, and can steam thirteen knots an hour. Her guns are four 6-inch breech-loading rifles and several rapid-fire guns.

The Baltimore, already at Valparaiso, is of 4,413 tons burden, 315 feet long, has an indicated horse power of 10,750 and can make nineteen knots in an ordinary sea. She carries four 8-inch 11¾-ton breech-loading rifles, six 6-inches and a number of smaller guns.

The Yorktown is 1,700 tons, 230 feet long, 3,400 indicated horse power and can make sixteen knots. She carries six 6-inch breech-loaders and several smaller guns.

The San Francisco is a sister ship to the Philadelphia, and is similarly equipped.

The Miantonomah is 3,815 tons displacement, 249 feet long, and has 7 inches of armor. Her turret is 11½ inches thick, and behind this is all an 8-inch backing. Her horse power is 1,600, and she can steam 10.50 knots an hour. Her armament consists of four 10½-inch 25-ton breech-loading rifles and several rapid-fire guns.

The new steel cruiser Detroit has just been launched, and could also be made ready for the fray.

Talleyrand's Sayings.

COMBATANTS IN CORK.

DESPERATE FIGHTS BETWEEN IRISH FACTIONS.

Many Badly Wounded—Mounted Police with Considerable Difficulty Disperse the Savage Combatants—Work for the Surgeons.

Irish Blood Flows.

When Messrs. William O'Brien and John Dillon arrived in Cork, the two distinguished members of Parliament were met by a deputation composed of members of the National Federation, representatives of the Gaelic Club, the municipal officers, and a large number of priests. An enormous crowd of people lined the route, followed by the procession which followed Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon from the railroad station. The procession was headed by a brass band and was escorted by a strong detachment of police.

The fact that the police and military were thoroughly prepared for a riot alone prevented the city from becoming a scene of slaughter. After the convention a large body of police closed about Dillon and O'Brien to escort them to their hotel. Dillon passed a few words of commonplace with the inspector in command, and that functionary listened very stiffly and condescendingly. The incident was witnessed by the Parnellites, who howled in derision. For some distance the procession passed along without more serious demonstration, the crowds on the street, however, growing every moment more excited. The McCarthyites, including a number of priests and the redoubtable Canon O'Mahoney, followed Dillon and O'Brien. Every now and then a Parnellite in the crowd would howl and swing a shillalah around his head and make a dash for the McCarthyites. The police would then charge and restore order for a moment.

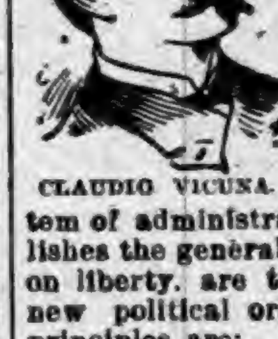
At length the Parnellites grew uncontrollable, and yells of "Murderers," "England's lickspittles," and other epithets saluted the McCarthyites. The latter knew that they would soon be attacked, and came to a halt, turning on their assailants. Missiles of all kinds flew through the air, and the cries of defiance became louder and louder. The blood flowing from injured heads and limbs, the groans of the fallen wounded, the fierce energy of the combatants, and the ebb and flow of the tide of battle, as the advantage veered to either side, gave a realistic picture resembling somewhat the Communist uprising in Paris.

The mounted constabulary was hurriedly formed in order for a charge. It was a dangerous duty, for deadly missiles were flying on every hand, and the order was given to cut right between the two parties, where the police would receive the volleys from both. Not a constable flinched. They formed as perfectly as on parade and started on the gallop at the word of command. The order was given to strike only with the flats of their sabers, and there is no reason to believe that, under great provocation, it was disobeyed.

As the constables spurred forward the volleys of missiles grew thicker, for each side was sure that if they missed each other they would at least hit a policeman. The police were persistent, however, and at length succeeded in breaking up the riot; this result, however, being largely due to the fact that the rioters themselves were appalled at the number of the wounded. Many of the latter were taken to their homes and others to the hospitals. Whether any cases have proved fatal is not yet known.

THE SITUATION IN CHILI.

Revolutionary Parties Unite Upon a Programme—Merchants Suffer Heavily.



CLAUDIO VICUNA.

Chilian advices say the different political parties that initiated the revolution are making a draft of the program that is to be observed by the new administration and that they will all sign, pledging themselves to respect it, no matter who gains the Presidential election. This program does not tend to provide a new system of administration; it merely establishes the general principles that, based on liberty, are to be observed by the new political organization, and these principles are:

The right of suffrage.

Reduction of the ordinary expenses.

Amelioration of the foreign debt and conversion of the national paper currency into metallic currency, reduction of the army and augmentation of the fleet.

Amicable relations with all other nations.

Establishment of commercial treaties with different nations.

Reports received at Iquique from the south state that a large number of executions have occurred at Santiago and Valparaiso in the last few weeks. The victims had been particularly active in their opposition to the revolutionists, but none of them were persons of any special prominence.

THE WAY THINGS RUN

IN THE GREATEST OF GREAT STATES, INDIANA.

Things Which Have Lately Happened Within Its Borders—Some Pleasant and Some Sad Reading.

Fire occurred fourteen miles above Evansville, in which John Lennert, one of the most prosperous farmers of Warrick County, lost his dwelling and all outbuildings and contents, besides sustaining injuries which will end in his death. Upon his arising he found his barn in flames, and running out attempted to save the horses. Going into the barn he unfastened the animals, but on turning to leave found himself surrounded by flames. His only chance was to rush through the fire, which he did and was terribly burned about the head, neck and arms. After getting out of the way of the burning barn he fell to the ground unconscious. He is reported in a serious condition, and his physician does not think he can recover. He has lost the sight in both his eyes from the effects of the flames. The loss is estimated at $10,000; no insurance.

Mr. E. Horn, a jeweler of Evansville, was robbed of a tray of fine gold watches and several diamond rings. The thief called and asked to be shown some watches. After a careful examination of the timepieces he took his departure, saying he would return to make a purchase in the evening. According to promise he called and was looking at the tray of watches, which also contained several diamond rings, and while Mr. Horn was waiting upon a customer in the other end of the store the stranger deliberately picked up the tray of watches and diamonds and disappeared.

Ex-Auditor James C. Lavelle and his accomplice, Burr Hawes, who are charged with assisting in the burning of the Court House, at Washington, appeared in court and asked that their arson case be taken from the county on a change of venue. They allege that public sentiment is so strong against them that it will be impossible to get a fair hearing. The case was accordingly venued to Pike County, and it will be tried the second week in November. The work of investigation of Lavelle's books is now in progress, but the results are secretly kept by the experts.

Otto Bechtel, Laporte, pulled his gun out of the buggy, muzzle toward him. It was discharged and Bechtel would have been killed had not a pack of cards in his pocket received the shot.

With a swelling air he proclaims that his duties were only to see that the drawings were fair, and he threatens to make it warm for those who testified against him. Women in the Pulpit.

Women win men to pretty much everything else. Why shouldn't they win them to faith and goodness.—New York World.

The Methodist Council seems, on the whole, to look favorably on the plan of allowing women to preach. But if the ladies get into the pulpit what will be about the average length of the Sunday sermon?—Louisville Commercial.

Now that all the preachers are men, the proportion of women in their congregations is overwhelming. If the women take the pulpit will the men take the pew? It would be a goodly sight to see all our young men attending church on a Sunday.—Louisville Post.

Will Write a Book.

Considering the part that Mrs. Parnell had in the division of the Irish party, her proposal to write a book does not seem in the interests of harmony.—Detroit Free Press.

It looks very much as if we were in for a hard winter. The weather prophets threaten us with a number of killing blizzards, and besides this comes the announcement that Mrs. C. S. Parnell is going to publish a book giving her side of the celebrated O'Shea divorce case.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

If the cable announcement be true that Mrs. Parnell intends to write a memoir of her husband, the late "uncrowned king," and in it explain many things which are now distorted or misunderstood, the volume may prove to be one of the important books of the dying century.—New York Recorder.

Dr. J. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,

CHAPTER XVII.

LADY MORFORD.

Jeremiah Jenks directed the driver of the cab to take him speedily to a fashionable quarter of the city.

In less than half an hour he was set down in front of a fine-looking mansion. A model of a servant admitted the lawyer, and after seating him in the drawing-room took his card to his mistress.

A very handsome lady entered presently—a lady whose manner and dress indicated high social position.

She looked at Jeremiah inquiringly. The lawyer fumbled, rose, stammered and managed to say: "This is an unexpected visit, but I had no other alternative.

The lady looked at him, but did not speak. She was giving due attention to him.

Still she did not speak. Except a slight elevation of her finely arched eye-brows, the lady gave no sign.

"I relied upon my nephew, Lady Morford, and he has deceived me, grossly deceived me."

"In what manner does it concern me, Mr. Jenks?"

"It does—yes, very much. He has possessed himself of my private correspondence—indeed he has acted shamefully."

"Ah! I sympathize with you, sir; but unless it affects me immediately I do not see that I should be informed of a matter that affects you in a business and domestic way."

This was said in an icy manner that made Jeremiah Jenks' task all the more difficult, but he returned to the self-imposed charge.

"My nephew has, I regret to state, made use of the knowledge he discovered in your letters, to decieve me—us both—in regard to the whereabouts of your granddaughter."

Lady Morford looked at him sharply, then she said in measured tones:

"How long, Mr. Jenks, has this deception been practiced?"

"Three months, at least.

"When did you discover the truth?"

"Within this hour."

Lady Morford was silent. She evidently awaited further revelations. Jeremiah Jenks rose, paced the floor, and said in humble fashion, very humble, indeed:

"I have discovered from my nephew that your granddaughter—or the person I have reasons to believe to be your granddaughter—is not far from here"

"In New York!"

Lady Morford advanced quickly toward the attorney and said, in a tone revealing deep emotion, "Unless, sir, you are prepared now—instantly—to take me to her, I will not listen to any communication you may have to make to me. Once for all, Mr. Jenks, I have done with suppositions and theories. I want something tangible. I have been a prey to misapprehensions, have been induced to think many things that I find not a seadow of reason for now."

"I am prepared to go with you—to go now, Lady Morford. But——"

"Then keep what you have to say for me on the way."

She hastened from the room, and in a surprisingly short time stood before him with her bonnet on.

"My carriage will be at the door in two minutes. Now, proceed. Tell me where we are going."

"To Monsieur Dufaur's academy."

"I know it very well. I called there with an acquaintance only yesterday."

"Well, that is where we will find the girl I have been seeking."

"And how long has she been there?"

"Several months, it seems."

"Months! Months in New York! We may have passed each other—I might have sat here while she was dying near me! This is unpardonable!"

"It is, my lady, it is."

"Here is the carriage—quick, I must not lose another minute. Every moment is precious to me."

She was like a girl in her eagerness. When they were seated face to face—Jenks had sent his cab away—the lawyer related, with much humility, the manner in which his nephew, his bad nephew, had misled him and robbed him of an immense amount of money. But he could not take steps against his own flesh and blood—he revolted from even the contemplation of action against his nephew.

Of course Lady Morford applauded his spirit, and now that she was on the eve of embracing a grandchild, she felt as if she ought to exercise charity to all the world.

She heard all Mr. Jenks had to say, and pitied him, poor man.

Was he quite sure this young person was the identical child he had been searching for so long, and were the facts such as would satisfy the curious world that she was truly Lady Morford's grandchild?

"Because," said Lady Morford, "unless the proof is convincing my nephew, who is deeply interested, will contest the claim now and after I am dead. He will leave nothing undone that ingenuity can suggest or money accomplish."

"I am convinced, Lady Morford, that the girl's birth—all the evidence required—will be supplied."

"Are we not there yet?" said the grandmother.

"We will soon be there now. One more block, Lady Morford."

When the carriage stopped and the footman opened the door, Lady Morford, whose hand trembled, said as she laid it on Mr. Jenks' arm:

"Pray be quick—let me get it over speedily, this meeting."

"We desire to see Madame Dufaur," said the lawyer to the servant who answered the bell.

"Madame Dufaur is not at home."

"Monsieur Dufaur, then; please inform him a lady waits."

"Monsieur Dufaur is absent, too."

"When will Madame Dufaur return?" inquired Lady Morford, anxiously.

"In an hour."

"And monsieur?"

"I don't know; he may be later."

"Can I see——" The lady turned to Mr. Jenks. "Her name?"

"I do not know; they call her Joe, I believe."

"Then can we see the young lady who is with Madame Dufaur—Miss Joe?"

"I am sorry to say, madame, she, too, is out."

"Is she out of the city?"

Now, the servant thought the visitor meant in the neighborhood of the city, as if Joe was out of town for an hour or two, and she answered:

"Indeed, I am not sure. Maybe she is."

Lady Morford spoke to Mr. Jenks again.

"I will leave a note."

Lady Morford called for paper, pen and ink; then she wrote a few lines in a nervous hand, placed the note in an envelope, handed it to the servant, and turned to her companion.

"I can do no more at present."

"No. We have done all that can be done now."

"If she does not call on me—I will return. She will surely call—or send me word."

"Surely such a note as that will be attended to promptly."

The visitors retired, and the servant looked after them curiously.

As she looked, a handsome young man came up the street. He had waxed mustaches, black eyes, and a military air. He was the leader of a brass band—and the girl's lover.

He stopped, took off his hat, and talked to her. She smiled, and talked to and at him with her brilliant eyes They were to be married soon, so it was not much wonder five, ten minutes passed away.

Then the young man looked at his watch, gave a start, and exclaimed: "Possible! I'm off."

The servant sighed, remembered certain things requiring her instant attention, entered the house with a little cry of dismay—and the note which was lying in her pocket, and which Lady Morford had placed in her hand with a solemn injunction, was as utterly forgotten as if it had never been handed her to give to her mistress "the moment she returned."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

ANOTHER SURPRISE.

When Monsieur Dufaur and his wife, accompanied by Job Wonder, Dick, Ben Brown and his wife, returned to the Dufaur mansion, there was much rejoicing, much to be explained, and much more that nobody could account for.

"What in the name of all that's mysterious did that scoundrel mean by pretending he was married?" said the clown.

He appeared to think the question an open one, for anyone to answer who could satisfy him.

"I kin answer that, I reckon."

Everybody looked at Job.

"There's a long story hings to that there—I'll cut it right short, an' say this fellow's in the office of a cute lawyer hyer, who's got his eyes on Joe hyer."

"Well, that's what I hain't found out yit, but I will. I'll jist make it my business to find out. Anyhow, he wanted me to pay him a lot o' money for keeping a sharp lookout on Joe, hyer, an' the boy. He was a keepin' it right close. At least he said so. There was money in it somehow—or that pesky lawyer wouldn't bothered none—lawyers don't waste no time 'thout they git paid for't, 'n blamed well paid, too."

"Well—but," said Madame Dufaur, "Joe here has nobody—not a friend in the whole wide world! And no money—then why should that villain swear he was her husband!" exclaimed Madame Dufaur.

"There's some reason for it," said Ben Brown reflecting. "Perhaps Joe is a real live heiress."

"You would make a beautiful heiress," said Mrs. Brown.

"She is a beauty any way you take her," said Job enthusiastically.

"Come, come," said Monsieur Dufaur, "you will spoil her! Joe—don't let anything they say spoil you."

"No, she won't," said the clown laughing, "she'll spoil herself."

A servant went to the door. The drawing-room door was opened. All in it could hear what passed in the hall.

"Pray tell Madame Dufaur I desire to speak to her."

"O! ma'm," the servant exclamed hastily. Then followed some words in a low, passionate tone. Then the strange voice answered.

The listeners looked at each other.

"At this hour!" said Monsieur Dufaur, shrugging his shoulders—"it is unheard of—amazing!"

"Nevertheless, I will see her," said his wife, and she suited the action to the word, passing into the hall.

"O! It is you, Mrs. Howson. Pray come in.

"I called to-day, but you were out——"

"I was not aware——"

"No matter. You have with you a young lady—her name is Joe."

"Josephine—yes."

"Can I see her—is she sleeping?"

"No—you can see her, certainly. But may I ask why you desire to speak with her?"

"Why should I conceal it from you. The girl that I am seeking—that I was told is here—is, I am led to believe, my daughter's child."

"Your granddaughter?"

"Yes, my granddaughter."

"Wonderful!" Madame lifted her hands in wonder. "I will fetch her this instant. And my husband, too."

To drag her husband and Joe into the library, to the surprise of the others, occupied but a moment. Then the door communicating was closed.

Mrs. Howson, or rather Lady Morford, rose as Joe entered. She gazed at the girl a minute, then taking her hand in hers said, in trembling tones:

"You are her very self—the picture of my poor Louise."

Joe looked abashed. Monsieur and Madama Dufaur turned aside.

"Let me look at you in the light." Lady Morford turned Joe's face to the light

"The same skin, the same features; above all, you have your mother's eyes and brows—the finest I ever beheld—and her hair. There can be no doubt about it, child; you are my daughter's child. There are hundreds who will say the same in England."

Then Joe felt herself drawn to the handsome lady's breast, felt a tear on her cheek as she was kissed, held off, looked at, and kissed more warmly again and again.

Madame Dufaur was weeping silently, and Monsieur Dufaur wiped his eyes suspiciously. Then Madame Dufaur said:

"Let us go into the other room."

When Joe walked into the drawing-room beside Lady Morford, everyone was struck with the resemblance she bore to the handsome old lady. There was the same mouth, the same nose, the same eyes.

"This is Josephine's grandmother," said Madame Dufaur.

"Her grandmother!"

Job Wonder looked amazed. The clown looked at his wife. Dick suddenly felt his heart sink. He could not explain the feeling. It seemed as if the whole world was dropping, dropping away from him.

"This is the most extraordinary circumstance that has ever come under my notice," said Monsieur Dufaur.

"We are, I think, about to learn why that scoundrel wanted to marry this lady's granddaughter."

"I see madame is amazed. I shall tell you all. As these present were witnesses, they can verify my statement."

Thereupon he recited, briefly the incidents of the evening. When he ended, Lady Morford reflected, then asked the name of the young man who was prepared to marry her granddaughter.

"Yes, and a bigger rascal never lived," said Job Wonder. "I know him and his rascally uncle, Jeremiah Jenks."

Lady Morford turned to him with a smile.

"Glad to be of use to you, mum, 'speshally if I can keep you out of that lawyer's clutches, or help put his nephew in the penitentiary, where he is headin' now, an' nothin' kin stop him."

"And this young man whose rare courage and presence of mind enabled my granddaughter to avoid the snare set for her—where is he?" said Lady Morford.

The clown pushed Dick forward.

"Here he is, madam."

Poor Dick blushed scarlet as Lady Morford caught his hand in hers and said:

"You are made of the stuff heroes are made of, my boy."

"You'd think so if you saw him bring Black and Firefly to time," said the clown proudly."

"He understands horses, then?"

"Well, I've seen men who thought they knew it all, and Dick there knows more than they know—or at least he can do more."

"How strange it all seems," said Lady Morford. "Well, I will leave you now. You need rest. Now you understand why I could not sleep. I had to come."

Then kissing her granddaughter—she did not permit herself to doubt longer—she spoke apart to Madame Dufaur, bade the others good-night, and withdrew. In a few moments they heard her carriage rolling away home.

"She looks like one of the high folks in the pictures we see," said Job, when they were speaking of her.

"High! So she is," said Monsieur Dufaur. "She belongs to the nobility."

"Why, how so? She calls herself Howson," said his wife.

"Exactly; but she is an earl's daughter, and immensely wealthy at that. She is called in England Lady Morford."

"What!" exclaimed Madame Dufaur, kissing Joe. "You are a born lady—an earl's daughter. How glad I am. Yes—listen. She is a real lady, for she called to-day to ask me to bring Joe to her. She left a very important note with Maria, and Maria has forgotten it; and Lady Morford made me promise not to scold the poor girl. Had I received the note she would not have been compelled to come in the dead of the night; but she could not stay away longer, she said."

"That was very kind; it shows breeding," said Monsieur Dufaur; "I take off my hat to Lady Morford."

"But how do we know you really are her granddaughter," said Ben Brown, looking at Joe.

"How—how—why, you can see; they look so much alike," said Madame Dufaur.

"Ah, but in matters of this kind we don't go by looks. I don't doubt it; I only want to prove it to all the world."

"I have it! I have it!"

All looked at Job Wonder.

"There's a woman in Barnesville poorhouse. She said Joe was rich—came of rich people. Yes; she told me that, and that she knew more. I thought she was making a fool of me, dod-blast her, an' she wasn't."

"It was old Mother Camp," said Joe.

"Yes, exactly; that's her name. I'm goin' right back to Mother Camp, and I'll find out all she knows for five dollars. I'll go to-morrow; you can tell your grandmother I'm off."

"Meantime, madame here will show you all where to sleep for the remainder of the night," said Monsieur Dufaur.

Whereupon they separated, and soon the inmates of Madame Dufaur's domicile were wrapped in sleep.

Dick was the last to close his eyes. And then—ah! there were tears in them, for was not Joe—his playmate, Joe—a lady, rich, and to become great, while who was he? What was he?

"There is a great difference between us now," Dick said to himself, as he fell asleep.

CHAPTER XXIX.

IN WHICH MUCH IS EXPLAINED.

When Job Wonder was preparing to return to his farm by way of Barnesville, he found, to his surprise, a note from Lady Morford, which read thus:

> I trust you will not deem it too much trouble, Mr. Wonder, to accompany me to Barnesville Poorhouse, where it is necessary, for my own satisfaction and the protection of Josephine, to make certain inquiries, which must be made in person.

The note was handed Job by Monsieur Dufaur.

"Trouble! Not a bit of it I'd git up at night to accommodate her. She's a born lady—she is."

So in due time Job met Lady Morford (who was known as Mrs. Howson) at the depot. She had a servant with her—a man servant—so gentlemanly, silent, and discreet that Job thought him vastly "superior to Congressman Ruddersmith," of Barnesville. Ben Brown accompanied the party, and with him was Dick.

This was the most amazing thing to poor Joe. She marveled much at it That Dick should venture back into the jaws of death—that was how she regarded Zeke Caper's control—was beyond her comprehension. But she did not know that Lady Morford had talked apart with Ben Brown and his wife, or that fortune had taken a sudden turn in favor of two or three persons.

When the party reached Barnesville, Job, Lady Morford, and her servant set out together for the Poor House, leaving the clown and Dick to follow at their leisure.

When Zeke Caper encountered Job, his face changed color swiftly. Job seated his traveling companion with a flourish of deference that mystified Caper.

"We have come to look over the Poor House, Mr. Caper. This lady, Mrs. Howson, has heard so much of it that she is curious like, and so be I, too."

They looked over the building, over the grounds, and suddenly Job spied Mother Camp, whom he beckoned to them. Mother Camp remembered Job's timely gift. She was not slow to take the hint. She led them apart, and turning to Job said shortly:

"What is it? You want to know something?"

"We do. This lady will ask you."

"Can you tell me what the mother of the girl Mr. Wonder took home with him was called here?"

"Yes. Simpson. That's the name they put on the record."

"Well, what name should have been placed on the book?"

"You knew her, eh? Maybe you knew her in England?"

"Tell all you know, and be quick," said Job, handing the old woman a bank note which she concealed hastily.

"Howson—Louise Howson."

"How did you learn this?"

Mother Camp looked around, then whispered: "She told me before she died. And the name of the doctor in New York who attended her three years."

"The name!" said Lady Morford. "The doctor's name?"

"You can't go wrong—Clifford—John Clifford."

"And what else did she tell you?"

"She told me her child was, or ought to be, rich—rich. That if I would get some one to write to England, to her mother——."

"She said that! Don't deceive me. I am her mother!"

"She did—it's true. Then, before she could tell me her mother's name, she took a fit of coughing and—died."

"You'll stand ready to swear to it," said Job.

"Any time. It's the gospel truth."

"Do you know anythin' 'bout who that boy Dick belongs to?"

Mother Camp coughed.

"Dicky Dick! O, well, why do you want to know?"

"Why—whisper. His father died of the tremens—right here. And they do say Dicky's uncle is living, and is worth hundreds of thousands. But it don't belong to the uncle. That's why Zeke Caper tried to kill him; he beat him and starved him, but the boy ran away. He ran away."

"And this uncle—where does he live?" Job asked.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Job. At that instant Ben Brown and Dick entered the grounds, and Job beckoned them to approach.

"Who is this, Mother Camp?"

The old woman gazed at him intently.

"It's Dick—it's Dick."

"It's me, Mother Camp. And this gentleman is my friend—Mr. Brown."

The farmer took Brown and Dick aside and their amazement was very great when he informed them of the facts learned from Mother Camp.

"You'll come to New York when we want you," said Brown, after the matter had been talked over and they understood clearly what must be done.

Zeke Caper did not encounter them again until they were leaving. Then he bowed politely, until his eye fell on Dick, when he grew very pale.

"Here—you! I want you now—at once. How dare you come in this company?"

"He did not come—I brought him," said Ben Brown.

"But I will come back, Mr. Caper, and when I do, you'll make up your mind to quit Barnesville."

Then the party withdrew.

Upon their return to New York steps were taken immediately to verify Mother Camp's statements. Dr. Clifford's recollection was so clear he narrated all the circumstances attending the illness and poverty of Mrs. Simpson.

Israel Heber's source of wealth also was easily discovered. His brother, who was addicted to intemperance, died childless—or his son died—and Israel came into half a million or more.

"The way's all clear for us," said Brown to Wonder, as they talked the matter over with Dick.

"How would it do to let me write a little letter to my Uncle Israel," said Dick.

"Good! Do!" said Ben.

Dick wrote just two lines, to the effect that he was about to proceed against his uncle and Zeke Caper.

When Israel Heber received the little letter, he selected a stout rope, and the next day the papers published an account of the "rich merchant's mysterious suicide."

A day later Zeke Caper stole away from Barnesville in disguise, westward bound, but Providence had marked a different course for him. A collision took place a short distance from Barnesville, and Zeke Caper was the only passenger killed.

The same papers that contained the announcement of Caper's sudden taking off devoted upwards of a column to the startling details of a conspiracy to wed an English heiress. The names alone were suppressed; but Isaac Jenks, Jeremiah Jenks, and Blinker's name figured prominently. Jeremiah fled the city. His brilliant nephew, Blinker, and two of Blinker's confederates were duly tried and sent to the State's prison for various terms, Their punishment was deemed heavy.

Monsieur and Madame Dufaur still conduct their admirable academy, and are more popular, if possible, than ever.

If there is one man more jolly and jovial than Job Wonder in Acorn County, the inhabitants have not found him. The fact that he was instrumental in proving Josephine Howson's claims has made him, if possible, kindlier than ever. And Samanthy will never, never accuse anybody of anything until her dying day. Job's wife talks of the time when young Lady Morford and Double Dick are "coming out to the farm."

Lady Morford speedily carried her granddaughter to England. It was said she had two objects in view—to silence her nephew forever, and to give her granddaughter the requisite degree of polish.

At her instance, Double Dick accompanied them abroad, and Dick would not be separated from Ben Brown; consequently Ben, his wife, and Dick formed as happy a trio as ever set sail for the old world. The fact that Dick was where he could see and speak to Joe—he persisted in calling her 'Joe' and she called him Dick—had much to do with the glow on his honest face.

Ben Brown's letters to his old friends, especially to Job Wonder, to whom he took a great liking, indicate closer relations at some future day between Double Dick and Joe.

[THE END.]

The Alabama Claims.

I am reminded of a glimpse of some inside diplomatic history that was given me by a well-posted Washingtonian, says a writer in the New York World. The Alabama matter was being talked over as having a bearing on the Itata affair, when he said: "We hear a great noise now and again about arbitration as a means of settling difficulties between nations that might otherwise lead to war. I learned long years ago that the way to win arbitration is to pack the commission. It was Caleb Cushing's shrewd Yankee wit that won us the Alabama case. Secretary Fish had picked out names to submit to Great Britain as arbitrators, when Cushing, who was one of the attorneys in the case, said: 'You will lose the case if that is to be the commission, Mr. Secretary.' When Mr. Fish asked for an explanation, Cushing told him that the gentlemen selected had nearly all expressed themselves in writing against the grounds that the United States would take before the commission in demanding damages. Mr. Fish asked Cushing to select a set of arbitrators, and the list Cushing drew up was submitted to England and accepted. Every name supplied by Cushing was that of a man whom he knew was in print with an opinion in keeping with the argument Cushing intended to make for the United States. There has always been more or less rivalry among the friends of Cushing and William M. Evarts as to which won the arbitration case for the United States. Cushing spoke in French, in which he was an apt and eloquent scholar. He was the only American lawyer who addressed the commissioners in a language common to them all—the language of diplomacy. He had the supreme advantage in addressing them of knowing that they were friendly to his argument."

A BROAD-STRIPED coat, a dotted vest,
Checked trousers, a red tie,
A stove-pipe hat, a colored shirt,
A collar very high,
A pair of patent-leather shoes—
Oh, picturesque display!
I thought it was a dummy,
Till it slowly walked away.

"LADIES," said the old gray-headed teacher. "I'm sorry to confess it, but I'd rather have five young men from the high school than one of you." "So would we, teacher," was the general reply.

Thousands of dollars worth of chickens are destroyed by Cholera every year. It is more fatal to them than all other diseases combined. But the discovery of a liquid remedy that positively destroys the Microbes has been made. Half of the young chickens are killed by Microbes before they are fryers. A 50-cent bottle is enough for 100 chickens. It is guaranteed. THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE ELECTION.

Ohio, Republican, by 20,000;
New York, Democratic, by 40,000;
Maryland, Democratic, 20,000;
Massachusetts, Democratic, 5,000;

Chicago and Detroit both elect republican local officers. Other states went as usual. Ohio has returned to its old love, but the democrats have got about all the rest.

RAINMAKING may yet become a trade. A man named Melbourne, at Canton Ohio, has contracted with about forty counties in Kansas to produce what rain they need next year, at ten cents for each cultivated acre of land. It runs from May to September.

THE Kankakee drainage may go on after all. No work had been done, as the men on the commission were required to give a bond, that the removal of the rock at Momence, Ill., should not exceed the $40,000 appropriated. Now, Hon. Frank Landers of Indianapolis and John Brown of Crown Point, have accepted on those terms, and Gov. Hovey has appointed them.

CHILI is all the talk of the daily papers. The other day a lot of sailors from our warship in the harbor of Valparaiso, were ashore, and a lot of roughs in the city insulted them. A fight ensued, in which many were hurt. One American was killed, and another died a few days later. Our government demands an apology and damages. The Chilian government reply that they'll see about it. This looks like an insult, but probably both sides will cool down and be reasonable, and there will be no war.

Court.

On Tuesday the ditch cases came up. The Judge had been up to see the ditch in the case of Beuchat vs Zonker, and having looked over the ground, decided that Zonker and the other defendants need not pay any damages in the construction of the drain, and that the plaintiff should attend to the costs. Then the case between the commissioners and VanAuken came up on a motion to take a change of venue to some county outside the district. The judge decided, after hearing arguments that it could not be finished this term anyway and he would take a few days to see about the change of venue.

$5.00 Reward.

It has become a habit with some persons in town to mar and tear the bills which have been pasted up in the interest of the Auburn Fair, after they have been put up by J. C. Henry. Mr. Henry authorizes it to be said that he will give five dollars reward for the conviction of any person performing the above depredations.

Burglar sensation; another burglar entered the residence of Sol. Barney last Sunday afternoon in their absence at church. He removed the transom over the kitchen door door and gained entrance then going up stairs to the bed room in the dressing case found the gold watch that Mr. B. had purchased for Merritt's 21st birthday gift, and $42 in money and two revolvers. The thief was pursued to the east woods of G. W. Draggoo, there they lost trace of him.

There were three arrivals from abroad Saturday. They were Mrs. Maggie Updegraph, of Springport, Mich., Mrs. Gundy, a sister of Miss Cora Draggoo, from Lancaster county Mich., and David Draggoo, from Lagrange, Ind.

Although nothing was stolen we can report that our town was visited by a full grown burglar Sunday. We will not object as he was moving along to the best of his ability and only hope his successors will oblige us by doing likewise.

Some coon hunters built a fire in Samuel High's woods while watching a coon tree and when they left it, they scattered it about to die out, but instead it caught in the dry leaves and spread so rapidly that it did much damage before gotten under control. A good many rods of fence, and cord wood was destroyed.

On last Saturday Vet Johnson and Sam Steward met with an accident while delivering their chickens at Waterloo. They were driving along quite fast when one of the burrs came off of the wagon wheel letting the men and chicken coops on the ground in a promiscuous manner. Alec Timmerman, of Waterloo, was with them and all three received slight bruises.

Bill Baker took a dive into the creek off of the railroad bridge near his home one day recently and landed in ten foot of good cold water. His mother said he had promised to take her visiting, and then wouldn't go, and so got the ducking as a punishment. Bill said that was the hardest water to light on he ever saw, as couldn't get around very well for several days afterward.

The woman's missionary society of the M. E. church will be entertained by Mrs. Nannie Buttefield Saturday afternoon Nov. 7. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

It is certainly a sad sight to see young boys not yet out of their teens, reeling along the streets and hear them cursing like practical vicious men. Better had it been that their parents, years ago had taken them to church and Sunday school than to let them spend their Sabbaths roaming at will. Better had it been that such children had died in infancy, than to live to disgrace their parents and friends, and to become leaders in vice and perhaps in crime. A realization of the responsibility of a parent, ought to lead them, to never make light of the religion of the Lord Jesus, nor to place barriers in the way of those who would lead christian lives. Sometimes there are mothers and wives, husbands and fathers, who use ridicule as a means to destroy the moral sense of christian obligation and often the consequences recoil with stunning effect upon their lives and drive them in despair into premature age. May God help all such to change the manner of their lives and set themselves diligently to repair the evil they have done.

One of Auburn's most worthy young ladies, Miss Minnie Wilson, was married yesterday to a Mr. Schneider, a prominent young business man whose home, we believe, is in Arkansas. Our people will send an abundance of good wishes with them to their new home, in which the COURIER heartily joins.

The executive committee of the Humane Society took pity on a team Tuesday, that had stood nearly all day shivering in the sharp air, while its owner was having a comfortable time in the saloons. They had the horses taken to a barn and fed. We think they paid for it, too, but cannot say for certain. But the horses will be thankful, no doubt.

Ernest Sheets went this week to Champaign, Ill., where he has a good position, and his wife will join him soon, as they will likely remain. We are extremely sorry to lose both, for they have proved themselves most worthy young people, and are very popular. The band especially, will miss Mr. Sheets, for he was one of its most active members. The COURIER follows up its regrets, with best wishes for the future.

Obituary.

William Mochamer was born in Berks county, Pa., April 8, 1808, died Oct. 25, 1891, aged 83 years, 6 month and 17 days. With his parents, in youth, he came to Stark county, Ohio, and from there to Wayne county, where he grew to manhood. July 19, 1833, he was united in marriage with Anna Yockey. For 53 years they shared the trials and conflicts of life. March 11, 1886, she was called from earth to reward, at the age of 73 years, 1 month and 7 days. This union was blessed with nine children, two sons and seven daughters. One son and one daughter were called to the unknown, in youth. One son, six daughters and thirteen grandchildren live to mourn the loss of their father. He moved from Wayne county, O., to DeKalb county, Ind., in 1845, in which county, he has lived 46 years. Thus another of the old pioneers has gone from our midst. The funeral services were held in Rehoboth church, by the pastor S. S. Stanton, after which the remains were taken to Auburn, for interment.

Obituary.

Goldie Pearl, daughter of J. B and D. Draggoo, born Sept. 15, 1890, and died Oct. 21, 1891, aged 1 year, 1 month and 6 days. The funeral services were held in the Concord church Oct. 23, 1891, conducted by S. S. Stanton.

"In this dark world of sin and pain,
We only meet to part again;
But when we reach the Heavenly shore,
We there shall meet to part no more.
The hope that we shall see that day
Should chase our present grief away."

The New Prosecutor.

Joseph Butler, the new prosecutor, has entered on the duties of his office, and was down here a part of last week and this, to get matters in shape. His deputies for this county, are all appointed. At Auburn, he selected Don A. Garwood; at Waterloo, John F. Shuman; at Butler, James H. Rose, and at Garrett, L. J. Gengler. Mr. Gengler and Mr. Garwood have both had experience in this kind of work, and the other two are wide-awake young attorneys, who will, we presume, serve the people's best interests in the rather difficult work before them. It will be seen that Mr. Butler, has not confined himself to one party, in his appointments, and we do not know that he was under any special obligations to do so. Our acquaintance with Mr. Butler is limited, but he has the reputation of being an honest, painstaking man.

The C. L. S C. had a pleasant time on Tuesday evening. They had a surprise and farewell reception for Mrs. Ernest Sheets at the home of Mrs. John Hebel. A fine program was prepared and given, after which a nice lunch was indulged in. They all returned home at a late hour regreting to part with one that has been such an efficent officer and earnest member of their society. This will be a bright spot to think of in her future home.

Harry Treutman is "business" for a small lad. He is up in the morning before day, to get his daily papers. And when these are delivered, he spends the rest of his spare time clerking in the "Two Johns" grocery. Here he has in charge the show cases of candy, cigars and similar articles, and he has put them all into nice shape. Harry is quite a lad, and we hope he will not fall into some of the bad ways of many chaps of his size.

Our old friend, Mr. Wierman of Corunna, was in paying his taxes Monday. He had a plenty of all kinds of fruit this season, including peaches. He had a lot of young peach trees, just coming into bearing, that if nothing happens to them, will be valuable in a year or two. He planted them in rows like corn, so that will make them shelter one another, and then he mulches them with ashes and similar fertilizers to keep back insects. He believes he can raise a good peach crop.

The Auburn Woolen Mills are becoming quite popular are at this, the latter part of the season, doing a booming business. Aside from supplying DeKalb, Steuben, Allen and Noble counties in Indiana, and Williams county, Ohio, they are meeting demands of an increased foreign trade. Immense quantities of their goods are being shipped to St. Louis, Mo., and other points in the west. The goods manufactured by this firm have many advantages over those put on the market by eastern mills, and the people are becoming aware that it pays to patronize a home industry.

As fine a picture as we have been permitted to look upon upon from our local galleries lately, was the one of the 100th Ind. Vol., taken by J. G. Clapp, while the reunion was in progress here. He is a first class artist and is running out a line of work to his patrons equal to any of the high class common work in the cities. Mr. C has facilities for making the best pictures out.

Lieut. Gov. Will. Cumback was in the city last Saturday, being on his way to fill an appointment with the lecture association at St. Joe. In company with his friend, J. E. Rose, he made the rounds of his old acquaintances, of whom he has many here, and many warm friends. Mrs. Leasure who is a native of Mr. Cumback's town, is also an old friend of his. He is a man of great ability, genial and warm hearted, an excellent speaker, and we have no doubt the friends at St. Joe had a fine intellectual treat.

The Dispatch has now joined the ranks of first-class local papers, having increased its size from a 6-column to a 7-column 8-page paper. This is a move in the right direction and we congratulate them on having reached the point where they feel justified in doing it. The COURIER reached that point May 16, 1889, and has never had cause to regret it. Some time later the Waterloo Press followed the COURIER's good example, and now with the Dispatch, the county has three of these large papers. It speaks well for the enterprise of our newspaper men.

THE idea of people flying through the air is no new thing. When your grandmother's grandmother was a little girl, she could have told you, if you had been there, of the successful trip to the moon made by Mother Goose on a broomstick.

THERE is nothing extraordinary about the frequently published statement that one-eighth of the wine produced in California last year came from a single vineyard. Seven eighths of the wine exported from France comes out of a single laboratory.

ACCORDING to a Chicago paper, "a lineal descendant of George Washington" is a prominent figure at the Washington congresss of the Daughters of the Revolution. There is a slight error in this. The distinguished George was the father of his country, but that was all.

NOBODY disputes the right of laborers to parade the streets, only the economist recognizes that whether he labors on the street and earns two dollars and a half or parades the streets and spends two dollars and a half for his band and other incidentals makes a difference of five dollars to him.

IT must have been a blow to New York to learn that the very day after Chicago unveiled a Grant monument the contracts for the last of the great public buildings of the World's Fair were let. It's a way Chicago has, to get a second great enterprise well under way while setting the capstone upon one just completed.

WHEN Manager Daly left for home with the manuscript of Tennyson's new comedy in his inside pocket the poet said to him: "If here or there you want any more words, send me the idea in the roughest prose and I will supply the text." There has never been any doubt of the laureate's ability to supply words if somebody would send him the ideas.

EVERY lover of Nature will be pleased to learn that the idiotic project of M. Eiffel to erect a tower on the summit of Mont Blanc has been abandoned. There seems to be a vigorous determination not to leave an inch of the Alps without a tunnel or a railway or an observatory, and if Mont Blanc is to be spared a little longer it is certainly cause for congratulation.

IT is getting to be an interesting question what constitutes pauperism. An immigrant who came to this country with $3,000 on his person was held at the New York custom house until somebody gave a bond that he should not become a public charge. It would almost seem as if the possession of such a sum were a sufficient guaranty, or as much of a guaranty as can reasonably be asked. If every citizen who cannot show that amount in possession or expectancy were to be branded as a pauper, the alms-houses of the land would have to be materially enlarged.

A WOMAN in Hancock County, Me., was afraid to drive across a railroad track the other day, so she spent hours in a vain endeavor to reach the other side without doing so. How much bitter disappointment she might have avoided had she heeded the lesson taught by the example of that intellectual fowl whose brilliant achievement is immortalized in these touching lines:

Our old hen, she crossed the road,
Why do you think she crossed the road?
Because she couldn't go round it.

VAST and admirable is the adaptability of the human mind to the ends to which it is employed! The British commissioners to Behring Sea have just returned with the report that the seals are rapidly increasing in numbers and seem to be practically safe from any danger of extinction—a conclusion, it is needless to say, that fully supports the contentions of the British diplomats in the Behring Sea case. The United States commissioners, on the contrary, report a most melancholy state of affairs. The gentle seals are being hunted down, massacred, slaughtered and are upon the point of joining the mastodon and dodo in the rank of extinct animals. The American and British taxpayers have paid their money for the two commissions and may take their choice of the reports.

GIVE a stupid person the benefit of a doubt. We cannot all of us roar like lions, and yet in the great orchestra of nature the katydid has its place as well as the king of beasts. Because some "little ones" sit, goggle-eyed and silent, in the midst of so much mighty roaring, do not doubt that when their opportunity comes they can chirp up like good fellows. Give them a chance, then, and even if they do not improve it, hesitate before you call them uninteresting and stupid. Katydids were not made to sing by lamplight and in crowds. When the noises lull and the lights go out their disputations begin and last, while sweeter singers are locked in slumber. In company, then, don't put down all the silent people as fools; yield them the deference due to those who merely await their opportunity.

THOSE who believe in the existence of such a disease as hydrophobia will be interested in the minute directions of its treatment which are given in a recent number of a Chinese medical journal. "The presence of the disease having been ascertained," the authority in question observes, "the next step to be taken, and one which is of prime importance, is to search the hair of the patient. There will certainly be found one hair of the color of vermilion, rather stronger and coarser than the ordinary hairs. This must be entirely pulled out, not even the smallest part of the root to be left, since otherwise the disease cannot be cured." If it could be firmly fixed in the minds of people in general that if the vermilion hair aforesaid were not to be found it may be safely taken for granted that the disease is not hydrophobia, it would be an excellent thing.

DEATH has been so busy among the leading politicians of Great Britain and Ireland that it may precipitate a general election. Indeed, there will be a general election in miniature as a consequence of the taking-off of so many notable men. The death of Postmaster General Raikes, Lord Justice Glencorse, of Scotland, and Lord Portsmouth recently has led to half a dozen Parliamentary vacancies in Great Britain, and Parliamentary contests are now being waged in Northeast Manchester, Buteshire, the Thanet division of Kent, South Buckingham, and North Devonshire. In all those places the Liberals are trying to win seats which the Tories have held until a month ago. The death of Mr. Smith and the ministerial changes consequent thereon will create another half dozen of vacancies and there will be a number of contests as a consequence. The death of Mr. Parnell, of course, will lead to a fight in Cork between the moderate Nationalists and the Fenians, or Hillside men, while there may be another ugly fight in Kilkenny to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir John Pope Hennessy, who inflicted the first defeat on Parnell after the decree of the divorce court. The next three months will, in fact, witness from twenty to thirty elections in Great Britain and Ireland, and the results will be a fair expression of the sentiment of the country.

WHO PAYS THE TARIFF?

IT IS NOT PAID BY THE FOREIGNERS.

The Lessons Taught by the Duties on Window Glass—Complete Refutation of McKinley's Assertion that the Foreigner Pays the Tariff Tax.

In a recent speech, in which he attempted to justify his tariff, Major McKinley said: "Don't you believe those wicked Democrats when they tell you that the tariff is a tax. The foreigner pays it; you don't."

The times have passed when mere assertions like the above carry conviction, especially since they are contrary to experience. Such claims as this must be accompanied by facts and figures to prove their validity, or they will fall flat. Last week we showed who pays the tariff on pottery, which McKinley claims as his special hobby.

McKinley ought also to be familiar with window glass, since the window-glass combination has many factories in the district which McKinley represented in Congress.

The working of this window-glass combination is a good illustration of the way in which trusts protected by the tariff take full advantage of the tariff to restrict production and keep up prices.

The ad valorem equivalents of specific duties are based upon the importations of 1890.

Not above 10x15 sq. inches	1⅜c	68
10x15 to 16x24 square inches	1⅞c	115
16x24 to 24x30 square inches	2⅜c	129

In spite of these duties, averaging over 100 per cent., we still import about 30 per cent of the window glass we use each year. The reason why we continue to do so is because the glass trust finds that it can make more money by producing a small amount of glass and selling it at high prices, equal to the foreign price of glass plus the duty, than it could were it to make all the glass used for home consumption.

But Major McKinley says that the foreign manufacturer pays the duty, and not the home consumer. How absurd this is, is shown by the figures of the cost of the foreign glass imported in 1890 and the amount of duties levied. In 1890 we imported $1,402,796 of window glass, on which $1,538,228 were paid in duties. Does McKinley mean when he says that the foreigner pays the tariff tax that the Belgians presented us with $1,402,796 worth of window glass and gave us $135,432 besides for taking it as a gift?

How the window glass trust takes advantage of the tariff to charge consumers all the bonus that the tariff allows is shown in the following table, which gives the present wholesale prices in Belgium, from which all our imports come, and the United States for second quality single-thick glass. These prices are absolutely correct:

Sizes in inches	U. S. price per box	Belgian price per box	U. S. higher per box	Duties per box.
11x14 to 16x24	2.18	1.01½	1.16½	.97½
18x22 to 20x30	2.82	1.38	1.44	1.24
16x36 to 24x30	2.99¼	1.58	1.41¼	1.24
26x28 to 24x36	3.33 3-5	1.58	1.75 3-5	1.50
26x36 to 26x44	3.50½	1.79	1.71½	1.62
26x46 to 30x50	3.93	2.20	1.73	1.62
30x52 to 30x54	4.10 2-5	2.34	1.76 2-5	1.62
30x56 to 34x56	4.36	2.53	1.83	1.63
Total 9 boxes various sizes	$29.06¾	$15.31	$13.75¾	$12.15

This shows clearly that the glass trust charges all that the tariff will allow. What, in view of this, becomes of McKinley's mere assertion that the "foreigner pays the tax, you don't?

England formerly levied an internal tax upon house windows, but every part of the receipts went into the national exchequer. To-day, under the McKinley tariff, we, in effect do the same, but how differently do we dispose of the receipts under our system—not the treasury but the window-glass trust pockets the money. This is the system which McKinley says is for the best interests of the country, the system which the late Justice Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, in the Topeka case, characterized as robbery as follows:

"To lay with one hand the power of the Government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation."

A Story of Tin in Two Chapters.

CHAPTER I.—THE ASSERTION.

They talk about the tin plate tax. [Laughter.] Suppose we don't make a pound of tin plate. The duty on it has been increased from 1 cent to 2.2 cents, but you're not paying a cent more for your tin than you did before. The old tariff on tin brought seven millions into the Treasury. The new one will bring in sixteen millions. Supposing we continue to import it all. We've a clear gain of nine millions, and your tin isn't costing you a cent more.

Carnegie Bros.' Latest Move.

The last number of the Iron Age, the high tariff organ of the iron and steel monopolies, says: "On Thursday, the 15th, a conference was held between Chas. M. Schwab, general manager of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, of Carnegie Bros. & Co. (limited), Bessemer, Pa., and a committee of workmen of the converting department of the plant. The conference was for the purpose of arranging the scale of wages to be paid the men in that department, to go into effect on Jan. 1 of the coming year. The scale now in force expires on the last day of this year.

"The conference lasted all day, and a scale of wages was agreed upon, but was not made public. From some of the workmen, however, information was obtained that some very heavy reductions have been made. Under the old scale the steel melters were paid $1.06 per 100 tons: the new scale, as first submitted by the firm, asked them to accept 62½ cents per 100 tons, or nearly 50 per cent. of a reduction. The men compromised by accepting 65 cents per 100 tons. The vessel repairers were reduced from 37 cents to 26 cents per 100 tons. It is stated that the vessel men will suffer the greatest reduction, the new scale reducing their wages about 50 per cent.

"On Saturday, the 7th inst., the scale for the blooming mill was arranged. It is stated that the ladlemen have been reduced from $1.19 to 89 cents per 100 tons. Other departments have been reduced in proportion. It is probable that during this week the scale for the rail department will be taken up, and will probably be adjusted to the satisfaction of both sides."

Only a short time ago the members of the steel-rail trust met in Philadelphia to consult. Everything went smoothly, says the Philadelphia Press. This is one result of that consultation: The trust is preparing, as it did in 1886 and 1887, to foreclose its tariff mortgage on the coming boom in railway construction predicted by the Iron Age.

How many more lessons like the above will be necessary to convince the workmen whose wages are reduced that not they but the men who are in the trust hold this tariff mortgage?

WHAT FLANNEL SHIRTS COST.

Under the McKinley bill a plain ordinary flannel shirt sells at the cheapest retail stores in St. Louis for $2.50. This shirt is all wool, well made and warm, such a garment as every working man exposed to the weather in this climate ought to wear. The full suit of this flannel, shirt and drawers costs $5. A shirt; shoddy and cotton mixed, with the wool predominating, and having the appearance of an all-wool garment, can be had for $2, or $4 the suit. For $1.25 for the shirt or $2.50 for the suit, wool and shoddy mixture or cotton warp is offered, and this, no doubt, will be taken by most people of limited income. It is not so bad but that it might be a great deal worse, as may be seen by comparing it with cheaper imitations of flannel. It takes the place of the wool and camel's-hair mixtures sold in 1888 and 1889 at $2 and $2.50 the suit, the suit lasting two years, with wear from September to June 1 of each year. The imitation flannel, which must now be taken as a substitute, loses most of its wool by washing, only enough remaining with the cotton to make it hard and stiff. After a few washings there is little warmth left in such goods.

But, leaving the imitations of all grades from very bad to very good out of consideration, take the real flannel, the plain, substantial, all-wool shirt at $2.50, or suit at $5. The lowest possible cost here for flannels for the winter for one man is $10 for two suits, or $15 for an extra suit, such as every workingman should have against emergencies when dry flannels are needed and his change suit is "in the wash."

It is clear that under McKinley prices real flannel is out of the reach of people who have small incomes. The average wage earner cannot afford it at all. He must put up with the imitations, for at the average wages of $1 a day he would have to work five days to get a single suit of flannels. When it comes to buying for himself, his wife, for the average family of five persons, two or three changes apiece, including underskirts for the females, he can no more afford real flannels than he can diamonds and rubies. Under the McKinley bill real flannel is a luxury for those only whose incomes are much above the average. It will often happen that men of family with an income of $50 or over a week will be compelled to lay aside reluctantly the real flannels when buying, for themselves and take the cotton and shoddy mixtures, which, however skillfully made as imitations, are very far from being flannels.

Any head of the family who goes to lay in the winter supply of clothing will see at once how greatly the total expense for all-wool and imitation woolen goods has been increased by this vicious and demoralizing taxation. The best grade of all wool flannel shirts, ready made, would not sell for more than $1.25 were there no tax on the material or the finished goods. The real value of the imitation woolen shirts is much less, and without the tax they would sell by their grade or their merit. As it is, the buyer is compelled to take what he can get. The retail seller does the best he can for him, but with double and triple taxation on every article of woolen goods in his trade, the dealer's power to please his customers is minimized, and his trade is minimized with it. For it is not every one who, after paying a real flannel price for an imitation flannel shirt, understands the political economy of it. He finds that he has been swindled, and he thinks he has been swindled by a dealer who has done his best under a law which does its worst.—St. Louis Republic.

McKinley Prices.

In a recent speech at Lawrence, Mass., Governor Russell read a list of 122 articles of common use, the duties on which were increased by the McKinley tariff and the prices raised accordingly. On the whole, there is an advance of about 20 per cent. above the prices prevailing in September, 1890, before the McKinley tariff went into effect.

These lists were prepared for the Governor by one of the largest retail firms in Boston, and are thoroughly reliable. The following table shows how prices were advanced in consequence of increased duties on glassware and crockery:

Glassware.	Duty advanced, per cent.	Retail price advanced, per cent.
Common tumblers	15	12
Common goblets	15	6
Jelly tumblers, ½ pint	15	10
Jelly tumblers, ⅓ pint	15	15
White hanging-lamp shades	12	15
Pickle dishes	12	10
Bowls	12	18
Water sets	12	8
Two-quart pitchers	12	14
Four-inch footed preserve dishes	12	7
Four-inch unfooted preserve dishes	15	20
Crockery.
Cups and saucers	10	5 to 12
Plates	10	5 to 12
Platters	10	5 to 12
Vegetable dishes	10	5 to 12
Pitchers	10	5 to 12
Bowls	10	5 to 12
Mugs	10	5 to 12
Pickle dishes	10	5 to 12
Gravy dishes	10	5 to 12
Soup tureens	10	5 to 12
Salad bowls	10	5 to 12
Pudding dishes	10	5 to 12
Sugar bowls	10	5 to 12
Coffee cups and saucers	10	5 to 12

The glassware manufacturers formed a trust, soon after the enactment of the McKinley tariff to take advantage of the increased duties. At the same time the crockery combinations, after reducing wages, also raised prices.

It is strange that so many people express surprise that these things have happened. On the contrary, this is just what those who made the McKinley tariff wanted to bring about.

Germany and American Pork.

In his recent letter to the editor of the Bucyrus (Ohio) Journal, Mr. Blaine said:

"Germany, without negotiating a formal treaty, has removed the prohibition on pork, and our government in consideration thereof, has left her sugar on the free list. This opens to us an entirely new market, and $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 of American pork will be consumed per annum, where not a pound has been taken for ten years."

Before Germany prohibited the importation of our pork our exports to that country were as follows:

Pork	79,364	108,218
Total	$1,865,858	$1,778,544

Had the prohibition not existed we would have exported to Germany in ten years about as much pork as Mr. Blaine claims we shall hereafter export to her each year.

It will be noticed that Mr. Blaine forgot to say anything about the German tariff on our pork. The reason why he did not is because Germany still imposes a high duty which will keep out our pork about as well as the prohibition of it has done. In effect there is no difference whether the prohibition is effected directly or indirectly by high duties.

But what becomes of Mr. Blaine's assertion that the removal by Germany of its prohibition law, was a triumph of reciprocity, when President Harrison declares through his private secretary, "The removal of the pork restriction has nothing to do with any question of reciprocity, but is based upon the acceptance by the German government of the inspection of meats by this government under the law of the last Congress."

The Farmer Pays the Freight.

We will send abroad 250,000,000 bushels of wheat. For it we will receive say $250,000,000. This will be invested in clothing, in carpets, in linens, in furniture, in chinaware, in tinware, in hardware, etc.

When these cargoes reach New York they are seized by Federal officers. They are weighed and measured and valued, and the owners are compelled to pay in duties 50 per cent. of the value of the cargoes. This will be a tax of $125,000,000.

In other words, the farmers must send abroad three bushels of wheat in order to get in return the exchange value of two.

Last year the exports of cotton amounted to 5,800,000 bales. One-third of the return cargoes were confiscated under the plea of protection.

Of last year's cotton crop two-thirds were exported, one-third was consumed at home.

It required all the cotton sold to American mills to pay the duties on the return cargoes taken in exchange for the 5,800,000 bales sold abroad.

Here we have an object lesson illustrating the injustice and the oppression of our whole system, so-called.

The farmer, he pays the freight; he pays the tax; he pays the pensions. To do this he has to cultivate three acres in order to have for his own use the product of two.

It is the most stupendous system of iniquity and oppression to which any free people ever submitted; and yet the farmer who works three days for two days' wages is expected to walk up to the polls in Pennsylvania, in Ohio, and in the great Northwest and vote for McKinley and protection.

Tariff Shot.

The tariff on steel rails is kept there solely in the interest of the steel rail trust. How this trust makes use of it is shown below. Whenever an era of railroad building sets in the trust raises the price of rails, and thus forecloses its tariff mortgage. The last foreclosure was in 1886 and 1887. The trust expects to repeat the process next year.

Average of new mileage of railroad built in the United States in 1884 and 1885, 3,766½ miles.

Tariff Prices for Farmers to Consider.

A bushel of wheat in 1855 would buy twenty-one and one-half yards of heavy brown sheeting and shirting. To-day it will buy twelve and one-half yards of the same quality of cloth. Has the farmer profited by "protection"?

* * *

In 1855 a bushel of wheat would buy eighteen and three-quarters yards of good calico. To-day it will buy fifteen and one-half yards of calico of the same grade. How much has the farmer profited by "protection?

* * *

Thirty-one years ago the farmer exchanged his wool for cloth, and had a home factory. To-day he exchanges more wool for the same quantity of cloth—but how about the cloth?

* * *

Thirty-five years ago a bushel of wheat would pay taxes on $200. In 1891 it takes three bushels and a half of wheat to pay taxes on $200. Then one bushel paid taxes on ten acres of average land; now one bushel pays on but little over two acres. What does the farmer think of this method of "progressing?"—Rockville (Ind.) Tribune.

Mr. Gigadab.

"Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith," said Doctor Holmes of one of his well-known classmates. Fate made one man too conspicuous, it seems, by such a name, and the owner had to invent a worse one to protect himself.

There is a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who goes by the name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name, so the story goes, was John Smith, but many years ago he began to brood over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in such a common name.

The name figured frequently in the criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of these bad John Smiths.

At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers recorded the capture of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this paragraph, who was also a bank accountant.

Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he has done so.

In Water and Yet Dry.

Into a basin of water throw a piece of money, a ring, or any other object, and propose to take it out without wetting your hands.

All that you have to do is to sprinkle the surface of the liquid with a powder that has no cohesion with the water, and consequently that the water does not wet. Lycopodium powder, which may be found in any drug store, has this property.

After having thrown a little of this powder on the water, plunge your hand bravely to the bottom and take out the ring, and show to the audience that your hand is perfectly dry. The reason of this is that the lycopodium has formed a perfect glove on your hand, thus preventing any contact with the liquid, the same as, for instance, ducks plunge their bodies into the water and come out perfectly dry on account of the oil which is secreted in their feathers.

THE Ohio Decennial State Board of Equalization find that the value of Ohio farms has decreased in ten years from $684,826,516 to $576,183,975, a loss of $108,642,541 in a period during which the Federal taxes on all farm supplies have been increased from 15 to 20 per cent. This is another point on which the McKinley stumpers appreciate the beauties of Quay's maxim, "Don't talk."

A TONIC which is said to be very efficacious in arresting the falling out of the hair is as follows: Bay rum, 1 quart; table salt, half teacupful; castor oil, 1 drachm; tincture of cantharides, 1 drachm.

A NEW mode of furnishing power to motor engines by mixing steam with hot gases is creating a great deal of interest in English circles.

"A Yard of Roses."

One of the popular paintings at the New York Academy of Design was a yard-long panel of roses. A crowd was always before it. One art critic exclaimed: "Such a bit of nature should belong to all the people; it is too beautiful for one man to hide away."

The Youth's Companion, of Boston, seized the idea and spent $20,000 to reproduce the painting. The result has been a triumph of artistic delicacy and color.

The Companion makes this copy of the painting an autumn gift to each of its five hundred thousand subscribers. Any who may subscribe now for the first time and requests it will receive "The Yard of Roses" without extra charge while the edition lasts.

Besides the gift of this beautiful picture, all new subscribers will receive the Companion free from the time the subscription is received till Jan. 1, including the Thanksgiving and Christmas double numbers, and for a full year from that date.

Every family should take this brightest and best of illustrated literary papers in addition to its local paper.

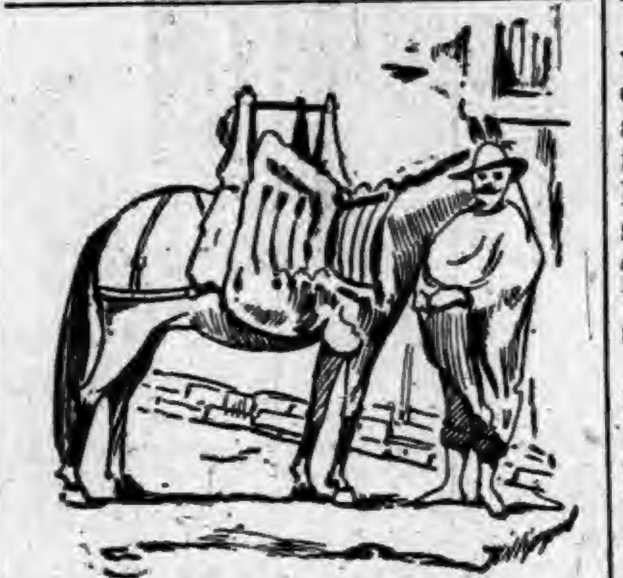
A MOVING BUTCHER SHOP.

Meat Sold in Mexico City from Donkeys' Backs by Itinerant Butchers.

Only the better classes of Mexicans eat meat, and one of the great fields of American investment is in the packing interests of Mexico. Hams and beef bring high prices, and the meat business of the city is managed by monopolies. Good beeves are worth from $25 to $50 a head. There is more mutton eaten than beef. The meat wagons of Mexico City are mules. Take one of the greasiest, dirtiest mules you can find and fasten a framework of hooks to a saddle on his back. Let this framework extend about a foot above the mule, and on the hooks hang the halves and quarters of beeves, so that the blood drips from them on the ground. Then you have the Mexican butcher cart of the mountains. The butcher or meat peddler wears a great blanket about his shoulders, a broad-brimmed hat on his head, and his feet are bare. If you buy a quarter of beef, he will carry it into your house on his head, and if you want a slice he will hack off a piece for you, and charge you about the same for the neck as the loin. The Mexicans sell every part of the animal, and in every market you will find little cook-shops in which shreds of beef are fried and offered for sale. These are for the Indian customers, who stand about and eat the greasy morsel with their fingers, and without the use of knife, fork, or plate. In Mexico City the butchering is more carefully done, and beef is comparatively cheap. You can get a roast for eighteen cents a pound, but pork is more expensive. The pork business of Mexico City is controlled by a Mexican, who has made millions out of it, and he is now putting up one of the biggest packing-houses in the world. He has his agents all over the city, and he imports his hogs from Kansas.

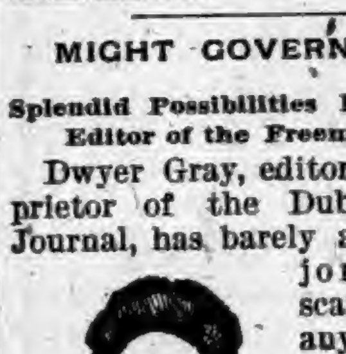


MEXICAN MEAT WAGON.

MIGHT GOVERN IRELAND.

Splendid Possibilities Before the Young Editor of the Freeman's Journal.

Dwyer Gray, editor and part proprietor of the Dublin Freeman's Journal, has barely attained his majority, and has scarcely ever done anything more remarkable than condescending to be born. As son of the late Edmund Dwyer Gray, M. P., he inherits a valuable newspaper property, and, upon his mother's side, is heir to vast estates in the south of England. The elder Gray was a Protestant, but religious scruples did not stand in the way of his marrying an English heiress who always has been devotedly attached to the Catholic faith.



DWYER GRAY.

It has been said that the man who controls the Freeman's Journal might govern Ireland if his ambition lay in that direction, and "Young Mr. Gray" is believed to entertain such ambition. The paper has just passed through a critical period and is not yet restored fully to its old position. It is probable, however, that Mr. Parnell's death will unite the party and thereby revive the fortunes of the Freeman. Within a few weeks the policy of that paper wheeled around from ardent support to violent opposition to Mr. Parnell. The old staff remained loyal, however, to the young proprietor, and its members have all returned to enlist under his banners again. Mr. Gray is the grandson of Sir John Gray, M. P., a prominent Dublin politician who succeeded in supplying his native city with good water from the Wicklow Springs. For such local improvement he was knighted.

"Hayseed."

There can be little doubt that a distaste for the farmer's life is cultivated among country boys by the caricatures of the farmer which are published in comic papers and "humorous" books, and by the fear of being classed among the people whom these caricaturists are pleased to call "hayseeds."

Boys are accustomed to see these "funny pictures," in which a sort of farmer who is extremely unusual, and may be said not to exist at all, is set forth as the type or example of farmers in general. And as boys are sometimes unreasoning, they are apt to say to themselves, "I will not be ridiculed in that way when I grow up; I will get out of the 'hayseed business.'"

In this way not only is an injustice done by these caricatures, but a positive injury.

The American people have a broad sense of humor, and no doubt delight in caricature; but they do not delight in injustice or mischief-making, when they are able to recognize it as such.

For this reason, it may be hoped that the caricaturing of the farmer, which has certainly been greatly overdone, may soon cease from the distaste for it which is pretty sure to arise.

The farmer himself can afford to take the "hayseed" ridicule good-naturedly. At a recent farmers' demonstration in the West, men rode in a procession dressed in cowhide boots, patched trousers, and ragged straw hats, carrying pitchforks on their shoulders. They had adopted the guise which the caricature gives them as a way of showing that they are independent of that sort of ridicule.

But in the case of the young this spirit of independence is not often so strong. With a little thought, they must see that an unjust caricature does not really affect the credit and honor of their occupation; but they are often ambitious of what is called consideration or respectability, and are likely to be unconsciously affected by misrepresenting pictures and stories.

It is the duty of the young to bear in mind that nothing is more respectable or dignified than the life of the independent farmer, and the duty of those who have it in their power to "raise a laugh" in the public prints to remember that they, no less than serious writers, have a responsibility to truth and justice.—Youth's Companion.

Air-Ships.

Anyone who has ever dreamed of flying must have a vivid impression of the pleasure that would be derived from the ability to navigate the air.

From the days of the Montgolfiers and their hot-air balloons to the present time, many false hopes have been held out that man was on the point of making a highway of the atmosphere, as he has done of the sea. But repeated disappointments have bred general incredulity on this subject.

When, however, a man of the scientific reputation of Prof. S. P. Langley demonstrates, as he has recently done by a series of original experiments, that heavy bodies can be sustained in the air, with rapid motion, there is good reason to hope that the problem of mechanical flight may yet be solved.

The principle upon which Professor Langley worked will be readily grasped by any boy who has ever shied a thin, flat stone, or a piece of slate into the air or upon the surface of smooth water, and watched it skim along.

Professor Langley experimented with thin metallic planes, and discovered that the time of fall of such a plane, even though it may be heavily weighted, can be indefinitely prolonged by imparting to the plane a sufficiently swift lateral motion. In other words, the plane may be made to slide through the air without descending to the earth.

By tipping the plane so that as it moves forward the air will strike against its under surface, the tendency to fall to the ground is counterbalanced. One of the most interesting facts shown by the experiments is, to quote Professor Langley's words, that, "the force required to sustain inclined planes in horizontal aerial locomotion diminishes instead of increasing when the velocity is augmented."

It is only necessary that the flying plane shall carry its own motor and steering apparatus, in order to transform it into a veritable ship of the air. We may soon see Professor Langley's idea put into practice, for Mr. Maxim, in England, is reported to be about to launch a flying machine, constructed on this principle, and consisting of a plane one hundred and ten feet long by forty feet wide, which is to be propelled by a screw driven by a petroleum condensing engine weighing eighteen hundred pounds.

A Wicked Parrot.

Every man who has a parrot is always telling what a wonderful bird is his. A lawyer in New York owns one of these "talking devils." A friend went home with him to dinner recently, and when the two men were approaching the house the lawyer said:

"My parrot can recognize my footstep as soon as it falls in the hall. When I open my door he always cries out from a back room, 'Hallo, Will; come in here.' Now," added the lawyer, as he slipped his key into the latch, "just listen."

They listened, and this is what they heard: "Hallo, Will, you old bald-headed fool; come in here." The lawyer, for one minute, looked as if the house had fallen on him. And it was all the fault of one of his brothers, who had heard the lawyer boast so often of his parrot that he taught the bird to insert the "bald-headed" part. Now he can't be broken of the habit.—New York Tribune.

Substitute for Steel.

An odd cargo of African vegetable fiber, tough as steel itself, is being landed at Hanover street wharf from the Italian bark Nuova Mondo. The vessel brought 2,236 bales of it from Oran, an Algerian seaport in the Mediterranean Sea. The fiber has been found to be so elastic that it can be used as a substitute for springs and the like in the manufacture of furniture backs and seats. It is so expansive and so easily affected by higher temperature in its dry state that the bales are held in place by bands of heavy steel. The peculiarity of the grass is that it thrives only around the volcanic mountain slopes of Oran, and flourishes up to within a short distance of the craters themselves. The latter are always in a semi-active state, and the earth around is so warm that not a plant of any kind can thrive or is ever seen to grow except this steel-like plant. When dry and flattened out it will pierce a body like an arrow.—Philadelphia Record.

Paper Is Crowding Out Wood.

Paper is fighting wood hard in the manufacture of boxes, buckets, and even packing-cases, and so perfect is the manufacturing process that in many instances nothing but the wonderful difference in weight can afford a clew to the presence of paper in the manufacture. Paper packing-cases are indestructible, apparently, and the saving they effect in freight is enormous. Thousands of dollars are already invested in this comparatively new industry, and a new company, with $1,250,000 capital, has been organized to introduce paper-boards into other lines. Experiments have been made with buggy wagons and other things where lightness is needed, and paper floorings in lieu of boards will soon be heard of. It is easy to render the material fire-proof in course of construction, and this is an additional advantage that is highly appreciated.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Before Vandyck made his first journey to Italy he paid a farewell visit to Rubens, and presented him with three of his pictures. One of these, "The Romans Seizing Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane," Rubens hung in the principal room in his house, and was never weary of praising it. The master returned his pupil's generosity by presenting to him one of his finest horses. Vandyck made his first stop at Savelthem, a village near Brussels. Here he fell in love with a girl named Anna van Ophem, and forgot Italy and his art while gazing in her face and wandering by her side through the fair valley in which she dwelt. But Anna regretted his idleness, and was curious to see the pictures that he could paint. Finally, he yielded to her persuasions, and painted two pictures for the parish church of Savelthem.

One of these was a "Holy Family," in which the Virgin was a portrait of Anna, while St. Joachim and St. Anna represented her father and mother. This picture he gave to the church. It has long since disappeared, and it is said that it was used to make grain-bags by French foragers. The second picture, for which he was paid, represented St. Martin of Tours, when he divided his cloak with two beggars. The saint was a portrait of Vandyck himself, and the horse he rode was painted from that which Rubens had given him. This picture was very dear to the people of Savelthem, and when, in 1758, they discovered that the parish priest had agreed to sell it, they armed themselves with pitchforks and other homely weapons, and, surrounding the church, insisted that the picture should not be removed. In 1806, however, they were powerless before the French soldiers, and, though they loved their saint as dearly as ever, he was borne away to Paris and placed in the gallery of the Louvre, where he remained until 1815, when he was taken again to Savelthem and restored to his original place. It is also said that, in 1850, a rich American offered $20,000 to any one who would bring this picture to him no matter how it was obtained. Some rogues tried to steal it, but the watch-dogs of Savelthem barked so furiously that the men of the village were alarmed, and rushed to the church so quickly that the robbers scarcely escaped. Since then a guard sleeps in the church, and St. Martin is undisturbed, and may always be seen there dividing his cloak and teaching the lesson of that Christian charity for which his own life was remarkable.—St. Nicholas.

Men of mature age generally write the most impassioned love letters. Attachments at that age are deeper, and less anxiety not to compromise oneself is shown and felt. From 25 to 40 they are more cautiously worded, and even occasionally signed with initials. Men between these ages, beside being desirous to avoid commiting themselves, are more or less ashamed of any display of sentiment. A young man from 18 to 25 will inundate the object of his affection with letters full of the most fervent protestations, as evanescent as they are ardent. After 50 men are often wise enough to vote the writing of love letters an unprofitable occupation; but some carry on the practice to a very advanced age. Their protestations are then ingeniously flavored with touches of the paternal, which sometimes entirely mislead the unsophisticated recipients. A German of most ages will address his sweetheart in the second person singular, and indulge in dreary descriptions of his every-day life, giving her little anecdotes about himself, interspersed by a quantity of sentimental platitudes which most of our own girls would designate "bosh." Frenchmen, in their love letters, are as expensive as they are insincere. Not that they have the least idea at the time that they do not feel every syllable they write. Compliments and aggregated expressions of devotion are idioms of the French language, and flow naturally from a Frenchman's lips, even under the most discouraging circumstances.

Returning home from a dinner party in St. Petersburg once, Prince Gortschakoff missed from the pocket of his overcoat his pocket-book, containing 30,000 rubles. He at once informed the Chief of Police, who assured him that the thief would quickly be hunted down. Sure enough, before a week had passed the Chief restored to the Prince the entire sum of money intact, but without the pocket-book, which, he said, the thief confessed having thrown away to avoid identification. This was very well; but a day or two later Gortschakoff, putting on the same overcoat, was surprised to find in a pocket overlooked before the missing pocket-book, containing untouched the 30,000 rubles, which he never had lost at all. The idea of restoring the supposed stolen money to the Prince from the public funds, in hope of thus winning favor for zeal and efficiency, speaks worlds for the police officer's ingenuity, but presents a curious phase of Russian official ethics.—New York Tribune.

Dr. Haley communicated to the Australian Medical Journal the interesting fact that for some years past he has found minimum doses of iodide of potassium of great service in frontal headache; that is, a heavy, dull headache, situated over the brow, and accompanied by languor, chilliness and a feeling of general discomfort, with distaste for food, which sometimes approaches to nausea, can be completely removed by a two-grain dose dissolved in half a wine-glassful of water, and this quietly sipped, the whole quantity being taken in about ten minutes. In many cases, he adds, the effect of these small doses has been simply wonderful—as, for instance, a person who a quarter of an hour before was feeling most miserable, and refused all food, wishing only for quietness, would now take a good meal and resume his wonted cheerfulness.

Jagson says he has found more grass widows in clover than in weeds.

Poisonous Plants.

There are many plants whose leaves, flowers and seed contain virulent poisons, which every one should know, so as to avoid them and keep children from them.

Buttercups possess a poisonous property which disappears when the flowers are dried in hay; no cow will feed upon them while in blossom. So caustic are the petals that they will sometimes inflame the skin of tender fingers. Every child should be cautioned against eating them; indeed, it is desirable to caution children about tasting the petals of any flower, or putting leaves into their mouths, except those known to be harmless.

The oleander contains a deadly poison in its leaves, and is said to be a dangerous plant for the parlor or dining-room. The flowers and berries of the wild briony possess a powerful purgative, and the red berries, which attract children, have proved fatal. The seeds of the laburnum and catalpa trees should be kept from children, and there is a poisonous property in their barks. The seeds of the yellow and the rough-podded vetches will produce nausea and severe headache.

Fool's parsley has tuberous roots which have been mistaken for turnips and produced a fatal effect an hour after they were eaten.

Meadow hemlock is said to be the hemlock which Socrates drank; it kills by its intense action upon the nerves, producing complete insensibility, and palsy of the arms and legs, and is a most dangerous drug, except in skilful hands. In August it is found in every field, by sea-shore and near mountain tops, and ladies and children gather its large clusters of tiny white flowers in quantities, without the least idea of their poisonous qualities. The water hemlock or cowbane resembles parsnips, and has been eaten for them with deadly effect.

The water dropwort resembles celery when not in flower, and its roots are also similar to those of the parsnip, but they contain a virulent poison, producing convulsions which end in death in a short time. The fine-leaved water dropwort and the common dropwort are also dangerous weeds.

The bulbs of the daffodils were once mistaken for leeks and boiled in soup, with very disastrous effects, making the whole household intensely nauseous, and the children did not recover from their effects for several days.—Country Gentleman.

Disastrous Failure!

It is with feelings of regret that we announce the failure of hosts of people troubled with inaction of the kidneys to take efficient means to renew their activity. This failure is most disastrous, for a complete wreck of the organs themselves must eventuate if timely means are not taken to re-establish their secretive function on a basis of activity and regularity. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews both, and prevents ultimate and fatal disaster. As it is one of the functions of the kidneys to strain from the blood, in its passage through them, impurities procreative of dropsy, rheumatism, and gout, an early impetus is all the more needful to be given to their operations when tardy or ineffectual. The unmedicated stimuli of commerce do not answer this purpose. Use the Bitters for dyspepsia, malaria, constipation and billiousness.

All a Mistake.

The reporter that had accompanied the special train to the scene of the wreck hurried down the embankment and found a man who had one arm in a sling, a bandage over one eye, his front teeth gone, and his nose knocked four points to star-board, sitting on a broken truck of the sleeping-car and surveying the horrible ruin all about him.

"Can you give me some particulars of this accident?" he asked, taking out his note-book.

"I haven't heard of any accident, young man," replied the disfigured party, stiffly.

A Good Man Gone Wrong.

"How did that affect his work?"

"His style was ruined by the books he had to read the youngster. His last novel began: 'What is this? This is our hero. Is he a blonde? Yes, he is a blonde, and his name is William Wilkins. I do not think William Wilkins is a pretty name, do you? You do? Well, so did Maud Brompton. See the house with the green shutters. That is where Maud Brompton lives with her aunt. Have you an aunt?'"

"What a shame!"—Harper's Magazine.

is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, effects a permanent cure of catarrh by eradicating the impurity which causes and promotes the disease. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed. Hood's Sarsaparilla also builds up the whole system, and makes you feel renewed in health and strength. All who suffer from catarrh or debility should certainly try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with satisfactory results, receiving permanent benefit from it." J. F. Hubbard, Streator, Ill.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for the past four years at intervals. I was troubled with catarrh, and the medicine effected a perfect cure. I take it now whenever I feel debilitated, and it always gives me immediate strength, regulates the bowels, and gives an excellent appetite." Levi Campbell, Parkersburg, W. Va.

"My daughter has had catarrh for nine years. She coughed and expectorated so much that every one thought she had consumption. I tried everything I heard of, but gained no relief. I sent her to Florida in September for the winter, and there her friends advised her to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. She wrote me that she had taken three bottles, and never felt so good in her life." Ate Monkey Every Day.

If the statements of William Straube, made in the trial of his suit against Gustav Schultz & Son before Judge Newberger in the City Court are true, the laborers in Nicaraguan mines no not fare sumptuously. He says that he and his fellow-workers had no meat but monkey meat, and that they were obliged to shoot monkeys Sunday after working in the mines all the week.—New York Sun.

"German Syrup"
For Throat and Lungs

Hemorrhage

Five Years.

"I have been ill for "about five years, "have had the best "medical advice, "and I took the first "dose in some doubt. This resulted in a few hours easy sleep. There "was no further hemorrhage till next "day, when I had a slight attack "which stopped almost immediately. By the third day all trace of "blood had disappeared and I had "recovered much strength. The "fourth day I sat up in bed and ate "my dinner, the first solid food for "two months. Since that time I "have gradually gotten better and "am now able to move about the "house. My death was daily expected and my recovery has been "a great surprise to my friends and "the doctor. There can be no doubt "about the effect of German Syrup, "as I had an attack just previous to "its use. The only relief was after "the first dose." J. R. Loughhead, Adelaide, Australia.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

It is better than soaking with oil, meal, etc. Should be used on all horses standing on hard floors or driven on hard roads. It also cures scratches, tetter, galls of all kinds, bruises, etc.

TOLEDO, O., April 6, 1891.

I had a horse in my stables that had hoofs so brittle that it was impossible to keep a shoe on his feet. I have used one can of Marshall's Hoof Cure on his hoofs and the horse has been shod for four weeks and the shoes stay on all right. I consider it the best hoof cure I have ever used.

Chicago's Highest Buildings.

[From Harper's Weekly.]

The highest building in Chicago at present (and one which is not built on the new Chicago construction system) is the Auditorium. Its loftiest point is 296 feet above the sidewalk. The Fair building, now almost completed in one section measures 241 feet to the coping, and it is possible that it will be carried higher—to sixteen or eighteen stories. The new Masonic Temple will measure, over all 274 feet. This is constructed entirely on the new system. The Ashland Block measures 210 feet to the coping; the Woman's Temple, whose topmost stories are now being finished, towers 266 feet feet from the ground; the Manhattan, 198 feet, the Monadnock, 194; the Henning and Speed block, 192; the Abstract building; 190; the Chamber of Commerce block, 180; the Home Insurance, 178; the Tacoma, 175; the Northern Hotel, 174; the Rookery, 164; the Owings block, 161; the Rand-McNally, 148; the Chicago Opera house, 125; and the L. Z. Leiter building, 133 feet.

A MILLION A YEAR.

A New York concern, manufacturers of an ammonia baking powder, boasts that its yearly profits are over a million dollars. While, perhaps, none of the makers of alum powders individually can show so large earnings yet their profits are enormous.

A business so profitable, will always attract to itself those whose greed will cause them to utterly disregard the effect their traffic may have upon the health or life of others.

Alum baking powders are introduced largely by gifts, prizes and lottery schemes. A piece of glassware or china, a child's wagon, sled, pewter spoon or some other article of attractive appearance, but of small intrinsic value or cost is given with each purchase or a number is attached to the can which entitles the customer to a similarly numbered article or to a prize of some kind. It is in some such way as this that the trade in alum and ammonia baking powders, which has now attained such giant proportions and their consumption by the public which has reached an extent which is truly alarming.

The highest authorities of all countries condemn the use of alum in bread without reserve. In America the most distinguished physicians, chemists and hygenists have declared than the traffic in alum baking powders should be suppressed by law. In England and France where the subject of pure food, and its effect upon the system, has been more fully considered and made the subject of extended experiments by the scientists, so serious a matter is the use of alum in bread or other food considered to be, that most stringent laws have been enacted to prevent it. These laws are rigidly enforced, and the sale of alum baking powders would not be permitted for an hour. Any one who attempted to make them for use in food, or attempted to use them for raising bread, biscuit or cake who would suffer severe penalties.

The ill effects upon the system of food raised by alum baking powders are the more dangerous because of their insidious character. It would be less dangerous to the community were it fatal at once, for then such food would be avoided; but their deleterious action because imperceptable at first is no less certain.

The puckering effect which alum has when taken in the mouth is familiar to everyone. Physicians say this same effect is produced by it upon the delicate coats of the stomach and intestines.

What housewife would take home to her family a can of alum baking powder if she kew it. Such powders only undermine the system in even infinitesimal doses day after day, imparts to the complexion a sallow and blotched appearance.

What a misnomer are the words "Absolutely Pure," as absolutely Pure, as applied to baking powders. Two of the largest selling brands, one made from alum, the other containing ammonia and both of these drugged baking powders stamped upon their labels and circulars these words absolutely pure, as a matter of fact they are "Absolutely Poor," as shown by official examinations.

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

Mrs. Geo. Shoner is visiting friends in Toledo.

Mr. McClure of Ft. Wayne, was here last Thursday.

Rev. Healy and wife were in town a short time Tuesday.

Wm. Ettinger had a finger cut off at the buggy body factory Friday.

Mrs. Smith of Goshen, is in Waterloo visiting her parents and family.

Mrs. Lily Brysland has gone to Elkhart to fill a position in a store.

Mr. Chadwick who lived here for a short time, was in town Wednesday.

The county treasurer was in Waterloo Wednesday Nov. 4, to receive taxes.

Mrs. Briggs of Forest, Ohio, visited friends in the vicinity a few days since.

Rev. D. Keller has removed his family to Hicksville, where he is settled for the present.

J. A. Dennison, C. Meeks and others left Wednesday for Northern Wisconsin on a hunting expedition.

Mrs. P. Morrell went last Thursday to Elkhart, to take baby Harry home and to visit her son and his wife.

S. Z. Dickinson's brother who has been in Waterloo for some time, has returned to his home near Quincy, Mich.

Geo. Kennedy, Lulu Rempis, John Shuman, Nettie Chamberlain, Katie Brown, have gone to Lagrange to attend the district convention of the Christian Endeavor.

Frank Boyer, a grandson of Baylers Boyer, of this place, died last Wednesday of typhoid fever at his home near Waterloo. He was sick but a few days. The funeral took place Thursday.

October 31, Alpha C. Carpenter was elected treasurer of the M. E. Sunday school, taking the place of Alfred Bartholomew who has gone to Michigan to fill a position in a mercantile establishment.

Rev. J. V. Coombs gave his lecture on Shams at the opera house Monday evening, in the interest of the Disciple church. He is an admirable speaker, full of wit and should have drawn a full house. The room was cold, and the speaker cut short his lecture on this account.

At a regular session of the L. M. C., at the home of Mrs. Morell, Tuesday evening of last week, the election of officers resulted as follows: President, S. C. S. Winslow; vice-pres., Olive Long; secretary, Juliette Dickinson; treasurer, Dora Locke; Critic, Florence Waterman; custodian of queries, Ida Blair.

The young folks of F. W. Willis's family entertained a number of their friends at their home Hallow een. This is a commendable way of observing this period, and most people will rejoice if it is so universally followed, even the hoodlums will cease studying up what will most annoy or injure peaceable citizens on this evening.

Last week Friday afternoon a tramp or tramps entered Henry Zerkle's house and stole a watch and chain, and a pair of good shoes, leaving a worn out pair in the place. Mr. and Mrs. Z. were up stairs and their son who had tended target through the night, was asleep down stairs. The tramps were followed to Butler where they escaped.

The temperance column in the Waterloo Press of last week, is in the writer's opinion good reading. It is quite refreshing to hear some one who places religion above politics, and who advocates voting in accordance with principle, even if opposed to party. If this was generally practiced intemperance and evil of all kinds would be crushed out, and we should have Heaven on earth.

We have been having changes all around on the railroad here. Our agent Frank Farr, so long here, has been promoted to the agency at Goshen. O. C. Dickinson who has been here as clerk so long has been sent to Archbald, O., to take charge of the station there, and F. B. Adams has this station. Mr. A., is well known here having lived here for several years, some time ago, and our people welcome him to our town.

BUTLER.

Mrs. Edward Capp, is very sick, with meager hopes of recovery.

Al. Livergood has the foundation laid for a new dwelling on West depot street.

A large force of men are at work rebuilding the coal dock, that will be ready for use again in a few days.

John Wilson is doing as well as could be expected and seems to bear his misfortune with unusual equanimity.

Dr. Fanning now occupies his cottage on West Oak street. The Dr. has expended quite a sum of money on this place and now has one of the tastiest and most convenient houses in town.

Our town authorities continue to expend large sums of money in needed improvements, which together with water works, will place the town in debt to a large amount. But we can profitably expend 10 per cent., of the value of our improvements for the safe protection from fire, that every few days wipes out some of our neighboring towns and villages.

On last Saturday night our town was swept by a wave of unusual lawlessness, a dozen bands of boys and young men, strewed the streets and doorways with corn and beans and not being content with dashing handfuls of these nearly harmless missiles against doors and windows frequently threw heavier articles and in not a few instances, broke in doors and window glass. Water closets were turned over by the dozen, sometimes nearly destroying them, and breaking valuable fruit trees; a number of chimnies were broken off at the roof and toppled over; wagons, buggies and loose machinery were dragged to a distance of half a mile, dumped into Big Run, and in many instances broken and injured. This is carrying a silly custom to an unusual extreme and if a dozen arrests and sensible fines follow, some one may have a livlier sense of the rights of others hereafter.

BUTLER.

(No. 2.)

A. F. Pinchin is on the sick list.

Miss Mamie Prosser has recovered from her long illness.

Mrs. Simon Strow, of Waterloo, was in town Friday, visiting friends.

Mr. Fillis, of Garrett, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Beechler, a few days.

Butler is pondering where to put the court house in case Ohio, moves west.

Mrs. Elsworth has returned from her visit with her parents at Bridgeport, Michigan.

Mrs. G. N. Rex, of Newville, was the guest of Mrs. A. Plum, Wednesday and Thursday.

The M. E. ladies have had the basement finished at an expense of about three hundred dollars, which makes a convenient place to hold socials and entertain a large company.

Schultz & Oberlin, the cider men, are finishing up the season in their line. All farmers need to do is to haul their apples to the mill and haul them away in butter, jell or cider, just as they like.

Mrs. Higgins bade adieu to Butler, Tuesday, and went to Oakley, Mich., where she will remain a few days, after which, she goes to Bay City, Oregon, her future home. She will long be remembered as a kind neighbor and faithful church worker, and her many friends wish her abundant success. Mr. Higgins will go later.

One of our handsome ladies was very much alarmed last Sunday morning, to find her husband's clothes too small for him, and was about to summon a physician, when he looked at her smilingly said: "Darling, don't you know I'm second boss on the section?" In the exhuberance of the moment, she clasped her arms around his neck, exclaiming: "Now, I'll get a pass to Chicago!"

GARRETT.

Prof. F. M. Merica is improving.

James Miller's parents are visiting him.

Mr. Kandel, of the west side, is dangerously sick.

Several new dwellings are being built on the east side along the Auburn road.

Postmaster Bicknell is very sick. Mrs. Thomas will assist in the office until he recovers.

Rev. Mr. Lamport spent last week at Kendallville, assisting his brother in the meetings there.

Rev. John Boyd, of Denver, Colorado, was the guest of jeweler Boyd and wife, several days last week.

The Fountain residence on Cowan St., is nearing completion. It is said to cost about three thousand dollars, and will make a beautiful home.

The loss of property in the United States by fire is very great. Millions go up in flames and smoke annually. The fires which swept like a cyclone through Chicago in 1871 and that other terribly grand conflagration that crumbled granite and melted iron in the business center of Boston, are memorable historic events from enormous losses incurred.

At one time, a farmer's home is destroyed as was that of Mader recently and at another a wooden block in some town is burned as has happened repeatedly in Auburn and no location is secure, no condition of life is exempt.

Time and again fire has destroyed portions of business blocks in town and the losers have ever undaunted, rebuilt upon the site of the ruins, finer and more permanent buildings

As it has been of recent years, so it was in 1856, which year was made remarkable in the annals of Auburn for a destructive fire that broke out on the night of January 28th in the big double store building of Messrs Park & Ralston then standing on the site now occupied by the Davenport drugstore and the Ralston grocery, structures.

The authorities had no apparatus for extinguishing fires, no wells with volume of water, no public ladders and the population of the town gathered beyond the radius of heat looked on while the building burned.

The massive framed timbers, a feature of those days of substantial carpentry, red with flame, long stood clear and strong, a beautiful sight, after the siding, roof and flooring had burned away.

For a long while, the drug store of Valentine Weaver standing on the southwest corner of Main and Seventh streets was seemingly protected by the common expedient of covering the exposed side with carpets kept soaked by water poured upon them but the water became steam and the building suddenly burst into flames and it, too, went down. The office of the county treasurer across the street was also consumed.

A part of the stocks of goods in the store was saved, but the loss was heavy upon Park, Ralston, Weaver and others, and the town and county authorities on application justly remitted to these parties the taxes assessed upon the property destroyed.

As heretofore stated, by this fire the press and fixtures of the Democratic Messenger were consumed and for some months the town and county were without a home paper.

For the accommodation of the county, a building was bought, moved upon the site of the burned office and jointly occupied by the treasurer and the recorder.

About this time, the business of building a school house engrossed the attention of the town authorities and on Jan. 21st, no less than six proposals had been presented and were now examined. The bids were by the following named parties. Samuel Swihart and Washington Teeters bid $1800, excepting the cupola and $1970, the cupola included. James W. Case bid $1175, and E. Wallace bid $1450 and Amos Hutchinson $1500.

The last three excepted the cupola on which they made no proposal. James F. Ring's bid was $1150 and O C. Houghton offered to do the work including the cupola for $1325.00.

The job of building the school house was awarded to Houghton at his bid he giving bond in the sum of $2000 00 to complete the work by Jan. 1st, 1857.

Payment was made by orders on the town treasury for $850, deferred orders $250 and the remaining $225, was due on acceptance of the building by the board.

The sureties on Houghton's bond were E. W. Fosdick, W. Park, V. Weaver, J H. Ford and W. Griswold.

Although the assessed valuation of the real estate, improvements and personal property of the people of Auburn was few thousands in comparison with that of 1876, the business methods of the earlier date were correspondingly better for the credit and welfare of the town.

It was an unfortunate day for Auburn when bonds against the corporation were issued to the amount of $10,000 drawing interest at the rate of eight per cent, and the last running nearly twenty years. If refundable, capitalists would have gladly taken them at six per cent.

But it was done and $6000, of the debt has been loyally paid as the rest will be as fast as possible, still the lesson has been a severe one. Butler, Waterloo and Garrett have had similar costly experiences in the building of their school houses and it seems in the history of public expenditure, town, county, state and nation, that these costly errors are more general than exceptional,

On March 4, Miles Waterman, trustee in ward 3, and president of the board of trustees being about to remove from the town, presented his resignation which was duly accepted and S. D. Long was chosen president in his stead,

For six years Mr. Waterman had been county auditor and his books were well written, his charges legal, his office admirably administered.

During this time he had identified himself with the people of Auburn, had won and deserved their esteem and confidence and had been valuable in their counsels and the conduct of the town's affairs.

The location at Auburn of the county seat through the enterprise and generosity of Wesley Park was a fortunate act destined in all after years to subserve its interests and the election of leading citizens of the county to office which brought them to locate in the town where some of them made their home, bought and improved property and engaged in business, has manifestly resulted in mutual advantage.

Illustrative of the statement, we point with satisfaction to attorneys John Baxter and D. Y. Husselman, large stockholders in thriving manufacturies and to the present circuit clerk, G. A. Bishop who on a lot bought of E. Eldridge west of the old Dickinson block has erected a capacious and handsome residence.

On leaving the office of county auditor Wm. McIntyre gave his attention to banking and has since been officially connected with the First National bank of which his son Wm. H. McIntyre cashier, and Isaac Hague associating with him his brother-in-law Charles Raut went into the boot and shoe business with capital, experience and energy that has made the venture profitable, where Woodworth, Austin and Bowman were unsuccessful.

We have with us Rev. W. L. Meese, ex-sheriff, M. Boland and D. Z. Hoffman ex-recorders and S. J. Brandon and L. J. Miller ex-treasurers.

All are desirable citizens; Mr. Hoffman being acting recorder; Messrs Boland, and Brandon stand connected with sound business enterprises and "Lafe" Miller is a grain buyer whose tact, experience and popularity have established for farmers, at Auburn a reliable and permanent market for their produce. Examples like these of the many.

BAKING POWDER FACTS.

Brought out by the Official Government Tests.

Purity of Food Demanded by the People. Which Baking Powder will Give it?

[From Chicago Tribune.]

The public is always responsive to suggestions about the food it eats. Great interest has been taken in the investigations made by the United States and Canadian governments and by the different boards of health to show the purity of milk, baking powders, spices, and other articles of daily use in the culinary department of our households.

Just now the subject of baking powder is claiming public attention. We all desire pure and wholesome bread and this cannot be had with the use of impure or poisonous baking powder. There can be no longer any question that all that all the cheaper lower grades of baking contain either alum, lime or phosphatic acid. The official analysis by the United States and Canadian governments have therefore been studied with interest and have pretty clearly established the facts upon this subject. The United States government report gives the names of eighteen well-known powders, that contain alum.

The report shows that the Royal baking powder was found the highest in leavening strength, evolving 160.6 cubic inches of gas per single ounce of powder There were eight other brands of cream of tartar powders tested and their average strength was 111 5 cubic inches of gas per ounce of powder.

The Canadian government investigations were of a still larger number of powders. The Royal baking powder was here also shown the purest and highest in strength, containing 129.32 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder. Nine other cream of tartar powders were tested, their average strength being reported to be 89 cubic inches of gas per ounce.

These figures are very instructive to the practical housekeeper. They indicate that the Royal baking powder goes more than 33 per cent, further in use than the others, or is one-third more economical. Still more important than this, however, they prove this popular article has been brought to the highest degree of purity—for to its superlative purity this superiority in strength is due—and consequently that by its use we may be insured the purest and most wholesome food.

The powders of lower strength are found to leave large amounts of inert matters in the food. This fact is emphasized by the report of the Ohio State Food Commissioner, who, while finding the Royal practically pure, found no other powder to contain less than 10 per cent, of inert or foreign matters.

The public interest in this question has likewise caused to be made investigations by our local authorities. Prof. W. S. Haines, of Rush Medical College, consulting chemist of the Chicago Board of Health, has found results similar to those reported by the national and Canadian authorities. Dr. Haines says:

Rush Medical College, Chicago, Ill.

I have recently obtained samples of the chief baking powders in the market and have subjected them to careful chemical examination to determine their purity, wholesome and leavening power. As the results of my tests I find the Royal baking powder superior to all the others in every respect. It is entirely free from all adulteration and unwholesome impurity, and in baking it gives off a greater volume of leavening gas than any other powder. It is, therefore, not only the purest, but also the strongest powder with which I am acquainted.

WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.
Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health.

The statistics show that there is used in the manufacture of the Royal baking powder more than half of all the cream of tartar consumed in the United States for all purposes. The wonderful sale thus indicated for the Royal baking powder—greater than that of all other baking powders combined—is perhaps even a higher evidence than that already quoted of the superiority of this article, and of its indispensableness to modern cookery.

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

EDDY, N. M., Oct. 27, 1891.

EDITOR COURIER.

DEAR SIR:—The Northern Indiana Editorial excursion party of 93 people, (53 ladies and 40 gentlemen,) left the Dearborn street depot, Chicago, at 6 o'clock, p. m., Oct. 22nd, over the Santa Fe route, having Pullman sleepers, "Dwina" and "Galena", with an elaborately equipped dining car attached, passing through Joliet, Streator, Chillicothe and Galesburg, Ill., Fort Madison, Iowa, La Plata, Bucklin and Lexington, Mo., arriving at Kansas City, at 8:30, a. m., Oct. 23.

Having breakfasted in the dining car we are ready to take in the sights of the city of bluffs. We visited all of the finest streets and passed up and down them, viewing the fine dwellings and business blocks until noon, when, after having dined, we were shown through the packing establishments and stock yards.

This stop at Kansas City was of very little interest to a great majority of the party, and at 9:20, p. m., we were glad to be on our way to the Oklahoma country.

Passing this fertile part of Kansas at night, no opportunity of seeing it was afforded us.

After satisfying the hunger of a night of travel, at Arkansas City, Kansas, we crossed the line and were soon speeding across the Cherokee strip, which is 65 miles wide (north and south) and 400 miles from east to west. This strip will soon be open for settlement, when there will doubtless be a much greater rush for this land of promise than was experienced upon the opening of the Oklahoma country. The greater part of the Cherokee strip through which we passed is, from all appearances, a good quality of soil and productive, but of course, is now nothing but a raw prairie, never having been broken. This is called the Cherokee strip because the Cherokee Indians had a right of way through it from their lands in the South to those of Colorado. The Cherokee Indians have never acquired any title in fee to the land, but merely a right of passage through it.

Our train drew into Guthrie at 2 p. m., Oct. 24th, and the party was escorted to the hotel by the brass band of the town and a large concourse of people. At the Springer house we met Gov. Steele, who in his usual good and easy way welcomed, individually, every member of the party, shaking hands with all of his old Indiana friends.

At Guthrie we parted from our Indian friend, Mr. Whitewater, who boarded our train at Flat Rock Agency, and entertained the ladies of the party, giving those who wished it, his autograph. This was the first Indian we had seen thus far, and the ladies made a great fuss over him.

We were given a drive through Guthrie and the surrounding country in the afternoon and at 7:30 p. m., met at the opera house to be banqueted by the citizens of Guthrie, and they did it to perfection. The supper was grand and the ball following was a swell affair. Here we met Mrs. Gov. Steele and the elite of the little city.

We had the pleasure here of forming the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Gray, who are cousins of Rev. G. W. Healy's wife, of Auburn. They made very kind inquiries of them.

Hon. J. B. Stoll, of the South Bend Times, (the Webster of our party,) eloquently tendered the thanks of the association for the free and open hospitality of the people of Guthrie and their grand entertainment and ball, pledging the united efforts of the association in furthering their interests.

A very glowing tribute was paid Gov. Steele, who, amid deafening roars of applause arose to respond to the chorus of calls for "STEELE"!

Gov. Steele was moved almost beyond control at this demonstration, and felt gratified to know that the people of Guthrie were pleased with his administration of their affairs and regretted his departure.

We left Guthrie at 11:20, p. m., Oct. 24, for Fort Worth, Tex., and about daybreak of the 25th we saw the first fields of cotton. Great fields of white bolls standing out on either side for miles. This was at Gainesville, Tex.

Arriving at Fort Worth at 9:15 a. m., we received an invitation from the people of Dallas, Tex., to visit their city and the state fair; which it was decided to do.

Leaving Fort Worth at 10:25, a. m., by special train, we arrived at Dallas and were taken direct to the fair ground where the entire day was spent in viewing the exhibits, which were about the same as those of the ordinary state fairs. Our visit here was closed with a concert by Liberati's band and a well prepared lunch,

Dallas is a place of about 18,000 people, and its citizens are enterprising go-ahead people, who will make it win. We returned to Fort Worth at 8:10 p. m., and some of us visited the city by moonlight, taking in the natatorium, which was fully given over to us to do as we pleased. The most of us availed ourselves of this opportunity of either taking a swim in the basin or any other kind of a bath we wished. The next morning we were taken over the city in street cars.

Fort Worth shows many marks of wealth and prosperity, and bids fair to become the leading city of this part of the state..

From Fort Worth westward for many miles the country is level and of a poor quality, though an occasional cotton field in the valley relieves the monotony of baren prairie.

At Pecos City we left the Texas & Pacific Ry., and were taken in charge by the Pecos Valley railroad for Eddy N. M., where we arrived at 11, a. m., Oct. 27, and were most hospitably welcomed to this paradise of the west by the citizens, who gathered together the fine products of the valley, that we might taste of its sweetness. After lunch we were taken in carriages to see the dam 10 miles north of the town, where they hold back the water for use in irrigating their farms. Nature has been very kind to the people of this valley, having provided them by a little additional labor on the part of the Irrigation company, with one of the finest dams and irrigation ditches, fully supplied with water, that can be seen any place.

We will this evening attend a ball at the Hagerman House, and in my next letter will endeavor to describe the country hereabouts, its systems of navigation and mode of living.

Yours truly.
FRANK E. ROSE.

GOOD, SHORT STORIES

ABOUT MATTERS AND THINGS IN THIS WORLD.

Large Warehouse Ruined by Dynamite—The Tennessee Trouble—Bold Diamond Robbery—Swindled by Land Sharks.

SWINDLED BY LAND SHARKS.

San Francisco special: Kenneth Smith, a Scotchman just arrived here, tells a story of how land sharks in Southern California robbed him and several of his countrymen of nearly $300,000. Smith lived near Edinburgh when an agent for a California land company came along with a colonization scheme. He induced thirty-five persons to invest in orange lands, $7,000 to be paid by each colonist after the committee had come to California to investigate. The colonists selected four of their number, including a prominent banker, to visit California and report. When the Scotchman arrived in Los Angeles a man representing a syndicate took them to Riverside and showed them the finest orange groves. The committee was wined and dined, and went back to Scotland with the most favorable reports. The Colonists then paid $265,000, and twenty of them started for the new El Dorado. Arriving here, they found that Scoville, the President of the land syndicate, had gone to Mexico, and that the promised orange land was nothing but a barren waste in Antelope Valley. The deluded colonists found the property of no value. Some returned home and others are eking out a miserable existence.

BLOWN TO FRAGMENTS.

A Large Warehouse Ruined By a Dynamite Explosion.

Hayward, Wis., was badly damaged by the explosion of a large lot of dynamite. The warehouse of the North Wisconsin Lumber Company caught fire and before it could be suppressed the flames reached the explosives which were stored there and an explosion followed. The buildings in the immediate neighborhood were badly shattered. One man was killed outright and many people were injured. The large hospital across the track and also the hotel on the opposite corner were badly shattered. Several guests in the hotel were wounded by the falling glass and timbers. A caboose of a freight train standing on the side-track was blown to fragments. Three men and a boy are dying, three men are seriously injured and many others are suffering from painful wounds, as a result of the explosion of dynamite.

The Tennessee Trouble.

Nashville special: Matters between the rebellious miners and the State of Tennessee are almost at a standstill, the Governor asserting that he will rebuild the stockades, and the miners daring him to do it. Gov. Buchanan realizes the responsiblity, and is much alarmed at the aspect affairs have taken. He has been in communication with the Secretary of War for some days past, and has asked aid from the United States if the worst comes. The general opinion in the South is that a serious fight cannot be averted. Gov. Buchanan is said to fear his handful of troops will not be able to withstand the 6,000 miners of east Tennessee, who would be reinforced by 20,000 others from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Alabama, and Virginia, and would probably wipe out the available militia at his command and then over-ride the whole State in reckless outlawry.

Attempted Assassination.

An attempt was made to assassinate Dr. W. C. Parker at Versailes, Ky. His bed formerly rested against a door which opened out on an alley, but only a few days ago he made a change in the arrangement of the room and fortunately, though unwillingly, saved his own life. A bomb was placed against the door and exploded. The building was almost destroyed. Dr. Parker's injuries are slight, and other occupants of the building were thrown from their beds. The town is wild with excitement.

Bold Diamond Robbery.

R. E. Kramig, a traveling man in the employ of a Cincinnati jewelry firm, was the victim of one of the boldest robberies ever committed at Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Kramig placed his satchels in a Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton passenger train and went to the depot restaurant for lunch. During his temporary absence an unknown thief seized one of the satchels containing diamonds and jewelry valued at between $15,000 and $20,000, and made his escape.

Burned at Sea.

From private advices by John D. Spreckles & Bros., of San Francisco, it is learned that the British ship Wamphray was burned at sea a week ago. She was on her way from Glasgow to San Francisco and was loaded with Scotch splint coal. The cargo caught fire and the vessel had to be abandoned. The crew landed at Iquique, Chili, and will be forwarded to San Francisco.

G. A. R. National Encampment.

The Citizens' Executive Committee on the National Encampment of the G. A. R., to be held in Washington next year, has decided to recommend the second week of October as the date for holding the Encampment, and this action will be laid for approval before Commander-in-Chief Palmer and the National Council of Administration.

Slept, Grew Thin and Died.

G. A. Wiard, who has been asleep continuously since May 1, at Montague, Mich., is dead. His weight decreased from 180 pounds to forty-six pounds before he died.

Fortification Walls Fall.

A large portion of the fortification wall on South LeCap street, Quebec, fell with a great crash, breaking a great hole in the wall of a three-story tenement house. The inmates escaped panic stricken in their night clothes, and were uninjured.

Want a New Creed.

The Indianapolis Presbytery has adopted Rev. Dr. Haines' report in favor of the revision of the creed. Only one vote was cast against such action.

Fire Fighters Killed.

Two firemen were killed and four badly injured at Cincinnati by the fall of a ladder. The picture frame establishment of Oscar Onken, 134 West Second street, caught fire in the cellar and in a very few minutes was enveloped in flames. An employe named Meyers was in the cellar at the time and his escape was cut off, but he was finally rescued by firemen who carried him to a place of safety. He was badly burned about the head and upper part of the body. The two firemen who were killed were William Bocklage and Ed Anderson, of the Seventh company. The injured are: Captain Hurley, of Twos; Firemen Beebe, John Conway and Jerry Daugherty, all of the same company. It is thought all the injured will recover. The loss is about $30,000; insured, $15,000.

HERE IS A CORKER.

Indianapolis special: Interest in the question of a new boundary line between Indiana and Ohio has been revived by the statement made by Senator Shockney, of Union City, that the survey party sent out by the National Government has been at work for the past two months locating the boundary line between the two States. The work has been under the direction of Prof. Mendenhall, and has been personally conducted by Col. Sinclair. The work has been completed within the past few days and the survey party is now preparing its report, which will be ready to submit to the Government in about three weeks.

Senator Shockney claims that the facts found by the surveyors are as heretofore alleged—that the true line as declared when Ohio was organized into a State commences twelve miles west of the present boundary line at the north and runs directly south to the present line between Ohio and Indiana, thus making a strip 200 miles long and of an average width of six miles—1,200 square miles, to which the State of Ohio lays claim. The strip described includes the cities of Fort Wayne, Richmond, and Union City, and a population altogether of about 200,000.

The agitation of this question commenced about a year ago through a resolution adopted by the Ohio Legislature reciting the facts as stated, and asking the National Government to correct the line. The detail of that survey party to locate the line, was ordered by the Government, in compliance with this resolution.

An inquiry into the causes that led to the juggling of these boundary lines discloses that at the time Ohio was made a State there were post-traders located at Richmond and Fort Wayne, whose trade with the Indians was very profitable. If the line had been run correctly these posts would have been taken into the new State of Ohio, and the occupation of these traders would have been gone. The post-traders, 'tis said, bribed the survey party which located the line and Richmond and Fort Wayne were left on the Indiana side. The question is a very important and complicated one; for should Ohio's claim on Indiana be enforced, Indiana, on the same grounds, would have cause of action against Illinois.

If Indiana loses on the east it would, by the same ruling, be entitled to a slice of Illinois, and this would give the Hoosiers Chicago and the World's Fair.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

A special from Akron, Ohio, says: Two brick and stone blocks on South Howard street, Akron's principal business street, collapsed while thirty people were inside. Without warning the roofs and front walls of the structures fell in with a crash, burying most of those inside in the debris. One of the blocks was occupied by B. C. Herrick & Son, wholesale and retail china dealers, and the other by S. B. Lafferty as a bakery and candy factory.

Mrs. David Frank, of Copley, and daughter Zedalia, were leaving the china store when the collapse came. Although pinned down by heavy stones and bricks they escaped with slight injuries. A horse hitched three feet away was instantly killed. Miss Frances Minor, of Johnston's Corners, happened to be in the bakery. Her right leg was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Frank Zimmerman was working on the third floor. He came down with the building, and in a half stunned condition found himself buried under bricks, stones, and timbers. One leg was badly crushed.

All others in the two buildings escaped at the rear, where the walls remained intact. Had they fallen, too, a fearful loss of life would have been the result.

Loss on buildings is placed at $28,000; on B. C. Herrick's stock, $18,000; on S. B. Lafferty's, $5,000.

FOUR LIVES LOST.

A Holocaust in a Denver Livery Barn.

A terrible fire in which four men and thirty-four horses were suffocated occurred in the Mansions stables, at Denver, Col. The scenes about the fire were horrible as the smoke poured through into the apartments where the horses were kept. Scenting danger, their cries of alarm and fright were pitiful, and in their efforts to escape they climbed into their mangers, kicked down their stalls and some managed to break away, but fell dead in the gangway.

George Richards was the only one of the four unfortunates who lost their lives, that was buried externally. His face was horribly burned and blackened and his hair was singed from his head. David Elmore managed to get out into the hall before he was overcome by the heat and smoke and as the firemen were peering through the smoke and heat searching for any spark of fire that had escaped their notice, one of them stumbled over the body, which was the first notification the firemen had that all had not escaped from the building before the flames gained headway. Penetrating further into the building the firemen found the bodies of Bowen, Richards, and Helbin piled one upon the other upon the floor of their room.

A Pennsylvania Tragedy.

The usually quiet village of Green, Pike County, Pa., is greatly excited over a tragedy enacted at the home of George David, an aged farmer. Simon P. Field, employed on an adjoining farm, entered the premises of David, called the latter to the door and blew the top of his head off with a load of buckshot. Field then turned on David's wife, like a savage beast, shooting her in the face and beating her about the head with his gun. The assassin then rushed down the farm lane, where he met a son of David's, and shot him in the back. David is dead and it is believed the mother and son cannot live. Field was arrested, taken to Milford and locked up. He claims to have no recollection of his crime.

A Woman's Revenge.

A special from Memphis says: Pony Saunders, a well-known saloon keeper and politician, died at St. Joseph's Hospital of injuries inflicted by his wife. Mrs. Saunders, suspecting her husband's infidelity, went to Pearl Willis' house and found him in the woman's room. She gave her a terrible beating and returned home. When her husband came home Mrs. Saunders heated a kettle of water. Mr. Saunders went to sleep and was awakened by his wife pouring the boiling water on the lower part of his body. He was horribly scalded and taken to the hospital. He became delirious and jumped from the second story of the building, breaking both legs. His injuries resulted fatally.

Badly Wrecked.

The second section of No. 66, an eastbound freight on the Fort Wayne road, stopped at the curve in Massillon, Ohio, to take water and was run into by a third section and caused one of the most disastrous wrecks ever witnessed on the road in that vicinity. Next to the caboose of the second section was a car of mules, twenty-five in number. Only four were taken out alive. The engine, caboose and eight loaded freight cars were thrown down the embankment. A man in charge of stock had his leg broken. The engineer and fireman of the third section saved themselves by jumping. The property damaged will run into the thousands.

Met an Awful Death.

Two Italian track laborers on the Pan Handle Railroad were run over and instantly killed at Mansfield Station, Pa. The men were jumping onto a flat car just as the train started from the Main street crossing. One named Cavialli fell off head first. One of his countrymen seized his feet, but the unfortunate man's head struck the rail and a wheel passed over his neck, serving the head from the body. The Italian who held Cavialli's feet was also jerked from the car and five trucks passed over his body, cutting it in half. The horrible sight was witnessed by a hundred people.

Shot By a Burglar.

For several weeks a gang of desperadoes have been making property and even human life unsafe in Warren and Mercer counties, Ill. Frank Harmon, of Alpha, is the last victim. While closing his store a masked man ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead he grappled with his assailant. Harmon was shot in the face, the ball striking near the eye and glancing along the skull. His injuries are serious. He thinks he recognized the would-be assassin as a resident of the neighborhood, who has since disappeared.

Bold Bank Robbery.

Caledonia (Mich.) special: The Caledonia Bank, known also as Sprague's Bank, was robbed the other night. The vault was broken into, the safe blown open and the contents, amounting to $4,300 in gold, silver and bills, taken away. The burglars also took a team of horses and buggy belonging to A. D. Sprague, proprietor of the bank. The robbery was not discovered until daylight and the burglars had made good their escape.

Ten Killed.

The tire of a driving-wheel of a locomotive attached to a mail train, which was proceeding from Bombay, East India, to Nagypur, broke, and the carriages were telescoped. Five railway officials and five British soldiers were killed. Thirty-one British soldiers and four natives were injured. The Commander-in-chief of the military district of Bombay was on the train, but is believed to have escaped unhurt.

Twenty-Five Years.

The jury in the Seibert-Klechner murder case at Aurora, Ill., has rendered a verdict of guilty and recommended that each prisoner be sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. A motion for a new trial was made by the defense. Wm. Seibert, the Aurora saloon keeper, and Mrs. Kate Klechner, thus stand convicted of having poisoned the latter's husband. The conviction was purely on circumstantial evidence. Eleven jurymen were in favor of hanging on the first ballot.

Seventy-Seven Criminals Drowned.

A cyclone passed over the Adaman Islands, situated in the Bay of Bengal. The islands form a British convict settlement, to which East Indian criminals are transported, and the steamer Enterprise, belonging to the Indian Government and used to convey prisoners to the islands and for other purposes, was at one of the ports when the cyclone set in. The vessel, and seventy-seven criminals, went to the bottom.

Growing Serious.

The situation of affairs in Tennessee is becoming somewhat alarming. Suspicious communications are being held between the East Tennessee miners and the miners of Kentucky, Alabama and Virginia. The hardy mountaineers who released the convicts have sworn that the Governor shall not rebuild the stockades, and that if he sends the convicts back to the mines they will be butchered in cold blood.

Rolling Mills to Close.

Unless there is some relief it is probable that both rolling mills of Terre Haute, Ind., which employ a large number of men, will have to shut down for want of coal. A local estimate of the daily loss by the present strike in the Indiana coal fields is $22,000, divided in about these proportions: $14,000 to the miners, $6,000 to the railways, and $2,000 to the operators.

The Government Wins.

The Court of Claims has rendered a decision against the States of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois in the suit to recover the 2 per cent. fund retained by the National Government from the sale of the Cumberland Gap road. The sum in dispute is $1,500,000.

No Revolution Probable.

The revived hopes of the partisans of Dom Pedro have been dampened by news from Brazil to the effect that there is no prospect of a revolution against the DaFonseca Government. The latest news from Rio Janeiro shows that everything there is tranquil.

A Heavy Sentence.

At Port Huron, Mich., Theodore Kuhn, the murderer of Wesley McDonnell, was sentenced to twenty-two years to hard labor at Jackson.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

BOIES, M'KINLEY, FLOWER, AND RUSSELL WIN.

Campbell Defeated by 20,000—Iowa's Enormous Vote—Kansas, Colorado, and Pennsylvania Go Strongly Republican—Working of the Australian Ballot in Ohio and Illinois.

Here Are the Results.

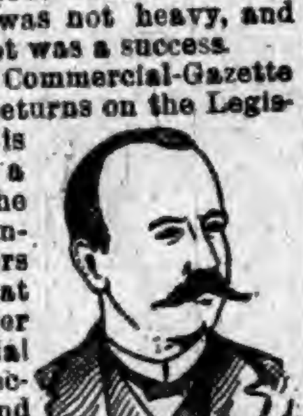
From returns which appear enough complete to warrant correct judgment, McKinley is elected in Ohio by a plurality conceded by Democrats to reach 20,000. The Legislature also appears to be Republican. The People's party cast about 12,000 votes. Hamilton County, in which Cincinnati is located, gave McKinley about 5,000 majority, Cleveland gave Campbell 300 majority, while Toledo went for McKinley. The vote was not heavy, and the Australian ballot was a success.

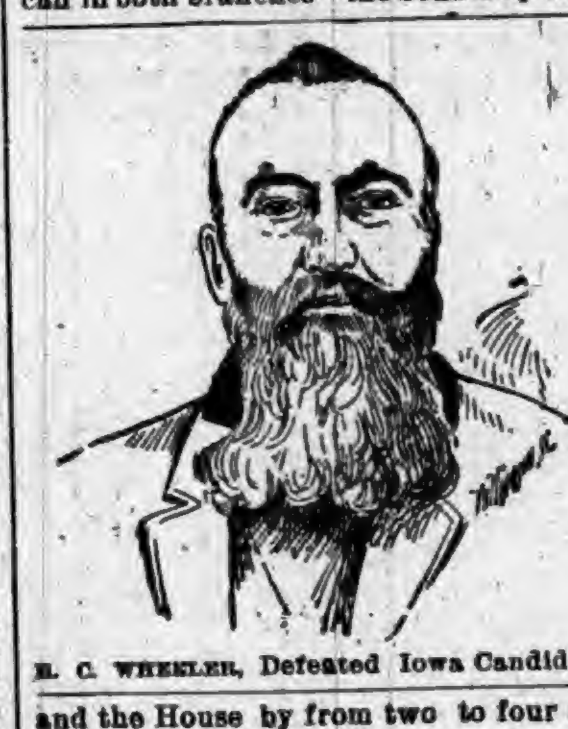


J. SLOAT FASSETT, the defeated New York candidate.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette says editorially: "Returns on the Legislature show that it is Republican, and a careful canvass of the Senatorial preferences of the members elected indicates that if Governor Foraker really has Senatorial aspirations, his election is assured beyond the shadow of a doubt. A number of the legislators are already outspoken in their choice—notably the three representatives from Lucas County, who state positively that they are for Foraker first, last, and all the time. It goes without the saying that the Hamilton County delegation ought to be for the governor from motives of local pride, to say nothing of individual preference. By this the members of the Hamilton County delegation will in nowise disparage the distinguished services of Senator Sherman, but will express the almost unanimous choice of the Hamilton County republicans."

In New York Flower's plurality for Governor is placed at 40,512. This is 80,000 less than Tammany's big chief, "Dick" Croker, predicted and a trifle over 58,500 more than the Republican leader, Husted, figured upon. The election of Flower and the whole Democratic State ticket, a possible majority in the State Legislature, besides the election of the entire city tickets in New York and Brooklyn, are among the fruits of the victory claimed by the Democrats. The State Senate is a tie—16 to 16. The returns for the Assembly are not full enough to compute its actual complexion, but reports received at the Democratic headquarters indicate the election of a working majority in that body and consequently in joint assembly.

In Iowa the vote was very heavy. Although claims are made that Wheeler's defeat is not assured, there seems little cause to doubt that Boies is chosen by 5,000 to 8,000 plurality. The total vote reached nearly 420,000, which shows the intense interest taken. Conservative Republicans admit their leader's defeat. The entire Democratic State ticket is elected. The Legislature is Republican in both branches—the Senate by two, and the House by from two to four majority.



H. C. WHEELER, Defeated Iowa Candidate.

In Massachusetts Russell (Dem.), it is estimated, has received 156,000 and Allen (Rep.) 151,000 votes, leaving the Governor a plurality of about 5,000. The vote of Boston is 36,512 for Russell and 22,987 for Allen, which gives the Democrats a plurality in the city of 13,525. The towns outside of the cities last year gave Brackett (Rep.) 59,313 and Russell (Dem.) 52,889. Returns from 282 towns this year give Russell 49,871 and Allen 59,384. Gov. Russell gained 13 per cent. in these towns, which, applied to the rest of the towns, would make his total in all towns 59,199. Add to these figures the vote of Boston, and it swells Russell's vote to 95,711 and Allen's to 91,790. The cities outside of Boston gave Russell a year ago 55,144 and Brackett 52,515. Russell carried them then by about 2,500 plurality. The increased vote this year in these same cities indicates that Russell will have over 60,000 votes and Allen 53,000, thus making the total vote in the state about 156,000 for Russell and 151,000 for Allen.

The entire Republican State ticket, with the exception of Governor, is elected by ample pluralities. Returns for members of the Legislature thus far indicate that seventeen Republican Senators are elected. Complete returns for 127 members of the House of Representatives, a little more than one-half, show that eighty-two Republicans have been elected and forty-five Democrats. The Executive Council will probably stand seven Republicans to one Democrat.

Returns from every county in Pennsylvania give Gregg (Rep.), 50,833 plurality over Wright (Dem.), for Auditor General; Morrison (Rep.), for State Treasurer, 47,467 over Tilden (Dem.).

The Rupublicans of the Fifth Michigan District elected Charles E. Belknap to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Ford by a plurality of 1,200 to 1,500. The People's party polled nearly 4,000 votes.

Returns from nearly every county in Kansas show that the Republicans have carried a majority of them and that the Alliance vote has fallen off. The Republicans have elected nine out of twelve District Judges.

The Colorado Republican State Committee claims the election of Joseph C. Helm for Supreme Judge by 5,000 majority.

THE NEW SYSTEM.

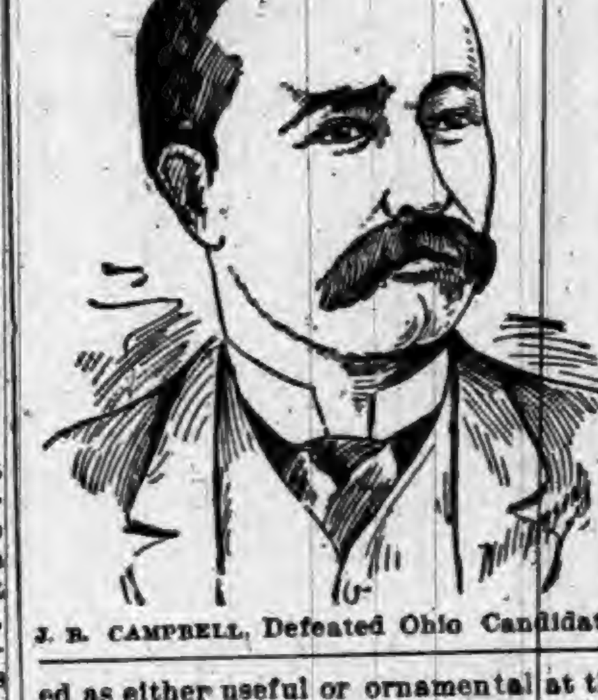
The Australian ballot was employed for the first time in Ohio, and reports from the principal cities show that it worked very well throughout the State. As an instrument to secure a secret ballot it performed its office well, but through ignorance of its proper working on the part of both the voters and the election judges a number of votes were lost. This state of affairs was brought about by the mistakes of the voters in marking their tickets and the inability of judges to handle the crowds in precincts where the registration was heavy. Of course this hardship came also to those who had put off the task of voting until the last moment allowed under the law, and then there was not enough time to handle them properly. Other features of the law commended it to the good opinion of citizens, for in its exercise the mission of the ward bummer is forever ended and the political heeler is without an occupation. Advices from the rural districts are to the effect that quite a number of votes were lost through the ignorance of the voters, although schools had been established in all the townships for the education of the masses. Very few voters used the five minutes allotted, and many required only a minute, and some less than a minute. A noticeable effect of the new law was the large amount of straight tickets polled, voters evidently fearing to place more than one mark on their ballot through fear of destroying their vote. The only criticism heard against the new election law is the large additional expense for erecting booths at each precinct in order that the voter may deposit a secret ballot. But complaint was general that the booths were poorly lighted, making "scratching" a difficult operation. It is said that both candidates, McKinley and Campbell, avoided all difficulty in this line by voting their tickets straight.

In Chicago victors and vanquished are agreed on one thing, and that is that the new election law worked charmingly. Now that the law has been tried and found satisfactory, both Republicans and Democrats are wondering how an election was ever conducted without it. The only citizens who spoke disparagingly of it were the professional ticket peddlers. As the new law abolishes the occupation of the ticket peddler, it is not to be wondered at that he views it with disfavor. Of course there will be still men at the polls, or rather within 100 feet of them, who will consider it their duty to offer suggestions to the voters as to the candidates who should be favored with their franchise, but then they will not be ticket peddlers. A citizen can only vote an official ballot, and this must be given to him by one of the judges of election. The peddler, like any ordinary citizen, can get only one ballot. A peddler without ballots is not regarded as either useful or ornamental at the polls by the political organizations that formerly paid him highly for his services. The ticket peddler was out of sight. No one seemed to regret his disappearance. The voter who in former days had suffered at his hands was satisfied that the new law had accomplished at least one good purpose. The ticket peddler was not mourned by the police, the judges or the voters. As had been anticipated, the straight ticket, as a rule, was voted. There were many who had only an imperfect knowledge of how to prepare their ballots. To avoid an error which might cause the rejection of their ballot, they usually placed X in the circle before the appellation of their party. As it required only a second to make this X in the circle, the citizen who voted a straight ticket only remained in the booth for a brief time. The voter who was not pleased with his party ticket was easily recognized, for he spent some minutes in retirement preparing his ballot. As the great majority of the voters deposited with the judges a straight ticket there were not as many errors committed as had been predicted.



J. E. CAMPBELL, Defeated Ohio Candidate.

The election demonstrated the fact that but little, if any, effective work can be performed by campaign managers on the day of election. The voter is free from intimidation, and enjoys in the secrecy of the booths the fullest liberty to exercise his franchise. The representatives of the two leading parties expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the new law so far as it relates to election day, at all events. It gives no advantage to either party, and it assures an election free from disorder and strife at the polls. The defeated party does not hold the law in any way responsible for its overthrow. A member of the campaign committee stated that the defeat was due to the fact that the apathy of the voters in the campaign remained with them during election day.

New Year's Day of Old.

"The young people of the present generation who go out of town for the holidays, or pay conventional visits only when they have received cards of invitation," says a writer, "know nothing of the good old days, before the war, when men used to lay wagers upon the number of calls they could make on New Year's Day, and ladies used to compete with each other as to the number of callers they could receive. Four fellows would hire a hack and call upon every lady who was known to any one of them. Whole engine companies—we had the volunteer fire department then—would call in a body and be introduced by the foreman. The havoc at the New Year's tables was terrible, and, as wines and liquors were served at every house, the condition of the callers when midnight approached need not be described. Ladies were insulted, parlors wrecked, homes taken possession of by unknown rowdies. Then it became the custom for any caller known to the family to stay until another similar caller arrived to relieve guard. Toward evening these family friends had an exceedingly lively time, assisting the ladies to receive a club of 'Gentlemen's Sons,' or a troop of fantasticals. Thus the good old custom of open house on New Year's was killed by over indulgence, and now, alas! is more honored in the breach than the observance."

The frequency of revolutions in our smaller American republics may cause a sneer to pass over Europe at our expense, but we can be proud of one fact, and that is that with all the newness of the continent we never make such exhibitions of barbarousness and brute ferocity as the despotism of Russia breeds in all classes, from the throne down to the poorest serf.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Miners and Convicts.

In all of the other States in which the convicts are leased the same issue will be made that has been made in Tennessee, and the people of these States should begin at once to consider how to settle it.—Savannah News.

The trouble at Briceville, Tenn., was to be expected, and no one can be surprised at it. The State was duly warned, and should have made some preparation for an outbreak that was inevitable.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

If it takes the whole power of the State—every man and every dollar—the Governor should call out the one and expend the other in bringing the perpetrators of the arson and attempted murder at Briceville to justice.—Memphis Commercial.

The news from Briceville and Coal Creek, Tenn., should surprise no one. It is the legitimate outcome of the failure of the Legislature of that State to take action, at its recent extra session, in reference to the convict lease system as it now stands.—New Orleans Delta.

The greatest insult ever thrown in the teeth of Tennessee was that which 3,000 armed and rebellious miners perpetrated in overpowering State employes and turning loose State convicts. No step should be left untaken to wipe out most effectually such insult.—Nashville American.

There is no justification for the acts of violence on the part of the free labor miners nor for the liberation of the convicts. That was lawlessness, but there is little doubt that the acts of these enraged men will have a very wholesome effect upon the people of Tennessee.—Minneapolis Journal.

The action of the Tennessee miners in wiping out the convict camp at Briceville and releasing the prisoners cannot be justified. It is dangerous to appeal to violence. It is nothing short of revolution, and revolution is never justifiable until all other remedies have been exhausted.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Briceville miners, having successfully routed the Tennessee militia and let loose a number of convicts from the Briceville stockades, are justly esteemed a courageous and formidable body. Why not sentence them to transportation for a term of months and make Chili their destination?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

One Hundred Miles an Hour.

With such achievements Edison is worthy of all the decorations and encomiums showered upon him.—Philadelphia Press.

The Keely motor will have to hurry if it wants to keep Inventor Edison from wiping out its last slim chance.—Washington Star.

Edison has just completed an electrical device for producing a speed on railroad trains of 100 miles an hour. All that is needed to make the invention a welcome one is a perfectly secure safety attachment.—Boston News.

Mr. Edison promises to give us a motor that will make the speed of a railroad train 100 miles an hour. This will entirely blot out the landscape, and suggests that some of the "blessings of civilization" are dearly bought.—New York World.

Edison has a company ready to exploit his latest application of electricity to rapid transit, and several railways have offered their tracks for the purpose. The world will soon know what the new invention is worth.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Edison says his new system of applying electricity for traction purposes makes it possible to run railway trains at a speed of 100 miles an hour, or even faster if equipment and roadbed can be made strong enough. What the world now waits for is the practical demonstration of this assertion.—Providence Telegram.

When Mr. Edison agrees to furnish a motor that will speed a railroad train 100 miles an hour, has he provided a ballasted track that will stand such going? After we have successfully attained a uniform rate of a mile a minute on our railroads it may be questionable if comfort or necessity calls for any greater speed.—Rome Sentinel.

Edison, the electric wizard, seems to labor under the impression that we are not traveling quite fast enough, and now comes to the front with a new electric motor that will enable railroads to speed at the rate of 100 miles an hour. This will help a man to sail into the unknown regions of eternity with lightning grace and ease.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

More "Artificial" Showers.

An "Artificial Rain Producing Company," with six Stevens County "capitalists" for directors, has a cloudy look. It is to be feared nothing will be watered but the stock.—Kansas City Star.

The Government rain experiments in Texas have proved a sublime failure. But the money has been paid out all the same. Why not expend a few millions in an effort to see whether a man can pull himself up by the straps of his boots?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dyrenfurth and Melbourne have a rival in irrigation that beats them all. It is the California earthquake. It starts artesian wells and fountains and rivers, not only of cold water, but of hot, which the rainmakers do not pretend they can furnish.—Detroit Journal.

Already rival rainmakers are exchanging charges that the one is stealing the other's thunder. As all stealing savors of sin, it may be recalled in this connection that the most thorough case of rainmaking on record was caused by the world's sin—stealing inclusive—some 4,000 years ago.—Philadelphia Times.

The Russian Navy.

Russia has launched three new ironsides, is leading her armies up to the "roof of the world" in Pamir, and has been sending war transports out at the Dardanelles all summer. And yet we are told there is no prospect of war in Europe.—Baltimore Herald.

Russia has just launched three new ironclads, one of them of immense size. If the English-German-Austrian combination expects to have its own way with Russia and France on the water, it might do well to commence operations pretty soon.—Denver Sun.

The Russians are getting quite a navy for a country with but one western seaport, and that closed by ice more than half the year. The launching of the three ironclads will cause the naval authorities of Germany to take a careful glance over their lists of modern war ships.—Providence Telegram.

Great in Dogs.

New York City's dog census having been completed, the valuable information is at hand that the metropolis has 36,503 dogs of all kinds. That is about one dog to every forty inhabitants.—Rome Sentinel.

A census of New York City dogs has been taken, showing that they number 36,503. "This is a large number to think of, but it is only at the rate of about one dog to forty inhabitants, which would seem very small in the country, where it is said that every poor man keeps one dog and every very poor man keeps two."—Albany Express.

Dr. J. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,

CHAPTER I.

THE TRAIN-WRECKERS.

"Fire!"

"Who is it?"

"A spy—one of the vigilantes. Down him, or the game is lost!"

These ejaculations, spoken rapidly and excitedly, broke the silence of a weird and tragic scene in one of the loveliest valleys of the far West.

They were directed toward a man who had suddenly appeared upon a landscape which for over an hour had held half a dozen human figures, who had been lurking in the vicinity of a lonely stretch of railroad.

The time was night, relieved by the refulgence of a September moon, its rays just beginning to illumine mountain and valley with a rare crystalline beauty.

Half a mile distant, where the river stretched a dim silver thread of radiance, a lonely station showed, from which glimmered the light of a single lantern.

At the spot where the story opens, the single railway track curved over a high trestle work and then descended on a sharp grade toward the station and the stream.

For years this section, especially the course pursued by the railroad, which was a recently constructed branch of the great Pacific system, had been known as the Lone Canyon trail. The station was called Ten-spot, and the nearest settlement was twenty miles over the mountain at Miner's Gulch.

Beyond that stretched an alternation of plain and hill and valley, infested even at the time of our narrative by marauding bands of savages.

The region was one in which a rough, uncultured set of miners and rangers resided, and outlaw bands found it a favorite field for their operations.

As has been stated, one hour previous to the utterance of the words that begin this chapter half a dozen men rode up to the scene, dismounted silently, led their horses to a thicket near by, and then became massed together near the railroad.

Here for some moments they were engaged in some mysterious movements about the rails. One of their number went down the tracks to the station, returned, muttered an ominous "All right," and then their dusky figures moved hither and thither. Not an audible word was spoken until a tall, full-bearded man, evidently the leader of the party, startled his companions with the exclamation:

"Get to cover! Someone is coming!"

Someone was coming straight down the tracks—a man past middle age, stalwart, rugged, and attired in the garb of a frontiersman.

His gait was a careless and leisurely one, as if he had got tired of waiting for the train at the depot and was strolling about to kill time until it arrived.

All unaware of the perilous ambuscade that lay in wait for him, he was not conscious of the presence of a foe until he turned a curve in the rails and fell back with a startled cry:

He turned to hasten back to the station. At that moment six dusky forms arose from the bushes that lined the side of the tracks.

"Fire!"

"Who is he?"

There was a blinding blaze of light, and six revolvers flashed in the moonlight.

"Missed him—after him! He must not escape and give the alarm!" cried the leader of the coterie.

The stranger had indeed been missed. He must have been magically alert, for as the bullets whistled past him he dropped to the ground and they flew over his head.

"You scoundrels! Come on, whoever you are!"

He had again sprung to his feet and had drawn his own revolver.

At that moment his enemies made a united rush for the spot where he was. He was forced to retreat a step or two. A creeping vine entangled his foot, and he fell violently backward.

"Take that!"

The words were spoken by the leader, as he reached the prostrate man.

"Despard—outlaw and renegade! I know you. Coward! villain! If I was at fair odds with you——"

The words were silenced suddenly. The leader of the band—the man he had called Despard—had raised a curved iron bar he held in his hand. It descended with terrific force, cutting a cruel gash in the forehead of the courageous stranger, stunning him to insensibility.

Despard's eyes wore a haunted, frightened expression, and his face was deathly pale as he surveyed his unconscious foe.

"You've settled him, Despard," spoke one of the men as he crowded to his side. "What does it mean?"

Despard spoke in an awed tone.

"What mean?"

"That man."

"You know him."

"Know him! Look again, Jim Danton. Ah! I thought you would recognize him."

Despard's companion peered close at the face of the prostrate man.

"Yes. Do you remember when last we saw him, and we left him to die a prisoner in a cave in the Utah hills? He had crossed our trail, determined to bring us to justice for a stage robbery. He swore then that he would be avenged. He escaped. What can his presence here mean but disaster to our plans? His object is the same as our own—to meet the girl who stands between me and a royal fortune. It is an ill omen, Danton. I fear. I tremble."

"For a dead man!" scoffed Danton, jeeringly; "for he is certainly dead this time."

"He may have friends near at hand."

"We can soon find that out. But no, no; he would not walk to his fate that way if he knew we were here or suspected our plans."

Danton turned from the spot.

"What is it?" asked the person addressed.

"You visited the station?"

"Yes."

"There was no one there?"

"No one but the depot agent."

"You are sure?"

"Positive."

"Go there again and reconnoiter. If there are any others arrived since we came, return and report at once."

"All right."

Danton returned to the leader's side, who had walked away from the place where Ranger Ralph lay.

"Everything is arranged for the wreck, Captain," he said to Despard. "As to yonder enemy—ranger, dective and vigilante—the blow with the iron bar has settled him. You are sure the girl will be on the train."

"Inez?"

"Yes."

"Of course she will. I received positive information. Remember, Danton, that she is of more value to us than the booty."

"That's all right. You and I will look out for the girl, and the others for the booty. But if she should be killed?"

"Then I benefit just so much, that's all," replied Despard, coolly. "What makes me uneasy is Ranger Ralph's appearance here."

"Why so?"

"Because he was one of her dead father's companions."

"Well?"

"Inez's father was one of his old-time friends. He probably warned him of his renegade relative."

"Yourself?"

"Exactly. If so, even if the girl were dead, my claim might be disputed, or my past record would prevent my appearing to secure the fortune. No, Danton, the only way is to get possession of the girl; and I love her just enough to want to marry her. Your men insisted on a wreck to secure what booty the train had. I take the chances of the accident killing the girl. At all events, she must be secured by us, or her death assured before the night is over."

"You are a relative of Robert Tracey, her father?"

"And the fortune?"

"Is a mystery, in a way, and was left by Tracey in possession of an old recluse known as Hermit Ben. The story is too complicated a one to relate now. Remember, the girl is our especial care; when the disaster comes, search for her."

"All right, Despard. Let us get with the boys. The train will be due now in a short time."

The two men moved some distance away, to where an obstruction consisting of logs, rocks and iron had been piled on the track.

At that moment the man Vance, whom Danton had sent to the depot, returned.

"Well?" asked the latter.

"No one there but the depot agent."

"And the man we had to settle yonder?"

"I guess he had just arrived, for two horses were standing outside the station. I cut them loose for fear of accidents."

"Two!" whispered Despard, in an intense tone to Danton. "Do you hear?"

"Yes."

"Ranger Ralph expected someone on the train."

"Evidently."

"And that one was the girl who is the object of all our plots—Inez Tracey."

CHAPTER II.

TOO LATE.

"The scoundrels! Dyke Despard, my score against you—deeper than ever, for this cowardly act—will be a terrible one when your day of reckoning comes!"

The words emanated in a pained, gasping tone of voice from the spot where a few minutes previous they had, to all seeming, viewed the dead form of Ranger Ralph, the border scout and detective.

Ranger Ralph himself spoke, but his haggard face and pain-stricken eyes told that the blow Despard had dealt him was a terrible one in its effects.

Under it he had gone down like a shot. Utter insensibility had finally given way to dawning consciousness, but so feeble and confused that he could scarcely raise himself on one arm.

His head was dizzy, his sight blinded, his strength seemed leaving him. He essayed to arise, and then, with a groan, fell back exhausted.

Suddenly every nerve seemed to thrill to quickened action, and he forgot his wound and his helplessness for the moment.

"The train!" he gasped, wildly. "I had forgotten it. Oh, these villains! They have piled an obstruction on the track. Too plainly I see Dyke Despard's plot. The girl—Inez. He knew she was coming here, and with his renegade associates seeks to prevent her appearing to claim the fortune her father left her. I must prevent this awful crime. I must save the life of the child of my old friend, who intrusted her to my care. What shall I do? Single-handed, I cannot cope with these armed ruffians. There is but one man at the depot, but he may be able to telegraph for aid or stop the train. Ah, it is useless. That blow has robbed me of my strength."

"I'll crawl to the depot, but I'll outwit these scoundrels," he muttered grimly, a moment later.

He was outside the range of the vision of the men grouped on the tracks twenty feet away, and besides they paid no further attention to the foe they believed to be dead. Slowly, painfully, Ranger Ralph began to creep through the underbrush. It was a terrible task for his enervated frame, but he finally saw in the distance the single signal lamp of the station.

Precious moments were slipping by; he realized this, and the thought nerved him to renewed effort.

Ten minutes later the single occupant of the station, a young, handsome man of about twenty years, started from reading a paper as a suspicious sound echoed from the direction of the door.

His hand sought the revolver at his belt, as he remembered the perils of the times, but dropped it to his side, and he uttered an amazed cry as his glance fell upon the strange figure that filled the doorway a moment later.

"Great heavens, man!" he cried; "what does this mean?"

He stood staring in blank horror at the blood-covered form of Ranger Ralph, who had crept over the threshold.

"You are injured—you have fallen!"

"No! I have been the victim of a cowardly and brutal assault."

"Where—by whom?"

He had lifted the scout to a chair and was trembling with excitement as he discerned some mystery in the manner of his visitor.

The latter did not answer his question directly. Instead, his eyes, falling on a clock within a railed inclosure of the depot, he asked tumultuously:

"The train—when will it arrive?"

"It is due in ten minutes."

"Stop it!"

"Stop it?" cried the other. "Why, man! what do you mean?"

"What I say!" cried Ranger Ralph, wildly. "Don't waste time with idle questions. A hundred lives lie on the turn of a moment of time. Telegraph ahead and have the train stopped!"

"Impossible!"

"Why?"

"Because it has already passed the last station."

Ranger Ralph uttered a groan of despair.

"Then secure aid and hasten to the curve!" he cried.

"Explain yourself. Why are you so incoherent—so excited? There is danger?"

"Terrible danger."

"From whom?"

"Train wreckers."

The young man started violently.

"It cannot be!" he cried.

"Yes, there are six of them, led by Dyke Despard, a notorious outlaw. Is there no one near?"

"No one. Rouse yourself, man. Together we may be able to disperse these scoundrels."

"Impossible. I could not walk a step unaided."

The other hastened to a window and looked out toward the south.

"The depot agent will arrive shortly," he said, in hurried, anxious tones.

"Are you not the agent?" asked Ranger Ralph, in some surprise.

"No; I was waiting for the train here. He has a sick family at his home, five miles from here, and asked me to take charge while he took some medicine over to them. But he said he would return before the train arrived."

"And before then it may be too late to stop the train. Oh, cannot something be done!"

"A signal!" cried his companion, suddenly: "I will outwit these scoundrels. Quick, now, tell me where they are."

In brief but graphic language the scout imparted the desired information.

The other listened with the closest attention and interest, his eyes gleaming with latent excitement and courageous determination.

When the recital was concluded he sprang to the projecting window where the depot lantern was.

"What are you going to do?" he asked.

"Signal and stop the train."

"How?"

"With this lantern."

"You cannot pass the wreckers."

"I must and will. Once beyond them, I will relight the lantern, and hasten on until I meet the train."

Without another word, the young man sprang through the doorway, the unlighted lantern in one hand, a revolver in the other.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

One of Herrmann's Great Tricks.

People have repeatedly asked me which of my tricks have pleased me the most and which I take most delight in performing. Naturally the effort that brings the greatest success is regarded by a man his best.

I consider the trick of restoring the shattered mirror as my most famous one. This I had the honor of performing before the Czar of Russia upon an invitation to give an exhibion at his court.

It was done unexpectedly to the spectators, and was not down on the regular bill. While playing billiards with the attaches of the court after the performance, the Czar being present in the saloon, I shot a ball with all my strength against a plate-glass mirror extending from floor to ceiling.

It was shivered into fifty pieces. Consternation was depicted on every countenance; and none more plainly than my own.

While the Czar courteously waived my apology, considering the destruction of the mirror as trifling, and ordered the game to proceed, I could easily see that my awkwardness made a disagreeable impression.

With the Czar's permission I examined the mirror to estimate the damage done and the possibility of repairing it.

While so engaged one of the suite playfully challenged me to exercise my art and make the mirror whole again, never dreaming that his challenge was the very cue I wanted, and not considering the acceptance of it as possible. I hesitated an instant and then ordered the mirror to be covered with a cloth, entirely concealing it from view.

On the removal of the cloth, after ten minutes, the mirror was found without a flaw, and as perfect as before the damage! I will leave it to my readers' imagination to decide how this trick was done.

Superstitious Drummers.

"I have known commercial travelers," said a hotel clerk to a New York Tribune reporter, "to stay out until the early hours of Sunday morning and yet they would get up and go to church Sunday no matter how severe the weather was. They said they were not particularly religious, but that they made it an invariable rule to go to church on Sunday or they would have no success during the week. I remember a case of a young fellow who came in from the train late one Saturday afternoon. 'I never had a worse week in my life,' he said. 'Why, I haven't taken one decent order. And the reason is I neglected to go to church last Sunday as is my usual custom. I am going out to-night and may be out late, but I want to be called in time for church to-morrow forenoon.' He did not come in until 4 o'clock in the morning, but he insisted on being called at 9 o'clock, and though it was raining pitchforks went to church after a hearty breakfast. I joked him when he returned, and declared that he had not been to church. But he told me the minister's text and several good points of the sermon. Well, he declared that he had good luck all that week, and booked several of the largest orders he had ever taken in this city."

A Striking Similarity.

Miss Sharpe—Your friend, Wooden, reminds me so much of the learned professions.

Miss Sharpe—Why, there is so much room at the top.

THE British Museum has secured from Thibet a copy of the Jangym, a monster cyclopedia of Thibetan Buddhism. It comprises 325 volumes, each of which is two feet long and six inches thick. There are, it is supposed, only two other copies of the work outside of Thibet.

An Important Posthumous Statement.

The Century prints a new portrait of Lowell, a review of his works by Prof. Woodberry, the poet, and a letter from Lowell written in 1876, in which he explains privately his motive in writing his historical patriotic poems of "The World's Fair, 1876," and "Tempora Mutantur." We quote the following from Mr. Lowell's letter: "I had just come home from a two years' stay in Europe, so it was discovered that I had been corrupted by association with foreign aristocracies! I need not say to you that the society I frequented in Europe was what it is at home, that of my wife, my studies, and the best nature and art within my reach. But I confess that I was embittered by my experience. Wherever I went I was put on the defensive. Whatever extracts I saw from American papers told of some new fraud or defalcation, public or private. It was sixteen years since my last visit abroad, and I found a very striking change in the feeling toward America and Americans. An Englishman was everywhere treated with a certain deference; Americans were at best tolerated. The example of America was everywhere urged in France as an argument against republican forms of government. It was fruitless to say that the people were still sound when the Body Politic which draws its life from them showed such blotches and sores. I came home, and, instead of wrath at such abominations, I found banter. I was profoundly shocked, for I had received my earliest impressions in a community the most virtuous, I believe, that ever existed. * * * In the Commonwealth that built the first free school and the first college, I heard culture openly derided. I suppose I like to be liked as well as other men. Certainly I would rather be left to my studies than meddle with politics. But I had attained to some consideration, and my duty was plain. I wrote what I did in the plainest way that he who ran might read, and that I hit the mark I aimed at is proved by the attacks against which you so generously defend me. These fellows have no notion what love of country means. It is in my very blood and bones. If I am not an American, who ever was?"

A Touching Letter by Mazzini.

The following eloquent and touching letter of condolence by Mazzini is published for the first time in the Century. It is written to the mother of a deceased friend of the great Italian:

"Like the Macedonian legion, when one was falling, draw nearer all you that remain; love each other more dearly; see, help, advise one another more than ever; commune with her who has loved and loves you all by communing more intimately with one another, and remember, for God's sake, that there is no such thing as death for all that is best in us; that what people call death is only a transformation and step onward in life. Love is a vouchsafer for immortality. We would not scatter a single flower on a tomb if there was not an instinct in the soul teaching us that our love pleases the cherished one who is buried beneath, and depend upon me there is more truth discovered by these flashes of the virgin soul than by all the dim, painfully elaborated lanterns of analysis and reasoning knowledge.

"And this fate of mine, which I would give all my actual life gladly for feeling able to infuse into you all, and my grieving with you all over our loss, and my loving you all more dearly than before—that is all the consolation I can give to you, dearest friend. I wish I could be with you during these days, and it makes me feel bitterly the bondage of my condition. Still, I live, think, feel with you the best part of the day; and I dreamed of you all during the few hours of sleep I had last night. My dear, dear friend, how I should wish to be able to take on my own poor, doomed life all your sorrows, and to yield to your own all the smiles that your affections have been yielding to it."

Woodpecker's Justice.

"A year ago last spring," said a correspondent, "a pair of red-headed woodpeckers determined to peck a hole in the boarding under the eaves of a house, as woodpeckers often do. The owner of the house, not liking such mutilation, after repeated efforts succeeded in driving them away, and they went to work at once and dug a hole in the nearest tree.

"When the birds' home was finished and housekeeping had begun, the farmer's boys captured the female as she sat in the nest, and kept her in a cage, hoping in that way to catch the male also, which had flown away when his mate was seized.

"Two days later he returned with another wife. The boys relented at the sight. They gave Mrs. Woodpecker number one her liberty, and awaited results.

"To their surprise the male woodpecker, after a relentless pursuit of about six hours, killed her. Then he destroyed the one egg which she had laid, and continued housekeeping with wife number two, as if nothing had happened."

The tragical story leads our correspondent to ask several questions: Have birds a language, by means of which they communicate one with another? If so, did the woodpecker give his wife time to explain her absence before rendering judgment and proceeding to execution?

Was not Mrs. Woodpecker at a great disadvantage for want of a vocabulary with which to describe the unheard of experience of captivity?

Is it possible that she was punished for criminal carelessness in permitting herself to be captured?—Youth's Companion.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....NOVEMBER, 12, 1891.

ELECTION ECHOS.

The latest reports show how nearly the COURIER got the right news last week. Now it stands:

Ohio republican, 20,552, and they have the legislature.

New York, 41,000 democratic.

Ioway, democratic, 8,000, with full state ticket.

Massachusetts, democratic governor only, by 5,429.

Nebraska, supreme judge, rep. 6,000.

Pennsylvania, rep. treasurer, 58,000

Maryland, democratic. 30,000, with New Jersey and the southern states all democratic.

THE Dispatch last week in its election news started out like this: "Ohio gives McKinley 25,000 plurality and says we can make tin plate in America." From this, we suppose the editor is the only man in sixty millions of people who is ignorant of the fact that we could have made tin plate at any time, had we chosen to do so. Or does he think the election of McKinley produced ore in the mines, or gave our people skill to roll thin plates of iron? In any case, such an expresion makes the Dispatch appear childishly ridiculous.

Court.

Last week the case of state vs Beugnot came up in court. This is a case of Mrs. Charles Cool against a saloonkeeper for selling her husband liquor on the day he was killed by the cars. The charge to the jury was given Monday forenoon, and when the jury retired, another jury was at once made up to try the case of Phillips vs Kennedy. But after about two hours, the jury in the Beugnot case brought in a verdict of $400 for Mrs. Cool. The Phillips case afterwards resulted in a verdict of $5 in his favor. It was a case against William Kennedy to collect fee as attorney in another case. The case between Van Auken and Surveyor Hook goes to Noble county, as do also cases against Nusbaum. The damage case of Railing vs Pa. Ry. is dismissed. The verdict of $80 which Joe Crays got against Vogtman for being arrested at the Waterloo fair of 1890, was confirmed. The case against Adam McKinley was dismissed. W. C. Roberts vs Treasurer Sawvel goes to next term. Sarah Bruce vs town of Butler. She gets $300. Sarah E. was divorced from Wm. J. Kirk, and Martha from Christian Behler. The work of this term is well nigh completed, as a good deal of hard work has been done. Judge Powers expects to stop on Friday. The term would end Saturday anyway, and court begins next Monday in Angola.

Wonderful Cure.

WATERLOO, IND, Jan. 4, 1890.

This is to certify that I am 16 years old and have suffered with scrofula ever since I was three months old. My parents did all they could for me without benefiting my case in the least. At times I would be so near blind that I could not see to eat at the table, my nails came off of my fingers, my suffering was terrible. I then called on A. Y. Rosenbury, and at the time my face, nose, eyes and lumps on my neck were very bad. This was about one year ago, and I now enjoy life and good health. This is a true statement of my case. I give it cheerfully for the benefit of suffering humanity.

NORAH TITLER.

Change in Time.

A change in time of passenger trains over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R'y will take place on November 15th inst.

Under the Cars.

Another man was killed on the Wabash track near here Saturday morning. As the west-bound early local was coming into town, and, when near the whistle post south of the Eckhart factory, a brakeman named John Rubush, fell off between the cars and was killed. The train ran over him before anything could be done to prevent it. Coroner Miser held an inquest on Monday, in the office of McClellan & Garwood, and the other train men, including conductor and engineer testified, though no one saw how it happened. The substance, was, that Rubush was sent ahead from the caboose, to go to the engine and be ready to uncouple some cars when the train slowed up at the station. After going along the top of of the box cars, he had to climb down onto a flat car, three of these being between him and the engine. Slessman, the second brakeman, had followed him, stopping to set a few brakes, but happening to turn his head to the right, saw an object lying in the ditch that looked like a man lying on his face, with clothes torn off and mussed up. He ran to the last car, the one from which Rubush must have fallen, and called to the engineer to know if "John was there." The engineer said, "No," when Slessman excitedly cried that, then he was killed. The train was at once stopped, and the conductor, Richason, and the third brakeman, wondering what was the matter, got out and were told the cause. They went back and found Rubush as described, badly mangled, and dead. He was cut nearly in two, his left leg crushed the entire length, the other leg and both arms broken, the back of the skull torn off, and was in a terrible condition generally. He was properly cared for, brought up town and dressed at Shaffer's undertaking establishment, and taken home. He lived at Jackson, near Peru, and is highly spoken of by the train men. The Coroner found a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The details can never be known, but it is plain that it was the result of some accident that loosened his hold, and he dropped to a terrible and almost instantaneous death.

The Organ Recital.

It was, as we predicted, a very nice affair, a fine treat to all who love good music. The organ itself is a beauty, and its tones fine, and Prof. Falk drew out all its possibilities for he is a rare player. The singing by our home people was excellent and we were gratified to hear even strangers compliment them highly, Dr. Buchtel's violin solo was splendid, and captured the audience, who insisted on his playing again which he did. The doctor, like Prof. Falk, was evidently out of town, when "nature gave out hair," but when she dealt out good music, they were right on hand. The house was well filled, and the net receipts were about $38. The young folks feel pleased at their success. All concerned appear pleased with the organ, and it will no doubt be so satisfactory, that it will be retained. Dr. Buchtel and Prof. Falk, we believe, laid out the plan for its construction, which is somewhat an improvement over others, and deserve credit for their taste and skill in this line. Those who sang, were Mrs. Garwood, Mrs. Yesbera, Mabel Hartman, Mary Young, Jessie Weaver, Mrs. Cuppy, Mrs. B. C. Robbins, T. P. Scott and Walter Hartman. All did themselves credit.

Sudden Death.

Jacob Grogg, one of the best known and highly respected citizens died suddenly Monday morning about seven o'clock. He had attended church, the Lutheran, where he is a prominent member, both forenoon and evening of the day before, but that night had an attack of his old disease, heart trouble. His son Isaac, was sent for, and remained till he was better, and apparently in a fair way to get along. But he was taken worse again just before morning, and died almost immediately. He had generally been in good health, though lately troubled some with his heart The funeral will be held at the Lutheran church, St. Marks, at one o'clock to day, Mr. Brosy, the pastor, officiating.

A Slip of Paper.

S. D. Henderson, of Mead Centre, Kas. says: I cannot say too much in praise of your Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, and the peculiar way I came to try this medicine. I once found a slip of paper laying along the road, on which was printed these words, "Use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup for asthma," and my wife being troubled with asthma for several years, and having tried a great many differant medicines, I thought I would just spend 50c. more and try yours and I must say it is the best she ever used, and think it will cure her sound and well. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Reading Room Meeting

Next Monday evening there will be a meeting at the M. E. church, of all friends of the reading room, to discuss measures to insure its continuance. At the meeting last Friday, the managers decided to take this step, so there might be a full discussion and a comparison of plans. One question to come up, will be as to the expense of a room whether we shall retain the present very convenient one, or get one that costs less. Every friend of the plan should be present. Remember the time, next Monday evening.

B. F. Dawson of Angola, was in to chat awhile one day last week. Ben is a free silver man, and speaks from knowledge as to how it works. He was a gold miner some years ago, and when he came home, took his dust to the mint at Philadelphia. There it was melted and its fineness ascertained. This determined its value, and he received his pay for the value of his pile, in money. He says this is the way it would be with free silver, and he don't see any "danger" or "dishonest money" in it.

The Dispatch is still giving and claiming to give very necessary advice. Last week it stated that a year or so ago, it advocated iron bridges and the very next day, the commissioners let several bridges of that kind. We presume other coincidences could be found. Let us see. Last week it was noticed that the forest leaves had turned a golden hue, from which we may suppose the Dispatch had advised that particular shade, to the discouragement of the old dirty red. Then on Friday and Saturday a high wind stripped the trees, perhaps at the Dispatch's suggestion, that this would be a better plan than washing them off by a rainstorm. Also we have been enjoying a number of fine frosts, which we believe it is claimed will freeze to death the mean little germs of malaria; and we shall expect the Dispatch will claim credit for the plan, which is so much better than having to run the little rascals into a fence corner and kill them with a pitchfork. The Dispatch has a great head.

Plenty of nice, dry wood has been coming into town for a week or so. People are preparing for bad roads. Good plan.

Our citizens generally will welcome Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reed to the town and its soceity. All their married life, we believe, they have lived on "the hill" at the farm, having moved but once, and that was when they moved across the road "out of the old house, into the new." Now they are fairly settled in Auburn, and we hope they will find it a pleasant home.

On next Tuesday evening the regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Myers, in McIntyre's Addition. Program: Scriptural Responses by members of the Union; bible lesson, conducted by Mrs. Geo. McCord; select reading, by Mrs. J. D. Meyers; parliamentary drill, All persons interested in the work are very cordially invited to be present. Members are especially urged to be present and pay their dues.

A "boom" copy of the Spokane Falls Review of recent date, has a general write up of the city, its interests and leading men. Among the last we find a sketch of Theo. Reed, who a few years ago was at the head of the Auburn COURIER. He has lately been elected city comptroller and is spoken of as a leading business man. The accompanying picture, while it does not flatter him, is sufficiently plain so anyone here will recognize it at a glance. We shall keep the paper to let his old friends see him again.

J. C. Staley was in town Tuesday. He is now located at Summit but is employed in the sawmill at Hamilton. The lumber company there, of which D. E. Willis, his son-in-law, is a member, received the contract Monday, for the lumber and timber to rebuild the big railroad bridge at Hamilton. Our people will remember this monster bridge, and how it was torn down and the material sold several years ago, when the building of the Canada Southern was abandoned. It will take a big lot of material.

I. J. McFadden, an old war vet., thipped in his usual prompt payment on the COURIER this week. He makes good use of a well earned pension, for a man who was run over and crushed by the iron hoofs of a troop of cavalry deserves a generous deal from Uncle Sam. His injuries have made him half an invalid for many years, yet he has never stopped work unless obliged to, and by good management has now a comfortable home. And we are pleased to see him in rather better health than usual.

LYNCH law is a poor substitute for the cool and deliberate justice administered by the courts. The name of Omaha has been made to suffer by the intemperate folly of the mob that overawed the officers of the law and dragged a prisoner from the jail to his death the other night. IT is the fashion to jeer at the hunters in this country who merrily follow the anise-seed bag over hill and dale, but certainly this is more commendable and less contemptible than the sort of thing they do in England, if one may judge by the account given of a recent hunt in Leicester. A party of hunters came upon a stag and caught it alive. Then it occurred to them that it was the lawful prey of other huntsmen who had been chasing it before they took a hand. They therefore put the unfortunate animal in a barn with its legs hobbled and its eyes bandaged. Presently the second party—or the first in starting—came up, and in this state the stag was let out and killed. The anise seed bag is better than so unsportsmanlike a piece of butchery as this.

AT a conference of the European representatives of the transatlantic steamship lines in Bremen it was resolved that the examination of emigrants with a view to determining whether they should be permitted to enter the United States ought not to be made by the consular agents of this Government, but by agents controlled by the companies. Presumably the next step will be to attempt to force this view of the matter upon the Government, but it is an attempt which should have no success. Faulty as is the present consular inspection of emigrants, it is perfection in comparison with the results likely to follow the surrender of this duty to the steamship companies. It is the business of those corporations to carry as many emigrants as they possibly can secure, and no regard for the interests of the United States is likely to impel them to rigidly weed out the pauper, the diseased, or the criminal from the vast hordes of people who seek transportation to that new world which they think an El Dorado.

THE Supreme Court has decided that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company shall pay a fine for refusing to obey the law of New York which forbids the heating of passenger cars with the deadly stove. The corporation will go to the United States Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of this question. It is a foreign corporation, and claims not to be liable to the statute because it does not operate fifty miles of railroad within the State of New York. No court has yet agreed with the company on this point, but its adherence to the car stove is remarkable, not only for its blindness but for its obstinacy. The car stove has caused the company a good deal of trouble. It burned up a train in the tunnel last spring and it roasted several people to death. The consequence was the indictment of President Clark and the directors, and, it is reported, much mental anguish on the part of the principal offender. In the meantime the company has announced that it has adopted a system of steam-heating and it is known that its new cars are fitted up for such a system. Yet it is so wedded to the stove that it continues to fight in behalf of its memory, notwithstanding that the fatal thing has dragged its officers into a criminal court.

New Lakes on Mars.

There is one point of view from which the formation of a new lake in Southern California by the overflowing of a sandy desert with water from the Colorado River possesses peculiar interest. It may throw light upon some of the mysterious changes that have occurred upon the planet Mars. Near the equator of Mars there is a region which has been believed to be part of the dry land of that planet, and which has been named Lybia by the Italian astronomer Schiaparelli.

But a few years ago a change occurred in the color of "Lybia," and some of the observers thought that it must have been suddenly overflowed with water, since it had assumed the color characteristic of the other regions of Mars that are supposed to be water-covered.

Other similar changes have been seen by telescopists on Mars.

Now that a new lake has actually been formed on the earth by the unexpected filling up with water of a depressed area of dry land those who believe that a similar occurrence, on a larger scale, has taken place on Mars will probably be strengthened in that interesting opinion.

THE REIGN OF TRUSTS.

M'KINLEY'S TARIFF LAW PROTECTS THEM.

The Home Consumer Pays the Tariff, and Not the Foreign Manufacturer—McKinley Object Lessons—It's Cheaper to Foreigners—Tariff Shot, Etc.

High Tariff Promises.

When Benjamin Harrison was nominated for the Presidency, he wrote the following in his letter of acceptance:

"The declaration of the convention against all combinations of capital, organized in trusts or otherwise, to control arbitrarily the condition of trade among our citizens, is in harmony with the views entertained and publicly expressed by me long before the assembling of the convention."

This was the promise which he made to the people, namely, that nothing should be done by his administration to foster trusts, but that every effort would be put forth to suppress them. In accordance with these sentiments, the representatives of President Harrison in the House and Senate passed the McKinley tariff and the anti-trust bill of Senator Sherman.

Shortly after the passage of the former the administration organ, the New York Tribune, exclaimed in a fit of exultation: "This (the McKinley bill) is a trust-killing tariff, men and brethren." At the same time it declared that the anti-trust law makes impossible the formation of trusts to control the markets and advance prices.

Such were the promises of the Harrison administration. Were they carried out? The fact that there were many trusts in existence at the time that these promises were made, and that since the enactment of the Sherman anti-trust law, many more have been organized in open defiance of it, is sufficient to show that the trusts did not fear this law. Nor, in fact, have they had cause to fear it, for the Attorney General, whose duty it is to execute the law, has not brought a single suit—thus himself violating the plain commands of the act. The law was never intended to be anything but a dead letter. It was passed for a purpose, however. This purpose was two-fold. The McKinley tariff had largely increased the rates of duty on the products of the trusts, thus giving them still greater opportunities to enlarge their tariff bonuses. The anti-trust law was enacted to detract the attention of the people from this fact. The other reason for its enactment was to satisfy the clamor of the people against the trusts. It was the belief of Sherman and McKinley that the law which the former fathered would accomplish both of these purposes without in any way causing the trusts, who were the real beneficiaries of the McKinley bill, the least annoyance.

We give a list of a few of the leading trusts which depend for their existence on the tariff:

1. Cotton Oil Trust. This trust embraces several smaller ones, among them the Little Rock Cotton Oil Combination. Its stock is heavily watered. Tariff protection 10 cents per gallon.

2. Linseed Oil Trust. It controls the mills and markets. Tariff protection 32 cents per gallon on linseed oil.

3. Borax Trust. It embraces all the borax mines of California and Oregon. No borax is found abroad, but imported boracic acid was a competitive product. On this the duty was increased from 3 cents to 5 cents per pound. The duty on borax is 3 cents and 5 cents per pound.

4. National White Lead Trust. Controls the production of many lead products, especially white lead. It disposes of its surplus abroad, and is in this way able to keep up prices here. Protection on white lead, 3 cents per pound.

5. Ultramarine Blue Trust. Protection, 4½ cents per pound.

6. Acid Trust. Embracing the manufactories of sulphuric, nitric and muriatic acids east of the Mississippi River. Protection, sulphuric acid, ¼ cent per pound; formerly free.

7. Castor Oil Trust. Protection, 80 cents per gallon.

8. Wood Alcohol Trust. This is a branch of the Whisky Trust, known as the Distillers and Cattle Feeders' Company.

9. Sanitary Earthenware Trust, composed of seven pottery manufactories in Trenton, N. J., and East Liverpool, Ohio. On its products the duties were increased by 5 to 10 per cent. by the McKinley tariff.

Directly after the enactment of the McKinley tariff it cut down wages. Protection on pottery, 55 and 60 per cent.

10. Window-Glass Trust. It embraces many window-glass factories in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Illinois. Secretary of the Treasury Foster owns stock in this trust. Protection, over 100 per cent.

11. Table Glassware Trust. This trust is composed of glass manufacturers in Ohio and Pennsylvania. It was formed immediately after the passage of the McKinley tariff. The duties were raised to 60 per cent. Many of the factories in this trust made over 60 per cent profit last year.

12. School Slate Trust. Protection, 30 per cent.

13. Gypsum Trust (plaster of paris). It controls every important mill in the United States. Protection, $1 to $1.75 per ton.

14. Steel Trusts. Bessemer Steel Association, makers of blooms and slabs; Merchants' Steel Association, finished steel; Western Steel, of Chicago; Ohio Steel, mostly controlled by English capital. These trusts control the manufacture of beam, channel, and structural iron and steel. Protection heavy.

15. Wire Rod Trust. Composed of Western mills. Protection, 6-10c per pound.

16. Shot Trust. 2½ cents per pound protection.

17. Copper Trust. This trust is known as the Association of Copper Manufacturers in the United States. Controls all copper products. Meets once a year to fix prices; protection 35 and 45 per cent.

18. Asbestos Trust. This trust is composed of five firms in Boston, New York and Chicago; protection 25 per cent.

19. American Ax and Edge Tool Trust. Organized in February, 1890. Previous to its organization axes sold at $5.25 per dozen, now the lowest price for first quality axes is $7 to $7.50 per dozen; protection 45 per cent.

20. Steel Rail Trust. This is one of the most important of all the trusts. It is composed of six companies, and controls absolutely the production of steel rails; protection 6-10 cent per pound.

21. Barbed Wire Trust. It was organized in St. Louis in 1889, and embraces some nineteen companies; protection 6-10 cent per pound.

22. Strap and T-hinge Trust. Organized in New York. It advanced prices 20 per cent.; protection 2½ cents per pound.

23. Coffin Trust. Embraces sixty concerns. Prices have been raised 35 per cent.; protection 35 per cent.

24. Sugar Trust. It was reorganized in 1889 under the name of the "Sugar Refineries Company." It controlled when organized twenty sugar factories, one-half of which have been dismantled. Protection ½ cent per pound.

25. Glucose Trust. Protection ¾ cent per pound.

26. Cigarette Trust. Protection $4.50 per pound.

27. Oatmeal Trust. It embraces fourteen constituent companies. It also has reduced wages. Protection 1 cent per pound.

28. Starch Trust. This trust controls eight factories. Protection on starch 2 cents per pound.

29. Salt Trust. Organized this year. It raised prices at once. Protection 8 and 12 cents per 100 pounds.

30. Cracker, Cake and Biscuit Trusts. The New York Biscuit Company controls trade east of Chicago; the American Biscuit Company has all the trade west of Chicago. The former has a capital of $5,000,000, the latter one of $10,000,000. They advanced prices 20 per cent after dividing the field as above. Protection 20 per cent.

31. Distillers and Cattle-Feeders' Trust, also known as the Whisky Trust. It controls all Northern distilleries. Protection very high.

32. Jute Bagging Trust. Protection 1.6 and 1.8 cents per square yard.

33. Oil Cloth Trust. It embraces the manufacturers of table, shelf and stair oil cloths. Protection 30 to 40 per cent.

34. Twine Trust. This trust is composed of over thirty corporations. Protection 7 cent per pound.

35. Cartridge Trust. Protection 35 per cent.

This is but a partial list of the tariff-protected trusts, which number over one hundred. Everyone knows that the anti-trust law will not be enforced against them, especially now that a member of one of the leading trusts is Harrison's Secretary of the Treasury. And yet the New York Tribune tries to fool the people by saying that "this (the McKinley bill) is a trust-killing tariff, men and brethren."

Tariff Shot.

Since 1816 we have had four periods of high and prohibitive tariffs, one period of a moderate tariff with incidental protection, and three periods of low or revenue tariffs. During our whole history high tariffs have lowered the price of farm products by checking exports and imports, while low tariffs, by stimulating foreign trade, have raised the prices of what the farmer has to sell. This truth is well shown by the average prices of corn during each tariff period.

I. Period—Moderate tariff, with incidental protection (Clay called this a revenue tariff), 1816 to 1824. Corn 76 3-10 cent per bushel.

II. Period—High and prohibitive tariffs of 1824, 1828 and 1832; 1825-1832. Corn 62 cents per bushel.

III. Period—Low compromise tariff of 1833; 1833-1842. Corn 77½ cents per bushel.

IV. Period—High protective tariff of 1842; 1843-1846. Corn 57 cents per bushel.

V. Period—Low revenue tariff of 1846; 1846-1857. Corn 73¾ cents per bushel.

VI. Period—Lower revenue tariff of 1857 (spoken of by protectionists as our "free trade tariff"); 1858-1860. Corn 80½ cents per bushel.

VII. Period—War tariffs of 1861-1882. Corn 75 cents per bushel.

VIII. Period—High tariff of 1883; 1883-1890. Corn 53 1-6 cents per bushel.

Who Pays the Tariff?

Some time ago a number of merchants in New York, importing worsted goods to the amount of many millions of dollars annually, complained to the Treasury Department of an Appraiser of Customs who had arbitrarily raised the valuation of their imports. While the case has just been decided in favor of the importers, we have to do only with the facts bearing on the operation of the tariff. The wholesale price of the goods in question was 56 cents a yard in England—the price paid by buyers from every market, as the manufacturers testify. Under the former tariff, the duty on their goods was 18 cents a yard and 35 per cent. ad valorem. The McKinley tariff raised the duty to 44 cents a yard and 50 per cent. ad valorem—or a duty of 72 cents a yard on a material costing 56 cents a yard at the point of production. Adding duties, charges and commissions of importers, the wholesale price in New York would be $1.50 a yard, and little, if anything, less than $2 a yard at retail to the American consumer.

It is manifest that the manufacturer cannot pay these enormous duties; nor does he pay any share of them, since he sells his goods at the same price to the importers in the United States and elsewhere without reference to foreign tariffs. The duties, then, to the last cent, come out of the pockets of American consumers.

When the McKinley tariff was in committee the home manufacturers of worsteds alleged that they could not compete with importers at the prices then existing. To secure the present advance in duties on worsteds they consented to an increase of 20 per cent. in the duty upon combing wool. Can they afford now to sell their products at the former range of prices of which they complained, and pay an increased tax upon their imported raw materials? The effect of the McKinley tariff has not only been to raise the cost of imports by the amount of the increased duty, but to raise to nearly if not quite the same level the cost of the rival domestic products to American consumers. This is what the McKinley tariff was enacted for; and it has not failed in its purpose.

McKinley Object Lessons.

A striking illustration of the wonders accomplished by the McKinley bill is shown in this week's issue of the Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Association, the organization which probably had more influence than any other in having the duties increased on many products of iron and steel.

Under the caption, "The News of the Past Week," on a single page it announces the assignment of the iron shipbuilding firm of Harrison, Loring & Co., at Boston; the suspension of the Blandon Iron and Steel Company (limited) of Blandon, Pa., which has a capital of $125,000; a conference over wages between the employes of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works at Braddock, Pa., and their Superintendent, at which scrappers, who had been averaging over $300 a month, were placed on a salary of $200 a month, while the wages of ladlemen were reduced 30 cents a day; the closing of the Keystone Iron Works at River View, Kan., the largest establishment of the kind near Kansas City, under attachments aggregating $100,000; the coming public sale at Boiling Springs, Pa., of the Katherine Furnace, which was built in 1881-2; a reduction of about 15 per cent. in the wages of the employes of the Hainsworth Steel Company at Pittsburg; the suspension of the Oliver & Roberts Wire Company (Limited) of Pittsburg, with liabilities of $1,087,460; and a strike at Lebanon, Pa., over the refusal of certain firms to sign the wage scale of the Amalgamated Association.

For a single week and a single page this seems a rather startling showing, but the Bulletin makes no reference to it editorially. It devotes its efforts instead toward proving that tin plates are now being made in this country, and that Andrew Carnegie was right when he wrote in the Nineteenth Century that America often has steel rails at less cost than these could be imported free of duty. A few more such weeks and one or two more McKinleys, and the iron and steel trade of the United States will be entirely bankrupt.—New York Times.

Protection and Immigration.

"Yes, men are on the free list. They cost us not even freight. We promote free trade in men, and it is the only free trade I am prepared to promote," said William D. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, the leader of the protectionists in Congress in 1872. For the past thirty years this has been the keynote of the high tariff policy. Ever since the contract labor law of 1864, which provided for the establishment of a national immigration bureau, the purpose of which was to encourage immigration and which went so far as to give the manufacturer who imported his workmen a first lien upon their wages to reimburse him for his expenditures in bringing them over, was sandwiched in between the internal revenue law of 1862 and the high tariff of 1864, we have had high and prohibitive tariffs upon everything the workman has to buy, and free trade in the only thing he has to sell—his labor.

This policy has been so successful that in many of the mills and mines of Pennsylvania, the hot-bed of high protectionism, no record is kept of the names of the workmen employed, but they are noted in the pay rolls by numbers alone. That the beneficiaries of our high tariffs will see to it that this good thing—for themselves alone—is not changed, may be illustrated by the statement which was made a few days ago by Andrew Carnegie just before he sailed from Liverpool. To a Herald reporter he said in answer to the question: "And what do you think, Mr Carnegie, of the unchecked flood of undesirable immigration into America?"

"I say, don't touch immigration; let it flow on. We are getting the cream of Europe. I want to see America great, really great. We need all the population we can get. We have only seventeen persons to the square mile, and there are hundreds of millions of acres of land where the sod has never been turned. I say, hands off immigration." Only a few days ago Mr. Carnegie cut down the wages of his workmen, in many cases 50 per cent. The workmen had to submit because they saw others ready and willing to take their places. The labor market is already drugged, say the protectionists, and we need a higher tariff to give employment. The production of farm products, according to the same high authorities, is already in excess of the demand, and we need a high tariff upon manufactures to create a "home market" for them, and to prevent those employed in our factories from becoming farmers. And yet the chief beneficiaries of our high tariffs are doing all in their power to aggravate these evils which they seem to deplore. By the formation of trusts, under the benign influences of the tariff, they are enabled to exact higher prices for their products, and by "keeping" the people's hands off immigration they are able to have a constantly congested labor market and to keep down the prices of farm products.

How long will it be before the farmers and workmen will see through this hypocritical tariff policy, the two maxims of which are "free trade in labor" and "overproduction of farm products?"

Cheaper to Foreigners.

The Eastman Company is the name of a firm of manufacturers of photographic materials, and its home office is in Rochester, N. Y. It has also a branch at No. 115 Oxford street, London. A comparison of the price lists which it issues from the two places will add one more to the many instances of the overwhelming affection of the McKinley tariff for the American consumer. We append a table showing how the "Prices of Eastman's Bromibe Paper" in London compare with those exacted in this country by an industry which has to be protected from the dreaded competition of foreigners:

Thus the London photographer gets his supplies from this American firm at only a little more than one-half as much as the American photographer has to pay. Turning now to the columns of the McKinley bill, we find the rates on albumenized paper to be 35 per cent ad valorum; the old rate was 15 per cent. Of course, "the wisest and bravest tariff that was ever framed" was manipulated by this endangered American industry in the most shameless and ridiculous manner. What does Mr. McKinley think now of a company that asked for 35 per cent. protection, and then gives the Londoner 50 per cent off its prices to Americans?—New York Evening Post.

Protection's Profits.

The Board of Directors of the Cumberland Glass Company advertise the payment of a dividend of 100 per cent. It is an extraordinarily profitable business that yields a yearly profit of 100 per cent., and the Louisville Courier-Journal has been moved to an investigation of the cause. It finds that the Cumberland Glass Company is protected in its business by duties ranging from 68 to 142 per cent. This is a practical authorization by Congress to charge from 68 to 142 per cent. more for its wares than they are worth. This explains the mystery.

WHAT is perhaps the greatest dairy section in the United States is within a radius of fifty miles of Utica. In this territory the manufacture of cheese is conducted on an enormous scale, and the transactions run well into the millions of dollars every year. The McKinley bill added two cents a pound to the duty on cheese, raising it to six cents. The ruling price paid for cheese on the Utica Board of Trade, Monday, was 8¾c. Two years ago it was 9½c. Was there ever a greater swindle than that addition of two cents to the duty on cheese? We think the dairymen in this section are disposed to answer the question in the negative. The tariff was increased for their "benefit." Where is the benefit?—Utica Observer.

RECIPROCITY must be confined to farm products so far as any practical results can be hoped for. But South America is an agricultural country and can feed itself in the main, which leaves us where we started. Reciprocity with manufacturing countries would give us broader markets for our food, but according to the McKinley school it would cripple our industries. Scrutinized closely, then, reciprocity as defined by Blaine is an arrant humbug. It exists in glowing colors upon paper, but yields no practical results.—Kansas City Times.

A FRENCH poet has discovered that "Cronstadt" has just enough letters in it to spell "Tsar Carnot." "This being the case," adds a critic, "nobody need be surprised at the fall of the German Emperor."

HAPPY thought! Feeblewittle suggests that henceforth it be considered quite the proper thing to serve dropped eggs with picked-up dinners.

Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep

Sounds nice, doesn't it? But O, how fast and furious are the rockings in rough weather! The intestinal warfare begotten in your vitals by the sea's commotion beggars description. What's the proper caper under these circumstances? Take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Nothing comparable to it for remedying seasickness or the kindred nausea from which many delicate land travelers suffer. Dyspepsia, cramps, constipation and biliousness also are invariably and promptly remedied by the Bitters. Exposure in rough weather is often productive of hurtful consequences, which may, however, be averted by the timely use of the Bitters, which diffuses an agreeable warmth through the system, and promotes an active circulation of the blood in the extremities when benumbed and chilled. Malaria, kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility are remedied by the Bitters.

COPYRIGHT 1890

A building up of the entire system follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial and bracing nervine — and a certain remedy for all the functional derangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. For periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhea and kindred ailments, it is a positive specific—a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms. With an ordinary medicine, it can't be done.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

BALLOT-BOX STUFFERS.

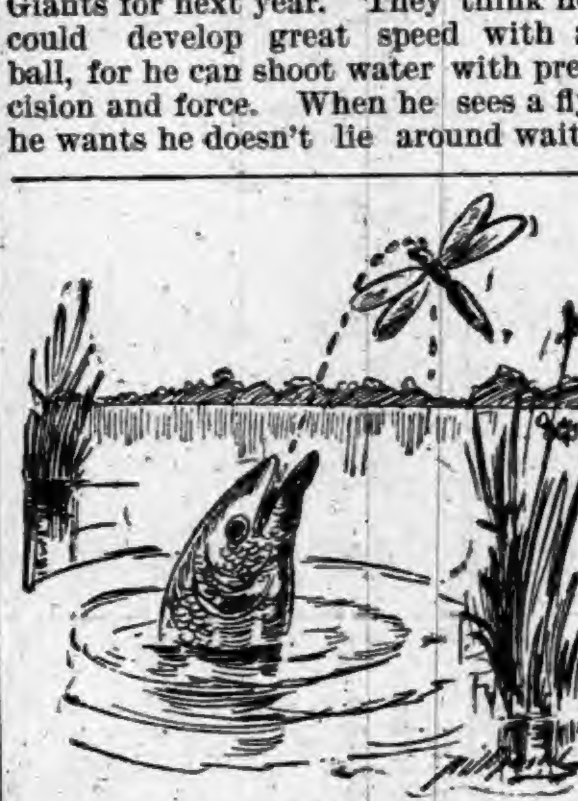
William T. Coleman, Chairman of the Vigilance Committees of 1851, '56 and '77, writes as follows on this topic in the Century: "The next important work was the action to be taken with regard to notorious ballot-box stuffers and other desperate characters. They were a curse to the country. Every one admitted it, but no effective action had been taken against them. In many cases they held the polls at election and attacked, maimed and terrified those voters who were opposed to their friends. If arrested, such was the dread they had inspired, and so great their influence with the courts, that conviction was almost impossible. This immunity from punishment increased their insolence and violence, and it was evident that no reform could be made while they remained in the State. What was to be done with them? They could not be hanged; they would be a source of expense and trouble; safe and satisfactory imprisonment was plainly impracticable. It was therefore suggested that if, after fair trial, the charges against them were proved, no course would be so satisfactory and safe as banishment, with a warning never again to return under pain of death. This was adopted, and a black-list was made of all these notorious characters. Evidence was collected, and orders were soon given for the arrest of these men wherever they could be found in the State. They were tried, convicted, sentenced and deported, many of them as first-class passengers, by sailing ships and steamships, at the sole expense of the committee, and in a style far above their deserts; this was not appreciated, but flattered and exalted them to the belief that they were important personages and had suffered great damage, and they brought suits against the committee. Singularly, or perhaps naturally, these suits were only brought by those who were best treated. Those who were shipped in the steerage never brought suits, and were never afterward troublesome."

BULLETS OF WATER.

An Oriental Fish that Goes Hunting with His Own Deadly Gun.

The archer fish is a unique product of the Indian Ocean, says the New York Morning Journal. There is some talk of getting him for the Giants for next year. They think he could develop great speed with a ball, for he can shoot water with precision and force. When he sees a fly he wants he doesn't lie around waiting till he can jump after him; he just swallows a pint of water and then discharges it at the fly, which generally falls at the first shot. The archer fish can make a bull's-eye on a dragon fly at six feet, and not perspire, either. The bullets of water leave the mouth without any noise, so that the victim receives no warning. It is said that the Central Park authorities are trying to get a specimen for the aquarium. Jersey folks want him planted in their rivers and swamps, believing he would soon diminish the mosquito crop.



THE ARCHER FISH.

Took a Lion by the Tail.

When P. T. Barnum's winter quarters were burned two years ago one of the lions escaped and entered the barn of Mrs. Gilligan, a widow living on Pequonnock street, Bridgeport, Conn., says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Mrs. Gilligan bravely entered the barn, grabbed the king of beasts by the tail, and belabored him with a pitchfork handle to drive him out. Her pluck and courage were noted in the newspapers at the time, and she received many offers of marriage from men in the far West who needed brave wives.

Mrs. Gilligan has again distinguished herself. She is a great poultry fancier, and her hennery is a standing temptation to the lawless tramps and toughs who make that neighborhood their headquarters. Recently she heard her chickens making an unusual noise, and, hastily dressing, she got to the coop just in time to see two men carrying off thirteen of her fowls. She followed them to their camp in the woods, and, jumping into the midst of the gang, she grabbed the chickens from the hands of the thieves, and gave them a piece of her mind. Then she sent for the police and made complaint against the men. They were sent up for theft, and Mrs. Gilligan was complimented by the court.

Tobacco and Fame.

An American woman who considers graceful smoking an elegant accomplishment has taken the trouble to accumulate a number of facts relative to the great men who have been addicted to this habit, and submits the following as the result of her investigation:

Ben Johnson loved the weed and smoked habitually, describing every incident of his experience with his pipe with the gusto of the connoisseur. Hobbes, the philosopher, smoked after dinner invariably a pipe, and not moderately. Glorious Milton, before retiring, always indulged in a pipe of peace and a glass of water. Even Sir Isaac Newton was dreamily blowing wreaths of smoke from his mouth in his garden at Woolsthorpe when the apple fell that led to the discovery of the law of gravitation. Addison was rarely seen without his pipe at Button's. Fielding, the novelist, added to the habit of smoking the vice of chewing.

Of the more modern poets Shelley never smoked, nor Wordsworth nor Keats as far as known. Coleridge was an inveterate opium eater, but when cured of that he became addicted to snuff. Campbell had a tender affection for his pipe and never got over it. Sir Walter Scott smoked when riding and after dinner, loving both pipes and cirgars. Byron sung perhaps more than any other poet the praises of "sublime tobacco," but it is a well established fact that he smoked very moderately.

Goethe, like Shakspeare, did not smoke. Carlyle took great comfort from the weed for many years before his death—greatly to the disgust of his wife. Douglas Jerrold used to puff away between his jokes. Of novelists of this century, Dickens and Thackeray were both smokers, and Lord Lytton indulged in a pipe at night but preferred cigars in the daytime. Moore, the Irish poet, cared very little for pipes or cigars, in fact, Irish gentlemen as a rule, smoking much less than the English, and the Germans more than either.

The Duke of Wellington was a total abstinence man on the subject of tobacco, as was also Sir Robert Peel. Disraeli dearly loved his pipe when a young man, but grew sensitive in middle life and characterized it "the tomb of love."

Hawaiians of Old.

In old days the Hawaiians seem to have been always ready for fighting, and to have set about it in a most deliberate way. As a matter of course every man was regularly drilled in the use of spear, javelin, sling and stone, and all other means of offense and defense. In time of war, says the Paradise of the Pacific, all were required to follow their chief to the field, and any man who showed any symptoms of cowardice had his ears slit and was led into the camp with a rope around his body—a measure which greatly assisted the nervous in overcoming their fears.

Some of their war customs were almost identical with those of the Fijians, as, for instance, the boastful shouts of defiance, and the advance of scouts, or of a single warrior, deridingly carrying only a fan, as if to brush away harmless flies, and challenging the foe to attack him singly. Perhaps, in reply, a dozen spears would be cast at him at once; and those he avoided by nimbly twisting or jumping aside or stooping. Sometimes he caught them in his hands and hurled them back at his assailants. Truly, civilized warfare leaves us no such picturesque incidents as these.

The Hawaiians carried no banners; but the idols, borne by the priests, acted as rallying points and inspired the combatants with vigor. As flags of truce, they sent young banana trees, whose broad and long silky green leaves waved as they moved. Then the chiefs and priests of both tribes met, to decide on terms of peace. This done, they sacrificed a pig and poured its blood on the ground, as a symbol of the fate that awaited the truce-breaker.

A wreath of the fragrant maile was woven by the leaders of both sides and deposited as their joint offerings in one of the temples. Heralds were then sent round to proclaim peace.

This happy result generally occurred when the opponents were well matched, in which case each acknowledged themselves to be luka lua—i. e., beaten. But if either party was victorious then the vanquished were treated as slaves and made to cultivate their own land for the conquerors. Some were sacrificed on the altars of the bloodthirsty god of war and their wives and children became the property of the victors.

A Rival of the Yosemite.

In the Sierra wilderness far to the southward of the famous Yosemite Valley, there is a yet grander valley of the same kind. It is situated on the South Fork of King's River, above the most extensive groves and forests of the giant sequoia, and beneath the shadows of the highest mountains in the range, where the canyons are deepest and the snow-laden peaks are crowded most closely together. It is called the Big King's River Canyon, or King's River Yosemite, and is reached by way of Visalia, the nearest point on the Southern Pacific Railroad, from which the distance is about forty-five miles, or by the Kearsarge Pass from the east side of the range. It is about ten miles long, half a mile wide, and the stupendous rocks of purplish gray granite that forms the walls are from 2,500 to 5,000 feet in height, while the depth of the valley below the general surface of the mountain mass from which it has been carved is considerably more than a mile. Thus it appears that this new Yosemite is longer and deeper, and lies imbedded in grander mountains than the well-known Yosemite of the Merced. Their general characters, however, are wonderfully alike, and they bear the same relationship to the fountains of the ancient glaciers above them.—Century.

Lost His Job by Telling the Truth.

A preacher in Iowa lost his pulpit for telling the truth. He was a forcible preacher, but deficient in education and occasionally committed some grave misdemeanors in grammar. One Sunday while speaking rapidly he made a gross assault on Lindley Murray. No sooner had the sentence escaped his lips than he stopped and said: "I am aware that my education is deficient. I regret that I did not have the advantage of good schools when a boy. If I had been more fortunate I would now be preaching to a more intelligent congregation." The minister told the truth, but it was the last time he preached in that church.—Boston Advertiser.

Saved All She Could.

A young lady went into a drug store at Belfast, Me., the other evening and purchased a bottle of very high-priced perfume. She had scarcely left the store when she dropped the bottle on the sidewalk, breaking it in many pieces. The mute look of distress which her face assumed assured the spectators of the state of her feelings. Kicking the pieces of the bottle in all directions she took her handkerchief and mopped up as much of the perfume as possible and walked off smelling as sweetly as a flower-garden.

Not a Local Disease

Because Catarrh affects your head, it is not therefore a local disease. If it did not exist in your blood, it could not manifest itself in your nose. The blood now in your brain is, before you finish reading this article, back in your heart again, and soon distributed to your liver, stomach, kidneys, and so on. Whatever impurities the blood does not carry away, cause what we call diseases. Therefore, when you have a snuff or other inhalent can at most give only temporary relief. The only way to effect a cure is to attack the disease in the blood, by taking a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which eliminates all impurities and thus permanently cures Catarrh. The success of

Catarrh

Hood's Sarsaparilla

As a remedy for Catarrh is vouched for by many people it has cured. N. B. Be sure to get Hood's.

The Swamp Angel.

The Swamp Angel was an 8-inch, 200-pounder Parrott rifled gun, mounted by the federal troops in a morass on Morris Island, Charleston Harbor, in 1863. On August 22 and 23 the City of Charleston, five and one-half miles distant, was shelled, the gun bursting at the thirty-sixth shot. After the war the Swamp Angel was sold for old metal and conveyed to Trenton, N. J.; but having been identified, it was set up on a granite pedestal at the corner of Perry and Clinton streets in that city.

LIES vs. FACTS

No man wishes to buy a pig in a bag, and no one places confidence in the advertisements of Scale makers which SOUND improbable. "Something for nothing" can never be had, and when you see Scales advertised so indefinitely as to leave a BIG percentage for the imagination; investigate carefully.

Some people are fair minded, and to them we refer the Scale question. Actions SPEAK louder than words, and when you find a genuine article made of good material FOR a fair price is it not better that the facts in the case should be looked into by fair minded men for THEMSELVES before buying any kind of a Scale?

Ammonia and alum are the most common adulterants used in the manufacture of baking powders. The Government report shows that a large percentage of the baking powders on the market contain either one drug or the other, or both these pernicious drugs.

What woman would use ammonia or alum baking powder if she knew it? Such powders not only undermine the health, but ammonia gives to the complexion a sallow or blotched appearance. The presence of ammonia or alum in a baking powder, however, can easily be detected.

TO DETECT AMMONIA. Mix one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder with one teaspoonful of water in a tin cup; boil thoroughly for a few moments, stir to prevent burning, and if ammonia is present you can smell it in the rising steam. Or place a can of the suspected powder top down on a hot stove for a minute or two, then take off the cover and smell.

TO DETECT ALUM. Alum baking powder can be tested by putting a couple of teaspoonfuls of the powder in a glass of cold water. If no effervescence, that is bubbling or simmering, takes place, condemn and return it at once.

Some alum powders, however, like the Calumet, Bon Bon, Chicago Yeast, etc., contain phosphates in combination with alum, and wite these brands the following test is simple and sure:

Take one half teaspoonful of baking powder in lid of say half pound can; char thoroughly over a strong alcohol flame, a good gas jet; or red hot coals. After charing (that is, burning until the whole mass is black) add a teaspoonful of water and place a bright piece of silver coin in the solution. Stir for one minute, then take out the silver. If the powder prove a cream of tartar powder the coin will be bright; if an alum powder it will have sulphur stains.

Now pour a little vinegar into the lid and smell the fumes. Alum powders give off sulphuretted hydrogen, which may be detected by its foul odor.

AGAIN ON THE WING.

A few Items of Interest as they were picked up by our Office Bird in his Flight Across the Country.

J. C. Hull, the barber, is a very pleasant gentleman, who thoroughly understands his profession and patrons can rest assured of getting as good accommodations at his shop as are to be obtained in larger towns.

J. H. Conrad, the lively tinner, is alive to the interests of his community, and gave the itinerant much valuable information concerning American and British tin, which placed in legible characters the wide difference in the quality of goods manufactured by the countries named. He has a largely increased trade in hardware, tinware, etc., and does an extensive business as a tinner.

Culbertson & White are in the stock buying and shipping business. They make a good team, and are very pleasant and reliable gentlemen to deal with, and I consider myself obligated to them for substantial favors rendered.

M. Tustison runs a first-class grocery and general produce establishment. He does a good, square business and patrons can rely on getting good goods at a low margin.

J. D. Leighty is the champion grain buyer in his section of country. He is proprietor of one of the largest and handsomest business blocks in St. Joe, in which is located the St. Joe Valley Bank, a very creditable enterprise, and a dry goods and grocery store belonging to Mr. L.

St. Joe has at last thrown off the dark mantle of inertness and lies no longer dormant. Three grand churches adorn its precincts and a large school house, with a first-class educational faculty afford the children the opportunity to educate themselves. The temples of trade tower on each side of the principal streets, and many new and costly residences have been built here and there over the town, until everything about the bright, little burg seems to pose with an admirable degree of city airs. The manufacturing interests are in the advance and abreast with the times.

Ed. White, the only and original "Ed." hotel and liveryman, has made some very important improvements about his hotel, which will greatly enhance that institution's facilities for public accommodation.

Barney Brothers have an immense double store and do an immense business. They have goods on two floors, The upper room is for their stock of ready made clothing, etc., while on the first, or main floor, they have a department each, for hardware, dry goods, boots and shoes and have the usual variety of a general supply store. They are first-class business men and are known far and wide as large dealers. Sol. the senior partner has as nice a residence as there is in St. Joe, and perhaps as good as can be found in the county.

The Ohio Boundary.

A year or two ago the legislature of Ohio passed a resolution asking the United States to send a commission of expert surveyors to re-survey the boundary line between Indiana and Ohio, claiming that the present boundary is not correct. The United States government granted the request, and for some time a party has been making its way along the line, taking the proper bearings in fully resurveying the line. It is claimed that starting from the point where the old line started, that is from the point where the Miami enters the Ohio river, and running due north, as the old line was to run, a correct line would cut off twelve miles from Indiana, at the point where it strikes the Michigan line. This would give Ohio an average of six miles along Indiana, or about 200 miles. It will cut off Union City, Richmond, Ft. Wayne and Butler, and come pretty close to Auburn. It is claimed that the original error was caused by Indian post traders at Ft. Wayne and Richmond who, when Ohio was made into a state in 1802 and Indiana Territory cut off of it, did not want to be put into Ohio as that would drop them out of the business; but if left in a territory, not yet a state, their business could go on. So they bribed the surveyors to bear to the east in going north, so as to leave the trading posts in the territory of Indiana. This story may, or may not be true but the line probably varies some, as many old lines do. The commission, or a part of it have been at Butler several days taking observations, getting a meridian, and in other ways fixing up the right line. Much talk is being indulged in as to the result, and many believe, they will soon be taken into Ohio. But there is no danger of this. A line that has been established and acquiesced in so long, eighty-nine years is not likely to be changed, Too many interests would be changed, many injured and no one be benefited. Such a change would be contrary to public policy, and that alone would prevent it. Besides similar attempts have been made before, in other states, and failed. The United States probably has no authority over the matter, and they have likely had the boundary re-surveyed merely as a matter of courtesy. In addition, there are some who claim that should we lose this strip, we can take as much off of Illinois. But we could not. This state and Illinois had a joint survey of their line in 1834, and having agreed, cannot go back on it.

Preparatory to commencing work on the school house, Messrs Park, Berry and George Brandt were appointed a building committee and to locate the site of the proposed house on the lots purchased.

Trustees' salaries continued nominal, and in April, Messrs Berry and Case presented their bills for two years' services as trustees, in amount $10, each, which bills were duly allowed and ordered paid.

The benches, desks, etc., of the old school house were taken and placed on deposit in a place of security till such time as use could be made of them.

The growth of population and public opinion demanded a change in the method of caring for the unfortunate poor from their being housed in families to their having quarters to which all should be removed. The business men of Auburn were interested in this movement since the supplies for such an institution would have to be furnished to a great extent by them.

Then and all the years since then, the county has been a good customer, patronizing the stores and groceries and shops, and paying its bills quarterly.

The board of county commissioners, Solomon DeLong, Joel E. Thompson and James M. Gœtchius examined a number of different farms offered for sale to the county for an asylum for the poor, and finally in April concluded to purchase the E. ½ of E ½ N. E. qr. Sec. 11, and the S. ½ S. W. qr. Sec. 12, in Butler township. This land comprised 120 acres and was the property of Mr. Gœtchius, one of the members of the board. He sold his farm to the county for $3000 or $25 per acre. This farm was years ago sold by the county to John Grube, present owner and the nucleus of the present fine farm northwest of town was bought of Moses Gonser.

Isaac Brandt, who took a leading part in the affairs of town and county and who certainly held the esteem and confidence of the people, was appointed agent to procure a suitable person for superintendent of the farm and to provide an outfit of provisions, furniture, stock, etc, and to report action at the regular term.

On April 26, Mr. Brandt contracted with J. N. Lyon to superintend the farm and his compensation was the sum of $250 for eleven months from May 1st, with supplies furnished for his family, the asylum inmates and his team.

Dr. J. N. Chamberlain was appointed county physician for the benefit of the paupers at the Home. In addition to supplies, was the expense of building, and dealers in Auburn promptly filled orders, J. Keller and Stiefel & Wolf provided goods, John Butt furnished groceries, J. L. Davis hardware, I. Brandt, shoes and R. Ettinger, funiture.

The vote cast at the May annual election was 63 and was about equally divided between parties. Samuel Sanders, S. D. Long, S. B. Ward, E. Berry and A. Spangler were elected trustees. John W. Rickel was elected treasurer, Houghton clerk, William Valleau marshal, and Dr. Chamberlain assessor.

Among voters were Samuel Sanders, Michael Long, James Draggoo, John Rickel, Jacob, B. Hoover, A. Gories, S W Widney, Lewis Bowers and J. W. Welch.

Some of the old business firms and individuals held the uneven tenor of their way and new aspirants for patronage of the public, entered upon the perilous path of mercantile life.

Samuel Sanders, whom we have seen elected a member of the town board, was a dealer in dry goods, dress goods, ready-made clothing, bonnets of latest styles and broadcloths. He kept what he termed a "cheap cash, store", and carried on an extensive business, but the fates were against him in the end and he was retired, leaving a list for posterity, on the county records, of the multitudinous articles which made up his stock in trade.

Michael Long, an early settler in the county, moved to Auburn and in 1856 was engaged in keeping a meat market, and supplied the asylum for the poor with meat.

Mr. Long had his shop opposite Wolf's store, later owned by Joseph Rainier, and, in the spring of 1885, occupied temporarily as a hardware store by Jules Beuret, who had been burned out and was preparing to rebuild his present place of business.

Mr. Long was a kind-hearted, plain, generous man, and at his death it was found that so freely had he credited the poor with meat, that although the nominal assets reached thousands, his estate was insolvent. He had been for years a victim of appetite for strong drink, but by firm exercise of will power and implicit faith in Divine aid, himself conquered the habit, but ever after hated while he dreaded the seductive and baneful poison.

His illness was brief, and just two weeks after his funeral, that of his faithful wife followed, and his humble old home has given way to the march of improvement. He left two sons, Henry, a printer, and the publisher of a paper at Kendallville some time ago, and "Mike", whom all the old residents know and respect. In the old days he was an athlete and a member of the farmers' Wahafotas,—Auburn's first base ball club; he was successively a competent and energetic teacher in district and graded schools, a postal agent on the railroad, an organ agent, a partner with W. H. McQuiston in the dry goods and grocery trade and is at present a resident of our sister town of Butler.

James Draggoo, living in Auburn in '56, later removed to his farm. Careful in the conduct of his financial interests, he acquired property, and, like many others, looked forward to rest from labor, and selected Auburn for his home. He bought the block of lots previously occupied and owned by Joseph Robbins, thereon built the brick dwelling in which he lives and on the organization of the Farmers Bank became one of the company, but soon withdrew and started a bank at Montpelier, Ohio, where he has been doing a safe and profitable business. Of late, he has turned his attention to building and put up the solid, capacious and fine store on the southwest corner of Ninth and Cedar streets and also an extensive addition to the store of Messrs Boland, Brown & Culbertson, dealers in hardware and agricultural impliments.

John W. Rickel, who in 1856, was elected town treasurer, was at the time a manufacturer and dealer in boots and shoes in competition with Isaac Brandt of the "Railroad boot & shoe store."

The price of fine well made calf boots was $3.75, ladies' congress morocco boot $1.75, and walking shoes and slips from 50 cents to $1.50 and these articles were of good quality and durable.

Mr. Rickel finally sold out, took up the study of law and came into quite a practice. Some fourteen to sixteen years ago, he removed to Rochester, Ind., where he continued in his profession and recently, has returned to Auburn. A son, W. D Rickel, had preceded him to Auburn, and finding a promising field for a real estate agency engaged in the work with marked success. Later he went into partnership with T. H. Sprott and the firm in their office in the basement of the Farmers Bank block, aare doing a heavy and growing business.

Lewis Bowers continued to carry on a grocery and variety store on the corner of Main and Sixth streets and his motto was "quick sales and small profits".

Later, Wash and Lew Bowers built and operated the Eagle Mills, on the site of the present mill owned and run by I. O. Bachtel, very successfully.

The pioneer mill at that point was of two stories, the first of brick, the second, framed, and in dimensions was thirty-five by forty-five feet, with three run of stone and a capacity to grind two hundred barrels of flour per day.

Mr. Bowers, now retired from business, and generally regarded as well-to-do, still occupies the house on Main street, which has been his home for many years. Like our former townsman Ephriam Berry, he is quite a mechanical genius and his shop near his home, well stocked with tools indicates his versatility. He is one of Auburn's best citizens, past and present. He had two children, a son Melvin, who is remembered for his amiable disposition and honest worth and who fell victim to that dread disease consumption, and a daughter, Martha Olinger, whose home is in Kansas.

Jacob B. Hoover in 1856 was a citizen of Auburn and a participant in the conduct of municipal affairs. He was long a resident of Waterloo and conversant in the events of early times.

In his old age he has returned to our town and his form has been familiar on our streets. He is kindly in disposition and the autumn of life passes serenely and happily in the home of his daughters, Mrs. Raut and Mrs. Hague.

Not Much of a War.

More than one of our contemporaries have alluded facetiously to the "baking powder war." There is no war of the character indicated. A certain baking powder achieved fame because it was better than anything that had previously been prepared, and because it was advertised in a liberal, original and judicious manner. The success of this powder led to imitation, as success always does, but to assert or to intimate that there is war between the Royal Baking Powder and its more or less feeble imitators suggests the picture of a death grapple between an eagle and a house-fly.

AGAIN ON THE WING.

A few Items of Interest as they were picked up by our Office Bird in his Flight Across the Country.

An existence in this world is very uncertain. In the course of a few hours heroes may be slain, monarchs rise and kingdoms fall; nation rise against nation, rendering the peaceful quietness of communities turbulent with the roar of booming cannon, bursting shells and the cries of mangled humanity. Friends may be made foes by the passing of a word, and foes made friends by the same process. To-day, we may in a measure calculate upon the events of tomorrow, but ere the world's great illuminator in all its effulgent splendor rises above the eastern horizon, casting a golden proclamation to the universe that the glorious dawn of another day is here, all our bright anticipations of the day before may be darkened, hopes blighted, and our controlling powers reduced to nothingness and rendered vain. Just so it is with our scribe in the country. One week he may be in a certain locality, moving quietly among the people forming their acquaintance, discussing the topics in which they are the most deeply interested, learning many of the traits and charateristics of the "calling productive," and thus creating affinities that are both lasting and profitable. He glides hither and thither, calling at the homes of our farmer friends, who, as a general thing do their utmost to make him feel at home among them, and in some instances go to extra trouble to make his visit comfortable. The above picture only describes the sunshine, while the muttering thunders of suspicion, the lightnings of contempt and the black clouds of disappointment and failure, are softened and dispelled beneath the warm rays of the sunlight of hope, and thus the kindnesses shown are not in vain, neither are they forgotten. Many of the courtesies received will live as long as memory shall last, and maybe when this life is brought to a close and we stand on the golden shores of eternity, where the silvery waves of immortality wash the sands at our feet, our cheeks fanned by the gentle breeze of consciousness, we will realize the rewards of a life well spent as tenants of the earth and tillers of the soil. I have a special regard for the common people—the horny-handed farmers, as it were, and gladly do I welcome and carefully retain their friendship. During my career as COLLECTOR & SOLICITOR for the COURIER my travels in the country have been pleasant and profitable, and I only wish for the favored opportunity of grasping the hand of every farmer, especially every farmer who reads the COURIER, and shaking it with that heartiness that would convince him he is remembered through all the whirl, din and excitement of business life in the city.

While at Sedan, the acquaintance of W. H. Crane was formed. He is the grocer and postmaster, and has been established about twelve years. The store room is crowded in convenient display, with an enormous stock of groceries, provisions, dry goods, notions, clothing, drugs, light hardware, etc. Notwithstanding the fact that several large towns are located near by, his gentlemanly ways and square dealing have won him the confidence and patronage of a broad scope of country, enabling him to dispose of several thousand dollars' worth of goods each year.

Daniel Blucher was found to be a genial sort of a fellow, and thinks if he ever leaves Sedan, he will locate in a larger city. How's Auburn?

M. L. Snyder is a member of the "trowel and mort." craft. He emphatically declares, "I couldn't git 'long 'thout that COURIER!"

L. W. Treesh has a nice farm and residence west of the corners. Our talk with him, though brief, was pleasant.

M. A. Boughman, the postmaster at Corunna, is a very accommodating fellow. As successor to C. H. Knapp, his appointment dates back to June 29, 1891. Everything about the office speaks of a carefulness taken which makes his work easy, certain and in order.

Since April 1, 1891, Pattee & King have been established. They conduct a general supply store in groceries, provisons, etc. Mr. King is well-known in Auburn, as an industrious, enterprising and highly educated young farmer. He has many desirable qualities and with Mr. Pattee as a partner in business, we predict success for him.

It is sometimes a disadvantage to travel and because of unfavorable circumstances be compelled to put up with the inconveniences of country hotels. There is a wide difference in them, however. The bar rooms are not floored with marble, the walls and ceilings paneled and frescoed, no plate mirrors, but everything is calculated to be common and comfortable. The boarders are usually of the laboring classes, who are engaged in the various avocations in this busy, work-a-day world. Jolly, good-natured fellows assemble around the glowing grate, or seat themselves at the well-prepared tables, each cracking jokes, telling tales, laughing and making merry at the evening meal, with a consciousness of having spent the day in toil, but now enjoying the refreshments at even. The scribe recalls a scene similar to the one described, as it was brought to his notice a few evenings since, which occurred at the Kline House at Corunna. This hotel is a good one, and the traveling public has learned that it is the best place to go in that burg. So large is the patronage, that Mr. Willits, the proprietor, has been compelled to rent rooms in private houses for his guests. Our best wishes go in behalf of the new proprietor, and we feel gratified to know that the COURIER lies on the table for public inspection. Most modern hotels are aware that to be abreast with the times, that highly instructive sheet must be kept accessibly near.

Milo J. Thomas, the hardware man, heartily welcomed the inkslinger to his presence and gave the information that, "business is booming." He has a large and very complete stock, and enjoys the generous patronage of a great community, whose people are assured of good goods, square dealing and low prices.

Did it ever occur to you that any other town in the county could boom besides Auburn? Whether it has ever been thought of or not, it is nevertheless a fact that Corunna is now on a boom. A new church, creamery, store room and several dwellings have gone up during this year. People there have awakened to the realization that it does not pay to lie idle where prospects for development are so bright, and business ventures yield such handsome profits on the investment. Long may it prosper under the new turn of affairs.

The new Christian church is a grand specimen of beauty and architecture. When completed, it will be the finest church building in the town.

T. J. Clinesmith is a carpenter of no little repute.

Wm. Dawson will soon adorn his premises with a new windmill. He believes in keeping up with the times, as his big new barn testifies.

Our jolly friend T. F. Franks gave a broad smile of recognition. He is a prosperous farmer and enjoys the appearance of the COURIER each week.

L. T. Olinger gave the scribe a hearty welcome. He is a pleasant gentleman and a prosperous farmer.

Squire Maxwell is as plain and matter-of-fact as ever. I consider myself obligated to him for valuable information given when it was most needed.

Obituary.

Jacob Grogg was born in Canton, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1814, and departed this life Nov. 9, 1891, aged 77 years, 8 months, 25 days. He was married in Nov. 1837, to Sarah Becker of Canton, Ohio. He came to DeKalb Co., in 1851, where his two brothers, Peter and Daniel were living. He moved on to a piece of land which he had purchased in Keyser township and afterwards came to this town and lived here until his death. The death of father Grogg was very sudden and surprising to all. He was a respected and esteemed member of the Lutheran church. The church sustains a great loss in the death of this our worthy brother. He was faithful to every duty and always at his post. He attended service at his church three times on Sabbath preceding his death; went home from church Sabbath evening feeling very well, but before morning dawned his Master called him to his eternal rest. He leaves a wife and two daughters and a large circle of friends to mourn his sudden death. Our loss is his eternal gain. Funeral services were conducted from the Lutheran church Nov. 12, at 2 p. m., the interment being in the Evergreen cemetery, J. D. Brosy officiating.

HAPPY HOOSIERS. Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from kidney and liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best kidney and liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle, at Robbins & McCords drug store. 2

Strong Witnesses.

Among the thousands of testimonials of cures by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, is that of Nathan Allisons, a well-known citizen of Glen Rock, Pa., who for years had shortness of breath, sleeplessness pain in left side, shoulders, smothering spells, etc, one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and one box of Nerve and Liver Pills, cured him. Peter Jaquet, Salem, N. J., is another witness, who for twenty years suffered with heart disease, was pronounced incurable by physicians, death stared him in the face, could not lie down for fear of smothering to death. Immediatialy after using the New Cure he felt better and could lie down and sleep all night, and is now a well man. The New Cure is sold, also free book, by F. E. Davenport. 2

There are people who get credit for being good, simply because they have poor health.

THE FLEETING NEWS

IS CAUGHT ON THE WING FOR OUR READERS.

Palo Alto Lowers the Stallion Record—Head-End Collision on the Grand Rapids—From Red to White—Oil Wasted—Affairs in Brazil.

Six Burned to Death.

At an early hour a fire occurred in the four-story tenement house at 120 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The building was constructed mostly of wood and the flames spread to all portions of it with marvelous rapidity, cutting off the escape of those who lived in the upper floors. Six persons are known to have perished, while many other persons were badly burned or had narrow escapes from death. The fire spread from No. 120 to adjoining buildings and destroyed twenty of them. At least fifty families were burned out and it is probable that other persons besides those given above have lost their lives.

Head End Collision.

A head-end collision took place on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad at Gilbert, ten miles north of Cadillac, Mich. A freight going north and the morning passenger train from Traverse City came together. James Smith, of Grand Rapids, engineer of the passenger train, was fatally injured and his fireman, whose name is unknown, was killed. Dennis Murray, engineer of the freight train, was seriously injured, and his fireman, Tom Sieckle, was killed. Ten passengers are reportbd seriously injured. Gilbert is a small station, and it is impossible to get further particulars at present.

From Red to White.

John Craig, a young newspaper man of San Francisco, who was recently appointed Secretary of the California World's Fair Commission, went to bed one night last week with a luxuriant growth of whiskers, and woke up with one side pure white. He thought some one had played a practical joke on him, and altered the color with dye, but after shaving off his beard it came out again half red and half white. Craig left a good newspaper job to accept the secretaryship, and has not received a cent of pay for seven months, and the annoyance he has suffered has affected him so much that his beard has changed color.

Brilliant Speakers.

The one hundred and twenty-third annual dinner of the New York Chamber of Commerce took place at Delmonico's. Covers were laid for 280 guests, a much larger number than usual. Secretary Foster spoke on "The Silver Question," Bishop Potter on "The Responsibilities of Wealth," Congressman W. L. Wilson, of West Virginia, on "Business Men and Law Making;" Dr. Charles A. Briggs on "Public Education," and Secretary Blaine on "Reciprocity."

King of the Turf.

Palo Alto, the game son of Electioneer, trotted a mile without a skip at Stockton, Cal., in 2:08¾. By this remarkable performance the horse not only breaks the stallion record, but wins all records of the world for the famous Palo Alto stable. Marvin had his charge well in hand all the way, and drove the full mile without even a sign of distress from the horse. The quarters were made as follows: 31¾, 1:03¼, 1:36¼, 2:08¾.

Go With the Rebels.

A private dispatch from Brazil says that troops and the naval force at Rio Grande do Sul are debating which side they will join. It was expected, at the latest advices, that they would throw in their lot with the insurgent party against Da Fonseca. Such a step would greatly strengthen the cause of those who have risen against Da Fonseca.

Can't Catch the Robbers.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train robbers have succeeded so far in concealing their identity. The detectives employed by the railroad and express companies are as much at sea as when they first took hold of the case and all their efforts to unearth a clue that would throw any light upon the case have been fruitless.

Captain Hattie Dead.

Capt. Hattie Smith, of the Salvation Army, who was shot Sunday evening at Omaha, by Nettie Biedler, has since died. When it was known that her chances of recovery were slight, the members of the army who had thronged to the room went on their knees, and prayed fervently in true Salvation Army style, that her life might be spared.

Oil Wasted.

While running at a high rate of speed near Albany, a few miles east of Muncie, Ind., a Lake Erie and Western freight train broke in two, and the rear end collided with the front part of the train. A Standard oil tank from Lima, Ohio, filled with 1,000 barrels of coal oil, was smashed and the contents were entirely lost.

Caught in a Deer Trap.

Ashland (Wis.) special: Col. C. H. Graham, one of the principal owners of the Montrose silver and copper mine, was brought to Ashland in an unconscious condition the other night. He had been shot by a gun set for deer in Bayfield County. He was out prospecting at the time.

Fatal Jealousy.

Maggie Montgomery stabbed John Gross in the heart at the Phœnix variety theater, Durango, Col. Gross died instantly. He was to have been married the next day, and this caused Maggie's jealousy. Maggie is a hard character and this is her second victim. She is now in jail.

A Murderer Respited.

Gov. Campbell has respited William E. Fitzgerald, who was sentenced to be hanged at Columbus last Thursday night for murdering Policeman Freed at Youngstown last May, until December 18, in order that the Supreme Court may review the case.

Prohibits Wheat Exports.

Berlin special: The report is current here that Russia has prohibited the export of wheat. Prices of grain are rising in consequence.

Sam Small Assaulted.

Atlanta (Ga.) special: Sam Small, the evangelist, was attacked and severely beaten by Tom Minor, an Atlanta saloon keeper. The liquor man's fists were wielded with great force, and the sensational preacher came out of the encounter with a split lip and a badly bruised nose. Last Sunday the reverend gentleman delivered an address to a large crowd in Prohibition Hall in Atlanta, and after attacking the character of several Atlanta whisky dealers, he charged Tom Minor with having deserted his family, leaving them to starve. Minor saw Small enter a barber shop and followed him. As Mr. Small hung up his overcoat and started toward a chair Minor struck him on the nose. Small fell to the floor and before he could rise Minor kicked him in the face. Small's face is badly bruised, his under lip is cut and he has lost three teeth.

CREMATED.

An Entire Family of Five Persons.

Columbus (Ohio) special: One of the most disastrous fires in years from the fact that an entire family were consumed, occurred here early the other morning in a row of tenement houses on North High street. The exact origin of the fire remains a mystery, but on the first alarm flames were seen shooting from the roof, licking up everything within grasp. The firemen endeavored to enter the rooms, but the dense smoke made this impossible. One of the captains did get partially inside the building, but was pulled out again nearly suffocated. Two hours were consumed in gaining control of the flames and long ere that every person was supposed to have escaped. Such, however, was not the case. It was nearly 4 o'clock in the evening when a little girl in the neighborhood, with childish curiosity rummaged through the ruins and found a naked arm, which led to a search and the ultimate discovery of five blackened bodies, burned to a crisp and beyond recognition. The entire family of Charles Bethers was destroyed while sleeping in a little eight by twelve room in the second story. They were:

Charles Bethers, aged 30.
Elizabeth, his wife, aged 28.
Carrie, aged 9.
Myrtie, aged 6.
James, aged 3.

The clock on the mantel had stopped at 3:35 a. m., indicating the hour of the fire. In fighting the flames two of the pipemen stood in the window sending the stream into this room without discovering the dying occupants, who were unconscious and unable to utter a cry. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin, as two suspicious characters were seen leaving the scene as the flames were started. A full investigation will follow, and not a little criticism is passed upon the action of the fire department in not making a thorough examination before leaving. The room was only ten feet from the ground, and the entire family might have been rescued.

THE WRONG MAN

Victimized by a Michigan Sharper, Who Was Badly Worsted.

Jackson (Mich.) special: It was not a lamb-like, unsuspecting farmer whom a sharper tried to victimize on the Michigan Central train which arrived in this city just before midnight.

The sharpers in question were very desirous of having a $30-bill changed. The farmer whom they had picked out as an easy mark accommodated them and then found out that it had cost him $10 for having such an obliging nature. He was wroth. He jumped upon the sharper and pounded him unmercifully. He not only got back his $20, but he went through the sharper and relieved him of the pieces of silver which he had on his person.

The conductor and brakeman removed Mr. Sharper to the baggage car, their intention being to have him locked up in this city. When the junction, one mile from this city was reached, the sharper jumped and exerted his sore body in fleeing. He departed penniless, however.

GARZA'S BAND.

Routed By Mexican Soldiers and Their Ammunition Taken.

Laredo (Tex.) special: Colonel Ceron, commander of the Mexican garrison in Nueva Laredo, has received a telegram from Geurrero, a Mexican town on the Rio Grande, sixty miles below Laredo, stating that a force of Mexican cavalry came in contact with the army of Catraino Garza at a point known as La Gunna Legar, fifteen miles back from that place, and after a short combat, dispersed the revolutionists. A cart load of ammunition was taken across the river to the revolutionists. The force of Garza is placed at about 300 men. There are several thousand Mexican soldiers scattered along the frontier ready to combat him. The number of killed and wounded in the combat is not known, but the losses are believed to be small.

Cause for Alarm.

A. G. Porter, United States Minister to Italy, arrived in New York on the steamship Norway, and after a few hours' stop proceeded on a fast express to Washington. This sudden and unannounced arrival leads many here to believe that he has been hurriedly summoned to Washington to confer with the President and the Secretary of State on the present situation of the controversy with Italy, growing out of the troubles in New Orleans. It is more than probable that Italy has taken advantage of the trouble between the United States and Chili, to make a demand for an apology and a money indemnity for the killing of two of her subjects in New Orleans. Minister Porter refused to give any reason for his hasty and secret trip to Washington.

Immense Losses in Transporting Cattle to England.

Glasgow special: Vessels arriving from America with cattle report immense losses on the passage. The General Gordon, which got into Glasgow recently, had on board the carcasses of 140 animals that had been trampled to death during the voyage. The inspectors at this port prohibited any carcasses of this kind to be allowed for sale as food, and directed that they all be boiled for rendering purposes. Sixteen steamers that have recently arrived at Dundee report a total loss of 150 cattle out of 1,000 that have been shipped. Great indignation has been aroused, and steps will probably be taken to regulate the traffic still more in the interest of humanity.

Fatal Wreck in Italy.

Rome special: A fatal accident is reported to have occurred on the railroad between this city and Turin. A dispatch received here stated that a fast rain bound from Rome for Turin collided with an ordinary passenger train from Genoa for this city. The scene of the accident was at the Galeria station. The trains crashed together with terrific violence, causing a wreck that blockaded the line for hours. Three persons were killed and seven were injured. Among the injured are five persons who are so severely hurt that little hope is entertained for their recovery. The accident was due to the fact that the signals for the running of the trains were disregarded.

Trouble at Terre Haute.

Terre Haute (Ind.) special: Superintendent Leifert, of the New Pittsburgh mines, came over from Indianapolis, accompanied by a United States Marshal, who is expected to suppress the trouble among the miners of the Alum Cave. The miners have given the company two days to take away the fifty Polish miners brought from Chicago last week. If the warning is not heeded the miners threaten all sorts of violence. Trouble is anticipated.

Small Mexican War.

Rio Grande City (Tex.) special: News received here says that on November 12, Catarino Garza and about one hundred men met several hundred Mexican soldiers twelve miles from Mier on the road to Guerrero. A volley was fired at Garza's force with no damage, at close range, which was returned by the revolutionists, causing the death of three soldiers and badly wounding another. The Government forces fell back in disorder.

Railway Postal Clerks Organize.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of railway clerks of the fifth division, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee, was held in the Custom House at Cincinnati for the purpose of perfecting an organization to push their cause before Congress at its coming session. A bill has been prepared which will be presented to Congress. The bill provides principally for the reclassification of the railway mail service. It has been endorsed by all the division superintendents of the country and Postmaster General Wanamaker, Second Assistant P. M. Bell, and the general superintendent of the railway service.

The Murdered Tramp.

A man known as Matt Shea was found murdered at Greencastle, Ind., having been stabbed thirty-seven times and otherwise mutilated. William O'Brien, who was one of several tramps recently seen in Shea's company, has been arrested at Terre Haute. He denies knowing anything of the murder, but says that Shea feared being killed because of knowledge he claimed to have about the Cronin murder. Shea claimed to be the Clan-na-gael agent who sent out the report from Toronto that Cronin was in that city, thus misleading the Chicago police.

Veterans to Contribute.

Decatur (Ill.) special: The Decatur Executive Committee of the National Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Hall Association has received a copy of the general orders just issued by Gen. John Palmer, Commander-in-Chief of the order, in which he commands every post in the United States to proceed at once and make substantial contributions to the hall fund. The association is after $300,000 to $500,000 to be used in the erection of an imposing memorial hall at Decatur, the birthplace of the order.

Brazil vs. Canada.

Halifax special: Yarmouth ship-owners are much exercised over the refusal of the Brazilian Dictator to permit cable dispatches to be delivered to Canadian vessels in distress in Brazilian ports. The Yarmouth bark Lottie E. was recently compelled to put back to Rio Grande de Sul leaking. The owner cabled his instructions to the captain, but the message was returned with the statement that the authorities refused to allow it to be delivered. Mr. Crosby immediately reported the fact to the Canadian Government.

Dug Up a Gold Brick.

Herbert Peck, a wealthy farmer living near Alliance, Ohio, had a narrow escape from "gold brick" swindlers. A man from Arizona interested Peck in his secret and took him to the woods where two bricks were found. Peck agreed to pay $5,000 for one of the bricks, but refused to pay over the money except in the presence of witnesses. The sharper refused to consent to that arrangement, and the deal was declared off. The swindler escaped.

Caught the Wrong Men.

Seventeen alleged Anarchists who were raided at Greife's Hall on West Lake street, by the Chicago police, were tried by Justice Woodman for disorderly conduct and resisting officers. The incomplete evidence submitted shows that Inspector Lewis' men had made a blunder and in looking for a gang of bloodthirsty "reds" had captured a meeting of stockholders of a Socialistic Publishing Company which prints the Arbeiter Zeitung.

Paid for a Prisoner's Escape.

William Anderson, the saloon keeper who acted as deputy sheriff in taking Tom Lyons, a one-legged burglar, from Indianapolis to the penitentiary and who let him escape at Monon, was summoned before Judge Cox, of the Criminal Court, to show cause why he should not be fined for contempt. The conductor of the train testified that Anderson made no attempt to prevent the escape. The court fined him $100 and costs.

Bank Robber Arrested.

Frank Barns, alais Arthur Burns, one of the men who robbed the Chicago Stock Yard Bank, was arrested at Omaha. Identification is complete. Barns and several others drove up to the bank at the noon hour, taking possession of and carrying away a large amount of money.

Fatally Wounded.

Emil Smith, employed by John Cooper, one of the best known residents of Pearl River, Rock County, N. Y., while handling a revolver, accidentally discharged it, shooting Mr. Cooper's son, Clarence, in the leg, puncturing the groin. The wound is considered as probably fatal.

Convicts Recaptured.

The three prisoners who escaped from the State prison at Waupun, Wis., were recaptured by two men named Coyle and Schopliff. The convicts made no resistance and were taken back at once.

The Old Story.

By the explosion of a gasoline stove at Beatrice, Neb., Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baldwin were seriously burned, the latter fatally.

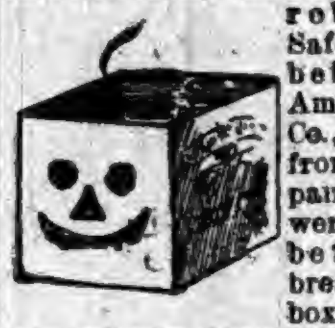
MASKED MEN HOLD UP AN EXPRESS TRAIN.

Doors Blown Open by Dynamite—Safes Thrown from the Cars—They Compel Trainmen to Assist—The Bold Attack Made Near Western Union Junction, Wis.

Looted an Express Car.

A passenger train which left Chicago on the St. Paul road the other night for Milwaukee, was held up a mile beyond Western Union Junction, Wis., by two masked men, and the express car was robbed of $5,000. Safes, with $100,000, belonging to the American Express Co., were dumped from the car, but the pair of bold robbers were frightened away before they could break open the steel boxes. The robbery was a most daring and sensational one. Not the least of its features were the use of dynamite bombs in the breaking open of the boxes of the express car, where Messenger J. C. Murphy was in charge, and the fact that the attack was made in a thickly populated part of the country.



ONE OF THE MASKS USED.

The robbers evidently boarded the train on the front platform of the front car at Western Union Junction. They put on their masks, and as they passed the water-tank, two-thirds of a mile north of the junction, they climbed over the tender. Each had a breech-loading double-barreled shotgun and a large-calibered revolver. They commanded the engineer to stop the train. He did so. They compelled the engineer and fireman to leave the engine and go with them to the express car. They tried to secure admission. It was refused. They threw bombs into the car and so terrorized the messenger that when they knocked a second time he opened the door. They robbed the car of $5,000 cash, tossed out two safes, marched the engineer, fireman, express messenger, and his assistant up the tracks for a half mile, and marched them back and forth for ten minutes, then sent them back to the engine. The crew mounted their engine and after a delay of half an hour went to Milwaukee. The robbers were so frightened at the delay that they made no attempt to open the safes they had thrown out. Their dynamite bombs wrecked the car, tearing away heavy iron plates and tossing them fifty feet away. After the robbery the plunderers disappeared, while the country in that vicinity was scoured for them by detectives of the railroad and of the city police of Milwaukee.

BLOWING UP THE EXPRESS CAR.

Concerning the manner in which the robbers did their work, Engineer Mackey said: "We had got about a quarter of a mile north of the Western Union Junction. The fireman was putting in coal. Suddenly he heard a noise and looked up. I saw there was something wrong from the expression of his face. I looked close by to see what it was and I saw a masked man with a double-barreled gun in one hand and a revolver in the other. They were leveled at the fireman. Quicker than I could think another masked man appeared and pointed a gun and a revolver at me.

"Fireman Averill got his speech first and called out: 'What do you want?'

" 'Throw up your hands!' said the robber. Up went Averill's hands.

"I asked what they wanted. 'None of your business. We'll let you know soon enough,' replied the man who held that big gun and revolver pointed at me.

"The other robber handed the fireman a cigar and said: 'Light it and be quick about it, or I'll blow your head off.'

"The fireman lit it at the water glass lamp and began comfortably puffing away at it when the robber said: 'Give it to me.' It was quickly handed to him.

"The man who held the gun at my head said: 'Stop her, and be quick about it, too.' I stopped her. He said: 'You two get off the engine.' We did so. They followed us. They said go up to the express car. We did so. They said: 'Get that car open.' I rapped on the side door. There are no end doors to those cars. They are what tramps call 'blind baggage' cars.

"Well, I rapped, but there was no answer from the inside. One of the robbers left us and crawled through under the car to the other side; the other covered both myself and the fireman with his shot gun and revolver. Soon we heard a terrific explosion. That was a bomb which he had taken from his pocket and placed on the ledge of the side door of the express car.

"He soon crawled back under the car to us. He pulled from his pocket a bottle about eight inches long, which I could see as he stood close to me had two fuses in it. He lit the fuses from the cigar which he was then smoking and which he had compelled the fireman to light. He laid this bottle on the ledge of the door and motioned us to get down the embankment. We ran down. They kept us covered all the time with the guns. It did not go off. He threw it away. It was picked up and is now held by the detectives from Milwaukee.

"He drew another from his pocket, lighted it from his cigar. The other robber said: 'Throw it into the car.' He held it until it burned down pretty well. As I stood close to him I trembled a trifle, as I'd sooner face the revolver than the bomb. Then he tossed it through the glass above the side door. It didn't explode for twenty seconds. Then the explosion threw the glass all over us and threw out great plates of iron from the car sides. Then they ordered the fireman and me to go on the other side of the car. They held the guns on us and we crawled under the cars.

"The explosion of the bomos had scared the express messengers, and when the robbers knocked with their revolvers on the closed doors on the other side of the car, the messengers at once opened the doors. Express Messenger Murphy said: 'What do you want?' 'You know well. Throw up your hands.'

"Up went the hands. 'Get that box,' yelled one of the robbers. Murphy replied: 'There's nothing on the train tonight.' 'Get down here out of the car,' yelled the robber. Out hopped Murphy and his assistant, Cook. 'Put up your hands and hold them up,' was the next order. Up went the hands of Murphy and Cook. One robber covered Murphy, Cook and myself, while the other helped Fireman Averill into the car. Then the working robber came and helped the messenger's helper, Cook, into the car, too. He got in after them, holding his revolver on them all the time. I got pretty tired of holding my hands up and lowered them a little. The man on guard saw this and deliberately leveled the shotgun at my eyes and coolly asked, 'Will you hold up your hands?' I yelled, 'Don't shoot!' and raised my hands again.

"Then the robber inside the car put the helper out and called for the messenger. Murphy was helped in. I don't know what they did, for the man with the mask held the gun on me all the time. It was the funniest mask you ever saw. It was simply a pasteboard shoe box, which the man had stuck over his head, with big eyeholes in it. It came from Chicago, too, and the name of a Chicago shoe firm was on it. But, though I felt like laughing at it, I was afraid to move.

"Well, pretty soon they struggled to the door and threw out two small steel money safes. I knew these were the through safes and they generally had lots of money in them. Then the robbers came from the inside, and the fireman, myself, the express messenger, and his assistant were all ordered to march ahead. They walked us up the track ahead of the engine about a quarter of a mile. All this time we had to hold up our hands. Then they turned us around and marched us back toward the engine. They followed us closely with guns or revolvers covering us. Then they ordered the fireman to put out the headlight. He did so. One robber said: 'We haven't got time now. Let's go back.' They turned us again and marched us along the track once more. They marched the four of us a half mile this time. Suddenly one said: 'Halt!' We halted, hands up all the time, mind you. 'Go back to your engine,' shouted one of them. We marched slowly back. They did not follow us. To tell you the truth I thought we'd be shot in the back any second.

"We got back and the four of us got on the engine. We waited about five minutes. The passengers had heard the shooting and they were hiding their valuables. There wasn't a head sticking out of a window during the entire time. After we had waited about five minutes I started up the engine. We had, of course, to run past the place where these robbers had left us. I sat on the lookout. I stood at my post, for the engine was in motion and the lives of the passengers were in my hands, but I never felt I was so near death as at the time when I passed the point where those men had left us. I looked out of the windows for the robbers, but did not see them, and so we got away. They detained us, I think, about half an hour, but it seemed to me more like half a day.

"There was no bravery exhibited. There was little show for any. Two robbers did the work. They secured about $5,000 from the little safe while they were in the car. The two safes they threw out they evidently intended to wreck by bombs, but were scared away, and those safes, which contained between $50,000 and $100,000, were not attacked. It was a cool robbery. The men had the drop. Resistance would have been madness. I guess suicide would have been about the name for it. We simply did our duty by holding our hands up and saving our lives."

Poor Old Brazil.

Brazil is also having domestic troubles. In borrowing ideas from the United States, the South Americans have evidently overlooked the free schools.—Kansas City Star.

There is evidently a bitter contest going on between parties in Brazil, and the rival British and American interests are playing an important part in it. President Fonseca's previous success and the service he has done his country lead to the hope that he will triumph.—Buffalo Express.

If it is true that a revolution is impending and that martial law has been proclaimed, the outlook is far from pleasing. The background to which the recent monarchy was removed is not far enough in the dim distance to prevent a good many regrets which may ripen, in the case of an upheaval, into a determined effort for restoration.—Detroit Free Press.

If anybody has set himself up as a dictator in Brazil, the occurrence is unfortunate for that country, as it will retard its developments and the progress of trade; but the change will not be permanent. There will be another revolution by and by which will restore the republic. The state of equilibrium to which the political oscillations tend is one of self-government.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Indiana's Annex.

A government survey now about finished is said to show that Indiana is entitled to a slice of Illinois that will take in Chicago. It is rather late to move the fair, but it may yet be held in Indiana. This would be considered by the Breezy City another of those Chicago, Ills.—Philadelphia Ledger.

And now arises a controversy over what State Chicago is in. Indiana claims it on the authority of an old boundary which has been discovered, and her claims seem to be well substantiated. The Cigarette Bug.

A St. Louis chemist has made the startling discovery that cigarettes are filled with bugs. The horrible smell is fully accounted for at last.—Grand Rapids Telegram.

According to Dr. Ohmann Dumesnil, of St. Louis, cigarettes are often made poisonous by the ravages of a worm that comes from the egg of a coleopterous insect, which is passionately addicted to the use of tobacco. Hence bronchial affections and throat complaints, and no wonder, if the insect is as terrible as the description.—Boston Post.

A St. Louis physician has discovered bugs in cigarettes. He says the bug poisons the cigarette. This dictum will probably not spoil the demand for the article, but it will furnish the perishing dude with a remark for his part of a little street colloquy. "Wot's eaten' yer?" the gamin will flippantly inquire. "A coleopterous insect," the dude will answer, with a faint flourish of cane and monocle. Then the gamin should wilt.—New York Journal.

SAVED AT LAST.

AUBURN, IND., Oct. 3, 1890.

Dr. J. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,
R. McDOUGALL.

"I will defeat the purpose of these wreckers, or will sell my life dearly," he murmured, grimly. "Caution and vigilance, Darrel Grey, and you may become a hero in spite of yourself."

He paused as he had proceeded only a short distance down the tracks.

Far to the south he heard the dim echo of advancing sound, like the distant noise of a horse's hoofs on the hard, rocky road that led toward Miner's Gulch.

"The depot agent," soliloquized Grey. "He is returning. Had I better wait and secure his aid? Hark!"

Far down the canyon echoed the muffled whistle of an engine.

"The train is coming!" he cried excitedly. "There is no time to lose."

He diverged from the track and struck off toward the curve. Through the trees at one point he saw the obstructions on the track and the forms of men near it, and, making a wide detour, reached the tracks farther on.

Two shadowy forms dashed past him as he did so, but he noticed that they were horses, and then heedless of the discovery as he realized that the train must soon reach the place, began to run up the ascending roadway of the trestle grade.

At that moment a wild shout rang behind him.

"Discovered!" he muttered. "If I can reach the trestle crossing the canyon I can defy pursuit."

Half a dozen shots rang out on the still night air, but Darrel Grey sped on his mission of peril undaunted.

He reached the level roadway that curved to the trestle and started across it. Half way over the yawning chasm below he paused appalled.

A glaring headlight, the advance guard of the oncoming train, had just turned a point of rocks directly beyond the trestle.

It was so sudden, so near, that he was bewildered—horrified.

"The lantern!" he gasped, wildly. "Oh, can I signal them before it is too late?"

With trembling hands he opened the lantern, groped in his pockets for a match, ignited it, and applied it to the lantern.

A steady flame shot upward. He braced himself on the iron girders of the frail trestle, and swung the lantern up and down.

Too late!

It quivered and throbbed to the noisy jangle of iron tones.

Darriel Grey saw his own peril and the futility of the warning he had attempted to give at a single glance.

The red eye of flame, lurid, menacing, the glowing headlight of the engine came bearing down upon him.

He turned sick at heart; the lantern dropped from his hand, and he fell mechanically as he imagined he could feel the hot, hissing steam of the approaching iron monster upon his face.

The pilot struck the lantern, and tearing it to pieces sent it over the trestle to the abyss below.

Darrel Grey felt it just graze his head. Then he was swinging in space, his feet dangling, his hands alone grasping a tie.

CHAPTER III.

FLIGHT.

Crash!

A mingled jangle of sound, terrible and ominous, broke upon the still night air a few moments after the thrilling experience of Darrel Grey at the trestle.

If the engineer had seen the signal lantern it had seemed like a fire-fly on the fast sweeping landscape, or it had been given too late to enable him to stop the train on its mad rush down the steep incline of the depot grade.

He had applied the brakes to slow up at the station, but this did not prevent a terrible collision as the engine met the obstruction on the tracks.

There was an awful plunge, a shuddering halt, and then, amid the sounds of splintered wood, iron and glass, there echoed the shrieks of the terrified passengers.

Dyke Despard's murderous plans to enrich his associates in crime and carry out his own schemes had been successful.

Scarcely had the crash come than these men, cool and expert from long experience in such scenes, surrounded the passenger coaches.

Four of them sprang to the doors of the two coaches, while two others reached the baggage-car, and with leveled revolvers held the frightened trainmen at bay.

Dyke Despard passed by the injured passengers with scarcely a glance, as he entered the forward coach.

Danton was by his side. The former uttered a satisfied cry as he observed a young girl, pale but composed, extricating herself from a broken seat.

"The girl!" he spoke hurriedly to his companion; "we must get her from the car at once."

"To the horses?"

"Yes. You attend so that."

"But if she refuse?"

"Employ force. Quick, while these terrified wretches are too excited to notice what we are about!"

She was one of the most beautiful creatures he had ever seen, but neither her beauty nor apparent innocence and loneliness had any effect on the evil-hearted Danton.

He crowded close to her, and to where the frightened passengers were hastening toward the door of the coach, and saw her reach the platform and then the ground.

"What has happened? Is any one injured?" she inquired, in a tremulous, silvery tone of voice.

"This way, Miss Tracey."

Danton had spoken and seized her arm as he gently led her away from the spot.

She was too much excited at the episode of the moment to notice his familiarity.

"You know my name!" she exclaimed, in surprised tones.

"Yes; you have friends awaiting you."

Almost mechanically she followed him, until she noticed that they were some distance from the track.

"Where are you taking me?" she asked, in a tone of sudden alarm.

"To some friends, I told you, Miss Tracey."

"Where are they—who are you? I go no farther unless I know."

"We will wait here. The accident has made some confusion. Ha! there is trouble, it seems."

Just then several shots were fired in the vicinity of the train.

Danton glanced anxiously toward the train, and then at a little thicket where their horses were tethered, as if impatient to get away.

"Despard?" he called.

"Yes."

"Our men!"

"The trainmen have resisted, and we are beaten badly. There is no time to lose; to the horses!"

"And the girl?"

"We must get her away at once."

"Despard! You here?"

Unawares the girl had come upon them. They could see her shrink in amazement and alarm, as she viewed the evil face of the leader of the band.

He uttered a cry of dissatisfaction and annoyance at the incident.

"Yes," he said; "it is I."

"You are the friend who sent yonder man to me?" demanded Inez Tracey.

"Yes. You are not safe here. You must go with me."

"Never!"

Inez drew back with indignant face and flashing eyes. Despard abandoned all gentleness of manner, as he realized the peril of delay. He sprang forward and clutched her wrist in an iron grasp.

"Girl," he hissed, "there need be no deception between you and me!"

"Coward! release my hand. I will call for help. I wish to return to the train."

"Bring the horses, quick!" commanded Despard to Danton.

"You are in my power at last," he hissed. "I told you we should meet again when you last rejected me with scorn. To secure you, Inez Tracey, we wrecked yonder train."

"Assassin! Villain!"

"You will come with me whether you choose or not. Quick, Danton!" he shouted excitedly to his companion, as the firing was repeated in the vicinity of the train.

"You coward, take that!"

Dyke Despard released his grasp of the girl and turned to meet a new foe.

It was Darrel Grey.

He had managed to retain his hold on the tie to which he had fallen on the trestle, and the train had passed over him, leaving him unharmed.

Hastening towards the scene of the accident, he happened to come to the very spot where Inez Tracey was struggling in the grasp of Dyke Darrel.

The outlaw's words revealed his complicity in the crime of train-wrecking, and the fact that a helpless girl was in his power awakened all the chivalry of Darrel Grey's generous nature.

It was he who, acting on a quick impulse, had stepped forward, and with a single blow of his fist sent Despard reeling to the ground.

Inez, horrified and bewildered at all the fast-occurring episodes of the night, had sought safety in immediate flight.

She had started to hurry back to the train when she saw that a desperate encounter between the wreckers and the trainmen was in progress, and darted off in an opposite direction.

Danton observed her flight. He sprang from the thicket where the horses were to intercept her.

Darrel Grey did not wait to meet the baffled Despard, but as he discovered the girl's dilemma, dashed after her.

He caught Danton by the throat and flung him to the ground.

Inez recognized him as a protector.

"Quick!" she said, wildly; "let us fly!"

"Why should we fly? Do not be alarmed; these men shall not injure you."

"You do not know," cried Inez, excitedly; "these men have associates. See! They will pursue us. Do not put yourself in peril for my sake."

He heeded her frantic pleadings and allowed her to lead him beyond the thicket. Two shots fired by Despard caused him to hasten his flight for the imperiled girl's sake.

He started as he heard a quick, shrill whistle. Undoubtedly it was a signal from Despard to his band.

They crossed the thicket and gained the open plain beyond.

Darrel Grey was a rapid thinker and acted quite as rapidly. There was no safety guaranteed at the depot, for the bandits might go thither.

They could not regain the train without meeting the outlaws.

Dyke Despard seemed determined to secure the girl at all hazards. Only in immediate and rapid flight was there safety.

Glancing back, Darrel saw Despard and Danton securing horses to pursue them. The girl had kept close to his side, and kept urging him to hasten his flight.

Darrel paused as he saw, plainly revealed in the moonlight, the two horses which belonged to Ranger Ralph. Despard's man Vance had cut them loose, and neither had saddle or bridle. From the neck of one of them, however, a long lariat trailed on the ground. Darrel stole cautiously forward. The horses, mettled steeds and easily startled, sprang away. Darrel Grey seized the trailing lariat in time to prevent one of the horses from escaping.

He brought the animal to its haunches, and then, reaching for its mane, sprang upon its back.

"Follow me! Keep close to me!" he shouted excitedly to the girl.

Darrel Grey was an expert horseman. As the steed beneath him dashed forward he unloosed the lariat.

Quickly forming a loop he urged forward the horse until it nearly overtook the free steed. Then he flung the lasso with unerring accuracy. It fell over the head of the flying horse. Both came to a halt and stood trembling in every limb, owning tacitly, mutely, the supremacy of a master.

"Can you ride on horseback?" asked Darrel quickly as she gained his side.

"Oh, yes."

"There is no saddle."

"I have ridden ten miles on an Indian pony, horseback," replied Inez.

Darrel cut the lasso so as to form two bridles. Inez Tracey had been too long in the West and was too familiar with its nomadic life to require any prompting as to what was required of her in the present emergency.

Lithe as a fawn she seized the horse's mane and was on its back in a flash.

Darrel had arranged the lariat so that it held both horses together in case Inez should lose control of the steed she rode.

"Look!" The young girl pointed backward as she spoke. Darrel flashed a swift glance in the direction.

"They are in pursuit," he said; "four of them. It is a race for liberty. Courage, miss, and Darrel Grey will see you safely in the hands of your friends, or die in your service."

And then, across the broad level plain, began the exciting race between Dyke Despard with his villainous associates and Darrel Grey and his beautiful companion, which was destined to terminate in a startling and tragic manner. For, involved in the renegade's interest in Inez Tracey, was a plot that menaced the future happiness, fortune, and love of that orphan waif of the Western prairies.

BUT IT WAS SPORT.

A Writer in Forest and Stream Tells of His Bass Fishing.

With a fly-rod, a multiplying reel, a small braided silk line, a gut leader, and a small hook, which, if of good quality, I found superior to large ones, even for large bass—I cast a crawfish under the shadow of a bush on the opposite side of the stream. When the bait had sunk a few inches I saw the graceful form of a bass as he gently rose, took it in his mouth, and disappeared. I did not feel him at the end of my line, and yet, in another sense, I felt that he was there. Waiting a moment for him to swallow the bait, I gave a sudden jerk and had him hooked. Then the fight commenced, and I knew that he was a big fellow. For a long time I did not see him. He went low down and staid there.

The bass on my hook was not alarmed as yet. That was a good bait, and he was resolved to keep it, though it must have occurred to him that it was wonderfully strong and was making most frantic efforts to get away from him. He was mad, he sulked. But presently he seemed to get scared. A thought suddenly struck him that he had better try to get away from that crawfish. There must be something dangerous back of it. He reared, he plunged. My reel hummed as he went off down stream. After a little I checked him, and he started back, and it was well that my reel multiplied, or I would have had too much line on my hands.

My bass got wild and frantic. I got him close enough to the top to see him now. He made some beautiful leaps, three or four feet above the water, but I held a taut line. After a half hour of plunging he was tired and sick. He only resisted by his weight and I was dragging him to within reach of my dip-net. I had gotten him in shallow water when he made his last desperate and splendid effort for his life. Sticking his head out of the water he opened his mouth to its fullest extent, and with a savage jerk he disgorged the whole contents of his stomach, and sent minnows, crawfish, bugs, flies—or rather their remains—flying for yards in all directions—a pint or more—the earnings of a whole morning's vigilant voracity. He hated to give them up, but he had swallowed the hook and he knew that the trouble was there.

He did not disengage the hook, but when he made that sturdy jerk in the air my line snapped just above the hook—it had become rotten in the few days since I had used it, and I had foolishly failed to test it thoroughly. But I had not expected such fish.

I felt very weak "about the gills." I sat down and rested. That fish "grew upon me." The more I meditated upon him and the way he had fought me the larger he became in my eyes. That last time he opened his jaws was very vivid, it seemed to me I could have gotten my head into his mouth.

"At the very least," said I, "he was a seven-pounder."

But I did not long sit thus. Breaking off the rotten end of my line I rigged up again. After some little casting I hooked another bass, and my former experiences were repeated, with the exception of the last feature. I landed him and he weighed 4½ pounds.

During the day, varying my bait between live minnows and crawfish and casting them into promising spots under the bushes, I killed eight black bass ranging in weight from 2 to 4½ pounds. And the crowning and most exquisite satisfaction of the whole day's sport was that one of the fish I killed was the same one that I had first hooked and lost. My hook with gut attached was still sticking in his gullet. He was a buck, but only weighed 3½ pounds.

For weeks afterward I ruminated with delight over the events of that day, and still have an agreeable picture impressed upon my brain of the bronze and old gold sides of a magnificent bass glinting in the sun as he rose like a cork through the nile-green water under the green bushes and seized my hook—and then the heroic struggle.

Absurd Titles.

Often enough we hear through the news journals of the "Sublime Porte." How many ask the meaning of the term? In ancient times, and especially in Oriental countries, it was the custom to make the gates of the cities and king's palaces places of assembly, where the affairs of government were to be discussed. In time the term was applied to the government that exercised authority, the ruler of Turkey, for instance, being called the "Ottoman Porte," which has been gradually changed among European nations to "Sublime Porte" (Lofty Gate), the rendering of the expression by the French in their language, which is the official tongue of European diplomacy.

The "Sublime Porte" is not the official title of the Sultan. Inordinate vanity has caused him to adopt it to himself, in the same spirit that prompts the monarchs of Germany, Russia, Austria, and England to call them emperors and empresses; titles which they have no more right to bear than Xerxes, the ambitious Persian of antiquity, to term himself "King of kings" and finally, when his conceit had reached the limit, "the supporter of the world."

It is an amusing experience to run down the world's rulers and note the ridiculous titles applied to men and women, who ought to realize that their piled up "nick-names" really lower them in the estimation of intelligent people. Victoria of England is the "defender of the faith," the Mikado (Royal Gate) of Japan is known at home as "Ten-o" (Heaven's Highest), the ruler of Siam is "the Lord of the White Elephant," and the king of China is "Brother of the Sun and Moon," etc., etc. There is almost an endless list of titles and of individuals who have adopted them; any good encyclopedia will give them all, but space will not permit a recapitulation here.

Cotton in Turkestan.

The experiment which was made some years ago, of raising cotton in Turkestan from American seed, has proven a phenomenal success. In 1884 there were 360,000 pounds of this cotton exported from the country. The estimate of the present year's crop is put at 126,000,000 pounds. At this rate America will have to look out, as it will find a very formidable rival in the Asiatic country. It is stated that the Asiatic and Egyptian cotton is packed much neater, and more tightly compressed than the American, rendering it less liable to spontaneous or other causes of combustion, and for this reason is given a lower rate of insurance in transit.

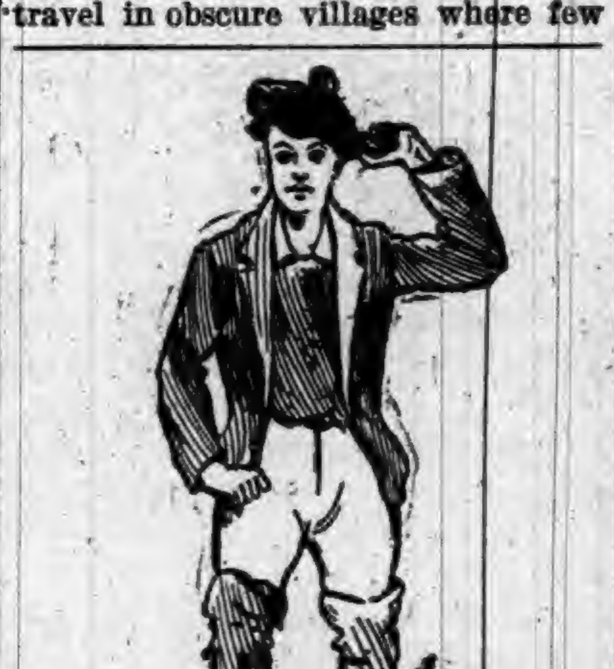
SHE TRAVELED AS A BOY.

The Long Trip of Fascination—Miss Muriel in a Wild Country.

One of the most talked-of and be-paragraphed personages of the day is Miss Menie Muriel Dowie, who obtained fame a year or so ago by crossing the Carpathian Mountains all alone, sleeping in the cottages of an ignorant and simple-minded but courteous peasantry, and now and again under the stars.

Miss Dowie is a granddaughter of Robert Chambers, the publisher, and a goddaughter of Mr. James Payn. To betray the age of a fascinating young lady would be heartless, but Miss Menie Muriel was 23 when she took the grim scientists of the British Association by storm.

It was somewhat of a novelty for a young lady of that age to stand up before a large audience, and with the most winning manner, to tell of travel in obscure villages where few Europeans have ventured. And it was all done, too, in the most diffident style, with no assumption that there was anything peculiarly wonderful about it, except her custome, a picture of which is given above.



MISS DOWIE IN HER TOURIST COSTUME.

Timely Reflection.

THE preacher robs his church who undertakes to do everything himself.

THE devil feels about sure of the man who isn't quite ready to be saved.

GOD has never had any use for a man who was not willing to do little things.

BEFORE any man can draw on God for help he must be willing to help others.

NO ONE ever did a great thing for God who did not begin by doing little ones.

THE love of God can not mean very much to the soul that has not suffered.

ABOUT the poorest occupation you can find is to sit down and admire yourself.

IT is a good thing to know right principles, but it is a better one to love them.

EVERY day that a sinner remains a sinner the devil gets a tighter hold upon him.

THE most glorious thing about every new day is that we may live in it for God.

THE hand that gives pleasure to a child does something that is noticed in heaven.

HOW soon we might all become rich if we were only willing to do it in God's way.

A GOOD time to trust in God is when you discover glaring faults in a Christian brother.

IF you profess to be a Christian, be one all over. Don't be a stool pigeon for the devil.

BAD habits are Philistines who put out the eyes of Samson and make him grind in a mill.

THE Bible is the only book ever written that will tell us the whole truth about ourselves.

It May Be Taken for Granted

That you don't pray for the people you talk about.

That the people who live under the same roof with you know more about your religion than your pastor does.

That the sinner who confesses and forsakes his sin will find forgiveness.

That the way to perdition is all down hill.

That people would live purer lives if they believed that God were always looking at them.

That the way to get your children and friends to love God is to first love Him with all your heart yourself.

That the people who are ashamed of their religion have good reason to be.

Fined for Snoring.

A man in Boston who was brought up at the police court for drunkenness did not escape a fine, though as it was his first offense within a year he could not have been punished under the new Massachusetts law. The justice fined him for snoring. The snores which he poured forth from the doorway into which he sank down for a drunken slumber startled the neighborhood and even attracted the attention of the policemen who arrested him.

Pencil Counters.

In pencil factories pencils are counted by an ingenious apparatus which takes the form of a number of parallel grooves. An operative takes a handful of pencils and rolls them along the board in which these grooves are, with the result that each groove is filled and the board set aside. As the number of grooves in the boards are known, this prevents any further trouble in counting.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

W. F. MCNAGNY of Columbia City, is favorably spoken of as a candidate for congress. He is a man of ability and very popular. He would make a good race and be an able member.

CLEVELAND AND GRAY, are likely to be the candidates of the democracy next year. The drift of the recent elections, can only be interpreted this way. But whoever is named, it looks as if the democrats have the inside track.

GREAT meeting of bankers at New Orleans last week listened to a paper favoring free silver. The plan is for the owner to take his silver or his gold to the mint and receive dollar for dollar of its bullion value, in legal tender notes. This would come as near placing the two metals on an equality as any plan heretofore proposed, and seems like a good one.

THE Dispatch is now almost alone in trying to prove that the higher the tax the lower the price, and that the foreigner pays the duty anyway. But so far it has not explained why manufacturers and other interested parties come before congress and ask to have duties put higher. Do they do this in order to be compelled to sell their products lower in consequence?

REPORT of internal revenue shows we will have to pay sugar makers of all kinds nearly ten millions in bounty this year; nine millions on cane sugar; on beet sugar half a million; on sorghum sugar, $40,000; on maple sugar, $176,250; The folks who raise corn, wheat, potatoes oats, etc, etc., don't get any bounty. They pay the bounty to the sugar raisers. Is there any justice in this republican law?

I once found a slip of paper laying along the road, on which was printed these words, "Use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup for asthma," and my wife being troubled with asthma for several years, and having tried a great many different medicines, I thought I would just spend 50c. more and try yours and I must say it is the best she ever used, and think it will cure her sound and well. Fire Bugs Jugged.

Friday evening of last week, as will be seen by our Waterloo letter, the barn of Ab. Kelley in that town was burned to the ground. Sheriff Plum was telephoned to come up, as it was believed the fire was the work of incendiaries, and that they had found the offenders, He could not go at that time, being engaged in another direction. So he told them to arrest the parties and bring them over. For some cause they did not do this, and Saturday the Sheriff went up there, and when the noon train went north he was on hand and found one of the accused, Wm. Timmerman, giving indications that he was going to leave. The sheriff arrested him and took him down to the town house and after a short conversation, the fellow confessed the whole business. He said he fired the barn to spite Mr. Kelley, against whom he had a grudge. He said he was assisted by, a chum named Joseph Ingersoll, who went with him, and who struck the match, then handed it to Timmerman, who applied to the hay and other combustible matter. The blaze spread rapidly, and when the fire department reached the place, the building was past saving, and they could only save the buildings around. Ingersoll was then arrested but he denied striking the match, but insisted that Timmerman did the whole business. They were brought over here and are now in jail to await their trial at the coming December term. Both are young chaps of about 18, and are in a fair way to get a good term in prison. Timmerman's home is here but his chum lives in Waterloo. The former has served a term at the reform school, and might have been taken back there but his confession will probably send him the other way. It appears that he and Ab. Kelley had been having some trouble about a railroad order he had forged, and on which Mr. Kelley advanced the money. When this came out, he left the place, but later returned, and promised to pay Mr. Kelley the loss, but failed to do so. They had some words about it a few days ago, and he took this way to get revenge. They say that after they fired the barn, they ran off, but after it got started, came back and helped put it out. It is believed they intended to burn Sol. Fisher's barn Saturday evening, had they not been jailed that day.

Died.

Cloa Ada Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Douglas, was born May 22, 1890, and died Nov. 11, 1891, aged 1 year, 7 months, 19 days. The funeral was from the residence on Thursday forenoon, Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

Two of a Kind.

One day early last week, as the clerks in the "Two Johns' Fair" were busy waiting on customers, a man, not particularly a stranger, might have been seen standing around carelessly looking over the goods and appearing to wonder at the amount sold and the cheapness thereof. He evidently struck an idea that what he got might be had still cheaper, for he suddenly disappeared. Near where he was last seen had laid two pairs of gloves, and now there were but two single ones—two of a kind. In his haste he had overlooked the fact that "two of a kind," are not so desirable as a certain other number. But he was gone and it was too late for him to rectify his mistake. But J. C. Henry, the genial proprietor, informs him through the columns of the COURIER, that if he will bring the two right ones back, he can swap one for a left one, and no questions will be asked, as they sell only "mates" at the Two Johns'.

Important to Travelers.

The fall and winter schedules of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R'y took effect Nov. 15th. As the east bound main-line passenger train numbers have been changed, it will be advisable for our readers to get one of the small leaflets which the railway company have issued showing what these changes are. The leaflets can be had of the ticket agent, or on application to A. J. Smith, General Passenger Agent, Cleveland, O.

A Course Dinner.

With numerous illustrations showing a modern dinner-table beautifully decorated, a diagram of how to set it, and also each course separately and describing in a charming and explicit way every detail of appointments and service and the thousand-and one "little" things that are essential to the success of such an entertainment, is one of the attractions of the December number of Demorest's Family Magazine, which will be of interest to all women, and invaluable to inexperienced housekeepers. From the initial water-color, "Ahead of Santa Claus," the humor of which all will appreciate, to the Pattern Order on the last page, there is not a single thing in this splendid number that would not be regretted were it omitted. The beautifully executed full-page engraving of "The Mother of Our Lord," is a gem that is especially timely, and a Christmas hymn followed by a profusely illustrated paper on Holly, Mistletoe, and the Yule-log," furnish in themselves a holiday menu that can hardly be surpassed. "Women as smugglers," "The Conquest of Neptune" (which gives valuable and interesting information about divers and how they operate under water), and the second paper in the series "The Romances of Pre-Columbian Discoveries," are especially good, and all handsomely illustrated. Then there are splendid stories, and the suggestions about Christmas gifts will be of great assistance to those who never can decide what to make for a present. The numerous departments are, as usual, replete with seasonable ideas, and over 200 illustrations enhance the attractions of the splendid reading matter. Taking it all in all, Demorest's Family Magazine gives the most generous return for the subscription price, $2 a year. It is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York City.

Cow and Calf for Sale.

A New Supply Store.

In the commercial or business world, it is understood that, "Competition is the life of trade" The fact is being demonstrated at this place, and the various enterprises within our little city speak in audible tones regarding the success of adventurers on that line. The public has learned to appreciate the advantages of having the choice out of a number of dealers in the same line of business. There are but few people in Auburn, and vicinity, who are not more or less acquainted with Fi. Gibson, as a business man. He is known as a first-class baker, and enjoyed the confidence and patronage of a large portion of our people; but because of ill health he was compelled to retire from the bakeshop several times during the past few years, and a short time ago he sold his plant on South Main street, to C. H. Ling Since then, he has been on the road in the interests of a Chicago notion house. Finding it inconvenient for him to continue in that business, he once more breaks the record by announcing to his patrons, friends and the public, that he will open up a General Supply store in the Draggoo building, south of the jail, where he will be pleased to meet all who wish to see his complete and attractive stock, carefully selected from the best wholesale houses of Chicago, and elsewhere. All goods are new and fresh. Remember the place south of the jail, will be opened the last of this week, or the first of next.

The Eclipse.

Everybody that hadn't forgotten about it, took a look at it. It was the biggest shadow they ever saw, the biggest they ever will see, for it was the shadow of the whole earth. This eclipse of the moon was a total one. The shadow began to creep over the moon's face at 4:35 standard time, became total at 5:37 and ended at 8:03 Clouds were in the way part of the time, but for a small town like Auburn the show was extra good, and everybody voted it a success. At the total, the moon showed a dull red face, and the darkness that fell on the earth was of that strange kind seen at no other time. In its quiet strangeness it reminded one of the midday darkening of a total eclipse of the sun. Yes, it was a big shadow, and the moon was in it.

Wonderful Cures.

MONTGOMERY, IND., Jan. 1, 1890.

To all whom it may concern that I, Absalom Myers, have been subject to a lameness and soreness in my left knee for thirty five years, it came on at intervals and my knee would become so sore and weak that I could hardly walk, and five years ago I was at Waterloo and heard of some of A. Y. Rosenbury's cures, and had him treat my case, as at that time my knee was paining me badly. He treated my case and I got well and have not been bothered any since, This statement is true just as stated.

Dollars for Your Thoughts!

A CHANCE FOR ARTISTIC AND LITERARY TALENT.

We need TWENTY or MORE original and striking designs for Newspaper Advertisements of SANTA CLAUS SOAP. The manufacturers, Messrs. N. K. Fairbank & Co., authorize us to pay for approved drawings with appropriate reading; or $5.00 each for designs or reading matter only. This offer is open to all who have facility in illustration. The competition will close December 10, 1891. About January 1, 1892, we will pay for accepted designs, and return the others.

Directions.—Make drawings with black ink on heavy white paper, or card-board. Do the work in outline. Elaborate shading will not print well. Space in papers will be about four inches square. Draw to larger scale if you prefer, but have design square. The idea is most important. If that is good we can have it redrawn and still give you credit. Avoid doggerel in which soap rhymes with hope, &c.

Points.—Santa Claus is a pure, high-grade Soap—made for laundry and general household use—a favorite wherever known. Generous praise will be well bestowed. Sold by all grocers, wholesale and retail.

Do your best, and send results promptly. Address (only)

With a good position, clear conception, light heart and a Bill Head cigar, much of the comfort of this life can be enjoyed during the hours of meditation.

Those who heard Eli Perkins' lecture at Angola last week, thought he put in too much time in politics, especially in praising the McKinley high tax business.

George McIntosh, brother of W. H. McIntosh as noted last week started for the far west, and a letter from him while on the way reported a pretty startling experience that he had. The train ran off the track at a point beyond Dubuque, Iowa, and several coaches turned over, including the one he was in. He saw it was bound to go, and did the best he could to avoid being hurt, but was somewhat bruised up. He helped several ladies out at the window, and then got out himself. It was a close call.

The Waterloo Press says the Auburn papers want a new court house. We think he is mistaken. Certainly the COURIER don't want one, at least not till the county is out of debt, and not then until we need it. As for a new poor house, we shall trust that to the better knowledge, good judgment and humanity of the county commissioners. If the present building is so bad as to endanger the public interests, or the lives or even the comfort of the unfortunate poor, then we should have another, as soon as the board can safely undertake it. A small levy could be made next year, so small the people would not feel it, and a year or two later, a good substantial, safe and comfortable building could be put up, but it need not be too expensive or too gaudy. This is our opinion on both points, and we believe we have not said as much at any time before.

D. A. Fawcett, the lively editor of the Lagrange Democrat made us a neighborly visit last Friday. Always glad to see him. He was accompanied by one of Lagrange county's soundest and most intelligent democrats, A. L. Fillmore of Lima. Mr. Fillmore is a nephew of the late Ex-president Millard Fillmore, his father, the late Cyrus Fillmore of Lima, being the Ex-president's brother. We see that by the death of the Ex-president's son recently, Mr. Fillmore and his brothers and sisters, each receive $20,000.

One of the greatest minds in speaking of literature, said: "Show me a family who reads good books, and I will show you the people that rule the world." It is paramount in importance that every intelligent individual has access to a good library, and the easiest and most satisfactory way of doing is to own a library of your own. Usually books are very expensive, but we have knocked the standard of prices on books clear out of sight. You can buy anything from a pocket calculator to an eighteen-dollar family bible, at almost your own prices. Be sure to attend the AUCTION next Saturday afternoon, south of the Physicians' drug store.

The meeting Sunday evening at the M. E. church in the interest of the reading room, was well attended and several addresses were made. The question most prominent, was as to expenses, for of course these are quite heavy. It was estimated that $700 or $800 would be needed next year. Charles Eckhart put down $200; Mrs. Ehlers, $100; and then came various other sums amounting at last to over $500. An effort will be made to raise the rest. The report showed a good interest taken during the year just closed. The average per month, of those who have patronized it, is over 800. Books have been taken about as freely, and the room has an abundant supply of good magazines and papers.

The Mae Lyon Comedy Company were greeted with a good house Monday evening, in spite of the terrible storm. The play was a good one, and well given, the audience cheering heartily and often. Agatha Singleton and little Fern at once became favorites again, for both have talents of a high order. The company, in the main, is made up of actors of ability, and with the songs, etc., and many new features they introduce, we believe they will hold their audiences during the week. Saturday afternoon will be a matinee at 10 cents to any part of the house, when they will give that popular old drama "East Lynn." Tuesday evening they gave "The Shadows of a Great City," and Wednesday evening, "Two Nights in Rome," both excellent plays and well rendered. The company is a good one.

THE State of Maine has at last another controversy in its hands that has nothing to do with the drink habit. The attack made by Miss Frances E. Willard on the gum-chewing habit has proven a bone of contention. One of the leading papers of the State has come out boldly in approval of Miss Willard's dictum; but another, published somewhat nearer the source of the gum supply, denounces it in round terms. The denunciation is craftily put on the ground of the inherent right of the citizen—and especially of the citizeness—to chew what she pleases; but as the doctrine militates directly against the prevailing creed in Maine on the subject of personal freedom, we are inclined to attribute the defense to sympathy with the producers of gum for the market. Whatever the ground, sentimental or commercial, the conflict is bound, we should say, to be a warm one, and to enlist before it is terminated the people of the entire State, from Mooselemegunticock to the Androscoggin.

MODERN modes of travel, the telegraph and the postal system have combined to make this a very small world. Time was when the people who lived in one country regarded distant regions as somewhat mythical, as impossible to reach, and as belonging almost to another sphere. A person could commit a crime then, and could disappear as effectually as though he had dropped off the earth. Now Americans daily meet acquaintances on the streets of Paris, and men who have formerly lived in Oshkosh are not surprised at encountering old friends in Natal. All of which remarks are peculiarly applicable to the case of Jack Hallowell, ex-organist of a Chicago church at the corner of Twenty-fourth street and Lawndale avenue. Mr. Hallowell had a pretty wife who sang in the choir of the same church, and the couple were much respected. A short time ago a Lawndale man went to England on a visit. While there he met a woman who asked him if he had ever met Jack Hallowell in America. Now America is a very small place, and of course the young man had met Mr. Hallowell. The woman who asked the question was the mother of five children, and was and is Mr. Hallowell's legal wife. The latter is no longer organist of the pretty church at Lawndale, nor does his American wife sing in the choir. There is just enough of a moral in this story to make any man who has put the world between himself and an unpleasant past feel uncomfortable.

THE SALT COMBINE.

HOW THE TARIFF HAS RAISED PRICES.

After Election Wage Reductions—Crime and the Tariff—How the Trusts Operate—Secretary Rusk's Plan—Tariff Shot—The Tin Plate Question.

The Price on Salt Raised.

When the McKinley bill was being considered by the Ways and Means Committee at its public hearings, several interests were represented which demanded that salt be put on the free list. This created intense alarm among the producers of salt in New York State. They at once sent a committee to Washington with petitions and protests, the gist of which was that if salt were made free their works would have to be closed. In supporting their demands they pointed with pride to the fact that they had never taken advantage of the opportunity which the tariff gave them to corner the market, and that they had never organized a trust to control and regulate the output and advance prices. One of their committee, Mr. Kerr, said: "Had it not been for the American salt, and had our works been under a trust, people would have been paying considerably higher prices for their salt to-day."

By such a show of philanthropy the salt men prevailed and the McKinley bill became law, with the duties on salt retained as they were in the tariff of 1883.

Just as soon as the bill became a law these salt producers, who had so long abstained from forming a trust out of pure philanthropy, held a meeting and formed what they chose to call the Western New York Salt Manufacturing Association. They also issued a circular which declared that the object of the combination was to "maintain uniform rather than higher prices," and then they proceeded deliberately to advance the market prices.

The effect of this advance is shown in the following table, which gives the prices prevailing a year ago and the present prices. These prices were furnished by one of the largest dealers in salt in Boston:

	August, 1890.	October, 1891.
5-pound boxes	$ .04⅝	$ .05½
10-pound boxes	.08½	.09
20-pound boxes	.11½	.14
20-pound bags	.11½	.14
Barrels of 250 pounds in bulk	1.50	1.75
10-pound bags per barrel of 25 bags	1.83½	2.00

Does this short history of the salt industry under the McKinley tariff bear out the famous assertion of the New York Tribune, "This (the McKinley tariff) is a trust-killing tariff, men and brethren."

Secretary Rusk's Plan.

Secretary Rusk was the only man in the gloomy group around the White House who betrayed his conviction that national issues were involved in the Massachusetts fight, and he does it by a silly threat.

According to the New York Tribune he said:

"Secretary Rusk declares that the elections went as he expected, and he was not at all surprised. The only comment he had to make was that he would be in favor of restoring the tariff on hides, as the Massachusetts shoe manufacturers, for whose benefit hides were put on the free list, had voted with the Democrats. He believed it a good idea to make them pay more for their hides."

The secretary would punish the shoe manufacturers of Massachusetts for voting in their own interests by "taxing hides." Incidentally he has another object in view. Mr. Rusk never overlooks the interests of the "Big Four" in Chicago. He never loses an opportunity to put in a word for the benefit of this group of millionaires, although he pretends to be the farmers' friend.

In 1890 the New York Tribune showed clearly how a tariff on hides would operate. It said: "It can hardly be believed that the home producer will be benefited by the imposition of a duty which would apparently help nobody so much as the rich combination of beef packers and the rest."

And when the House was debating the grant of a tariff bonus to these packers by putting a duty on hides, Col. Bayne, a Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said: "As a matter of fact, the business of hides is largely in the hands of such men as Phil Armour (one of the 'Big Four'), who can consign to a tannery a hundred, or several hundred, hides at once, and it is they who will be benefited by this duty, rather than the farmer, who has only one or two hides to sell at a time."

This shows clearly the animus of Secretary Rusk and the results which he expects from a policy of "getting even" with the shoe manufacturers.

Crime and the Tariff.

Why does not the prison congress in session at Pittsburgh attack the real cause of the increase of the crime which it bewails—a protective tariff? It is like an Indian aiming at the smoke to stop a railway train for these so-called philanthrophists to weary us with platitudes about "tendencies," "training," "home influences," "social customs" and so on. No teaching, preaching, charity or much else can avail a protective tariff which drags the ople down to crime. Gravitation too much for the efforts of philanthropy or prison science. Reflection will show any one that a heresy which takes from the many to enrich the few must increase crime. Whether they know it or not criminals are striking back at the false pressure of society. The rich have been given the money to tempt, and the sale of virtue is made easy because of the poverty that must follow the interference with natural industries. But to those disinclined to search for cause and effect, there is a fact which settles matters beyond cavil. England, at the close of its protective period, had nearly 50,000 convicts. After forty years of free trade, in which the population has almost doubled, it has 8,000 or 9,000. In London alone, eight prisons have been closed since 1864. When the remainder of class laws have been abolished, England will have no criminals. The reverse of this is true in the United States because thirty years ago we left a practically free-trade policy for one of protection. When the government stops interfering, nature will commence equalizing, and people will find it unprofitable to do other than honestly acquire a living. Until the inauguration of this change, the deliberations of prison reformers are not worth a fig.—Charles E. Huckett, in St. Louis Republic.

The Protective Duty and Wages.

SIR: In the copy of the circular of "American Tinned-Plate Association," published on page seven of your paper of the 14th inst., I notice this statement —"* * * iron or steel being protected against foreign importations by a duty of about 50 per cent. ad valorem, and the standard of wages in our iron and steel mills being fixed according to such protective duty, the manufacturer, etc." —ad nauseam.

This bare-faced lie cannot be too often exposed and exploded, and none know better the utter falsity of the statement I have underscored than the protected manufacturers themselves, who are the first to take advantage of a glut in the labor market to reduce the wages of their employes.

When the direct protection of labor by a large landing-tax on immigrants becomes the issue, how many of the subsidized Cronemeyer party will pay, work, and vote for its success? This same association had the assurance to send letters asking for assistance (as a gift) in building their toy tinnery to parties in the East, whose factories and mills were being wrecked or abandoned for want of free raw materials; and now, having obtained all the protection they demanded, are asking the Treasury Department for a ruling which will permit them to import the labor to make the tin plate!

Was there ever a more perfect exhibition of cheek?

Even Mr. Cabot Lodge appears to be fighting shy of the McKinley bill, and accepts a challenge only on condition that the arms of his opponent are limited to purposes of defense.—Correspondence Evening Post.

THE STRUCTURAL IRON TRUST.

How Carnegie and His Associates Appropriate the Tariff Bonus on Structural Iron—Incidentally It Shows Who Pays the Tariff.

In extrolling the McKinley tariff the other day Mr. Andrew Carnegie magnanimously observed that his praise was entirely disinterested, inasmuch as the rates of duty have been considerably reduced upon the manufactures which he produces. It was certainly very generous in Mr. Carnegie to lavish encomiums upon a measure from which, as he assures us, he derives no benefit. Next to steel rails, his most important manufactures are beams, rafters, joists, columns, and other forms of structural iron. Upon these products the former rate of duty was $25 a ton. In pretended deference to the complaints of house-builders against this most exorbitant duty, the McKinley tariff reduced the rate to $18 a ton. It was believed that this reduced rate would be sufficient to ward off competition with the structural iron combination on this side of the Atlantic, and the expectation has not been disappointed.

The price maintained by the American Beam Association, to which Mr. Carnegie belongs, is $62 a ton for most if not all forms of structural iron. In Belgium the selling price of the same manufactures is 120 francs per metric ton, or $21.08 per ton of 2,000 pounds. At the mills in Germany the price is $22.72 per ton. Adding the duty of $18, the price of Belgian and German forms of structural iron would be, when laid down in Philadelphia, $39.05 and $40.72 respectively, exclusive of freights and commissions of importers.

Making the most liberal allowance for the difference in wages, these comparative figures show the extent of the extortion that is practiced upon the house-builders of this country by Mr. Carnegie's American Beam Association under cover of the tariff. Although the importations of structural iron are so insignificant as to receive no mention in the Treasury returns of trade, we are reliably informed that Belgian and German beams are offered to-day in New York and Boston at $46.50 per ton. This is the price for forms of structural iron made by foreign works for their home trade. For patterns required by American consumers the price is $52 a ton. Under the discouraging influence of the tariff upon the import trade the American Beam Association is enabled to swell its enormous profits by charging the builders of this country $10 a ton more for its products than the highest price of the foreign article, with duties, freights, commissions, and all included.

While Mr. Carnegie's disinterestedness is not very apparent, his ground for extolling the McKinley tariff is quite obvious. Yet, notwithstanding the high duty, the wide margin in price between American structural iron and the foreign article affords an opportunity of saving money of which builders should avail themselves. We are assured that if foreign beams should be carried in stock by American merchants there would be a large market for them in this country, in spite of the duty of $18 a ton. Importers are unwilling to take this risk, however, because the American Beam Association could drop its prices below the lowest rate of the foreign article and still have a considerable margin of profit. Thus the McKinley tariff, in obstructing the imports of structural iron nearly as effectually as did its predecessor, amply justifies the warm praises of Mr. Carnegie.

It is evident that a further reduction in the duties of structural iron is demanded by the interests of American consumers. The change in the McKinley tariff has had no effect in reducing the prices of the Beam Monopoly. But if the duty on structural iron should be reduced to $9 or $10 a ton there would be abundant "protection" for the home manufacturer, as prices and the cost of production demonstrate, while there would be some protection of American consumers from monoplistic rapacity. By reducing the duty, and with it the cost of this material, it would enter far more extensively into house-building, and thus give a healthful stimulus to a great variety of industrial pursuits.—Philadelphia Record.

How the Trusts Operate.

George H. Gray, formerly a glass moldmaker at Fostoria, Ohio, tells how the glass manufacturers used the increased duties on glass given them in the McKinley tariff. Mr. Gray says:

"About six months previous to the introduction of the McKinley bill the glass companies sent out circulars to their employes, in which they begged them to sign a petition for a higher tariff on glass, as it would increase their wages and give them steadier employment. Well, with such tempting promises put forth, every man engaged in the business signed the petition. The tariff was raised and the profits of the manufacturer were increased, but how was the promises of the manufacturer kept, do you suppose? Why, it was not eight weeks after the passage of the McKinley bill that one fine morning we moldmakers were told that we were no longer needed, and in one batch 200 men were thrown out of employment and their wives and children left in want. The passage of the McKinley bill was followed by the formation of the United States glass trust, which at once cut down production and threw us out of work."

The Tin-Plate Question in a Nutshell.

No sane man doubts for a moment the ability of our iron and steel manufacturers to make tin plate. The question at issue is: Can we make it to our economic advantage? Rhode Island has coal mines and Massachusetts has iron mines, but Rhode Island does not mine coal, nor does Massachusetts mine iron for commercial purposes. And why? Simply because they can buy their coal and iron with the products which they can produce economically, and thus get these material cheaper than if they should mine them themselves.

Nothing prevents our flag from flying at the masts of our ships on every sea and in every port of the world but the expense of hiring men to do it.

The question of tin plate production in the United States is the same. Can our iron manufacturers produce plate as cheaply as we can get it from Wales by paying for it by the exportation of wheat and other products of our farms? They say they can—in time. But do the facts bear out their assertions?

The Iron Age gives the latest quotation for IC tin plate, coke finish, made of Bessemer steel, at 13s. 6d., or $3.28 per box of 108 pounds net, free on board at Liverpool.

It also gives the present price of Bessemer steel sheets of twenty-eight wire gauge, the nearest approach to the steel sheets of which the tin plate quoted above is made, as four cents per pound in Philadelphia. This is the best we are able to do after thirty years of prohibitive duties on steel sheets. And yet we can buy tin plate in Liverpool at 3.02 cents per pound.

This shows clearly that so long as the tin plate duty exists so long will it impose a duty upon the canners and other consumers of tin plate.

Post-Election Wage Reductions.

Now that the autumn elections are over the reduction of wages by the beneficiaries of the tariff has been resumed. The day after the election the operatives of Newell's pearl button factory, in Springfield, Mass., went out on strike on account of a reduction in wages. The report says "that the strike will extend to other button factories in the city to-morrow." Having secured a duty of several hundred per cent. on imported pearl buttons, the manufacturers are but doing what they intended to do, namely, to appropriate all the tariff bonus themselves.

At the same time another reduction in the wages of iron workers is announced from Pennsylvania.

One of the shining lights of Pennsylvania Republicans is B. F. Jones, who was chairman of the Republican National Committee during the Blaine campaign of 1884. He is the senior member of the firm of Jones & Laughlin, iron manufacturers. Mr. Jones is a believer in the McKinley theory of prohibitive duties on imports—to raise the wages of workmen. Last Thursday, however, he posted a notice in his works announcing to his 500 employes that their wages would be cut down from $1.50 to $1.35 per day, the change to go into effect at 6 o'clock of the same day. In the iron industry the manufacturers are more resolved than ever not to share the tariff bonus with their workingmen.

Meanwhile Andrew Carnegie shouts: "Don't touch immigration; let it flow on." And why? Because he and his fellow tariff beneficiaries believe in "free trade in labor," the only thing the workman has to sell, and "McKinley duties" on everything the laborer has to buy. This is the high-tariff policy.

Tariff Shot.

In February, 1890, the manufacturers of axes met to form a trust. The outcome of this meeting was the consolidation of the manufacturers of axes under the name of the American Ax and Tool Company.

On March 27, 1890, the Iron Age said: "The general feeling among the trade is that the ax-makers have formed a very strong 'association,' and have complete control of the market, or so nearly so, that the outside makers will have scarcely any appreciable effect on prices. It is found that scarcely any orders can be placed with outside manufacturers who are not under the control of the American Ax and Tool Company. The trade will do well to note the changed condition in this line of goods as regards the higer prices now ruling, and the strong probability of their maintenance for some time to come. On first quality goods an advance is now made of $1.75 to $2.25."

Before the formation of this trust the net wholesale prices of the best brands of first quality axes were $5.25 to $6 per dozen, or

As soon as the trust was formed the prices were raised as shown by the Iron Age, and first quality axes are sold now at $7 to $7.50 per dozen, or

Sugar and Tin.

The tariff was taken off sugar because we did not make enough of it, and the tariff was doubled on tin, so that we could make some of it. There's logic! We do produce a large amount of purely American sugar, but there is not a pound of American tin plate on the market and never has been, although it has been taxed ever since 1816—seventy-five years. If the tariff on sugar, of which we make large quantities, was an unjustifiable tax on the American people because we didn't make quite enough, how are we to characterize the tariff on tin plate, of which we make none at all? Does it not follow that it must be a still greater and more distinct and unjustifiable sax on the American people? Yet the American consumer must fork over $16,000,000 per year tin tax and about $10,000,000 for sugar bounty, or $36,000,000 in all, for the fun of seeing Acrobat McKinley attempt to ride his two hobbies going in opposite directions.—Wheeling Register.

Tariff Pins for Farmers to Consider.

A bushel of wheat in 1855 would buy 21⅓ yards of heavy brown sheeting and shirting. To-day it will buy 12⅓ yards of the same quality of cloth. Has the farmer profited by "protection?"

Thirty-one years ago the farmer exchanged his wool for cloth, and had a home factory. To-day he exchanges more wool for the same quantity of cloth—but how about the cloth?

In 1855 a bushel of wheat would buy 18¾ yards of good calico. To-day it will buy 15⅓ yards of calico of the same grade. How much has the farmer profited by "protection?"

Thirty-five years ago a bushel of wheat would pay taxes on $200. In 1891 it takes 3⅓ bushels of wheat to pay taxes on $200. Then one bushel paid taxes on ten acres of average land; now one bushel pays on but little over two acres. What does the farmer think of this method of "progressing?"—Rockville (Ind.) Tribune.

The Importance of Some Small Things.

Twenty-two million, or one-third of our country's population, are enumerated as its workers. The old, children, many women and the infirm and people of leisure make up about two-thirds of the people. These workers working ten hours a day would have 220,000,000 hours of work daily. Should each one lose six minutes a day in idleness and carelessness it would amount to 2,200,000 hours or 220,000 days of work. If this work is worth to the world one dollar a day, such a loss would be a quarter of a million dollars a day. These little leaks are well worth considering, for such small margins are sometimes the weight in the balance which insures the success or failure of an enterprise. The alacrity with which a thousand men will get into the streets after the dinner whistle blows has often been noticed; it is so remarkable in some cases that no acrobat even could prepare himself, after the whistle blows, for his sudden appearance from his machine to the open air. The pace from the shop to the dinner table is quite unlike that from the dinner table back to the shop.

ANOTHER instance of how McKinley duties have put up prices and increased the cost of living is furnished us by a St. Louis gentleman who had his clothing made in New York. Last February a year ago he paid fifty-five dollars for a suit of clothes made to order by a well-known New York clothing house. A precisely similar suit of clothes from the same goods ordered this week cost sixty-four dollars, an increase of over 14 per cent. —St. Louis Republic.

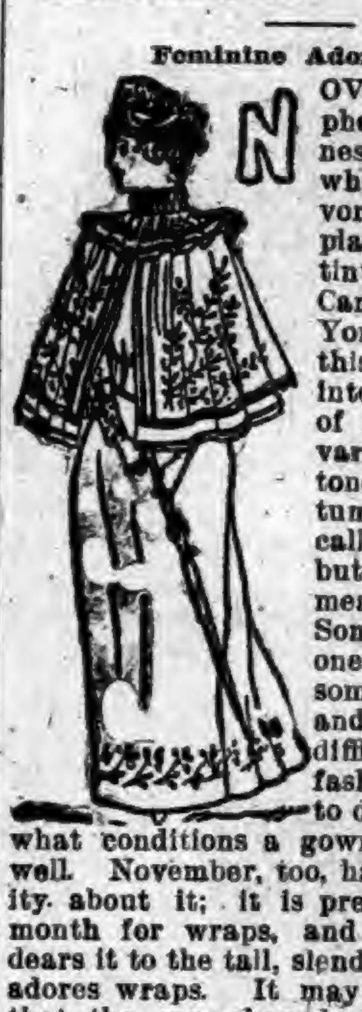
WRAPS ARE NOW WORN.

THE NOVEMBER ATMOSPHERE BRINGS THEM ALL OUT.

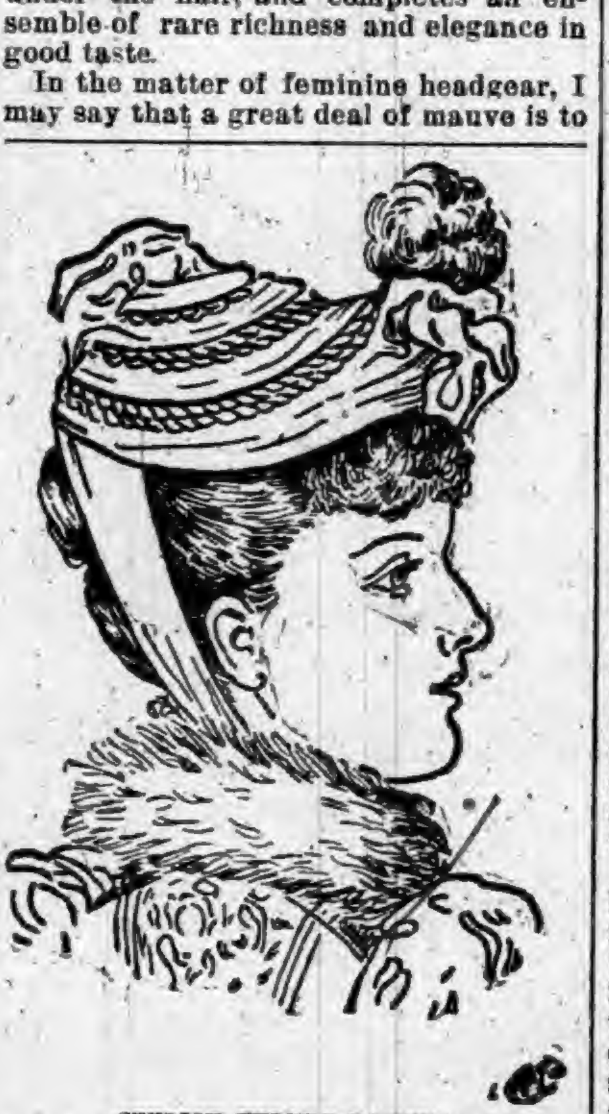
They Are Made in All Lines of Woolen Stuffs, Velvets and Plushes, and Sometimes in Combinations of Satin and Velvet—A Pretty Velvet Bonnet—A Child's Cloak, Etc.

Feminine Adornment.



NOVEMBER atmosphere has a crispness and a clearness which are very favorable to the display of soft, warm tints, writes Carrie Careless from New York. No one knows this better than the intelligent woman of fashion, who invariably adjusts the tones of her costumes to what she calls the "weather," but which in reality means the light. Some gowns call for one sort of light and some for another, and it is no small difficulty for the fashionable woman to determine under what conditions a gown will light up well. November, too, has this peculiarity about it; it is pre-eminently the month for wraps, and this alone endears it to the tall, slender woman who adores wraps. It may safely be said that the cape-shaped, high-shouldered mantle is now at the height of its popularity. They run in all lines of woolen stuffs, velvets and plushes, and sometimes in combinations of satin and velvet. One, for instance, of gray satin and black velvet brocade, struck me as very rich and stylish. It was embroidered in arabesques of steel and jet, and edged with a thick chenille fringe, each strand of which was finished off by a gray silk ball and two or three steel beads.

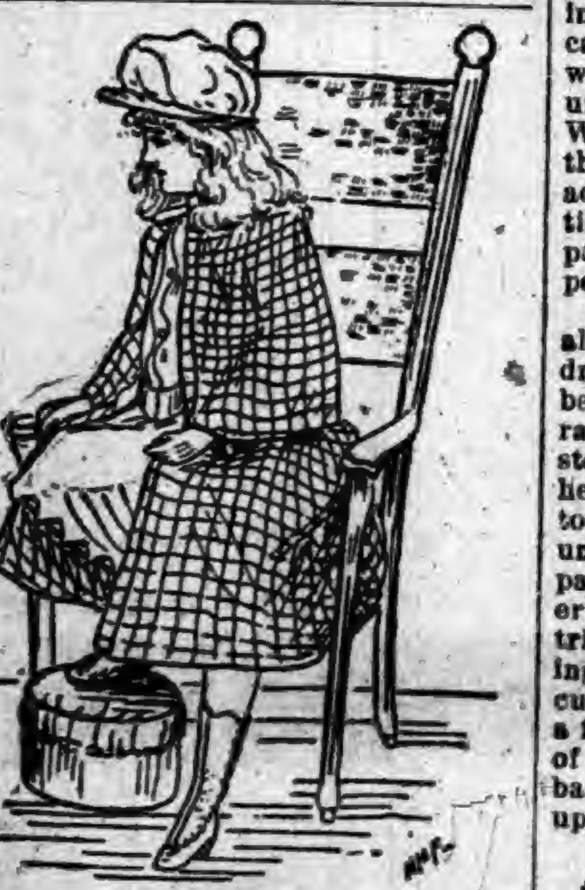
In my initial illustration you will find pictured a very pretty deep cape-shaped mantle in white cashmere, decorated with an applique design representing leaves in silver and dark olive green, the borders being of olive green velvet, outlined with silver. The high Henry IV. collar is also in olive green velvet. The gown is of olive green faille, with half sleeves of white cashmere, embroidered in the same way as the shoulder cape. Round the waist there is a ceinture of plain white satin, while running entirely around the hem of the skirt there is an embroidery of white leaves. The bonnet worn with this costume is in olive green velvet, with black ostrich feathers and striped silk strings in white and olive green knotted behind, under the hair, and completes an ensemble of rare richness and elegance in good taste.



STYLISH VELVET BONNET.

In the matter of feminine headgear, I may say that a great deal of mauve is to be worn this autumn, and green also, and every tint of warm browns or chestnuts. For those who like a striking theater bonnet, crimson velvet answers the purpose very well. It should be garnitured with rich ornaments and laces. In the way of trimming, fall bonnets will show a preference for guipure and Venetian lace, feathers, of course, and fur in some cases.

My second illustration sets forth a very pretty bonnet of pale blue velvet, the crown being ornamented with graduated rows of brown applique. The velvet is puffed high, both at the back and in the front, the strings being of pale blue satin ribbon. I should add that we on this side of the Atlantic are likely to feel the effect of the present rage in Paris for Russian gowns and Russian toques, and the latter, I can promise, will be quite sure to please those whose taste run to gaudy and altogether startling effects. The Russian toque is very becoming to a dark-haired and dark-eyed woman. It has a cloth crown decorated in gold and green embroidery, the brim being of astrakhan.



CHILD'S CLOAK.

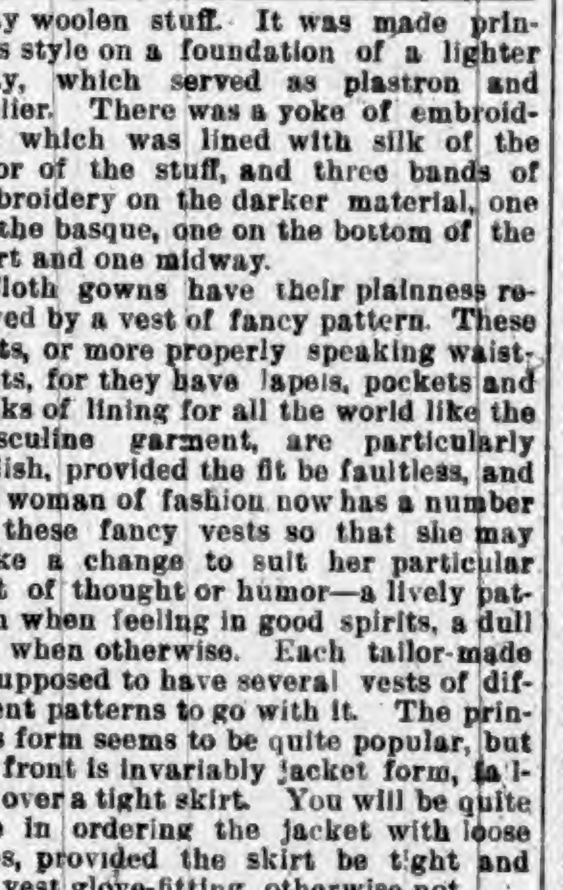
Not to overlook the little folks, I give in my third illustration a very pretty design for a child's autumn cloak, a woolen stuff in a large checked pattern. The garment is made loose in front and adjusted to the figure at the back. Lengthwise in the front sides there is one large pleat which is sewed to the lining at the lower edge of the cloak. The sides of the back below the waist line cross a little. They are fuller where they join the side seam and form two large pleats. The pelerine, like the cloak, has one large pleat in front and falls straight over the sleeves. At the back the pelerine is divided like the mantle itself. The same pleats must be made in the lining as in the material itself, and there are pleats also at the neck. This stylish little garment closes with horn buttons extending a few inches below the waist line.

It is surprising how many delicate [illegible] duced nowadays. Black is no longer black, nor white white, and the same may be said of the grays, lilacs, mauves and purples. No matter how exacting a lady's complexion may be, some becoming shade may be found by diligent searching; hence would I say to those contemplating new autumn or winter costumes: hurry slowly, and don't decide until the very shade has been found. It may be that black lace over a heliotrope silk is what you need, or a pale gray may suit you best, or a gown of alternate stripes of mauve and white.

An authority in matters of feminine adornment insists that it always pays to give more for a becoming dress. Hasty choice usually results in a gown that one grows tired of in a few weeks, whereas a really becoming dress is not thrown aside until it falls to pieces.

Walking dresses continue to be made up in two shades with fine effect. A skirt of dark-green may be beautifully set off by having a deep hem, over which you lay an inch-wide band of pea-green cloth having jet passementerie over it. The upper part of the bodice is of green velvet, and back and front there are bands of the pea-green cloth with the same ornaments.

By way of variety I give you in my fourth illustration a novel design for an interior costume, well adapted for a studio reception, at which one expects to meet with costumes not strictly in harmony with prevailing modes. This gown may be made up in a plain and figured stuff or in two shades of the same material. The dress proper is made up with a crossed bodice, while the over part in princess form has broad revers faced with the dress material. The overdress is garnitured its full length with silk grelots.



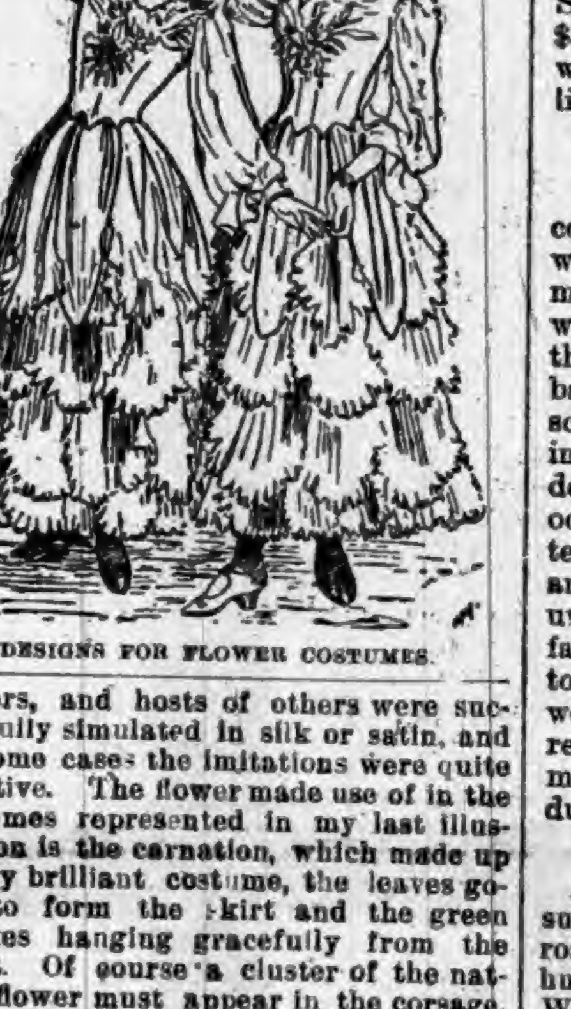
STUDIO COSTUME.

My attention was lately attracted by a charming indoor toilet in two shades of gray woolen stuff. It was made princess style on a foundation of a lighter gray, which served as plastron and tablier. There was a yoke of embroidery which was lined with silk of the color of the stuff, and three bands of embroidery on the darker material, one on the basque, one on the bottom of the skirt and one midway.

Cloth gowns have their plainness relieved by a vest of fancy pattern. These vests, or more properly speaking waistcoats, for they have lapels, pockets and backs of lining for all the world like the masculine garment, are particularly stylish, provided the fit be faultless, and the woman of fashion now has a number of these fancy vests so that she may make a change to suit her particular cast of thought or humor—a lively pattern when feeling in good spirits, a dull one when otherwise. Each tailor-made is supposed to have several vests of different patterns to go with it. The princess form seems to be quite popular, but the front is invariably jacket form, falling over a tight skirt. You will be quite safe in ordering the jacket with loose sides, provided the skirt be tight and the vest glove-fitting, otherwise not.

There is also a marked taste for corselet bodices for evening wear, and you may rig up a very pretty evening costume at a small outlay by a full bodice in soft silk of some bright color to be worn with a black skirt and a black corselet. The Tudor sleeves with puffs springing out at the shoulder and elbow are very becoming to long arms.

At this season of the year young people's thoughts turn to all sorts of winter entertainments, from amateur theatricals to skirt and flower dances. Last season there were some very pretty exhibitions of flower costumes at private and semi-public entertainments. Tulips, chrysanthemums, roses, hollyhocks, sunflowers, and hosts of others were successfully simulated in silk or satin, and in some cases the imitations were quite effective. The flower made use of in the costumes represented in my last illustration is the carnation, which made up a very brilliant costume, the leaves going to form the skirt and the green calyxes hanging gracefully from the waist. Of course a cluster of the natural flower must appear in the corsage. With a little attention to artistic fitness, these flower costumes may be used with admirable effect to heighten the particular style of beauty of each young person taking part in the dancing or posturing.



DESIGNS FOR FLOWER COSTUMES.

There is no doubt that jet garniture of all kinds will be much used on winter dresses, but the huge cabochons have been somewhat overdone and become rather vulgarized, so that in their stead you will see tiny beads and nailheads finely cut in facets. Jet spangles, too, laid closely one over the other in unbroken lines forming large branching patterns, are genuine novelties. Another novelty is the use of white cloth for trimming purposes, particularly for making vests, revers, cuffs and yokes. It is cut in bands, pinked out and laid under a fold of the material round the bottom of skirts, and you often see an underbasque of white cloth, both under and upper being cut in tabs.

Spelling and Composition.

Col. F. W. Parker, writing in the Minnesota Journal of Education, says: We give to spelling so much of our important time! What is it? It is making the form of a word. That is spelling, per se. Oral spelling is the description of a word, naming its parts. A child can spell, i. e. learn the letters of a word, but might merely get it from sound. Spelling should be a description, as if I drew a house, which would be describing it. One of old Commenius' principles is this: "Things that have to be done should be done by doing them." The powers of the teacher seem to have been directed to doing a thing by doing something else. As soon as the child begins to read he spells. Oral spelling should be put off till the second year to make sure that he gets the form right. The first year should be given to copying words. Much teaching is merely attempted forcing out of the mind what has not yet got into it. Never spell any words for a child unless that child can follow with the idea, as the pencil traces the word. He thus learns the written and the spoken language together—learns to read and write at the same time. If all the spelling books were piled up and set on fire, they would give more light to the world than they ever did to the school-room! The purpose of spelling is composition. In the first year provide the pupil with a correct copy of mental pictures. Give sentences, have the children copy them, and after they are erased have them reproduce them. Give the thought of what is spelled. The next year teach spelling by dictation.

Train a child to know when he does not know a word. He will then never spell wrong. All spelling can be taught in composition. Children can be made to love to talk with the pencil. A child knows a unit of thought by expressing it. Do an act and have them write it, or let them tell it orally. All of grammar can be taught in a beautiful way by action. Put no false syntax on the board; the wrong form is as likely to remain in the child's mind as the right. Be right from the start. Pictures can be utilized in the writing of compositions. The little ones may write one, two or three sentences only about a picture, but by the second year the child can write a story about it. In the third year it can write a page of composition entirely correct. Is that not a foundation for grammar? Another way of teaching composition is to tell the child stories, and have it reproduce them in its own words. In object teaching there is as much nonsense as in anything else. The fundamental mistake is that teachers attempt the impossible. They fail to understand that the child cannot see what they can see, and consequently talk above their heads.

And lawyers can charge big fees, too! For example, if I should charge the press in the same proportion that lawyers charge for their time, I should get about $1,000 for this letter. Here is a case: Mr. B. L. White, now editor of the Providence Press, and I were associated as correspondents of the New York Tribune. The Alabama treaty, on whose provisions two continents hung breathlessly, had been signed and sent to the Senate. This was many years ago. A copy came to us as legitimately as any piece of news comes into the Press office, but it happened so that we could not tell where it came from. We were brought before the Senate and sent to a committee, and we refused to answer and tell where the treaty, as printed in the Tribune, came from. We were locked up about a fortnight. The great public was with us, and we had more applications for our autographs than we could pay postage on, and we had cases of wine, and cases of brandy, demijohns of whisky, boxes of cigars, woodcock, terrapin, canvasback ducks, flowers, and such things galore. Senators came to our rooms for drinks and lunches, and the whole thing from beginning to end was a great joke. But—and here comes the point—we were of course released by a tremendous majority of the Senate, but there were certain legal points to be disposed of. We had been indicted for disrespect to the Senate, or something of that kind. We engaged a lawyer, and he went into court and asked that our indictment be quashed. That was all, and the indictment was quashed. How much, Mr. Editor, do you think he charged for that five minutes' work. He charged and I paid him $500 for that job, and I have his name on my check to show it. Suppose a newspaper man had taken $500! Well, you know what Pistol said when he was compelled to eat the garlic.

I have a moral. It is: Study law.

Over 4,000,000 ounces of quinine are consumed annually throughout the world, and it has become the universal medicine since its discovery in 1640, when it was introduced into Europe by the Countess Cinchon, after whom the bark was named. Its abundance or scarcity may be said to be a matter of international concern. Wars and epidemics operate to advance its price. It occupies about the same place in materia medica that breadstuffs do among articles of food. Yet it is said the natural supply of the cinchona bark is failing, and that resort must be made to cultivation in order to supply the world's demand. Cultivation has already begun in the East Indies, but must be extended to every country producing this indispensable bark.

Her Husband and Her Sow.

An old lady of Clinton, Mo., brought suit against the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for $5,000 for killing her husband and $50 for killing an old sow. When the matter came up she dismissed as to her husband, but refused to fall a cent on the sow.

The Vigilants.

Four well-known citizens organized themselves into a vigilance committee for the purpose of arresting some burglars that had committed a number of depredations in the vicinity of their residences. They met together and swore themselves on a skull and three Bibles. They got up their pass-words, signs and grips, so that each would recognize the other in the dark under any circumstances. They armed themselves with revolvers, slug shots, bowie knives, brass knuckles and bulls-eye lanterns.

The thing worked well, as they were near neighbors, and they talked the thing over every night for a month.

One dark night, one of the number heard a noise on the front window.

He hastily jumped into his clothing, and ran out of his rear door, jumped over the fence and rapped three times on the basement window of another member's house. Just then he heard some one say:

"Sick him Tige," and fearing he had been taken for a burglar, made a break for the fence, but not any too soon, as Tige had been on the alert, and succeeded in getting a mouthful of pantaloons.

Over the fence went the vigilante and soon appeared at the door of another member's house. Here he scratched softly, three times, and, hearing the noise of a clicking revolver, again flew the vigilante, over fences, barns, etc., through alleys, until he reached his own house. With a catlike tread, he sneaked along, up the steps, and had commenced to try the windows and door to see if the burglars had been successful, when three bull dogs darted out and attacked him from all sides. Bang, bang, bang, went some pistols from neighboring windows. The thing was getting hot. The dogs chawed him all over, and soon would have finished the vigilante, but one dog got the other dog by the leg, by mistake, and they got up a fight between themselves, during which time the vigilante succeeded in getting into the house a badly used-up man.

It afterwards transpired that, when he scratched on the back doors of the other members' houses, each thought it was burglars. They slid out the front doors, and went for the others, and when they saw the first member prowling around, examining his own windows, they let out their dogs with the above result. The committee disbanded the next day

At the Harvest of Death

Much grain is prematurely reaped by the scythe of disease that might have ripened to a golden maturity if "minor" bodily troubles had been attended to in time. Nothing is truer than this—bodily ailments not only grow apace but beget one another. Thus billiousness, constipation, dyspepsia follow close on the heels of one another, flourish together, the one perpetuating the other, and begetting a numerous progeny of later ailments more or less severe as their cause is more or less disregarded and neglected. Incipient rheumatism, malaria, and "slight" inactivity of the kidneys, of what dire disaster they are the cause when but slight or no attention is paid to their early warnings. Check these "minor" ailments with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and forestall the inexorable reaper, who exacts the forfeiture of life as the penalty for disregarding the means of preserving it.

No Use for Fast Steamers.

Who wants to cross the ocean in a jiffy? What shall it profit a man to take a vacation simply to be shot from one place to another as from a catapult? Everybody agrees that the most restful thing about a journey aboard is the ocean voyage. The time spent on the water, where one is cut off from business, from mails, telegraph, newspapers, society and all that worries or annoys, is the best medicine imaginable for tired Americans. Why wish it shortened? When one can cross the ocean in two or three days the advantages and attractions of a foreign trip will be greatly lessoned.—Indianapolis Journal.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

A Warning Word

To all who suffer from catarrh, whether in small or great degree:

Do not allow this treacherous disease to continue its course unheeded and unchecked. It is liable to develop into bronchitis, or consumption, that most dreaded destroyer of human life.

Catarrh is a disease of the system, and not simply of the nose and throat. The blood reaches every part of the system. Therefore the proper way to cure catarrh is to take a remedy which will reach the disease through the blood. This is just what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, and this is the secret of its success in curing catarrh. It expels the scrofulous taint which causes and sustains catarrh, and gives that healthy tone to the whole system before which disease cannot maintain its hold. If you suffer from catarrh, try

"I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. Hood's Sarsaparilla helped me so much that my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken." MRS. A. CUNNINGHAM, Providence, R. I.

"For several years I have been troubled with that terribly disagreeable disease, catarrh. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla with the very best results. It cured me of that continual dropping in my throat and stuffed up feeling. It has also helped my mother, who has taken it for run-down state of health and kidney trouble." MRS. S. D. HEATH, Putnam, Conn.

How wretched is the man who has fallen a victim to Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, or diseased Liver, with all the horrible attendants. Look upon the picture. Poor man, being tired of dragging out a miserable existence, he is the picture of despondency; altogether, he is rather a forlorn specimen. Do we pity him? Of course; but at the same time feel assured that in a measure he is to blame for the bad state into which he has fallen. A sure, safe, speedy and easy cure can be found in Simmons Liver Regulator—Nature's own remedy. No mercury or deleterious drugs, not unpleasant to the taste, and always reliable—just such a remedy as you can pin your faith to without a shadow of disappointment. Read the testimonial, don't take our word for it:

"I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator which gave me relief, without any interruption to business." J. HUGG, Middleport, Ohio.

Friday evening last between six and seven o'clock the ringing of fire bells and the cry of fire called everyone out of doors. Even then the blaze showed the building to be enveloped in flames, and no chance of saving building or contents. It proved to be Ab. Kelley's barn, on the same lot with his residence and quite near Dr. Darby's barn. The wind sent the sparks and cinders east, endangering the row of wooden buildings from Marion street to Dr. Darby's residence. Fortunately the wind was not high, yet the roofs were watched, and water thrown where needed. Some of the business men commenced packing in readiness for removal. Wm. Timmerman and another boy named Ingersoll of this place, claim to have set the barn on fire. The sheriff has them in charge at Auburn.

For the good of suffering humanity I will say that I have been a sufferer from scrofula for a good many years, it finally gathered in my ankle and broke. My suffering was great and the doctor told me that I would have to have my leg amputated. I then sent for A. Y. Rosenbury and he treated my case and I could feel the effect of my treatment at once and soon got well. This has been four years ago and I am all right ever since, and I would not go through the same for $500.

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

EL PASO, TEXAS, Oct. 28, 1891.

EDITOR COURIER:—Eddy, New Mexico, the objective point of the Northern Indiana Editorial excursion is a town of about 600 people, is nearly two years old, the county seat of Eddy county and the present terminus of the Pecos Valley railroad and contains the Hotel Hagerman which cost $65,000, is built of brick and finished in antique oak throughout, finely furnished and complete in every detail. It was constructed before the railroad penetrated this then unreclaimed valley, which necessitaed the carting of all the material used in its construction for ninety miles over the hills in freight wagons. E. Oscar Hart is the manager of this fine hotel and by his care and thoughtfulness the guests who occupied its seventy rooms were almost compelled to enjoy life and realize that he is the right man in the right place.

The First National bank building is constructed of brick and stone and its occupancy is shared by the bank people with the county officers, and others until other more suitable quarters can be had, which will not be long.

R. H. Pierce, Pennebaker, Joyce & Co., W. G. Case, A. D. Wallace and W. E. King are the merchants and they carry complete lines of merchandise, such as would do credit to much older towns.

As one of the first things needful in any locality is a house, Eddy affords three contracting and building firms, Warren & Ross, Pratt Bros, Mallory & King, any of whom are trustworthy and competent.

Eddy also has what is so very scarce in the western country, real estate dealers, McLenothen & Campbell, Nymeyer & Cameron, E. G. Shields & Co., A. A. Mermad and C. M. Howe, who take great pleasure in showing prospective buyers over the country in fine carriages from the stables of G. D. Lucas, Mallory & King, or the city livery stable, accompanied by B. A. Nymeyer, Fred H. Peitz, J. H. Robinson, E. G. Shields, or Lewis Blauvelt civil engineers and surveyors. Through the nurseries of E. T. Cadwallader, L. D. Graves or John I. Kerr, picking a nosegay on the way, and stopping at the office of W. A. Hawkins, J. O. Cameron, John Franklin, or G. A. Richardson, attorneys-at-law to consult as to the title, then to the offices of A. A. Mermod, B. A. Neymeyer, H. Wilson, C. E. Conway, or C. M. Howe notaries public to have the deeds executed and should you become sick on the way call on H. C. Van Norman or Jas. A. Tomlinson, physicians and surgeons, (Jas. A. Tomlinson is a brother of Dan. and Tom. Tomlinson of this county and is probate judge of Eddy county,) who get their medicines from the stores James A. Tomlinson or the Eddy drug company.

Warren & Ross, Pratt Bros and Mallory & King do a lively business, grain dealers and commission merchants, and near by are the blacksmiths.

The Pecos river on whose banks is situated this beautiful little city of Eddy, has its source, about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, New Mexico, in the Rocky mountains 8000 feet above the level of the sea. For a distance of 250 miles it winds through its rocky and narrow channel about the bases of the snow clad peaks, of this region, until it reaches the open prairie country, where re-enforced by the numerous mountain brooks, which are the conduits for the melting snow of spring time, it has become quite a river. This river is also fed by springs of pure clear water which issue from the floor of limestone which underlies this whole country and are found all along the river from its source to its mouth, some of which flow from its adjacent banks, while others are several miles back from the stream and one of the prettiest springs I ever saw was in the Buenita canyon about 7 miles from the Pecos river between Las Vegas and Santa Fe. Myself, and a friend were out that way, about nine years ago, on a hunt for deer and stopped to eat our lunch on a flat table rock which was about 12 by 14 feet in dimensions and from out a small hole in the rock about the circumference of of a breakfast plate and three feet in depth, located in the center of this table rock, flowed fine sparkling water which scattered over the suface of the rock and left it on all four sides resembling very much an inverted crock of huge dimensions with a constant steam of water poured steadily upon its center. The Pecos river is also fed by the Rio Hondo, Rio Feliz, North and South Spring Creeks. The Penasco, the Borendos, the Seven Rivers, Block river, and the Delaware river and flowing on through southern New Mexico and western Texas, falls into the Rio Grande.

Six miles above Eddy a great dam has been constucted across the Pecos river by the Pecos Irrigation & Improvement Company of which J. J. Hagerman, of Colorado Springs, Colo., is president, C. B. Eddy, of Eddy, N. M., vice president and general manager, L. H. Jackson, of Colorado Springs, Colo., is secretary and H. C. Lawe, of Colorado Springs, Colo., treasurer.

The great dam is built for the purpose of raising the water and turning it into the canals, and of forming a storage resevoir for all the southern system of ditches of the Pecos Irrigation & Improvement Company. The dam is built of limestone. It is 135 feet wide at the base (which rests on the solid bedrock of the country), rises to a height of forty feet above bedrock, with a slope of two to one on the lower side and of one-half to one on the side bearing the pressure of the resevoir, and is 1,140 feet, or nearly a quarter of a mile, in length. The dam simply fills a gap or notch worn down through a solid limestone ridge by the flow of the river since Terrace times, and hence the abutments are solid rock in place.

The outlet to the canal is a cut thirty feet wide, twenty-five feet deep, and five hundred feet in length through the solid rock of this ridge on the easterly side of the river, with gates about midway of this cut to regulate the flow of water into the canal. On the west side of the river and reservoir this limestone ridge curves around to the north and toward thd river above; and some 400 yards from the center of the dam a broad cut has been made across it, five feet below the level of the crest of the dam, for the escape of surplus water, in case of a sudden rise, which water will flow down a ravine back of the solid rock ridge and re-enter the river half a mile below, so that no injury can possibly be done to the dam by the escaping waste water.

On the east side the ridge broadens out northward, and has been cut into by the river until a vertical cliff of considerable height has been formed. Against this cliff the force of the flow for two miles above comes squarely, and being broken by the solid hill, turns gently toward the dam a few hundred feet below. This conformation gives additional security to the dam, as no rush of water, however sudden or great, can reach it with perceptible force.

The lake or reservoir formed by the dam is seven miles long, and mile and three quarters wide, and holds about 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of water, enough to supply the ditch with a full head for nearly one month. When filled it gives a head of water twenty feet above the bottom of the cut through which the main canal is fed, and thirteen feet above the feed-gates when open.

The main canal, leading from the rock-cut outlet heretofore described as near the east end of the dam, is forty-five feet wide at the bottom, seventy feet at the top, has a slope of one and one-half to one, and will carry, through this great excavation, a volume of water seven feet in depth. Where the gentle slopes or extensive flats of rocky, barren and worthless ground occur on the inland, or upper side of the canal, the embankment is thrown up wholly on the lower side, so as to utilize these flats for the storage of immense quantities of water. The main canal, of the dimensions stated, continues four miles down the river, when it is divided into smaller canals, one branch going down on the east and the other on the west side of the river.

Altogether there are about 300 miles of canals and laterals in this immediate vicinity, and by them is reclaimed nearly 300,000 acres of heretofore worthless lands, which is of a dark loam, extremely rich in gypsum and other salts valuable in the production of fruits, cereals and vegetables.

The Pecos Valley Railroad, built by the same parties that are interested in the irrigation company, furnishes a direct communication with the outside world via Pecos, Texas and the T. & P. Ry.

S. F. Judy is general manager and W. H. Vaughn, general superintendent of this road and contemplate the further extension of its tracks to the northern part of the valley to connect with the Santa Fe Railroad.

Among the extensive farmers and fruit growers of the lower Pecos Valley near Eddy, are Holt Live Stock Co., L. Wallace Holt, Manager, which farm of several hundred acres is located 15 miles north of Eddy, and on which there was this year raised 200 tons of sugar cane on 22 acres, 500 tons of alfalfa on 100 acres, (in four cuttings) and they have 20 acres in strawberries and 15,000 fruit trees now growing.

The Witt ranch, 20 miles south of Eddy, was started in 1885, and its 450 acres of soil is irrigated entirely by private ditches. Their products are about the same as the Holt ranch.

The Hagerman farm, started in 1883, embraces 900 acres of land irrigated by private ditches, is located on the east side of the Pecos river, and is 15 miles from Eddy. This farm is under a high state of cultivation, and raises fruit (which we sampled) that is par excellent.

Charles A. Otis, of Cleveland, Ohio, has 350 acres in alfalfa, worth about $30 per acre on the field,

R. W. Tansill the celebrated cigar manufacturer, of Chicago, has 640 acres in alfalfa, which yields about the same as the Otis farm.

H. Rogers has 320 acres 5 miles south of Eddy, which is devoted to raising corn, millet, fruit and alfalfa. Some of our party, admiring this farm, purchased 100 acres of it. The members of the syndicate are Mr Mosier, of Elkart, Mr. Hossler, of Warsaw, Mr. French, of Michigan City, Mr. Neil, of Lebanon, Mr. Forkner and Mr. Tschune, of Anderson.

The other large farms near Eddy, are owned by Fischer Bros., of Northern Indiana, 160 acres; Scoggins & Blonkinship, on whose ranch the town of Eddy is located; Charles W. Green, of New York City, 800 acres in fruits and grapes.

Irrigation (the process of conducting water from natural currents, by means of ditches, so as to cover the lands for farming,) to us located in countries where streams are slow and sluggish, appears almost impracticable, but in the valleys of the Rocky Mountains the velocity of the streams is so great and the fall so rapid that it is perfectly feasible.

In New Mexico the rainfall seldom exceeds 11 inches during the year, which, of course is insufficient to secure the growth of crops. Hence, irrigation must be practiced,

By the construction of large canals, such as are described above, with reservoirs and laterals, the water is conducted from the mountain streams over the farming land.

The main canal is started from a point high enough up the stream to secure sufficient fall to flood the country desired to be watered.

From this main canal, laterals are taken at convenient distances, and from these laterals, furrows are run by the plow to carry the water upon the land.

Thus the farmer is able to apply the moisture just when it is needed and the desired quantity, assuring to himself abundant crops each and every year, while those who depend on natural rainfall are liable to be disappointed by drought or rot.

The method of irrigation generally practiced in New Mexico is known as the flooding system.

The distributing laterals are cut with a hoe or spade and the water allowed to flow out over the surface of the soil as far as it will go, and soak as deep as is necessary to give the required moisture to the roots of the growing crops, When the field is sufficiently watered, the cuts are closed by throwing a shovelful of dirt against the gap and the water allowed to flow to a different part of the field; and so on until the whole field is irrigated. The main lateral on a field is generally a permanent one; but the distributing ones vary according to the circumstances and are made to suit the season's crop. The fall plowing obliterates them, and the succeeding summer new ones are run to suit the crop desired. But little trouble attaches to these "season" laterals, as a plow furrow, shallow or deep, according to the contour of the ground and the surface to be irrigated, suffices. The main canal and the principal laterals leading from it are the only permanent features. The cost of irrigating land varies according to the locality. In the Pecos Valley, at present, a perpetual water right can be purchased from the Pecos Irrigation & Improvement Company for $10 an acre, which, if desired can be paid in ten annual installments, and the annual water rental is $1.25 per acre. By a perpetual water right is meant that the owner of a tract of land under an irrigating canal pays a stipulated sum to the irrigation company for the privilege of buying water from the company at a defined rate per year; and the company agrees in its deed conveying the water-right, to supply the land owner with an adequate quantity of water for agricultural purposes for all time to come.

The cost of developing and making farms and erecting necessary buildings is about as follows:

Brick sell at $8 a thousand, and lumber at $23 to $26 a thousand feet; Carpenters' wages are $3 to $4 a day; brick and stone masons $3 50 to $4; common labor, Mexicans, about $1, and white men $2 a day; teams, $4 to $4.50 a day. A four-wire fence with good cedar posts, costs $120 a mile. Much of the land is open prairie, while on other portions of it there is a light growth of mesquite, or greasewood, which costs $1 to $5 an acre for grubbing, the roots selling at $4 to $5 a cord for fuel, which usually realizes a sum equal to the cost of clearing the land. Plowing costs, on contract $2 50 to $3.50 an acre. It is not necessary to break land here and then let the sod lay and rot before seeding, as in some portions of the Northwest. As soon as plowed the first time, it is ready for seeding to any kind of crop desired. Wells can be dug cheaply and good drinking water obtained anywhere in the valley at twelve to forty feet deep.

They raise here from 40 to 60 bushels of wheat per acre; 45 to 70 bushels of corn, about the same of oats and barley, 30 to 40 bushels of rye, 25 to 40 bushels of peas, 250 to 400 bushels of sweet potatoes, 175 to 350 bushels of beets and 20,000 pounds of onions per acre; and fruits of all kinds grow in profusion. The trees and bushes bend with their heavy loads of apples, peaches, pears, grapes and apricots,—in fact all fruits oranges and bananas,—which are pleasing to the eye and delicious to the taste. Melons and citrons also grow very profusely here, watermelons growing wild far away from cultivated farms. What is said of the Pecos valley is true of all the cultivated valleys of New Mexico, with the exception that nowhere else in the territory have they as fine a system of irrigation and as good a supply of water as in the Pecos valley.

The richness of the soil, (producing from two to five crops annually,) the healthfulness of the climate, the abundance of water, the mild winters, (in fact there is scarcely any perceptible seasons;) the fact that all kinds of fruits, except lemons, oranges and bananas, which are grown in California, are grown here, the closer proximity to the eastern markets as compared with California, surely predict that the fertile land that now sells for $25 per acre will, within the next two years, be worth $200 per acre.

It, as may be said of all irrigated countries, is not the place for people without means, as it takes money to develop a farm in this country. Yet, people with a few hundred dollars, coming here can do better with it than they can with the same amount of money in the east, because the yield is much greater per acre and the purchasing power of money the same.

Should any of your readers feel interested in this country they can get fuller and more detailed information than I am able to give here by addressing G. O. Shields, 134, VanBuren street, Chicago, Ill.; Chas. B. Eddy, Eddy, New Mexico, or C. C. Blodgett, Eddy, New Mexico, who will send you handsomely illustrated books, maps, etc., the truthfulness of which, by personal investigation, I can vouch for.

The Pecos valley certainly has a wonderful future before it,

Yours truly,
FRANK E. ROSE.

1856—Continued.

S. W. Widney, the author of Pioneer Sketches originally publisher in the columns of the Auburn Republican of 1859, was the book seller and stationer of the town in 1856 and his place of business was on the corner of Main and Tenth streets. As agents of the American Sunday School Union he furnished Sunday schools with libraries and "help" of various kinds.

He was a pioneer among school teachers and experienced the difficulties in house and interior deficiences which the school master had to surmount. He was a pleasant writer and did much for the early settlers when he collected in pamphlet form the result of painstaking investigative, a creditable story of the early days which ever since has been quoted without dispute as the story of that time.

He did well but co-oporation would have given him so much the more that it really seems a duty for those conversant with facts relative to our town to make them known, that a record may be made of them,

Mr. Widney acted wisely in writing his sketches and this later generation owes him gratitude therefor.

Rev. J. W. Welch had accepted the pastorate of the M. E. church and in addition to his clerical duties, we are informed that he worked as a carpenter in the construction of what at the time it was burned, was known as the "Zacher store" now the site of W. H. Kiblinger's hardware.

Rev. Welch has been a life long worker and the success that untiring labor rightly directed almost unvaryingly commands has been his, and these later years, he may look back with laudable pride upon the past and expect with confidence the encomium of the Master, "Well done good and faithful servant."

On the north side of the public square, one door east of Plumb's saloon, Messrs Groves & Stuart conducted a chair and bedstead manufactory and E. C. R. Reyer was engaged in repair and sale of jewelry.

G. W, Stahl found a competitor in tailoring in R. H. McMillin who opened a shop in the north end of town and claimed a long experience in eastern and southern cities.

Mr. Brinkerhoff was the original claim agent of this county and as early as 1856, bought and sold land warrants, and prosecuted claims against the general government for bounty lands, pensions, soldiers' back pay for all who had served the United States in any war since 1790, but he never dreamed of the bonanza in store for the claim agents of 1879 to 1891 and where a solitary wearisome case tried the patience of the claimant and his attorney in that earlier period, now a Lemon or a Lockwood count their thousands of applications and ten thousands of dollars in a constant stream of wealth.

A. Lamson, the dealer in harness and saddles sold and removed to Norristown, the apparent town of the future, and N. G. Davis his successor continued the business in his shop on Main street east side, two doors above the public square. There have been many who have essayed to win a living at this business in Auburn but none have succeeded in the long run as has William Sheffer, who in a quiet way kept on in his unpretentious quarters on the site of the old M. E. church, till last year when he joined with others and the result is the handsome, stylish block occupied in part by himself, by the reading room and by the Boston Clothing store.

The legal firm of Dawson & Dills located at Spencerville had recently been formed and W. H. Dills then a young man, ambitious of success in his calling, was encouraged to make his home in Auburn and in this chapter we take pleasure in giving his memories of the town as he saw the place in the closing days of December.

For many years, Auburn was the Mecca of doctors and in proportion to population the quota of physicians was generally more than filled. All schools of medicine have their representatives and all degrees of profession from the disreputable quack to some of the best in the county have practised in our midst.

Of late years, the marvelous possibilities of electricity have entered upon realization and electric appliances have been proved invaluable,

In 1856, Dr. S. Smith, an electropathic physician located in this town and offered his aid to the afflicted. He made it known that his reliance was alone upon electricity, for medicines were used designed to act directly upon the organs affected. It seems appropriate to quote the axiomatic statement made by him that it is not that physician who gives the most medicine that is most successful; but he who makes the most judicious selection of his medicine.

The first object of the physician is to know what and where the disease is, and electricity rightly applied will determine this and assist in its removal.

We do not know how long Dr. Smith remained, nor how far his truisms influenced patronage but the papers are few and obscure that do not advertise some form of electric appliance for cure of disease even to this day.

In the conduct of its official business the town authorities found it necessary to have a seal and W. W. Griswold acting under their direction bought at a cost of $8 from H. H. Shipley Brothers, of Cincinnati, Ohio, an eccentric lever press and seal for their use. The design is an eagle with circular inscription, "The Town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana."

The superintendent of public instruction speaking of the zeal and liberality of the people of Indiana, in substance said that "town and city corporations have engaged in the school house erection enterprise in various sections of the commonwealth with a spirit worthy of all commendation. Their action has been marked by taste and self-sacrifice."

Among corporation buildings were named Connersville, Franklin, Laporte, Cannelton, Decatur, Muncie, Terre Haute and Auburn and our town was in good company and abreast with the times.

The number of children in Auburn between the ages of five and twenty-one years was 208; the value so far of the school house was given as $1000, the tax assessed for building was 80 cents on each $100, and the amount collected $584 68.

Mr. Houghton, the contractor for building the school house had the preliminary labor of grubbing and clearing the new school lots and was preparing his timbers for the frame.

The town for some months had been without a newspaper and a demand became urgent from several quarters for this convenience and necessity.

Business men wanted a paper whereby to inform the public of bargains to be had, professional men desired to make known their specialty, the people wished the home news and above all politicians needed an organ in which to disseminate the principles of party and their claims to preferment. Almost simultaneously, two newspaper were started in Auburn by representatives of the two great parteis competing for supremacy.

We have been unable to find a single copy of the democratic paper although its career extended over a period of three years.

(To be continued next week.)

What is Good Baking Powder?

It is a well known fact that carbonate of ammonia is used by bakers in the preparation of the finest and most wholesome bread and cake, and has been from time immemorial. It is among the oldest and at the same time most healthful constituents of baking powders. It is all evolved in gas by the heat of the oven, and leaves no trace of itself in the food, and it is this that gives it its great value as a leavening agent in the opinions of the physicians.—New York Journal.

Downed by His Own Figures.

The editor of the Dispatch last week rigged up his double back action advising and dictating machine, and put on its arithmetical attachment. Then he gave it a whirl, and a dazzling array of figures rolled out, the like of which he believed had never been seen in this benighted county, till the lucky day that his giant intellect beamed forth on our darkness.

* * *

By the use of these figures he hoped to prove that the democracy is favoring the corporations, (railroads and telegraphs,) and is against the people whose property is the "real and personal" of the county. And at the conclusion, he brings up the assessment, and the amount of taxes the people and the railroads, etc., paid in 1890, and then the same items for this year. And then he says: See, the people must pay $24,521 more, while the corporations pay only $5.850 more than last year, which shows the wicked democrats are favoring the corporations."

* * *

But stop, let us see. If we have increased at the same rate, both people and corporations, we have not favored the corporations. But we have favored that side on which we have put the smallest increase. We will use his own figures. We have not examined the books to see whether his figures are correct, but will go on the supposition that they are. His figures show that the assessment on corporations, (railroads and telegraphs,) in this county last year was $1,333,520, while their assessment this year is $2,794,350; an increase of 109½ per cent. The real and personal property, owned by the people, showed last year, $5,778,793; this year it is $11,266,245. This shows an increase of 95 per cent. So it will be seen his own figures prove his assertion false, for the assessment has been raised 12 per cent more on the railroads, etc., than on the rest of the county.

* * *

A similar condition is seen in the amount of taxes to be raised on this assessment, for again, the showing is right against him. See. He says the total tax on these corporations last year was $28,816.37; this year, $34,666,92; an increase of 20 per cent. On the real and personal of the people, last year the tax was $135,238.05; this year, $159,759.39, being an average increase of 18 per cent, or 2 per cent less for the personal and real of the people than for corporations, thus again showing by his own figures that this democratic law favors the people rather than the corporations. He could have saved himself the humiliation of this expose, if he had examined his own figures — that is, if he is "good at figgers," which seems doubtful.

* * *

So we see, if we had only increased the tax on the corporations, at the rate we have on the people, the corporations would have to pay an increase of only $5,215 76 instead of the $5,850.55 increase they do really have; that is, according to the Dispatch's own figures, they pay $634 79 more according to their assessment than the people do. And yet he brought up these figurs to prove the contrary. A man who is able to give unlimited advice to everybody, on all sorts of subjects, should have seen this, and not allowed himself to be caught in his own trap.

* * *

Democratic management will appear in a still better light when we consider another fact, that the Dispatch has not noticed. Two townships, Franklin and Fairfield, have no railroads or telegraphs and therefore should not be considered in a comparison between these corporation and the people. The increase of tax in these two townships is $1,651.40 and should be taken from his total of tax on the people. This would reduce the $24,521.34 to $22,869.94 making a still better showing for democratic treatment of the people, as compared with corporations, for the difference in the rates of increase would be still greater in favor of the people.

* * *

If A is assessed $100 and B $1000, then it is not favoring A. to tax him only one-tenth as much as we tax B It is serving both alike. But when, as his own figures show, we tax B not ten times as much as we do A but only eight times as much, it is still plainer that we are not favoring A

* * *

The intellectual and arithmetical department of the Dispatch seems to be out of kilter. We have shown by his own figures, that the conclusions he draws are on the wrong side. We have further proof of his want of honesty in putting out this deceptive statement. For, at the very time he was making this attempt to prove the new democratic assessment law to be bad, he admitted plainly in the auditor's office, that the law was good—the best assessment law we had ever had on our statute books. What excuse can he give for this double dealing? Why should he labor long and hard to make his readers believe the law is bad, and get them dissatisfied with it, when at the same time he quietly admits it is a good law? What is his little game? Evidently, as we have often said, this unscrupulous course is merely to deceive people, and get the democracy to quarreling. The Dispatch has done the same thing in the ditch cases, in its attacks on the commissioners, and on the town council, and with just as little honestly. Its little game is known. It stands out to-day a falsifier and provoker of feuds, a two-faced journal, with a false side turned to the people, and a real side for private use. We are sorry this is so. But we shall withhold our confidence till we hear what explanation it can make for its singular course

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Joaquin Miller's new story, "The Red Shield" is published entire and exclusively in the Christmas (December) number of of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. It is a dramatic and highly colored romance drawn from the exciting history of the foundation of the great banking house of the Rothschilds, in the early part of the present century. Another feature is the graphic narrative of a visit to "The Seminoles at Home" in the Florida Everglades, by Caroline Washburn Rockwood, author of "In Biscayan Bay," and profusely illustrated from photographs (the first ever taken of these Seminole braves) by Mr. Thomas A. Hine. Other important illustrated articles are Clara C. Gilson's personal reminiscences of "Agassiz at Cambridge"; "Spurgeon," by Dr. Ferdinand C. Iglehart; "Why the Holy Places Remain in the Hands of the Turks"; and "Animal Training and Intelligence," by Ernest Ingersoll. There is an abundance of seasonable Christmas matter, together with the usual variety of tales, poems and miscellany.

DEATH OF GOV. A. P. HOVEY, OF INDIANA.

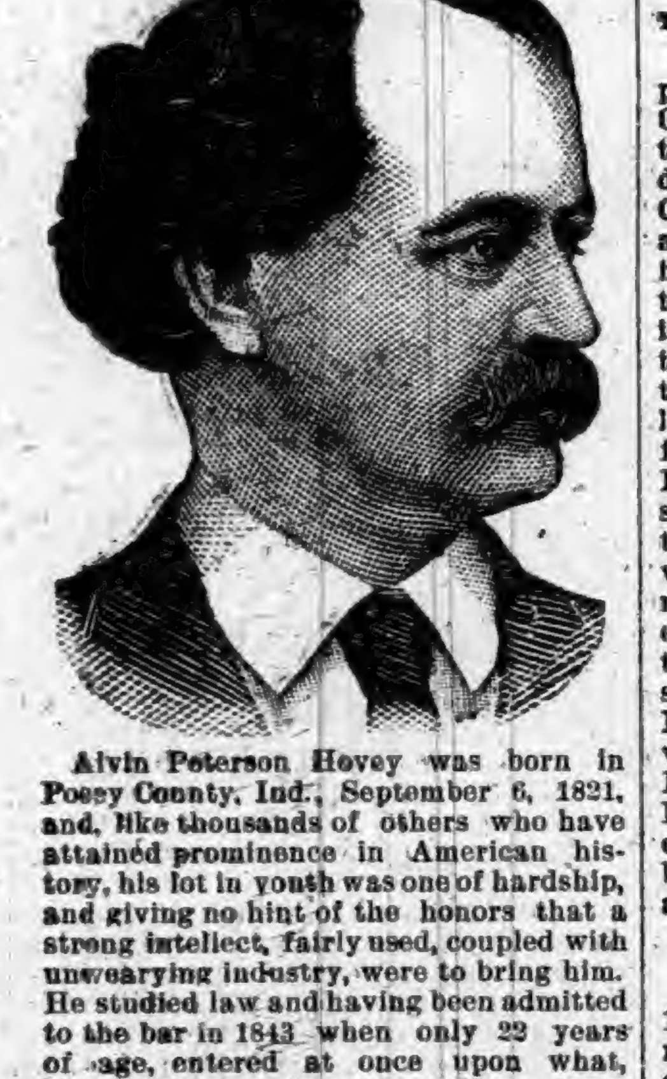
INDIANA MOURNS.

Governor Alvin P. Hovey Dead.

Indianapolis special: Gen. Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indiana, died at 1:20 p. m. Monday. He has been ill for some time, but it was believed he was improving. His death is a shock to the whole State.

Gov. Hovey and staff recently returned from a trip to the City of Mexico, upon which they were received with marked courtesy by President Diaz and other high officials of the Southern Republic. Gov. Hovey, when he reached Indianapolis, was suffering from a severe cold which soon developed into acute pneumonia and resulted in the Governor's death.



Alvin Peterson Hovey was born in Posey County, Ind., September 6, 1821, and, like thousands of others who have attained prominence in American history, his lot in youth was one of hardship, and giving no hint of the honors that a strong intellect, fairly used, coupled with unwearying industry, were to bring him. He studied law and having been admitted to the bar in 1843 when only 22 years of age, entered at once upon what, his youth and surroundings considered, was a successful and lucrative practice as an attorney. For seven years he devoted himself to his profession, but in 1850 he was elected a delegate to the convention by which the constitution of Indiana was revised and so greatly did he distinguish himself in that body that in the next year he was chosen Circuit Judge for the Third Judicial District of his State, and after three years' service upon that bench was in 1854 made one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Indiana.

When the war broke out he instantly cast aside his judicial robes and enlisted in the volunteer service. He served with distinction until its close, coming out as a major general.

The war being ended, he resigned his commission in the army in October, 1865, and soon afterward was appointed United States Minister to Peru. Holding that post for five years he resigned it in 1870, when he returned to Indiana and resumed the practice of the law to which he confined himself for the next sixteen years, but all the time having a keen interest in public affairs, both National and State, always being an active Republican, and putting his ability as a public speaker at the service of the party.

In 1886 he was a candidate of his party for Congress and was elected in a close district. In the House of Representatives he showed so much more of civic ability than he had been thought to possess that in 1888 he was made the nominee of his party for Governor of his State and entered at once upon the hottest political campaign the State has ever known. He was elected by a plurality of 2,200 votes.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Servants and One Child Perish in a Hotel Fire at Jamestown.

A fatal fire in which four persons lost their lives occurred at Jamestown, N. Y. Flames were discovered in the kitchen of the Old Homestead, a hotel at Third and Pine streets. The building was entirely destroyed, with nothing but the walls remaining standing. It was not known for an hour but that all the occupants had escaped. A fireman, in making his way into the building, stumbled over the charred body of Maggie Wilson, a waiter girl, twenty years of age. It is said her escape was cut off by a bolted door. The bodies of the other three victims were found in one room, where they slept. None of them were burned, but they had been suffocated. They were Mrs. Buchanan, the pastry cook, her little boy, who came to visit his mother and remained over night, and Mrs. Marsh, a dish-washer. Mrs. Buchanan and her boy were locked in each other's arms near the door of the room. Mrs. Marsh was in bed.

A Snow Storm Saves a Town.

Fire started in the Bertig Block at Paragould, Ark., destroying Bertig Brothers' dry goods store, Hick's drug store, Newcome's grocery, Goldman's dry goods store, and several saloons. A heavy snow storm probably saved the town from destruction. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

$400,000 Fire at Minneapolis.

The North Star boot and shoe building at Minneapolis caught fire by some unknown means, and was totally destroyed.

Gone Wrong.

Wm. Deering & Co., of Omaha, has caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of Charles W. Keith, manager and general agent for Iowa and Michigan, charging him with embezzlement. Keith cannot be found, and the amount of his shortage is unknown.

Minneapolis Gets It.

The National Republican Committee have decided that the next Republican Convention will be held in Minneapolis, Minn.

A Victim of Drink.

Cincinnati special: Another sad picture of the effect of drunkenness was in the Police Court recently. The victim was Kate Buschamp, widow of the unfortunate George Buschamp, who, with poor Jerry Bray, lost his life in the Strobie fire at Elm and Canal two years ago. After Buschamp's death his wife was put on the pension list of the Fire Department, and she was in a fair way to live and care for her children. She was a model wife and mother, but the death of her husband upset her. She began to drink to drown her trouble and the habit grew on her until she became a confirmed drunkard. She was in the Police Court clad only in a thin calico wrapper. She was without hat or wrap, and was stiff with cold when the officer arrested her. Judge Gregg sent her to the work-house for thirty days and fined her $25 and costs.

ENGINES COLLIDE.

Passengers Hurled Down an Embankment.

Philadelphia special: At Augensbaugh Station on the Philadelphia and Erie railroad, two men were killed outright, and one sustained injuries that are likely to prove fatal. Twelve or fifteen of the passengers were badly shaken up and bruised. Two engines were demolished and half a dozen coaches badly damaged. Two express trains running at a high rate of speed collided, and the crew of one of them jumped from their engine and were hurled down an embankment. They are all badly hurt, although none fatally. Lum Ray, one of the train hands, and a passenger named Harry Bard, were killed outright. The engineer was hurled into the air and both of his legs broken, and he received other injuries from which he cannot recover. The tracks were torn up for a considerable distance and debris scattered in all directions. The two ponderous machines were locked together in an iron grasp, and almost totally destroyed. The tenders were thrown around and reversed from their respective engines, and either side of the track was strewn with pieces of machinery and broken cars.

KANSAS CITY GOLD.

The Bursted Boom Town's Strange Freak.

Kansas City special: A shaft will probably be sunk on the land owned by George R. Nelson, across the river, for the purpose of testing the value of the discovery of gold made by Mr. Wentrock. City Engineer Butts and Mr. Nelson held a conference, and Mr. Butts said that his confidence in the discovery is such that if reasonable terms can be made he is willing to bear the expense of sinking the shaft. I am satisfied that the bed of gold-bearing sand lies below the shale. The boring was so carefully done as to warrant that opinion. I don't know how thick the auriferous stratum is, but it probably extends twenty or thirty feet down. You know we went into it only four feet. Comments on this discovery are based on the experience of all the Missouri Valley towns where gold has been found in the sands, but not in paying quantities. Note this important distinction, this gold was deposited here before there was any Missouri River. It is beneath the shale. In my opinion the deposit covers 2,000 or 3,000 acres. Of course if the gold-bearing sands extend under it, there is at least $1,000,000 in it.

Roasted Alive.

Columbus (Ohio) special: Louis, the 16-year-old son of David Miller, who resides about six miles northeast of this city, has met with a peculiarly horrible death. Mr. Miller is a well-to-do farmer. As he has an extensive farm there is need for considerable repair work about the place, and a blacksmith forge is located about fifty yards from the house. Young Louis frequently worked about the forge, and assisted his father in making repairs. He was subject to epileptic fits.

The other morning he was working in the blacksmith shop by himself. His father, with a farm hand, was working in a field near the shop. About 11 o'clock they had not seen Louis for some time, and noticing the odor of burning cloth, they hastened to the shop. The father entered first and was horrified at the sight presented. His son lay upon the live coals and the fire was literally cooking him alive. As he had had a fit he was unable to call for assistance or help himself. Mr. Miller pulled the boy out of the fire and quenched the flames as soon as possible. He was roasted from head to foot, but remained conscious until he died. Mr. Miller was quite badly burned in attempting to save the boy.

Overcome by Gas.

At La Pelle, Ind., a family of three persons was asphyxiated by natural gas. Mrs. Harry Hoffman and her two grown sons were the victims. There seems to have been a defect in the draft causing the lighted gas to become extinguished, and filling the house soon stupified the inmates. The lateness in rising in the morning was a subject of comment among the neighbors, who proceeded to investigate. Finding all the doors locked they broke in a window and discovered Newton Hoffman, the younger son, lying in an unnatural and lifeless manner on his bed. Immediately the rooms of Mrs. Hoffman, the mother, and the older son were entered and they were found in the throes of death and were brought out into the open air and every effort made to revive them. The attending physicians say, however, that the chances are against their recovery.

Coming to Her Senses.

Valparaiso special: Chili has at length conceded a point to the United States in her treatment of the case of assault upon the Baltimore's sailors. Capt. Schley has received a notice granting his request that the United States representatives be furnished by the Court of Inquiry with copies of all depositions made before its investigations. It will be remembered that this same request had been absolutely refused on all previous occasions. It is supposed that the Chilian authorities, finding that our Government was maintaining a fair, but firm attitude, has determined to meet it half way. It has become known in Santiago that the United States was despatching a large number of war ships to the Pacific squadron, and there is no doubt that this news had a good effect on Chili.

No Foreign Cardinals.

Rome special: The statement is made on good ecclesiastical authority that no foreign cardinals will be appointed at the consistory on Dec. 14. The Pope is said to be desirous of keeping the college thoroughly Italian, and only Italians well trusted by His Holiness will be named as princes of the church. Most of the present cardinals are creations of Pope Leo, and if he lives a few years longer the whole college will probably be his creation. It is said that the Pope hesitates about the appointment of foreign cardinals for fear of showing a preference that might occasion ill-feeling toward the papacy. Recent events in France and Germany have, it is asserted, made the Pope especially cautious.

A Terrific Explosion.

Paris special: A dastardly attempt to destroy valuable property was made at Decazeville, a village in Aveyron, nineteen miles north. In the neighborhood of Decazeville there is situated a silver lead mine, which is worked by a syndicate of English capitalists. Had the explosion occurred while the men employed in the mine were at work it is doubtful if one of them would have escaped with his life. So great is the damage that it will take a month to put the mine in a condition that will allow of its again being worked. There is no clew to the perpetrators of the deed, and no reason is known for the heinous act.

Started to Find Tascott.

Winnipeg (Man.) special: Mr. Shoengen, Special Chinese Agent of the United States Treasurer, has gone to Chicago. Mr. Shoengen believes that Tascott is living with the Indians in the Turtle Mountains, and, inspired by the promised reward of $50,000 for the fugitive's capture, set out last week from Killarney for the mountains. He had not gone many miles when he found traveling very difficult owing to the depth of snow on the ground. He determined, however, to push on until evening. However, the unexpected appearance of a pack of wolves caused him to decide that Tascott could wait, and he returned with all speed.

Lost at Sea.

The White Star Line steamer Britannic has arrived at New York after one of the roughest voyages the vessel has experienced in her seventeen years of buffeting the waves of the Atlantic. She left Liverpool on the 11th inst., when a terrific gale was sweeping around the British coast and playing havoc with shipping. She immediately ran into a boiling sea, that sent mighty volumes of water over the vessel. The crew were compelled to cling to ropes to keep from being swept overboard. One tremendous sea boarded the vessel, swept over the deck, and carried with it Quartermaster Thomas McKenzie, who in going over the rail gave a piercing shriek of despair. He disappeared in the angry waters, and was seen no more, as in such a sea nothing could be done for him.

Almost a Calamity.

Lester's boot and shoe factory, at Lestesshire, N. Y., employing 700 hands, was partly demolished by the high gale. The north wall went down with a terrific crash, and the hands, panic stricken, rushed for the doors and windows. Men trampled on each other in their mad flight. Fortunately no one was fatally injured. Large posts used in the construction of the building kept the floor with its tons of machinery from sinking. The plant is valued at over $1,000,000. Daniel Lamont and ex-Secretary of Treasury Fairchild are the principal stockholders.

The Switchmen Win.

Twenty-eight Wheeling and Lake Erie switchmen at Toledo, who went on a strike on the 11th inst., have reached an agreement with the road. By the agreement Superintendent Woodford concedes everything excepting the reinstatement of R. L. Denzig, whose discharge caused the strike. The wages will henceforth be the same as paid on the Lake Shore. The agreement is considered a victory for the men.

All Drowned.

London special: A telegram has been received here from the Marquis of Lansdowne, Viceroy of India, stating that no doubts are entertained that the pilot brig Culdoon foundered during a terrific hurricane which recently passed over the Andaman Islands and the Bay of Bengal. The Culdoon had a crew of six British officers and thirty-five natives, and it is believed that all were drowned.

The Comical Sociares.

While out coon-hunting, Ab Smith, his son Clark and a neighbor, Press Jones, all living four miles north of Lynchburg, Ohio, treed a panther or wildcat. The latter came down the tree to act on the offensive, and the hunters were compelled to fly for their lives, as they had no weapons, except an ax. The panther tore one dog into shreds and badly lacerated another.

Masked Females.

A masked body of females made a raid upon a disreputable house in Coldwater, Ohio, the other night. The inmates were horribly beaten and the house literally torn to pieces. Two of them were taken to a small stream running through the place and treated to a cold bath. The participants in the affair proved to be some of the best women in the town.

A Revengeful Murder.

W. D. Bracewell was murdered by D. W. Smith at the latter's saw-mill in Laurens County, Ga. Smith has disappeared. It is said the murder was committed out of revenge, Smith believing that Bracewell killed his father, who was murdered in a very mysterious manner some years ago.

A Leg's Journey.

Mr. Sigel Dearth met a horrible death near Hamden, Ohio, by being litterally ground to pieces by a fast flying passenger train. One leg was found four miles distant from where the accident occurred. The unfortunate man was married some months ago.

Lord Stanley Will Resign.

Ottawa (Ont.) special: A report is current that Lord Stanley will resign the Governor Generalship next month. It is understood that he and Lady Stanley find their position here very irksome and would be glad to leave.

Fatally Injured.

A tenement at New York was damaged to the extent of $3,000 by fire. All the inmates escaped with the exception of Mrs. Barbara Krueger, who was burned so horribly that she died in a few hours.

Under a Train.

William Throne, 20 years old, brakeman on the E. & T. H. railroad, fell beneath a moving train at Evansville, Ind., and was literally ground to pieces. He was new at the business.

An Immoral Show.

The manager of May Davenport's female aggregation was fined at Massillon, Ohio, for giving a lewd, vulgar and lascivious show.

GRAIN CAN'T BE MOVED

NORTHWESTERN ROADS ALL SHORT OF CARS.

Although New Rolling Stock Was Largely Bought, There Are Still Thousands of Cars Needed—Locomotives Never Laid Up—Suffering Will Ensue.

Grave Cause for Alarm.

"We could use 2,000 more cars to great advantage did we have them and the locomotives to pull them," said Assistant General Freight Agent Keeley, of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company. "In the far West and Northwest every available cubic inch of space under cover is filled to overflowing with grain. We are striving to the utmost to give the necessary aid. We give the remote sections the preference, and to demonstrate how earnest our efforts let me say our locomotives are worked as they never were before. The moment one crew leaves another takes the engine in hand. Seventeen crews to six engines is the present record. The farmers, nearly every one of them, are behind in their payments and must have money. Should the snow prevent the movement of grain starvation will in many localities end the suffering of struggling families. They must have coal and food. To obtain these they must secure a market for their crops, and if the country buyers cannot move the grain then no money can be paid for it."

The Chicago and Northwestern tells the same story. An official says: The lines connecting with the seaboard are crowded to their greatest capacity. There are no cars for rental. Even the Southern lines are without extra "empties." The Northwestern is doing its utmost to break the blockade. Every available car is sent to the Northwestern grain belts. But traffic is unusually heavy in all commodities and the cars must go out loaded. There are few empty cars in the country at the present time. The farmers, owing to their need of ready money, are striving to deliver to the buyers at least 50 per cent. of their crops. There is elevator room for only a small portion of this vast amount of grain.

George H. Ross, superintendent of car and special freight service of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, said the company could use 1,000 cars more than it now had to good advantage. Corn would soon begin to pour in, and then a greater shortage in cars would be made apparent. The new crop would be in active movement during December, and a grain blockade would be almost certain. The Eastern lines were now unable to meet the demands made upon them. What would be the situation in December he dared not predict.

"God help the farmers of the Northwest should there be a snow blockade this winter."

This is the sentiment expressed by the officials of every railroad over whose lines the products of the great grain belts are to be moved. By reason of the anxiety of the farmers to convert their crops into cash at the earliest possible moment the carrying capacity of each company is far too limited to meet the clamorous demand. How long this freight-car famine will continue is solely a matter of conjecture. The enormous yield of all cereals, estimated at more than 700,000,000 bushels in excess of the crop of 1890, and the greatly increased demand for commodities of every kind are the reasons why the railways are short from 500 to 2,500 cars each. All employes, all locomotives and all cars are being worked to the utmost limit.

The poor crops of the last two years reduced the tillers of the soil in the Northwest to extreme poverty. Money they must have. The lavish kindness of nature in the wheat fields of 1891 has again filled with hope the hearts of these farmers. The interest on their mortgages may now be paid. Seed for next year's sowing is assured. But their surplus grain must be converted into cash. These are the principal reasons why the people of the Northwest are clamoring for cars. Their elevators—of limited capacity—are filled. Bins, bed rooms, barns, and even tents are bursting with grain. Five hundred million bushels not yet thrashed are stacked upon the prairies. The buyers can take no more. They have no place to store it. To give relief the railway companies are doing all that is possible.

Every railway through the great Northwestern wheat belt has made special preparation for hauling to market the phenomenal wheat crop. More freight cars were purchased than in any other year in the railroad history of this section. In addition the cars were enlarged and 700 bushels of wheat has become a standard car instead of 500 as heretofore, but all preparations are inadequate, and every road reports a car famine. The crop is moving even more rapidly than was expected and cars cannot be supplied to meet the demand. The Railway Commission has received and investigated a score of complaints and in every case it has been shown that it was sheer inability on the part of the companies to furnish sufficient cars. The roads having the longest hauls are suffering the most severely, with the exception of the Northern lines, from whose territory little complaint comes. The greatest apprehension is now felt for the coal supply. Through that great section of Western country supplied with coal via the lakes and Duluth the demand for cars is now the greatest for the crops, and the present cold snap has so stimulated the demand for coal as to excite the fear that the car famine will be intensified later on.

So great is the shortage of freight cars on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe that the farmers of Kansas and the Southwest are terribly depressed over the poor prospect of an early movement of their crops. The company is exerting every effort to move the corn and wheat, and would willingly pay a premium over and above the mileage for empty cars. The farmers of the Southwest, while they need money quite as badly as their brethren of the Northwest, do not face starvation as do the latter by reason of the inability of the railroads to handle the grain.

"Rushed to our limit," and "Not cars enough by the hundreds" are the replies of the managers of the Eastern lines. So heavy, indeed, is the demand for cars that many shipments of grain go across the ocean via New Orleans. So it is that the railroads running into Dixie are in but little better shape than those of the North, West and East.

The Flint and Pere Marquette Railroad, which by reason of its differential rate was able to carry grain to the seaboard cheaper than the all-rail lines, is, it is said, in as bad shape as its Western connections. The Northwestern has issued to its agents in the Northwest orders not to accept any freight for delivery to the Flint and Pere Marquette. It is said the latter's inability to handle the cereal is the cause of the prohibitive order.

ST. LOUIS SCORCHED.

WITH TWO MILLIONS LOSS, SHE OUTDOES CHICAGO.

Her Gallant Firemen Suffer from Biting Cold and Stifling Smoke—List of the Losers—Minneapolis Also Greets the Cold Snap Warmly.

Work of Fierce Flames.

Two million dollars went up in smoke at St. Louis, and three of the largest business houses in the city and a half dozen smaller buildings are a mass of ruins. The fire started in the millinery store of Penny & Gentles, corner of Franklin avenue and Broadway. A second and third alarm were sounded within fifteen minutes, and the almost complete force of the fire department responded. The flames spread at a rapid rate, the material which they fed upon being of a highly inflammable character. A strong west wind was blowing at the time, which made the work of the firemen perilous and for a time fruitless. Within half an hour the large dry goods store of Sonnenfelds, which adjoined Penny & Gentles', was afire, and the flames were working their way to the Famous mammoth shoe house on the corner of Broadway and Morgan street. Four firemen were caught in the Famous Building and were overcome by smoke. They were rescued by their companions. The weather was bitterly cold and the firemen, hose, wagon and all matter not in the immediate vicinity of the flames was covered with ice.

Within an hour the entire block on the west side of Broadway, between Franklin avenue and Morgan street, was a mass of flames, which were being fanned by a strong wind, and, being carried across the street, threatened destruction to the immense dry-goods house of D. Crawford & Co., and the furniture store of Koppleman & Co. The firemen poured their streams of water into the fire blindly, as the smoke was so dense and the odor of burning ribbons, feathers, cloth and shoes so strong that they could not remain on the windward side. The fire raged for two hours, and it was only by the almost superhuman work of the firemen that a tremendous conflagration was averted.

During one of the many collapses of burning floors in the different buildings two firemen named Lynch and Simon were caught by the falling of loose bricks and timbers. Both men were badly hurt, and were carried to the hospital in an ambulance. The watchman at Sonnenfelds' establishment is missing, and it is feared that he may be in the ruins.

Across from Penny & Gentles' on Franklin avenue were the establishments of Grierson & Co., hatters, Ed F. Bohl and a drug store on the corner of Broadway and Franklin avenue. These places were badly damaged by smoke and water. The wind had died away considerably and the firemen were able to do battle with greater success. The whole block on the east side of Broadway, between Franklin avenue and Morgan street, including the establishment of D. Crawford & Co., was damaged by fire and smoke. It took hard and active work to prevent the flames from going down Morgan street to Fourth, as all the buildings were old and inflammable.

When control was gained, the block of buildings, which before was filled with holiday goods, was a mass of charred timber, and the main part of the walls had fallen. The stores of Sonnenfelds, Penny & Gentles and the Famous Shoe House (the largest shoe house in the West) were wiped out by flames. On Franklin avenue, opposite Penny & Gentles' establishment, was a block of retail stores. These were seriously damaged. The occupants were O. W. Heyer, dry goods; Grierson & Co., hatters; Ed F. Bohl, hatter; P. H. Coulkamp & Co., clothiers; St. Louis Tailoring Company; C. Beemer & Co., clothing; Charles T. Lange, clothing; L. Volking, boots and shoes; Geo. R. Stamper, dry goods; Franklin saloon and Halser & Co., dry goods.

A close estimate places the loss of the Famous Company as follows: On stock, $600,000; insurance, $400,000. Penny & Gentles' loss, $175,000; insurance, $100,000. Sonnenfeld's loss, $125,000; insurance, $75,000. The other losses will make the aggregate losses reach nearly two millions of dollars.

On the east side of Broadway the Weinman House, a four-story brick hotel, was completely destroyed. The "Square Deal Clothing Company," E. B. Stow & Co., grocers; M. Toblin, millinery; G. Thal & Co., clothing; the New York Millinery Company, and the Koppelman Furniture Company were so badly damaged by smoke and water that their loss will be total.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have been caused by an overheated stove or a defective flue. Four firemen were compelled to slide down the hose pipe from the fourth story of the "Famous" store during the fire, but all escaped uninjured.

BIG BLAZE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Lindsay Bros. and the Minneapolis Glass Company Burned Out.

At Minneapolis the wholesale house of the Minneapolis Glass Company and Lindsay Bros., agricultural implements, were burned. The total loss will be nearly $200,000. The losses and insurance are: Minneapolis Glass Company $110,000, insurance $111,500; Lindsay Bros. $75,000, insurance $21,500; Barclay Cooper, on building, $15,000, insurance $12,200.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The Red Rag.

It becomes more evident each day that one flag is enough for this country.—Lawrence Journal.

The red flag of the anarchists is a danger signal, and we all know what is likely to happen when danger signals are disregarded.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Chicago police did just right in compelling those rampant anarchists to display the American flag at their revolutionary meeting.—Utica Herald.

Some of these days Chicago will have a lynching in comparison with which the hanging of the Mafia assassins at New Orleans will appear trivial.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is only a small red flag—a harmless piece of cloth—but that red flag represents a sentiment that is at war with everything that is distinctively American.—Knoxville Journal.

The Chicago police are looking after the anarchists who seem to be growing bold again. It would seem that the last lesson should not have been so soon forgotten.—Peoria Transcript.

The insistance that the American flag be raised at a meeting of the anarchists in Chicago along with the red flag was very proper. The anarchists, it is to be hoped, will learn wisdom with experience.—Milwaukee News.

We do not apprehend much danger to American institutions from the anarchists as long as they confine their operations to Chicago, for that city has shown that it knows how to deal with gentry of this stripe.—New Orleans Delta.

The red flag can be the symbol here of nothing but murder and robbery. People who want to keep green the memory of Spies and Parsons can hardly be held too strictly to a respect for the symbol of law and order.—New York World.

Chicago anarchists are having a pretty tough time of it, but not a whit tougher than they deserve. If some of the same medicine had been applied about ten years ago there would not have been a haymarket massacre.—Kansas City Times.

The red flag contingent in Chicago is a public danger and all decent men should unite in sustaining the hands of the administration in extinguishing the embers of anarchy before they break out into a destructive conflagration.—Springfield Journal.

When there is a real and pressing danger an inflammatory speech is the impulse of the lawless act. Your doer is merely the instrument, the machine, to carry out the thought of the speaker, who lights the fuse. We need not always wait for the explosion.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Chicago anarchists are again demanding public attention. The only time when these fellows appeared to any advantage was on that cold 11th of November, 1887. So brilliant was that event that the five red-shirted victims who were the guests of Chicago at that time have never come back to object to the amenities of the occasion.—Columbus Journal.

Dom Pedro.

Dom Pedro is reported to be as "willin'" as was the somewhat noted Mr. Barkis.—Worcester Spy.

It really looks as though Dom Pedro would not only return to Brazil to die, but to reign some time before his death. —Boston News.

Dom Pedro has grown tired of being "out in the cold world," and is ready to return to Brazil, no matter how torrid it may be there.—Kansas City Times.

There would be stronger and more general confidence in his peace-restoring power if he had made a fight for his throne when it was first assailed.—Denver Sun.

Ex-Emperor Dom Pedro, late of Brazil, is in the hands of his friends, and is ready to resume business at the old stand whenever his country calls him.—Boston Herald.

Dom Pedro is announced as a deep sympathizer with the people of Brazil. A king or emperor out of a job always has very keen sensibilities touching the people who have deprived him of his situation.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Dom Pedro says he is "ready to return if the nation desires dis presence, in order in his old age to render a final service to the union, integrity and greatness to his fatherland." Really the ex-Emperor is too kind.—Minneapolis Tribune.

It was a pathetic picture to see old Dom Pedro sailing from Brazil an exile and a deposed monarch, but it is absolutely pitiful to see him looking across the water to his distracted country and hoping to be recalled. There is not much of the emperor in it, but much of the foolish old man that touches the heart deeply.—Baltimore Herald.

Pale Luna's Eclipse.

There was an eclipse on the moon's eclipse, but nevertheless science got in some of its best work on the uneclipsed part of the proceeding.—Washington Star.

The eclipse of the moon as advertised took place sure enough. Luna always keeps her engagements. But she doesn't pretend to guarantee the weather.—Utica Observer.

The eclipse passed off without our learned astronomers learning the secret of the moon's composition. The green cheese hypothesis still holds sway.—Minneapolis Times.

The pale, inconstant moon disappointed Baltimore in her eclipse engagement. Clouds veiled her from view. Perhaps the jade was off flirting with Jupiter.—Baltimore Herald.

Chicago is growling because the clouds obscured its view of the eclipse. Everybody knows Chicago wants the earth, and now it appears she wants the moon as well.—Toledo Blade.

The moon had her eclipse just as if it hadn't been Sunday. If the good people who are trying to have the world's fair closed on Sunday could have had their way her ladyship would, no doubt, have been locked up for Sabbath breaking.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

When she was all ready for the eclipse the moon quietly drew her face behind a bank of gray clouds. It seemed an act of delicate shyness very worthy of pale Luna. But do you remember Yum Yum's song in the opera?

But pray make no mistake,
We are not shy,
We're very wide awake,
The moon and I.

Much too wide awake, this gay and flirty moon, to miss the chance of fooling the earth's expectant scientists.—New York World.

Train Robbers.

Train robbery is to modern society what piracy was on the high seas in the days of the buccaneers.—Philadelphia Record.

Train robbing should really be made a capital offense. The law should threaten the crime with a rope for the reason that the train robbers contemplate doing murder if necessary.—Memphis Avalanche.

The train robber has made himself as dangerous and definite a character as the highwayman of last century, and the railroads need to take forcible measures to circumvent and suppress him.—Philadelphia Times.

Several days ago the City School Board of Wabash purchased flags, and they were formally presented to the public schools and raised over each building. The presentation exercises were held in the High School Building, where all the pupils and a large number of patrons were assembled. Superintendent Harrison made the presentation on behalf of the School Board, and speeches were made by Rev. Lamport, B. F. Williams and others. Mrs. Shaw died at Valparaiso mourning her wayward boy as dead, but, with the faint hope that young Shaw might be living, she provided in her will that he should become the heir of her fortune. SAVED AT LAST.

AUBURN, IND., Oct. 3, 1890.

Dr. J. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,
R. McDOUGALL.

CHAPTER IV.

THE PURSUIT.

On and on with the speed of the wind dashed the two horses, bearing in flight to safety the intrepid Darrel Grey and the courageous and lovely Inez Tracey.

Before them, mile after mile, spread the broad, level prairie, in places like an emerald carpet dotted with spangles of flowers of the rarest hue and beauty, and again grown high with rank, heavy grass.

The horses they rode were rapid travelers, and within an hour, as they glanced backward, they saw no sign of their pursuers.

"Your enemies have either abandoned the chase, or the long grass hides them," remarked Darrel, as he allowed the horses to proceed more slowly and glanced over the fair moonlit picture spread before them, and then at the girl at his side.

Darrel Grey had led an adventurous life and had seen many fair women in many climes, but, he confessed, as he gazed at the lovely creature who was his companion in flight, none so beautiful as Inez Tracey.

Perhaps it was the novelty and excitement of their situation; perhaps it was because two earnest, ingenuous spirits had met and recognized a magnetic congeniality in youth and beauty; but at all events, as their eyes met, love became mutual though unexpressed.

Inez Tracey found an interested listener in Darrel Grey, when she briefly related her past and the events that had culminated in the adventure of the night.

In return, Darrel told her who he was—a surveyor sent West on business. He had become fascinated with a wild Western life, and had for some years been engaged in the law and mining business in California.

He was about to return East in a few weeks, and quite by accident had come to the little station at Ten Spot, crossing thither in a stage coach from a mining settlement located in the mountains that day.

Darrel briefly related the episode of the wounded messenger, and modestly referred to his adventure at the trestle.

The deep blue eyes of Inez Tracey looked into his own, as she listened breathlessly to his story of the attempted signal to the train.

"We have been proceeding aimlessly, thinking only of evading our foes," said Darrel, finally. "I am, in a measure, unacquainted in this locality except at the mining camps in the hills."

"I wished to reach Miner's Gulch, if possible," said Inez, "but I am at a loss to locate it."

"Then you have been here before?" asked Darrel.

"Yes; I came to see my father about five years ago. Since then I have been at school in California, which I left last week when I received a letter directing me to come here, and that a friend of my dead father would meet and care for me."

"And this man whom you call Despard—he is a relative, you say?" inquired Darrel, curiously.

"A very distant one of my father, who never liked him and warned me against him. Last summer he met me at a summer resort, whither our teachers had taken us for a week's vacation. I had met him at my father's ranch, beyond Miner's Gulch, and I never liked him. He annoyed me with his attentions, and left me very angry when I avoided him, and told him finally that I did not wish to continue the acquaintance, for I received a letter from my father warning me against him, and telling me that Dyke Despard was plotting against him and myself, and that he was a renegade and an outlaw."

"And since then?" asked Darrel.

"I have never met him until to-night, when you heard what he said, and know that he must have some deep object in preventing my going to the Gulch."

"Then he will be disappointed for once, Miss Tracey," said Darrel; "for we can find the place by morning. Oh, it just occurred to me! You say you expected a friend to meet you at the depot?"

"Yes; an old friend of my father; a man who has been known in this region for years as a scout. His name is Ranger Ralph."

"I have heard of him. Do you know him—that is, well enough to recognize him from description?"

"I have not seen him since I was a child. I do not think I would. Why do you ask?"

"Because I have an idea that these horses belong to him, and that he is the man who told me first of the train-wreckers. If this is so, the horses probably came from Miner's Gulch, and we will allow them to proceed their own way. They may lead us to the very place to which you desire to go."

Darrel loosened the rudely improvised bridle and allowed the steeds to take their own course. They now began to leave the prairie and finally entered a canyon, following the course of a little stream.

"There seems to be a regular trail here," said Darrel. "I believe we are on the right road at last, Miss Tracey."

"You are taking a great deal of trouble for me," murmured Inez, gratefully.

"What! in running away from the outlaw myself to a place of safety?" laughed Darrel, banteringly. "No, no; we were partners in peril at the railroad train, and but for you I might have remained and been killed. As it is, as soon as I have placed you out of danger, I will return and learn the fate of those who were attacked by the train wreckers."

As they rode on, however, Darrel wished that such charming companionship could last always.

The dawn had come while they were riding through the canyon. It was scarcely distinguishable from the moonlight as yet, but soon they knew the full day would break, enabling them more accurately to determine their whereabouts.

That the horses were leading them direct to Miners' Gulch Darrel did not doubt; but a new discovery soon caused the faithful animals to come under the guidance of Darrel again. For at a point where the canyon divided into several minor branches, the girl startled him with a low cry of alarm.

"What is it?" asked Darrel quickly.

"Look!"

He repeated her own ejaculation of concern, as the advancing daylight showed an obstacle to their onward progress down the main canyon.

Coming rapidly toward them from the direction in which they were going were four horsemen.

They were some distance away, but as Inez shuddered and paled, her escort knew that, like himself, she had recognized the leader of the quartette.

"It is Despard and his men!" she gasped, in tones of horror and alarm.

"I fear so, Miss Tracey."

"And they are coming straight toward us. Oh, what shall we do!"

Darrel Grey had taken a revolver from his belt and a determined look came into his face.

"Drive the horses around the rocks yonder so you will be sheltered," he said, as he prepared to dismount.

A trembling hand detained his own.

"No, no! Mr Grey, you must not meet these men, they are armed and desperate, and four to one."

"I see no way except to meet and repel them," said Darrel, stanchly; "these men have not come across us again by accident."

"By design?"

"Evidently. They know the country and knew we would probably come this way, and have intercepted us by reaching the canyon here in advance of us."

"Are we discovered?"

"They cannot but have seen us. Miss Tracey, I beg of you to obey me, and leave me here alone."

"But your peril—for my sake!"

"I will not invite any unnecessary risk. Ride as rapidly as you can down one of the side canyons, and do not wait for me nor delay on my account. I will cover your escape and, once satisfied you are out of danger of recapture, will rejoin you unless you reach the gulch before I do so."

Darrel cut loose the connecting strip of lasso as he spoke.

"Heaven grant you may not be forced to meet Despard and his men!" she breathed fervently.

"Fly!" spoke Darrel, excitedly.

He could see that the horsemen down the canyon were winding in and out the rocks as rapidly as they could, and would soon reach the spot where he was.

Darrel dismounted and led the horse toward the shelter of a small clump of high, thick bushes.

Then he himself selected a place of espionage and defense behind some rocks.

The four riders came into view as he cast a quick glance down the canyon where Inez had gone.

To his surprise he could observe no trace of her.

"She must have reached some diverging gulch and have pursued a new course," he decided. "At all events, she is not in sight for the bandits to discover."

Darrel resolved to force no encounter with the latter unless necessity demanded it; for his single revolver would be a poor match for the full accouterments of his enemies.

The hoofs of horses rang out sharply on the clear morning air, and the quartette rounded the last of the rocks which had temporarily shut out a view of the persons they sought.

"We certainly saw them here," remarked Danton.

"Then they have taken the side canyons," spoke Despard.

Danton laughed triumphantly. "They are our game if they have," he said.

"Why so?" asked one of the men.

"Because every last one of them ends in a blank wall."

Darrel Grey, from his place of concealment, started violently.

"Divide. Here are four of these side canyons. Down one of them our people have certainly gone."

"They are nowhere in sight."

"They could have gone nowhere else. Let each man follow one of these side branches, and signal when he discovers them."

"They will be found, never fear," said Danton. "They thought to escape, but they are in a trap this time. Hold on, Vance."

The man he had addressed had started his horse toward the side canyon down which Inez had disappeared a few moments before.

"Why, what's the matter?"

"You needn't search that pass."

"Not search it?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"It would be no use, and dangerous to yourself. That is Quicksand Gully."

"I never heard of it before," said Vance.

"That's because you don't know the country as I do. The man who rides into the shifting sands at the end of that gully never comes out again."

The heart of the horrified watcher behind the rocks stood still. An appalled sense of peril overwhelmed the startled Darrel Grey.

"Quicksand Gully! Great heavens!" he gasped wildly. "Can this be true? The quicksands! Is that the meaning of the sudden disappearance of Inez Tracey?"

CHAPTER V.

THE QUICKSANDS.

"Help!"

The cry rang out wild and alarmed, but it met no responsive echo from the gloomy depths of Quicksand Gully.

It emanated from the lips of Inez Tracey, and announced precisely the peril to which Danton had alluded—the quicksands!

When Inez had left Darrel Grey she started down the side canyon, satisfied that to delay or disobey her brave protector would be only to enhance her own peril and to obstruct his movements against their enemies.

"When he sees I am at a safe distance he will follow me, and a conflict with Despard and his men may be avoided," murmured Inez hopefully.

The horse she rode made rapid progress, but when she came to a point where the road-bed of the gully narrowed and descended, the animal seemed loath to proceed.

It was with difficulty that she induced the steed to proceed, and, when he did so, she noticed that his footing was insecure and that there seemed no outlet beyond the narrow cut she had entered.

A little stream seemed to lose its way by a sinuous course around a sharp curve in her path, and, hopeful that beyond that the canyon might widen again, Inez urged the horse over a sandy stretch of soil.

Above her the ledges of rocks frowned down ominously, and she felt a vague sense of uneasiness, as once or twice the horse came to a dead stop and neighed and trembled with a strange terror she could not comprehend.

At last his fore feet sank deep in the sand; he made a desperate effort to lift his hoofs, and then, stumbling, came to a second stop, panting with fright and inability to proceed.

"This is strange," murmured Inez, concernedly. "The horse must be exhausted with the long drive."

Her face became white as marble the next moment, however. She had made a sudden discovery, so startling and appalling that a low cry of dread escaped her lips.

"The horse is sinking!" Merciful heavens! I understand now!" she gasped. "We are in the quicksands!"

For a single moment the thought paralyzed every energy. She saw the horse flounder and try to free himself vainly, she felt the shifting sands incase her own feet, and then she made a desperate effort at escape.

A blank despair settled down over her mind as she did so. Behind and on all sides of her the dawning day showed plainly the full extent of her awful peril.

A sickening dread possessed her, and her eyes closed in prayer as they fell upon the changing mass of sand, to step upon which meant to ensnare herself more deeply in its grasp.

"Help!"

One single cry for aid, one last prayer to heaven, and Inez Tracey resigned herself to a fate that seemed inevitable.

Meanwhile, in the main canyon, Despard and his men were searching every nook and corner in the branch gullies for the missing girl and her companion.

The latter, Darrel Grey, knew but one impulse as he recalled the terrible words of Vance.

Inez Tracey had rode on to peril, perhaps to death itself, and he knew that every moment of delay might be fatal to the devoted life of the girl he was fast learning to love.

He could not secure the horse and leave the spot unperceived, however, for Despard and his men were in the vicinity.

There was only one way to gain the side gully, down which Inez Tracey had disappeared.

This was to crawl along the ground, and, reaching the dense undergrowth which abounded in the place, reach the edge of the roadway, ascend the deep side of the canyon which was not high at this point, and drop down on the other side.

This Darrel started to do at once, and succeeded so far that five minutes later, with some few bruises, he dropped into Quicksand Gully.

His gait was a rapid one as he sped down the gully, taking the same course followed by Inez a few moments previously.

A cry of mingled hope and suspense broke from his lips as he turned a point in the gully which enabled a view of the stream.

Across the treacherous sandy bottom of the gully he saw the missing girl.

The horse had sunk deep into the shifting sands, and held the animal and its rider secure prisoners.

Darrel comprehended the situation at a glance. He knew that to rush towards her over the sands would only be to involve himself in similar peril.

He therefore began to climb the ledge of rocks by the side of the place, eagerly scanning the ground as he did so.

Then, with his hunting knife, he cut a long length of heavy trailing vine.

"Do not despair," he cried down to Inez, as he leaned over the edge of the rocks. "I am about to lower a vine to you, seize it, and hold firmly to it."

The girl grasped the extended means of escape a minute later. With prodigious strength, nerved by love and courage, Darrel Grey pulled at the other end.

He thrilled with wild delight as he observed that the effort freed Inez from the encroaching sand. She clutched at the shrubs on the rocky wall as she began to ascend.

"Thank heaven, you are safe!"

It was a wild, grateful aspiration that escaped Darrel's lips, as he lifted Inez over the ledge, and felt her soft, clinging touch, and saw the light of love and devotion in her grateful eyes. The horse, relieved of the weight of its rider, made one last effort to free himself, floundered and turned. Then, with a wild neigh of delight at escape, the steed dashed down the canyon road in the direction whence it had come.

Bait Fishing.

A very important trade in the small villages scattered along the coast of Newfoundland is that of selling bait, and in many cases the catching of it forms the sole employment of the majority of men in those localities. Very early in the year the first bait purchased by the cod-fishers is frozen herring. The fish are caught in seines, by the liviers, as the natives call the bait dealers. They are frozen and placed in the vessel's hold, where they are covered up and thus kept fresh for three or four weeks until the weather becomes too warm to allow of their use. Then it becomes necessary to put ice on the bait, which is placed in pens in the hold, a layer of chopped ice being spread between each layer of herring.

About the middle of June a change in baiting is made, capelin—a small fish greatly resembling the smelt—being used. These are captured in small drag-seines made especially for the purpose. They are stowed away in the same manner as the herring, large quantities of ice being broken into small pieces and spread over them in the bait pens.

The most popular form of bait, however, is the squid. The liviers first begin angling for them in the latter part of July and continue until they disappear in October. At the beginning of the season they are taken in enormous quantities, so many being caught that in a single day a vessel can secure 30,000 or 40,000 of them without stopping in the harbor long enough to make it necessary to haul down her sails. The method of procuring this variety of bait is quite interesting, the only apparatus being a kind of hook called a jig. This consists of a stout line secured to a lead cylinder three inches long, fastened to which are several stout pins bent upward. No bait is used, the jig being let down into the water and kept constantly in motion in imitation of a small fish. A squid will throw its long tentacles around the jig and immediately become caught in the pins, when it is dexterously hauled into the boat. Squids have a very unpleasant habit when being thus landed of discharging a stream of salt water into the faces of their captors, and this is almost instantly followed by a jet of dirty, black, ink-like substance. As a matter of course this is decidedly disagreeable, even to a weather-beaten squid-fisher.

Occasionally giant squids are caught, some specimens being so bulky as to furnish bait for two vessels—an amount equal to 60,000 to 70,000 of the small variety.

Salted clams are very frequently utilized for baiting purposes, and very often birds—such as the hagdon or great puffin, noddy and stormy petrel—serve the same purpose. These birds are caught with a hook and line, and upon being pulled on board are killed with clubs. When bait runs short, fish entrails—called "gurry" by the fishermen—are called into requisition. In addition to these, lady-fish, lant, fish eggs, alewives, porgies, pickled menhaden, yellow fish and salmon are used by both the trawlers and hand-line fishers on the Banks.

WHEN the time comes for us to wake out of the dreams of the world's sleep, why should it be otherwise than out of dreams of the night? Singing of birds, first broken and low, as, not to "dying eyes," but to eyes that wake to life, "the casement slowly grows a glimmering square," and then the gray, and then the rose of dawn; and last the light, whose going forth is to the ends of the heaven.—Ruskin.

I thought it rather queer that an operator would write a message on the back of a blank, so I asked him how he came to do that, and he said: 'Why, don't you know? I'm blind.' I found that he was really blind. He takes his messages on with a pen, but employs a boy to read the messages to him that are to be sent. He does as good work as any of his fellow-operators."—Boston News.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC —AND— Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted Stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Governor Hovey Dead.

The sad news of the death of Gov. Hovey reached here Monday afternoon. A full account and his likeness will be found on our second page inside. He has made an honorable record as a governor, and his death will be a loss to the state. Lieutenant-governor Ira J. Chase will become governor to serve until January 1893. The funeral is to-day at the governor's old home, Mt. Vernon in Posey county.

CAPT. W. R. MYERS is going to start a new democratic paper in Anderson.

EARTHQUAKES in Japan during last month killed 6,000 persons and destroyed 90,000 houses.

FONSECA, president of Braxil has resigned, as so many are opposed to him. The vice-president, Pixotto succeeds him.

LIVE wolf—a big gray one was captured in the streets of Chicago Monday. Supposed the great storm drove him into town,

RUSSIAN people want a legislative body of some sort. They never had any and the Czar and his ministers always made and executed the laws.

AURORA, Ill., last week received the first ton of American pig tin. It came from the Temescal mines near Riverside, Calif., and is to be used in making white metal for silver ware.

THE great meeting of the People's party, the Alliance, the F. M. B. A. and other labor organizations at Indianapolis, adjourned last week, after deciding to unite and become a political party. They will have a meeting in February, to set the time for a national convention.

REPUBLICAN papers speak of the "benefits of reciprocity." That is democratic doctrine, pure and simple, though they don't seem to know it. Give us reciprocity where it will do us some good. Several great nations would like to trade with us, if we would treat them the same as they treat us. Reciprocity with a few starved nations is of little value. Make our trade freer, where we can trade most profitably.

How can the foreigner pay the duty on imported goods? We would like some of the high tax advocates to explain. An importer when he takes his goods from the custom house, must swear that he is a citizen, or he can't get the goods. For if there was any fraud in his bill of goods or other matter on which he could be punished, the authorities would call him to account. But we can't punish a man who is a citizen of another country. So, as we have often said, we pay the duty ourselves, and it is added to the cost.

CARNEGIE, the protected millioniare, who is spending in Scotland, as usual, the money earned by his poorly paid laborers, has sent a cask of Scotch whisky to President Harrison, We would like to ask the prohibitionists who voted for Harrison, what they think Harrison wants with a cask of Scotch whisky. The meanest thing about it is that he refused to pay the duty on it, though his party passed the law fixing the duty, and and have always advocated it. Perhaps he was waiting for the "foreigner to pay it." But at last, the man he had appointed inspector of customs, chipped in and paid it, $31.25, and the good temperance man got his whisky.

It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never Fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars free. In the evening the various societies of young people, such as the Christian Endeavor, Epworth League, Y. M. C. A., etc., will have union services at St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Exposition Day.

It is Friday of this week, and we would again direct attention of our citizens to the approaching Exposition Day to be celebrated in the schools of the state Thanksgiving week. The day offers an excellent opportunity to give to the school children of Indiana not only a mass of valuable information concerning their native state, but to strengthen their love for the state, and to plant in their hearts a sense of personal responsibility concerning the welfare of her people. On this day it is hoped that every child will make personal contribution to an important public enterprise, the preparation of a full and creditable exhibit of the educational work of the state to be made at the World's Fair. Every child is expected to bring a penny, and NOT MORE than a penny, to be used for the purpose indicated. Let every citizen respond cheerfully to this call, so that the result of the contribution may in the aggregate count the school population of the state. Remember it is Friday of this week, Nov. 27, and one penny for each pupil is enough.

A Tariff Lesson.

We imported 54 millions of woolen goods last year, and on this we paid a duty of 37 millions. We suppose republican papers will claim, either that the foreign manufacturers paid this duty, or that it made the 54 millions of goods cheaper. We say the people who bought and used the goods paid it. Their clothing cost them 37 millions more than it otherwise would, besides a profit they had to pay on this duty, or rather three profits, as the importer charges a profit when he sells to the jobber and the jobber charges a profit when he sells to the retail storekeeper, and the last named charges a profit to the one who buys and uses the goods. This swell the 37 millions to 50 millions. And this the consumer pays over and above what the goods would cost without a duty. Now add to this the increased price the "protected" manufacturer of these goods in this country is enabled to charge, and the amount of the robbery is enormous. For we make and use more home made goods, many times over, than we import, If we use four times as much home goods, as we import, there would be, say three times the other 50 millions, added to our extra expense, being what we pay the "protected" men. This would add 150 millions, making in all 200 millions of clear robbery in the matter of woolen goods alone. Now add the other items of which we are robbed in the same way, and we will find our republican friends rejoicing in a plan that robs the people annually of a thousand millions. Let the people commit this to memory.

The Schools.

The country schools have all been having a vacation of a week or two, this is in accordance with a resolution passed by the County Board of Education at its meeting May 1, by which also the schools began uniformly on the 4th of September. The farmers have spoken very favorable of this vacation, as it makes the fall and winter terms distinctly separate, and will give the larger pupils an opportunity to begin the winter term all at the same time. At the meeting several of the trustees desired the vacation to be held at the Holidays but for reasons just given and also because the large pupils could be of greater use at home at this season of the year, the board by unanimous vote decided to have the vacation at this time, and while the resolutions of the County Board of Education are not probably legally binding upon the actions of the trustees, yet they are morally under obligations to conform as nearly as possible to its orders. If the trustees do not do this the good results that are intended to come from this legalized board can not be realized.

So the fall term of the district schools has passed away, and undoubtedly, with the most universal satisfaction ever given in the county. There has scarcely been a complaint, and the attendance has far surpassed what was expected. Many of the schools enrolled in the fall term nearly every pupil expected to attend the schools at any time during the year. No. 7 in Concord township has enrolled every pupil enumerated in the district. The weather and the roads have been exceptionally fine for school, and no better time could have been selected especially for the little folks to go to school than they have had this fall. The winter term opened Monday Nov. 23, and will remain in session until the latter part of March, giving all who can attend only in the winter, the same chance they would have had, had the schools not opened as was the custom in a few of the townships, until late in the fall.

In conversation with Supt. Merica a few days ago he expressed himself as very much elated over the prospects of the most successful school year ever had in the county. Prosperity, he said, had not only come to the people in the way of better times and better crops but in better schools. "The people are getting wakened up to their wants, to their needs, and consequently to their united duty, and we think they are realizing more than ever the real worth of efficient school work. At least, I observe each year and especially for the past two or three years, that the people are manifesting more interest in the schools. The attendance is better, and realizing that the schools can grow and can be improved there is not so much criticism offered against each advanced step taken, not so much opposition to contend with in making any needed improvement, and the people, carefully watching every official act of the officers, are coming to act more harmoniously with them, in their honest purposes, every day.

This is a great week for chickens, turkeys, etc. The squalls thereof are frequently heard in the land, that would soon be shut out from their sight forever. Truly this has been a trying week for our feathered friends.

The oyster season is now here and Cory Shugers is better equipped than ever to supply the public demand. You can have oysters in any style within five minutes after ordering them. Give us a call and we will do you good. 44tf

The St. Joe News of last week has the obituary notice of William Draggoo, who died there Nov. 15, at the age of nearly 79. He was one of the early settlers down there, and one of many prominent citizens of that name, who are favorably known all over this section.

We are sorry to hear of sickness in the family of Wm. Snyder, at St. John. Both Mrs. Snyder and their daughter, Sadie, are down with typhoid fever, and have been ill for three weeks. James and Lillie, who were at Fort Wayne, have been called home, which shows the trouble to be serious. Dr. Thompson, of Garrett, is the attending physician.

Supt. Glazier, of the County Home, was in town yesterday on his way to Ft. Wayne where he had been summoned as a witness in the case between Joe Kichler and the Nickey & Gandy Co. We believe it is a case to obtain an accounting for some partnership business at the time Kichler was working in the flouring mill, now owned by Rickel & Sprott.

Fine bedroom lamp, 10 cents All his goods fresh and new. You can't believe till you see for yourself. Glass dishes 5cts and up, and a good set for a mere trifle. Gibson, the people's friend.

Davenport's.

We are under obligations to Coulter & Griffin, of the Hicksville Independent, for an excellent report of the killing of Samuel West, a B. & O. fireman, at that place, last Friday. He was coupling the tender and engine to the first car, when his foot got fast and he was drawn under the wheels, in sight of a number of horror-stricken spectators. His home is at Garrett, where he has a family.

As long a piece of sidewalk as we have had for several years all constructed at one time, is that along the west side of South Cedar street. The new walk extends from the Sheets' block south of the public square, to Samuel Rakestraw's residence. It is all of plank except along Marshal Pfefferl's property, which is of cement. He was setting a good example, as an officer should—or perhaps the Dispatch had "advised that kind of a walk." At all events the entire improvement is very creditable to the people down there and to the town board.

The Lyon Comedy Company at the Opera House last week was a good one, and if we could always be sure of as good, the attendance would be better. As it was, they had fair houses all the week, the largest being Saturday evening. The entire week was bad weather.

The L. L. C. will meet Saturday of this week with Mrs. Zimmerman. Leader, Alza Ralston; Lesson, page 331 to 344; debate, Resolved, that Co-operation in Housekeeping is practical, Mrs Hodge and Mrs. Husselman, followed by discussion by the club.

Mark Twain will contribute to the December number of Harper's Magazine a curiously interesting article on "Mental Telegraphy," which will doubtless awaken inquiry and provoke no little discussion, especially among people who are at all interested in psychological problems.

Ernest Sheets did not like the outlook at Champaign, Ill., and besides, he was taken sick and had to return. He has long had an offer from good parties at Adrian, Mich., and he will now accept that. This will have another advantage; he and his wife will be nearer their people in Butler and their friends here. We are glad he made the change.

A. Y. Rosenberry, of Waterloo, of whose wonderful cures we have notices, was here Tuesday. A great deal of his time is taken up now in treating these severe cases, and strange cures are recorded. He went Monday to Toledo to meet patients, and next week will be absent the entire week, at Ashland, O., on the same business.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.—"Mystic Cure" for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immdiately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. Sold and guaranteed by Robbins & McCord druggists, Auburn.

A. B. Richards received a letter Saturday from Rev. H. M. Lamport at Kendallville, announcing the advent of a fine baby—a girl—into their family that morning, weight 10 pounds. Their many friends here, will rejoice with them on this fortunate event, and the residents on Seventh street, especially will recall the fact that Mr. and Mrs. L. formerly resided on that popular thoroughfare.

Angola has a new militia company, numbering 57. Among the names of the privates, we see that of our friend W. B. Odion of the Herald. Editors down this way are not so warlike, nothing here but brotherly love and affection, and even if we do have our little tiffs, we don't have to "drill" for an "emergency." We always try to "drill" the other fellow. But we venture the prediction that Bro. Odion gets a promotion—captain we hope, for he is a good fighter.

Judge McClellan informs us that he will not start to Washington till about the date of the opening of congress, as there is nothing of interest there now except the contest over the election of Speaker. As between Mills and Crisp, the two candidates now in the lead, he thinks either would be a good man, but Crisp is the abler parliamentarian and much cooler and self-possessed—very valuable qualities in a speaker. Tuesday he received a telegram from Bynum, our Indiana candidate, saying he had withdrawn from the race. The daily papers, think he will throw his influence in favor of Mills.

Joseph A. Shade starts for Central America in a week or so, where he has a position with a Chicago company that has secured a million or so acres of land in Honduras, which they will use to cultivate bananas. This colony will be made up largely of Americans, and we can see no reason why the venture will not be a grand success. Our friend Shade has had abundant experience in various parts of our own country, having spent several years on the west coast, and among the mountains of California and the great northwest, and besides he is a hustler in general. Our readers will be delighted to learn that the Courier will receive his letters again.

G. W. Campbell came up from Fort Wayne last week to attend to some business matters here. He is in the employ of the Pittsburg shops there as pattern maker, and doing well. Glad to hear it.

Very few letters on the late trip to New Mexico are abler, or contain more real information, than those now running in the Courier, and written by Frank E. Rose, our representative on that occasion. They are well worth reading.

The M. P. folks will begin a protracted meeting at the Hopewell church, near Cedar Creek, on Thursday evening Dec. 3. We believe Rev. H. Stackhouse of Kendallville will conduct it. Our readers near there, should see that all know of the meeting.

Bro. Weaver of the Bristol Banner is putting a part of his letters on the New Mexican trip, into poetry, and though his Pegasus is a trifle spavined, and couldn't begin to keep up with Sunol, the jingle is very charming, and will be read by his fellow editors with a good deal of relish.

The delegates of the Christian Endeavor society, who attended the state convention held at Kokomo, the latter part of last week, returned Monday afternoon. They were enthusiastic in their praise of the hospitality of Kokomo people. The convention was a grand affair and will be held at Ft. Wayne, next year.

See the splendid offer of the Indianapolis Sentinel in this issue of the Courier. The Sentinel is the ablest paper in the state, and the acknowledged leader of the democratic party—the party of the people. We hope to hear that our readers have sent for a sample copy, and have been so well pleased with it, that they will give it a trial.

Rev. N. J. Myers was here last week a day or two. He had been over to Wilmot a few days to oversee some of his business matters there, as he has an interest in the well known Webster flouring mills. He returned Saturday to his home in Circleville, Ohio, but his wife expects to visit in Auburn befor her return home. They have had good health, except a serious pull of scarlet fever, one of the children had.

An Indianapolis judge last week fined a fellow $100 for using insulting language to a lady on the street. It was none too much. Such fellows are not fit to live. Last week while a well known, and highly respectable young lady of Auburn was walking along the street on her way home about nine in the evening, two drunken brutes approached her, with the evident intention of stopping her. In their maudlin state, she could not understand what they said, but she showed such a vigorous disposition to defend herself, that they let her go by, and she hurried home considerably frightened. The utter loss of a few such fellows, would be no loss to society.

IT seems anomalous that Shakers should be religiously averse to the dice box.

TWO REPUTABLE citizens of Michigan recently discovered a hairy wild man seven feet tall, who leaped twenty-three feet at a bound. These gentlemen should by all means take the course in mythology at the Keeley Institute.

A YOUNG lady of Memphis, Tenn., wrote an essay on "The Model Husband." This brought her a prize of $20 and a better-half in the shape of a rich and handsome young banker, of Minneapolis. The public may now look for more essays on the same subject.

IN the midst of a political campaign upon which depends his last chance of returning to power Mr. Gladstone has found time to write a theological paper for an English review. The grand old man is indomitable. When Charon finally takes him across the last ferry he will, no doubt, jot down a few notes with a view to an article upon archaic methods of navigating the river Styx.

THE prospects for the speedy opening of the greater part of the Indian lands in the Oklahoma country are good. The Government commissioners are now on the ground negotiating with the Tonkawas, and there is every reason to believe that a satisfactory settlement will be reached in a short time. Their reservation embraces about 90,000 acres, of which 83,000 will be opened for homesteaders. The commissioners will next negotiate with the Poncas, Otoes and Pawnees, and some time in November they expect to go to Tahlequah to resume negotiations for the Cherokee outlet.

A LOT of exquisitely told bits of Russian folk lore have been restored to present day people by Tolstoi, the eccentric. They may serve a purpose and a good one, perhaps, in showing to us, who are acquainted with telephones, steam engines and things, that centuries ago property rights and the sin of buying and selling were as freely made use of by Russian story tellers and fable builders as they are at present by men in the same business. On the other hand, when we consider that such conditions were discussed and presented by writers who thought centuries ago and that those conditions are no nearer realization now then they were then, the idea has a tendency toward producing fatigue.

IT is asserted, albeit it is not perfectly easy to receive the statement with that perfect faith which is enjoined by the devotees of the mind cure—that in Kansas so thoroughly are the possibilities of rain-making realized and respected that a contract has been signed between a local organization and Melbourne by which the latter binds himself to keep the country watered next summer at the rate of a dollar an acre. If this contract is carried out, and it should chance that the district surrounding that included in the contract goes dry, would not the inhabitants of the latter district have good grounds for action against Melbourne on the ground that he has feloniously appropriated their rain clouds? We foresee a very pretty opportunity for litigation here.

MRS. POTTER PALMER has been requested to drive the last nail in the woman's building for the Chicago World's Fair. The matter is in the hands of a committee of "Lady Managers of the Columbian Exhibition," although why so exalted beings as "lady managers" should condescend to have anything to do with a mere woman's building is not apparent. The scene will be a beautiful one if Mrs. Palmer is really to drive the nail. First she will probably give a blow that will leave a dint the size of half the hammer head in the woodwork; then she will bend the nail nearly double; and after that she will smash her pretty fingers, and throw down the hammer in disgust. However, as the nail is to be of gold and silver and copper, not to mention any precious stones which it may be decided to put into it, there will probably be a neat hole made into which Mrs. Palmer can gently push the composite spike with her fingers, and thus avoid the terrific complications which would inevitably follow upon any attempt to really drive the nail home.

THIS is a hopeful year with France. Its harvest has been good, its people have confidence in the Government, there is no hostility between employers and employes, its financial credit was never better, Boulangism sleeps with Boulanger, and the Government does not fear a war from any foreign power. Denmark has taken its stand with Russia. It stands guard on the Baltic and over the Gulf of Finland. Belgium takes pains, as it has not done for many years until now, to claim its independence of Germany, and its determination in the event of a rupture between France and Germany to maintain its neutrality. Even the usually modest and retiring M. Freycinet, the chief of the ministry and Minister of War, says: "I shall have something to say myself about war"—by which he means about keeping the peace. At the late fetes of Marseilles the Bourgmestre of Brussels said: "Permit me to speak as a friend to friends; that is to say, with that frankness which friendship authorizes. It has pained us to see it reported in your press that there was a secret treaty between King Leopold and Germany. The truth is that is a pure invention. I am authorized to say no such treaty ever existed. Our people love France, but we shall never renounce that rule of neutrality which is the sure guarantee of the independence of our country."

THERE are ugly reports that come from China to the effect that the people of that country are up in arms against the Christian missionaries and residents sojourning there. The conduct of the mob is such as to excite the resentment of every civilized and Christianized country on the face of the globe. It is something that will not be tolerated. Unless it is stopped and restitution made gunboats as thick as mosquitoes will be getting around Chinese ports and vengeance swift and terrible will be the result. All this conceded. It might be well here to pause and reflect on the causes which produced the outbreak to the end that a recurrence of the ugly scenes may be avoided. As far as this country is concerned we are at a disadvantage. We have solemnly excluded the Chinese, and with an inhospitality quite unparalleled and strangely at variance with our Fourth of July claim to be the "refuge of the oppressed of all countries." We have treated the Celestials rather roughly in many instances, not always stopping short of wholesale slaughter. Then we are sending missionaries to convert the so-called heathen—a piece of impudence on our part unexampled—while the heathen within our borders can see that our charity is long-ranged and blind to the wants of the needy at home. We go forth to save souls and with a magnificent assumption claim that—

By many a rushing river,
Through many a palmy plain,
They call us to deliver
The land from error's chain.

While at the same time there are millions undelivered from error's chain in our own country. With so many conflicting creeds, all entitled to the most profound respect, and with the teachings of the Savior interpreted in so many ways, it would be more seemly for our missionaries to remain at home until their differences were settled, and let the Chinese heathen take care of themselves.

WHEN the social geologist of the future lays bare the stratum in which we live to-day, and examines it, he will doubtless name it "The Age of Bill Boards." He will find layer after layer of bill boards, thousands upon thousands of feet of advertising, and very little else; for that is the great tendency of to-day—the tendency to advertise. Not in a commercial way particularly, for the legitimate display advertisement of the regular merchant is the most modest of them all. But take up any paper you may choose, any magazine you may find or book you can name, and cast out all that is simply an advertisement of some man or other and how much remains? The magazines and books are worse in this regard than the newspapers, Pick up your favorite magazine; look at the title page. What do you find? Names, names, names. Names of men and women who are trying to get notoriety. Turn over the pages. What do you read? Is it literature? Is the diction clear and pleasing? Is the thought particularly deep? Is the thought of any consequence save in connection with the man whose name is under it? Isn't it merely an opinion? An opinion of whom? Of an advertiser to be sure, and nothing else. Look at your favorite book written to-day. If you did not know of the author, would you read it? If he were not alive to run his advertising bureau would his book find readers? What great preacher's sermons would sell under an unknown name, any more than would Jimson's soap under like circumstances? What great doctor's remedies would find favor if they came from a more learned but less notorious physician? Half the lawyers who win cases would lose them if their names were changed. In former days the "Great Unknown" was a mascot; to-day he is a Jonah. And this only shows the extent to which advertising has become a part of our existence. But there is this good fortune in it all. There is no divine right to advertising. It is democratic in its favors, and he who possesses the secret of the art of advertising has his hand upon the door which leads to success; but woe is he if he try to open when he is unworthy; for if the world worships her heroes—sooner or later she unmercifully crucifies her quacks.

The Immense Crop of Old Maids.

A big crop of old maids seems imminent, judging from statistics. If the statistics of Great Britain are correct, the excess of women and girls over men and boys in that country is about 900,000, an increase in ten years of about 200,000. In Germany the number of females in excess of males is about 1,000,000. In Sweden and Norway the "weaker sex" is in the majority by about 250,000; in Austro-Hungary by 600,000; and in Denmark by 60,000. In the United States, Canada, and Australia the males are in the majority. In this country there are about 1,000,000 more men than women.

Domestic Felicity Must Be Earned.

Young people sometimes fancy that they can get married happiness merely by going through the marriage ceremony. Domestic felicity, however, like everything else worth having, must be worked for—must be earned by patient endurance, self-restraint and loving consideration for the tastes and even for the faults of him or her with whom life is to be lived.

"No man e'er gained a happy life by chance,
Or yawned it into being with a wish."

RECIPROCITY ON TRIAL.

VERY MEAGER GAINS IN THE FIRST SIX MONTHS.

Brazil's Improved Demand Confined Principally to Locomotives—Wheat Exports Increase in Spite of Reciprocity and the Tariff—Who Pays the Tariff Tax?

How It Works.

General figures are furnished by the Bureau of Statistics for the year ending Aug. 31, by which it is ascertained that the total increase in our exports for the twelve months, as compared with the corresponding months for the preceding year, was $35,286,217. But the same report shows that the increase in agricultural products alone, in August, 1891, was $15,999,952, or pretty nearly half of the whole increase for the twelve months. All of this may seem tedious, but to an understanding of what is to follow it is desirable to lay a foundation. Some stress is laid, in the report, upon our increased export of machinery, as indicating some advantage accruing under "the new tariff" or "reciprocity." There is some reason for giving credit to reciprocity for whatever advance has been made under it, but it will certainly not be the effort of the friends of the "new tariff" to attribute to the new tariff the figures that show that while in August, 1890, before the new tariff or reciprocity had begun to improve business, the percentage of our exports of machinery was 25.72 in August, 1891, after reciprocity with Brazil had been in operation for five months, the percentage of exports of machinery was only 20.66.

The commercial arrangement with Brazil was proclaimed Feb. 5, and it became operative April 1, 1891. It gave free entry into Brazil of wheat and wheat flour; corn, cornmeal, and starch, rye and rye flour; buckwheat flour; potatoes, beans, and peas; hay and oats; pork, salted, including pickled pork and bacon; fish, salted, dried or pickled; cottonseed oil; coal, anthracite and bituminous; resin, tar, pitch, and turpentine; machinery for manufacturing and industrial purposes, except sewing machines; instruments and books for the arts and sciences; railway construction material and equipment. The articles that were to be admitted to Brazil with a reduction of 25 per cent. were lard and substitutes therefor, bacon, hams, butter and cheese, canned and preserved meats, fish, fruit, and vegetables; manufactures of cotton, including cotton clothing; manufactures of iron and steel not included in the free schedule; leather and manufactures thereof, except boots and shoes; lumber and manufactures of wood, including cooperage; furniture of all kinds, wagons, carts, and carriages; manufactures of rubber.

If this reciprocity agreement made under the "new tariff" was attractive and of great advantage, it ought to be seen in the figures. This might be assumed to be so if it could be stated that the lack of reciprocity had discouraged importations of American goods abroad. But if increase of trade be the object of reciprocity, it will, of course, be interesting to show how much our exports were increased to those countries with which we have yet made no commercial agreement on the basis of reciprocity. Chief Brock, in his October pamphlet, issued to show how reciprocity is working, states that during the five months ending Aug. 31 our exports to Brazil increased $1,169,592. He does not say how much our exports increased to other countries with which we have no reciprocal arrangement, in the same period, when it would have been perfectly easy to say that the increase of our exportation of wheat to the United Kingdom in August, 1891, alone, was as great as the increase of all our exports to Brazil, "under reciprocity," in five months.

Just to get at the results systematically, take up the exports by articles in the order in which they are enumerated in the proclamation of the reciprocity agreement. There is wheat. The Bureau of Statistics does not think it worth while to make a line for Brazil, but puts the figures for all of South America in one entry. That entry shows that the exports of wheat in eight months to all South America were $363,553, as compared with $616,211 in 1890, or a loss of $252,658, and it seems that the exports in August, 1891, "under reciprocity," were valued at $1,574, as compared with $67,233 in August, 1890, without reciprocity, a loss of $65,659. But in the eight months ending Aug. 31, our exports of wheat to France were $20,578,241 in excess of those of the corresponding period for the preceding year, and in August, 1891, there was an increase over August, 1890, of more than $9,000,000, and that with a nation not enjoying any advantages "under reciprocity."

There was, to be sure, an improvement made in our exports of wheat flour to Brazil in the period named. The increase in the value of wheat flour sent to Brazil was $459,598, but the increase to other South American countries, not specified, and none of them attracted by reciprocal arrangements, was about $900,000, while the increase in the exportation to the United Kingdom in eight months was valued at more than $2,000,000. We did better with corn, for our exportation of corn fell off in every direction except that of South America, and in that entire continent the increase in eight months was valued at $232,757, while the total export was decreasing more than $31,000,000. As for cornmeal, cornstarch, rye, rye flour, buckwheat flour and barley, the figures were not considered worth presenting.

But how about reciprocal potatoes? They do not appear in the statistics of exports by countries at all, but as our export of all vegetables "in their natural state," which will probably include potatoes, fell off in eight months about $100,000, it was evidently not worth while to invoke the aid of reciprocity to explain the decrease. There was also a decrease in our exportation of beans and peas, and there is nothing to show how much of the loss was suffered through the indifference of South America to our peas and beans, even "under reciprocity." There was also a falling off, in every direction, of our exports of hay and oats, and the decline in South America is lost sight of in the statistics.

But pork ought to show an increase. Does it? Look at the figures. For the eight months of last year ending Aug. 31, the exports were valued at $358,329 to all "other countries in South America," including those with which reciprocal agreements have since been made. For the eight months ending Aug. 31, 1891, the value of exports of pork, salted and pickled, to "other countries in South America," was $171,046, or a decrease, "under reciprocity," of $87,283. There was no reciprocity with the United Kingdom during the two periods, yet in the eight months of 1891 the exports of pork, fresh and pickled, to that kingdom were valued at $26[illegible],533 more than they were in the corresponding eight months of 1890. As for bacon, Brazil did increase her purchases of it by $113,000 "under reciprocity," in the same time that Germany, without reciprocal arrangement, and with a prejudice against all American hog products, increased its purchases to the extent of $2[illegible]0,000. There was a general falling off during the period of our hog products.

Fish does not appear to have turned out very well. There are no figures to show, except general ones indicating a decline in exports of that character. Of cottonseed oil, South America, all of it, took [illegible] by $15,000, in the last eight months, than in the eight months of equal date in last year, but reciprocity may have the credit of an increase of $6,000 in August last over August, 1890. We sent to South America, all of it, in the eight months ending Aug. 31, 1890, when there was no reciprocity, coal valued at $96,107. In the last eight months the value of the coal sent to South America was $54,814, a decrease of $41,293. The value of the coal sent in August, 1890, was $968, and in August, 1891, "under reciprocity," the value of the coal sent to South America was $16. Yet in the eight months of 1891 we sent to British North America, with which we have no reciprocal arrangement, $600,000 worth more of coal than we did in the like period of 1890.

But reciprocity provided also for increased trade in resin, tar, pitch, and turpentine. There should have been a marked increase in the demand for those articles in South America, and particularly if reciprocity was to be advantageous to the republic that had been induced to let the articles in free of duty. Well, there was an improvement. In the eight months the exports of resin, tar, turpentine, and pitch to Brazil was $69,704, and the increase in spirits of turpentine was about $5,000. But Germany in the same time increased her purchases of resin, tar, turpentine, and pitch by $103,184, and her importations of spirits of turpentine were increased $282,053, without the advantages of reciprocity. Then there is a good showing for machinery. "Under reciprocity" the importations of steam engines, mostly locomotives, to Brazil, amounted to an increase of $1,423,811 in the eight months, and during the same period our exportations of machinery of all kinds to British possessions in Australia increased $845,391. And this was regardless of any reciprocal arrangement, and in spite of the long haul to which the machinery was subject.

Of the articles upon which Brazil reduced duties 25 per cent. in order to give us an increased chance to do business with the country, there was an increase in exportations of hams of about $3,000, an increase of about $8,000 in exportations of butter to all South America, an increase of about $4,000 in the value of our cheese exportations to all South American countries, and an increase of about $11,000 in canned beef, with a decline of $100 in the exportations in August. The reciprocal arrangement may have increased the South American demand for our fruit by $7,000, but it certainly did not increase the demand in British North America, which took, without reciprocity, $103,615 more of fruit than in the eight months ending Aug. 31, 1890.

The believers in reciprocity as a way of increasing our trade in South America will undoubtedly "point with pride" to a record that will exhibit us as increasing our exportation of manufactured cotton to that country. They will neglect to see that while we were sending the United Kingdom $21,000,000 more raw cotton than in 1890, the Brazilian demand for manufactured cotton fell $233,740, but they will see a hopeful sign in the increase of $9,274 in August, 1891.

"During the year ending June 30, 1890," says the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, "our exports of domestic products to Brazil amounted to $11,902,496, and in 1891 to $14,048,273, an increase of $2,146,777." Well, take the reports for the last eight months of our exports to the United Kingdom and see what the increase was in a few items:

The later figures to show the increase of trade with the West Indies are more encouraging as indicating a willingness on the part of Cuba and Puerto Rico to seize the advantage of reciprocity; but South America has been made much more of than the West Indies, and that country ought to exhibit a more keenly prompt appreciation of the reciprocal arrangement made by Mr. Blaine.—New York Times.

Rusk and Hides.

The disastrous results which would follow from the adoption of Secretary Rusk's plan to impose a duty on foreign hides, recommended by him apparently to get even with the boot and shoe manufacturers but really to help the rich combination of beef packers, or the "Big Four" of Chicago, are well shown by the following statements of Thomas E. Proctor, of the Proctor Leather Company, of Boston:

"The only effect it would have," said Mr. Proctor, "would be to increase the price of shoes and curtail our foreign trade in hides. There is no surer way, let me tell you, to make New England solidly and reliably Democratic than to put a tax on hides as contemplated. Let me show you how it would work. The trade affected would be that with the Argentine Republic and Brazil. The leather made from American hides is used in the uppers of the shoe. Very little, I may say no sole leather is made from American hides. To put a tax on the hides brought from South America if it had any effect at all on shoes made for our home trade would be to increase their price. On the other hand it would materially hurt the business of our tanners. Very much of the leather imported from South America is tanned here and shipped to England. Now, if this import is taxed it will make it impossible for our tanners to compete with those of Canada who get their hides from the same source, without tax and with the advantage of unlimited hemlock bark. Canadian tanners would derive the benefit, our own tanners would suffer the loss under such a tax. With us hides are an incidental product. If the hide was not sold at all there would be just as many cattle raised as there are now, as the beef and tallow form the main product. We do not, however, export any of our own hides. Of the sole leather tanned in this country fully one-fourth is sent away. To place a tax on the leather, that trade would be wholly ruined, as Canada, where its importation is free, would absorb it all."

By the imposition of a duty on silver-lead ore imported from Mexico by the McKinley tariff our smelting industry was injured and that of Mexico encouraged. Do we want to repeat this foolish policy in the case of our now flourishing tanning industry?

Who Pays the Tariff Tax?

One of the foremost claims of the protectionist is that the foreign shipper pays the duties. If this is true, isn't it strange that when famine threatens any country, one of the first means of relief thought of should be a diminution or removal of import duties on food stuffs? Again, the report of the Treasury Department for the fiscal year 1890 shows that 6,109 gallons of castor oil were imported, valued at $2,910. The duties were $5,520. Now, if the foreign shipper paid the duty, is it not certain that he not only made us a present of the oil, but gave us, besides, $3,010 to get rid of it? In 1890 importers brought into the United States 664,653 gallons of spirits distilled from grain, valued at $456,121, the duties on which were $1,329,367. Who paid these duties? If the importers, they lost not only the liquor, but $873,246 besides. These are, of course, extreme cases, but the truth or fallacy of a proposition is generally most forcibly shown by taking extreme cases.—Rural New-Yorker.

How Trusts Operate.

Major McKinley was the champion of the glass industries in Congress. By his efforts in their behalf he secured an increase in the duty on glassware from 40 and 45 per cent., the old rates, to a uniform rate of 60 per cent., and at the same time imposing this duty on the boxes and other coverings as well as on the glass itself.

Soon after the passage of the McKinley bill the glass men got together, and last July it was announced that they had formed a trust. The history of this trust since its formation is interesting.

"When the United States Glass Company was formed in July, it issued a circular to its customers all over the country, stating its policy and, among other things, announcing that it did not intend to advance the price. Of course the combination was formed for the express purpose of increasing the profit on their goods, but this was to be done by economically operating their factories. This was to be effected by having each factory make a special or several special lines; for instance, one could make goblets and stem ware, and so on. The sets of molds would also be limited, the saving amounting to considerable, as each set cost from $3,000 to $5,000.

"The number of high-salaried officers could be reduced. Again, there would be no danger of accumulating stocks, as a factory making a certain line could shut down if there was a surplus on the market, and the manufacturers joined in one strong association, could be more independent of the union of glass workers, with which they have in the past been unable to cope. Thus, by gaining these advantages, the association proposed to make greater profits than in the past.

"Four months have not passed yet, but prices have already been pushed up on staple lines from 5 to 10 per cent., and on some specialties, such as cologne bottles and similar goods, the advance has been fully 50 per cent. Jobbers look for a greater advance than this before the year is out. What its limits will be it is hard even to surmise, but judging from the low basis on which goods sold before the combination was effected the advance was considerable.

"The increase in the price of novelties and new patterns has not come yet. What are called new patterns have been on the market now since last January, and no newer ones are expected until the advent of the new year. When they are put on the market the jobbers say they will most likely be obliged to pay comparatively more than in past years. The advance is very likely to be considerable also, as the making of new patterns entails the risk of not having the goods take with the purchasing public, a point which competition in the past did not admit being fully taken into account.

"By the way prices have been advanced of late on table glassware, it is natural to suppose that the United States Glass Company has practical control of the market. There are in this country about twenty-six factories in all that make table glassware, and when the association was first formed it included fourteen of these. Most of the powerful concerns were secured, yet several remained outside. Since July two or three more companies have entered, and of the ten or so left but two or three are large concerns that have the power to harass the combination.

"These two or three concerns, it is understood, have agreed to be friendly with the new United States Glass Company and follow the policy of the latter in putting prices up or down. There are some who expect to see these outsiders yet immerged in the combination, so friendly has been their attitude in the past."

Surely the Commercial Bulletin does not agree with the New York Tribune about the "trust-killing" properties of the McKinley tariff.

Tariff Shot.

During the fourteen years from 1847 to 1861 we had revenue tariffs. This is the period to which the high protectionists refer as our "free trade" period.

From 1847 to 1861 the average net whole sale price of standard sheetings in the New York markets was 7.8 cents per yard, or

During the ten years ending with 1888, after our twenty years of high and prohibitive protection, the same sheeting was sold for 7.71 cents per yard, or

During the revenue period above referred to, wheat averaged $1.24 per bushel in New York, or

During the ten years of high protection, ending in 1888, wheat averaged only 92 cents per bushel in New York, or

Under revenue tariffs a bushel of wheat exchanged for 15.89 yards of standard sheeting, represented by

But under the high protective tariff, from 1878 to 1888, a bushel of wheat would buy only 11.93 yards of sheeting, or this amount:

In what has the system of high protection on manufactured products benefited the farmer?

A CHICAGO physician says to the health department: "I have a man under treatment for concoshen of the brain caused by a streek of a stick or club or something liked he is in great dangour." Mispelling in death certificates is by no means uncommon. A recent certificate of death stated that the patient died from the effects of "information." But in this case it was not, in all probability, from "information" possessed by his "doctor."

MR. SLAVIN, unable to arrange a fight at once with Mr. Sullivan, will "star" the country for practice, taking good boxers with him. If he seriously thinks of meeting Boston's favorite, might it not be well for him to encounter two or three Dakota cyclones and blizzards to get an adequate idea of what he will have to meet in the ring with John L.?

VICTORIEN SARDOU'S wife met the famous dramatic author for the first time at breakfast one morning at her own home, where he had come to consult her father, Mr. Soulie, director of the palace of Versailles. It was a case of love at first sight, and before Sardou had left the house she had given him her heart.

TOO MUCH THANKSGIVING PIE.

A small boy sat on the top of the fence,
And thought he was quite a bright fellow,
For he counted the days till Thanksgiving time,
And he counted the pumpkins yellow.

And he said, as he sat in royal state
On top of the fence so high,
"A pumpkin pie most highly I rate,"
And he mused on the pleasures of by and by.

And now near at hand was Thanksgiving Day,
And the kitchen was all in a whirl;
And his mother was busy as busy could be,
Likewise his aunt and the servant girl.

To take a pie, this small boy intended,
For what was one pie more or less;
No doubt his mother would be offended,
But who the culprit, she'd never guess.

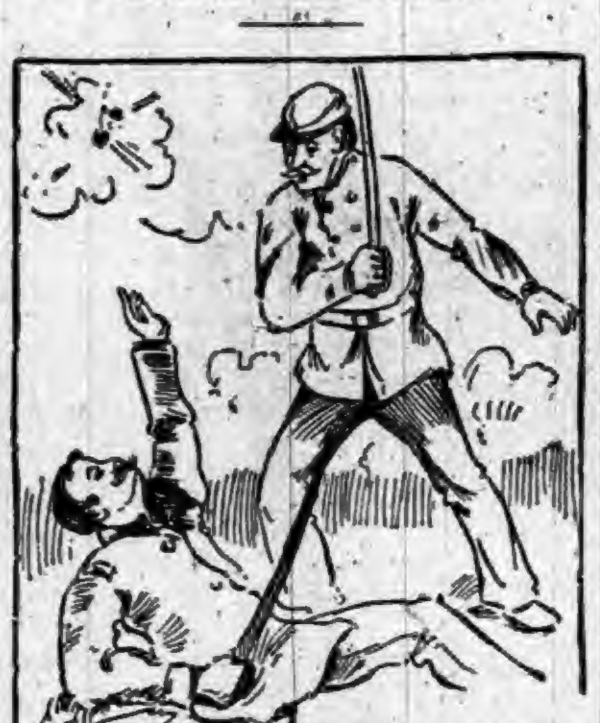
His chance soon came, for a neighbor came in
To ask for the loan of the rolling-pin,
And when none were looking or standing by
This dreadful boy ran off with a pie.

The pie was hot and burned him so,
And running so fast he stubbed his toe,
That over he fell, hot pie and all,
And loudly did for his mother call.

She sadly looked at her pride and joy,
And separated pie from boy;
He cried very hard at having done wrong,
But he knew he'd cry more before very long.

Next day at dinner all wondered why
This small boy was debarred from pie;
But his mother and he alone knew the reason,
And he thought their remarks quite out of season.

RENA MENTON.



IT was Thanksgiving morning in the little Massachusetts village of Granby, and within the great hall of one of its quaint old mansions sits the present owner of the house, Col. Richard Warresby, a direct descendant in the female line from its builder. The old wainscoted walls are hung with family portraits, to which the Colonel, who sits gazing into the log fire blazing on the andirons, bears a most striking resemblance. He is a tall, well-proportioned man of some forty years, whose face, though kindly, indicates strong resolution and courage.

His title of Colonel was won by the most daring bravery on the field of battle, and as he sits gazing into the fire, this Thanksgiving morning, visions of soldier life rise vividly before him. He lives again that day at Vicksburg, ten years ago, when he encouraged his men to repel a sally of the besieged upon those working in the trenches. Once more he stands face to face and fights hand to hand with that brave Confederate officer so gallant and handsome, whose face is indelibly imprinted upon his memory. Again he sees that officer fall beneath his sword and again he shudders as he feels those large, dark eyes, fast glazing in death, fixed upon him with a look of unutterable hatred to the last.

"Pardon me for disturbing you, dear, but I want to introduce our new governess, Miss Rena Menton, of Mississippi." It was his wife who spoke, arousing him from the trance-like condition into which he had fallen. He rose hastily to welcome the young lady whom his temporary absence from home had hitherto prevented him from meeting. Great heavens! There before him stood the very officer whom he had killed at Vicksburg! The face was younger and handsomer than it had been ten years ago, and its features were of a more delicate and feminine cast, but there was no mistaking those large dark eyes. Though that dying look of hatred had passed from them, and they now wore a cheerful, kindly expression, they were the very same.

The Colonel tried to speak. He tried to grasp the small white hand so frankly extended to him. Impossible. His tongue clove to the roof of his mouth. He staggered, the room reeled, and he knew no more.

* * * * * *

Rena Menton was the only child of a wealthy planter, who had inherited from his father one of the finest estates in Mississippi. Reared as the idol of both parents, the heiress of a great plantation, and the pet and darling of 300 or 400 slaves, her life was one uninterrupted day of sunshine until the completion of her sixth year. Then the guns at Fort Sumter summoned her father to the war. At his departure he gave her a miniature of himself inclosed in a diamond locket, saying: "My darling, keep this always for papa's sake, and if I am killed you will not forget me."

Captain Menton never came back. His name was printed in a list of those killed at Vicksburg, and his young wife, completely crushed by grief, died before the close of the war, which had swept away all her husband's property, leaving her ten-year-old daughter penniless. For a time little Rena was cared for by her aunt, but she, too, died, and at sixteen the girl, who had developed into a magnificent Southern beauty, was thrown completely upon her own resources. Making her way to New York, she found employment as a governess, and it was in that capacity that she had been engaged by Mrs. Warresby and had accompanied her to her New England home.

When dinner was announced on that Thanksgiving Day, Colonel Warresby had entirely recovered his composure, and greeted the rural guests who had been bidden to his hospitable board with his accustomed courtesy. To Miss Menton he was particularly kind, explaining his strange conduct of the morning by saying that he had been overcome by a sudden dizziness. He assured her that she should be in all respects a daughter of the household, and said that nothing should be left undone to make her happy in her new home.

And he more than kept his word. The young Southern girl often marvelled at his fatherly interest and kindness. Often she would find him gazing at her with tears in his eyes and when he spoke to her his manner seemed more gentle than when he addressed his own daughters.

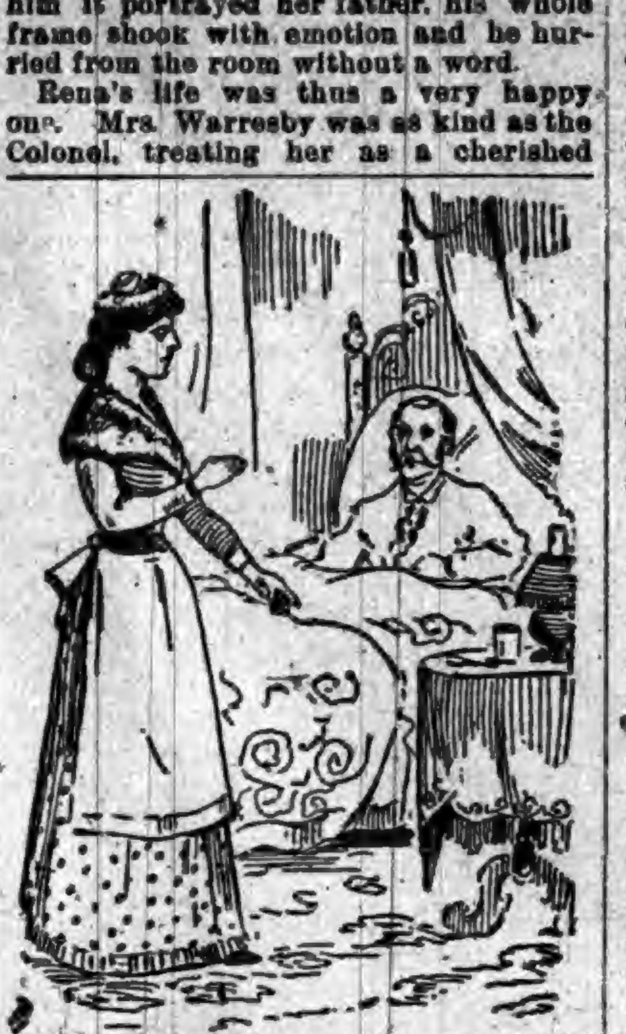
No one save Rena herself knew the measure of his affection for her. He seemed to keep a certain secrecy in it and to hoard it in his heart. He delighted to anticipate her every wish; he could not bear to see a cloud upon her face. He could not bear to see her sit apart. He seemed to fancy that she felt a slight when there was none. Once his attention was attracted by the diamond locket to which she had clung through all her misfortunes. When she showed him the picture it contained, telling him it portrayed her father, his whole frame shook with emotion and he hurried from the room without a word.

Rena's life was thus a very happy one. Mrs. Warresby was as kind as the Colonel, treating her as a cherished daughter, while between herself and the children of the household—her little charges—there sprang up a strong mutual affection. * * * At length a year had passed away. Another Thanksgiving Day had dawned and Colonel Warresby lay dying. An insidious disease, against which his iron constitution had struggled long, was about to prove the victor. When the doctors told him that he had but a few more hours—perhaps only a few more minutes—of life, he desired that Miss Menton might be summoned to his bedside.



AS SHE APPROACHED TEARS FELL FROM HIS EYES.

As she approached tears fell from his eyes, and in a broken voice he said: "My poor child, can you forgive the murderer of your father? Can you clasp the hand that slew him in the pride and vigor of his noble manhood? We fought hand to hand at Vicksburg, and he fell. Can you forgive me as I trust God has done, for having made a widow and an orphan? You are silent. Oh, if you will but say, 'I forgive you,' this will, indeed, be a Thanksgiving Day to me, for your words will lift a dreadful burden from my heart. I shall feel more than ever the love and goodness of God, and my soul will go out in Thanksgiving to him for having answered the prayer which has been hourly upon my lips since you first crossed my threshold."

As Rena listened her heart went out in love and pity to the man who had been to her a second father. She forgave him freely in the name of him who was the divine forgiver of injuries.

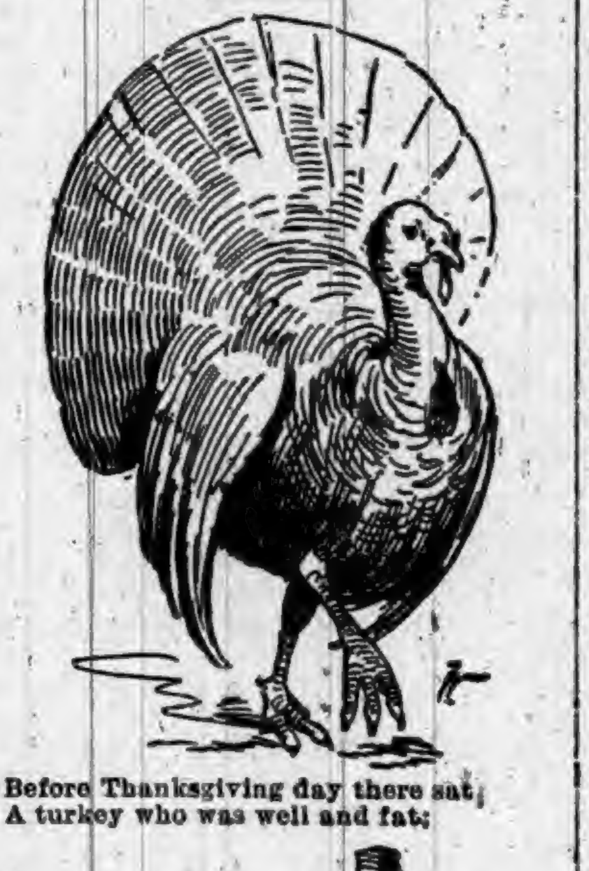
"I have nothing to forgive," she said, when she could trust herself to speak, her whole soul glowing in her magnificent eyes and throbbing in her sweet, low voice. "You were not a murderer, but a brave soldier, doing your duty as my father was doing his. If you have deprived me of him you have filled his place, and you are as dear to me as is his memory."

A smile of unutterable thanksgiving and joy illuminated the countenance of the dying man.

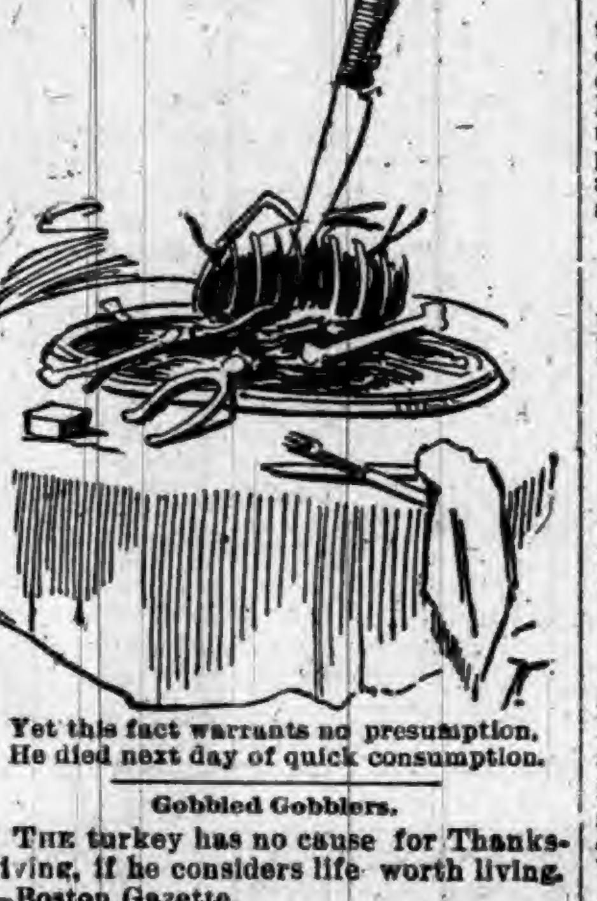
"God bless you. This is indeed a Thanksgiving Day," he said, turning to his wife, who also stood beside him. Then, with one last, convulsive effort he joined the hands of the two women he loved best in all the world, and the sunlight, which just then streamed in through the casement, fell upon the face of the dead.

When Colonel Warresby's will was read it was found to contain a bequest of $30,000 to Rena Menton, accompanied by a direction that she should always make her home with his wife and children as a beloved daughter.

APPEARANCES DECEITFUL.



Before Thanksgiving day there sat;
A turkey who was well and fat;



Yet this fact warrants no presumption.
He died next day of quick consumption.

Gobbled Gobblers.

THE turkey has no cause for Thanksgiving, if he considers life worth living.—Boston Gazette.

"RUSSIA is all right." But Turkey must be getting very uneasy—so near Thanksgiving.—Kentucky State Journal.

THERE are many poor people who would like to knock the stuffing out of a turkey on Thursday; but some of them must wait until Christmas.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE eagle may be the national bird for fifty-one weeks in the year, but it has to take a back seat for the turkey when Thanksgiving comes round.—Rochester Post-Express.

IT is well that Thanksgiving, the day of happiness and good cheer, comes before the time when the small boy goes around opening doors and asking, "Say, mister? Gimme a calendar?"—Lowell Citizen.

Substitute for Black Walnut.

It has been proposed, on account of the scarcity of black walnut, to substitute for it the black gum which grows so plentifully throughout the Southern States. It can be stained so that an expert can hardly detect the difference between the woods.

Prunes.

The cultivation of prunes in California is said to be profitable, about $1 per tree or $100 per acre. This rate increases as the tree grows old, until the fruit each year is worth almost $2. Ex-Secretary of State Thomas Beck has given up everything else to engage in the cultivation of the prune. The Pajaro Land and Fruit Company was recently formed for the purpose of raising this fruit in large quantities. It has bought 600 acres of land in Pajaro Valley and will plant an orchard of French prune trees. They will be from four to six feet in height when put in the ground. The stock of these trees is to be three years old and the grafting one year. Next year they will begin to yield fruit. The average life of the tree is thirty years.

Peace on Earth

Is not the boon vouchsafed to the chronic, nervous invalid. Slight noises startle him, odd and unexpected sensations perplex him. He neither sleeps soundly nor eats heartily; he is almost invariably troubled with dyspepsia. What should he do? Begin and pursue systematically a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. With digestion fortified and food assimilated, strength returns, the nerves grow tranquil and the zest of life returns. A blessed consummation, indeed, and not only effectually but pleasantly wrought by the Bitters. Biliousness, malaria, rheumatism, kidney complaint are also prevented and cured by this sovereign regulating medicine. Try it at once if your nerves are out of order, and if their weakness is perpetuated by the existence of disease. A superb appetizer and promoter of sound repose.

A Bad Spell.

"Spell wrong," said the teacher.

"R-o-n-g," spelled the boy.

"Wrong," said the teacher, "spell it again."

"A-g-a-i-n," spelled the boy.

"See here," said the teacher severely, "What do you mean by spelling 'wrong' again?"

"You told me to spell it again," whimpered the boy. And the teacher was so mixed up she had to dismiss the class.

How He Writes His Book.

There is a physician in this city who is engaged in writing a book, but whose practice is so extensive that he is forced to spend several hours a day in his carriage. He of course has a coachman, and, in order that all this time may not be wasted, he carries a typewriter on his rounds, and setting it on his lap, clicks away at his book as totally unconscious of the busy world about him as if he were in the privacy of his study.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Hunting Truffles.

Truffles, so dearly prized by gourmands in France, are worth to the man who finds them $1 a pound. Hogs are largely utilized in hunting them. As soon as the pig takes the root of the fungus in his mouth he is dealt a sharp blow across the nose and drops the truffle, when it is bagged by the hunter. Recently dogs have been trained to perform the duties instinctive to the pig.

A Prominent Citizen.

Three years ago I had a severe abscess, and used everything I could hear of without benefit. My blood was in a very bad state, had intense pain in my back, had to give up work and walk on crutches. Was advised to try Swamp-Root, the great Kidney specific. After only using one bottle I feel better than for years.

Mother—I'd just like to know who this young man is you have engaged yourself to.

Daughter—Oh, he comes of splendid family.

"German Syrup"

Here is an incident from the South—Mississippi, written in April, 1890, just after the Grippe had visited that country. "I am a farmer, one of those who have to rise early and work late. At the beginning of last Winter I was on a trip to the City of Vicksburg, Miss., where I got well drenched in a shower of rain. I went home and was soon after seized with a dry, hacking cough. This grew worse every day, until I had to seek relief. I consulted Dr. Dixon who has since died, and he told me to get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Meantime my cough grew worse and worse and then the Grippe came along and I caught that also very severely. My condition then compelled me to do something. I got two bottles of German Syrup. I began using them, and before taking much of the second bottle, I was entirely clear of the Cough that had hung to me so long, the Grippe, and all its bad effects. I felt tip-top and have felt that way ever since." PETER J. BRIALS, Jr., Cayuga, Hinds Co., Miss.

Aunt 'Tilda Melton is about the happiest person in Concord, since her son, Dick has moved to St. Joe. He has been residing at Somerville, Ind., but had the good fortune to secure the position of night operator at St. Joe, thus making it convenient for calling upon the friends at home.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, Rev. Mr. Stanton drove down from St. Joe Sunday and delivered an excellent sermon to a rather small audience. From here he went in the afternoon to Rehoboth—it being his regular appointment, but found the church door locked, so he returned home.

He settled on the farm in 1843, where his home has been for nearly 50 years. His wife died about 16 years ago. We feel sorry to see him leave his home but age and infirmity have made it necessary.

A new barn belonging to Martin Jackman was destroyed by the fire on the morning of the 17th together with all his hay and grain. The loss amounts to about $500. Mr. Jackman is insured in J. A. Campbell's agency which warrants a prompt adjustment and payment of the same. The fire was evidently of an incendiary origin as the horses had been tied in the barn and when the fire was discovered they had been turned out. He is unable to imagine who would have cause to do him such an injury.

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. Oct. 31, '91

EDITOR COURIER: On the evening of Tuesday Oct. 27, we were given a banquet and ball at the Hotel Hagerman at Eddy, N. M., at which were gathered the good people, for twenty miles around, to visit with this influx of "Hoosiers" who were very agreeably surprised to find the parlors filled with the ladies and gentlemen of the Pecos Valley in full evening dress, people of fine culture and tender sympathies, who by their good cheer and open hearted hospitality, made us feel entirely welcome and completely at home. When the program of dances was half completed, four colored boys dressed in dark trousers, white shining coats and aprons, came into the dining room, marching to the strains of music, carrying between them a square table, in the center of which, surrounded by all the delicate edibles imaginable, was a large cake representing Eddy county, its valleys, mountains, rivers, towns, caves and railroad with the name of each plainly visible. Before partaking of this fine lunch here spread, Mr. Stoll in a neat speech presented Mr. Louis McDonald and bride with a nice silver dinner service, the present of the members of the excursion party, as a manifestation of the esteem in which they are held by the party and as an appreciation of Mr. McDonald's untiring efforts as secretary of the association, to make the excursion a success. Mr. McDonald was very gratified to know, by this revelation, that his zealous labors in our behalf were so highly treasured.

It was midnight ere the dancers retired and the assemblage dispersed, the Hoosiers being fully convinced of the hospitality of Eddy society. The next morning some of us were up before break of day, to witness the sun rise on the mountains, and take a "constitutional" before breakfast. The morning air is very invigorating and bracing and when the sun had peeped over the eastern mountain tops upon this lovely valley and breakfast was announced, we are all ready to do it justice. The day of Oct. 28th was spent in driving about the county again and at 6:30 p. m. with many happy memories of the people and country, we regretfully left Eddy and its pleasant surroundings on our return home.

Arriving at Pecos Junct. Texas, at 10:30 p. m. and hearing that Judge Vanhorn, formerly of Indianapolis resided there, about a dozen of us wended our way up town about a mile distant, and called on the Judge who took great delight in showing us about the town, visiting some of their artesian wells, which are from 160 to 250 feet deep and flow from 6 to 12 feet above the surface. These wells are used very extensively here for irrigation purposes, by private individuals, several clubbing together to sink a well and then each owner pipes the water to his place of business, or estate. The water has a peculiar, saltish taste, but is not unpleasant in either odor or taste and is quite warm; which last quality makes it good for irrigating purposes. The soil is of the same character as that at Eddy this place being in fact a part of the same valley.

At 3:10 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 29th, we were hooked onto the rear of T. & P. fast train, (which makes 22 miles an hour) and started for El Paso, Texas, taking breakfast at Sierra Blancho, Texas, having passed the Guadalupe mountains in the night, but we traveled in their foot hills all day and at 1:30 p. m., arrived at El Paso where we were met at the depot by Mayor Caples. Major Logan, Editors Lenguemare of the Bullion, Hollub of the Herald. Hart of the Times and Speck of the Tribune, together with a number of other citizens. A short conference was had between this committee and our leaders to adopt a suitable program, after which Mr. Frank Hunter in a happy manner welcomed us to the city.

We then dispersed, going to the different hotels for dinner after which the party assembled at the plaza at 2 o'clock to go to Juarez (Old Mexico) to see the sights in that grand old city.

Some of us being too eager to await the assembling of the crowd and being sufficiently acquainted with those crooked and narrow streets by experience of former days, thought to go it alone.

We boarded a street car, which had a minute, insignificant looking donkey attached to the bow of it, and started for the river but were surprised at the speed of the donkey, who by the aid of a little "persuader", carried by the driver, made good time to the bridge. We then, for the first time saw the Rio Grande, although we had been traveling all day in sight of its forest lined banks, and I, for one was much disappointed in it, for, instead of a rapid, roaring mountain stream, we found a slow, turbid one, shallow and narrow, while during some seasons of some years it becomes completely dry; all of the water of the river that can not flow away, sinking into the white sand through which it so laggardly meanders.

On reaching the Mexican side of the river the Mexican custom officers boarded the car to see that no smuggled goods were aboard and being satisfied that we were not related to "my son Isaac" he quietly dismissed us, and proceeding through the crooked streets and by the adobe houses, we found the old Cathedral El Paso Del Norte, which is built of adobe and is said to be 300 years old. It's walls are five feet in thickness and 25 feet high, the floor is of wood and kept very clean as the worshipers all sit on the floor and there are no chairs or benches in sight. Besides the audience room there are several cloisters or recesses which are locked and to which admission is denied. There are no windows to the building, all the light coming through two large door ways, one at the side and one at the end of the buildings. The steps leading to the tower are of hewn logs, five inches thick, that look as if they had stood the tramp of many feet for ages. There were many old women and little children round the church begging alms of every comer, and poverty seems to be very great in this old town. From the church we visited the various stores and curiosity shops numerous and extensive, where they offer for sale all sorts of Mexican and Indian manufactured goods and trinkets. As a matter of fact English made fabrics and silks and Mexican made jewelry, pottery and cigars are very cheap here, but the duty on them makes their cost in the United States more than what they can be bought for in Chicago and other cities in the United States.

Every one, of course, made some purchases and then either successfully or unsuccessfully run the gauntlet of the U. S. custom officers on the return across the river.

The railroad yards and depot are surrounded by a high brick wall and resembles a prison yard.

Jaurez, (or Paso Del Norte as formerly called), is named after President Jaurez, the president of the Mexican Republic, who occupied the place when he was driven from the city of Mexico by Maximilian, and the Mexican people love his memory dearly. It is certainly a grand old place and one in which the lover of the old and curious could find much to claim his attention for a longer time than we were permitted to enjoy it. We returned to El Paso for supper and at 8:30 p. m. were given a reception and ball by the Franklin club at their rooms which are very nicely furnished and comfortably situated. The members of the club are cordial and pleasant but being tired we retired early and when we awoke the following morning we were speeding through the Rio Grande valley, on the Santa Fe R. R. to Las Cruces, our next stop, having left El Paso at 5:30 a. m.

Passing around the base of the Franklin mountains going northward from El Paso, you emerge into the Mesilla Valley which is one of the most fruitful sections of New Mexico being six miles in width and forty miles in length. Through it the turbid Rio Grande del Norte meanders to where it enters the canon above El Paso. Seventeen miles to the east rises the range of mountains whose tall pinnacles, piercing the blue dome of the heavens, so resemble the pipes of a monster organ that they are named "Organ Mountains," while on the west the battlement like walls of the valley rise some 200 feet above its level.

This section of New Mexico, with its fine climate, its numerous irrigating canals, (mostly private ones) leading the waters of the Rio Grande to the alfalfa fields, beautiful vineyards of luscious grapes, orchards of fine fruits, gardens supplied with every known vegetable, and with flower gardens giving forth the richest perfumes of the tropics, well deserves the name it bears—"The Happy Valley." This valley has been cultivated for 50 years and at present under the lead of "go ahead" Americans produces fine and large crops of cereals and fruits. The American colonization dates back to 1884 and comprise about one fifth of the population, the balance being Mexican and Spanish.

The soil is very rich and produces abundant crops when a sufficient supply of water can be obtained from the Rio Grande, which is not always the case as, owing to their very crude and ineffectual system of irrigation and the want of storage reservoirs where the water can be held for use when needed, much of it is wasted. What they need here is a number of wide awake eastern men with sufficient capital to make make reservoirs and build irrigation canals. When this is done the opportunities for fruit growing in the Mesilla Valley will be excelled by none. As it now is all the people who use the water of the river for irrigating purposes have equal rights in the canals; that is, they own it in common and get water in proportion to the amount of work they do on the ditches yearly. This comes about as near being a realization of socialistic ideas as anything in America; but is much inferior to a regular well organized irrigation system with reservoirs. During the spring and early summer when the melted snows of the mountains fill the Rio Grande from bank to bank the farming community under the community ditches has plenty of water and to spare but it don't last and when summer heat scorches and bakes all earthly things and they need water most they cannot get it, because the water in the river is below the level of their farms, whereas by the reservoir system they can store all the waste water of spring time for summer's use. The Mexicans and Spanish, who own by inheritance, the most of the farming land, are loth to give up the ancient ideas of their forefathers and embark in any industrial enterprise or social intercourse to better their conditions, in fact, they will not be Americanized nor conform to our, customs or manners.

At Las Cruces we were met at the train by a committee provided with carriages for all to ride and taken to the hotel for breakfast after which we were taken over the country to see many vineyards, to La Mesilla (the oldest town in this part of the state 2 miles from Las Cruces) and to the agricultural college. The college of agriculture of New Mexico owes its existence to the Act of Congress July 1, 1862, and was opened January 21, 1890, their present buildings being completed the first of the present year. The school is non-sectarian and is devoted to instruction in agriculture, mechanic arts and natural sciences.

The healthiest, strongest lot of school children I ever saw are here, where they both boys and girls, ride horse back and engage in all kinds of out door exercise. The cavalcade of horse mounted by the scholars which came down the drive to meet us, showed them to be expert riders. We returned to Las Cruces in time to dine before starting for Albuquerque. The dust here is very bad and rolls up under the horses feet in great clouds completely engulfing the occupants of carriages, and we were some time getting presentably clean after our ride.

Llana Ana county, in which is situated Las Cruces its county seat, is in the South Central part of New Mexico and comprises about 8,280 square miles of territory and varies about 300 feet in altitude between its northern and southern boundary, a distance of 72 miles, and is the greater portion of the land acquired from Mexico by the Gadsden Treaty of 1853. Las Cruces situated as it is in the heart of a rich agricultural and mining district bids fair to be a prosperous town. Stages run from it to all the principal mining camps in its vicinity, of which there are many, containing silver, lead, coal and copper. Those in the Organ Mountains some 20 miles distant are the most important ones in New Mexico.

Las Cruces is a place of nearly 5 000 people and has quite an extensive trade, principally with the mining camps. It is 3,900 feet above the sea level, contains a few very nice modern buildings but the most of buildings are made of mud as is the custom of Mexicans. The hotel where we were so magnificently entertained by its liberal people, is of adobe the walls being three feet in thickness. They are cheerful buildings, when properly furnished and finished inside. The immense thickness renders them cool in summer, likewise keeps out the cold of winter.

A great deal of wine is made here from the juices of the grapes grown in the Mesilla Valley. The county received twelve first premiums at the last territorial fair at Albuquerque on fruits, vegetables, grain and wines. Of the 12 000 people living in the county the town of Las Cruces and La Mesilla contain about three fourths. With a very few exceptions all the farmers live in town and this custom probably has prevailed from times when it was necessary, to thus congregate, for protection against hostile Indians and invading foes.

We left Las Cruces and the Mesilla Valley at 3:10 p. m. Oct. 30th arriving here at 12:05 a. m. Oct. 31st. At 6 a m. a committe of citizens came to the cars to make known their program, but as none of the party had yet risen, they returned again at 7 o'clock and distributed us equally between the San Felipe and the Armijo hotels, those in our car going to the San Felipe, to which is adjoined the Commerical Club rooms where we will be intertained to-night and of which I will speak in my next.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1856—Continued.

The DeKalb Democrat was established by W. C. McGonigal in the latter part of April or the first part of May, and on June 6th, James M. Bromagen began the publication of the first republican paper printed in the county.

To his paper Mr. Bromagem gave the name, "The Auburn Republican," and took for his motto the eloquent sentiment, "Be just and fear not. Let all thy aims be for thy country, thy God and the cause of truth and justice."

Both papers speedily became repository of charge and countercharge, assertion and denial, and the hostility indicated in their columns was such that the unsophisticated were apprehensive lest a conflict would follow a chance meeting of the press belligerents; but they were surprised and calmed when Messrs McGonigal and Bromagem were seen pleasantly communing as they wended their way along the Main street together.

The rivalry of these two publishers partook much of the spirit that noisy campaign, and at its close the Republican was discontinued, and the office removed by Mr. Bromagem to Angola where he establised the Steuben Republican.

During the existence of the two papers in Auburn, the public patronage, printing and advertising, had been divided between them, and with his rival off the field, Mr. McGonigal received an increase of support, which encouraged him to enlarge the size of his sheet and to so essentially improve its typographical appearance as to excel any of its predecessors.

In the year 1859, Mr. McGonigal moved his office to Wabash, Ind., joined the republican ranks and established the Wabash Plaindealer, making it the republican organ of that county in the campaign of 1860.

A meeting was held July 17, at the Auburn House at which, as an effect of the January fire, an ordinance was passed that every owner of a building within corporate limits was required to furnish a suitable ladder of sufficient length to reach the roof of his highest building to aid in extinguishing fires, and further, the trustee of each ward was required to have excavated "a good public well not less than six feet square on the inside and sunk as low as possible so as to contain the largest volume of water practicable. The wells were to be walled by 2½ inch plank gained at the corners." A pump was in course of time placed in each.

Only recently Marshal Pfefferl having buils a cement crossing near grade across church street north of Mrs. Houghton's property, used the surplus dirt in filling in a large well or cistern, presumably one of the wells sunk in 1856.

The town now has upwards of twenty-five fire wells or cisterns of large capacity suitably located and few remember the old fire wells which gave sense of security in by gone years.

Messrs Berry and Ward were appointed fire wardens.

It is of historical interest and a basis of comparison, to present the Auburn market of 1856 as published Sept. 5th of that year.

In the same connection the financial rating of the banks of the state is worthy of notice.

The Ft. Wayne Times marks in class number 1, specie paying par, all branches of the state bank and 41 other banks; at 7 per cent. discount, 15 banks; at 12 per cent., 7 banks, and at 20 per cent. discount, 24 banks, in which last list was included the "Bank of Auburn, Auburn," but who were the proprietors of this bank is unknown to the writer and its existence is deemed questionable.

During the month of December, Mr Houghton found himself short of time, asked an extension on his building contract and the favor was promptly granted. The county purchased a safe which was hauled to town by S. B. Ward who assisted in placing it in the treasurer's office.

At the December term of the county board the first heavy appropriation for bridging was made. The sum of $700 was authorized to be expended in building a bridge over the St. Joe river at Newville. It was a business-like custom then prevailing, to appoint some trust worthy and competent person to superintend the construction of bridges. The custom has been revived by our present commissioners in the appointment of Joseph Wilson to superintend the work of building the heavy stone abutments intended for a fine iron bridge over the same stream at Webster's Mill in Stafford township.

An honest contractor doing good work will find his endorsement in the report of the superintendent that he has supervised the work and found it properly done, and the taxpayer will bear the burden of expense more patiently when convinced that an imperative work has been done in a substantial manner at a reasonable cost.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all, eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottle free at Robbins & McCords' drugstore, regular size, 50c. and $1.00.

and also to all our old friends, for the full term of one year; we do all this without increasing our subscription price a penny.

Those whose homes are gladdened by children will find in Sunshine real treasures for the young minds. Those whose homes are childless will have the means of making glad other homes, and we doubt not will delight in so doing.

We feel that our efforts in supplying both papers for the price of our own alone, will be appreciated, and thus bear the good fruit of mutual satisfaction and benefit. We believe our readers understand that with anxious care, we are ever alive to their interests and that our constant effort is in the direction of giving them more and that which is better than they can elsewhere secure for the same expenditure.

Obituary.

Milo Ross Smith only child of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Smith, was born August 2, 1890 and departed this life November 20, 1891, aged 1 year, 3 months and 20 days. The funeral was from the residence on day forenoon, Nov. 24. Rev. Diffenbaugh preached from Genesis 42nd chapter and the latter part of the 13th verse—And one is not.

Above his couch we bent and prayed,
In the dimly lighted room;
As the bright hues of childish life
Sank slowly into gloom.

At last the fluttering pulse was still,
The death chill through his clay
Stole slowly; and as noon came on
Our flower had passed away.

The form remained, but there was now
No soul our love to share,
No warm, responding lips to kiss,
For Milo was not there.

"Farewell", with weeping hearts we said,
"Child of our love and care";
And then we ceased to kiss those lips,
For our darling was not there.

He was the music of our home,
A day that knew no night;
The fragrance of our garden bower,
A joy all smiles and light.

When we leave this world of changes,
When we leave this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved one
In our Father's mansion fair.

Kruse-Bartles Nuptials.

On Wednesday of lost week at the home of the bride's parents in South Jackson township occurred the marriage of William Kruse and Rickie Bartles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bartles.

At the appointed hour 12 o'clock the candidates for matrimonial honors appeared, attended by Lotta Houston and Emma Kruse as bridesmaids and Henry and Charles Bartles as groomsmen. They passed to the center of the room where they were confronted by Rev. C. C. Price who in a few short words pronounced them man and wife. Hearty congratulations followed, after which they repaired to the dining room there to partake of a royal feast in honor of the event. Guests to the numberof eighty or more assembled around the tables and did ample justice to the feast of good things spread before them. The evening hours were spent in social greetings and pleasant intercourse passing only too swiftly amid cheerful and happy surroundings. The presents were numerous and costly, estimated at about $50 embracing articles of value as well as ornaments, and are true tokens of the esteem in which this couple are held by their many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Kruse left Friday for Findlay, O., where they will visit a week or more with relatives and friends. They will reside on the farm with Mr. Kruse's mother, where we wish them many years of farm life. Happy may their future be.

WAR ON AMERICAN PORK.

German Deputies Ask That Steps Be Taken to Prohibit Its Importation.

Berlin special: A number of deputies, representing country districts, have entered a formal complaint before the Budget Committee in regard to American pork. They claim that trichinæ have recently been frequently found in American pork, and they ask that steps be immediately taken to prohibit its importation. Dr. Von Boetticher, Minister of the Interior, said that the importation of American pork in the future would be prohibited unless thoroughly inspected in the United States, and added that if after this inspection trichinæ were found in American pork the Government would be forced to entirely prohibit its importation in Germany. The Deputies seemed to be satisfied with this statement, and there seems reason to believe that if the Germans who are hurt by American competition in pork succeed in making out a clear case against the importers of that article rigorous measures will once more be taken against the United States hog.

Mongol Mutiny.

The latest news from Pekin states that there are alarming signs of mutiny among the Manchu troops on whom the capitol depends for defense, and it is feared that the advance of the Tartar rebels will not meet with earnest opposition. The Mongols at Kalgan, which is the headquarters of the northern army, are showing a rebellious spirit, and the force there, which is the principal military dependence of China, is evidently in sympathy with the Mongols, who have raided and plundered shops in the Chinese part of the town, virtually without interference by the soldiers. The actuating motive of the Mongol rebellion is as yet a mystery, even to the Chinese. There are rumors that a Mongol chief leads the rebels, who is ambitious to place himself on the throne of the Manchu dynasty, and that a new era of Mongolian aggression may be looked for.

That Boundary Line.

Indianapolis special: The report of Professor T. Mendenhall, Chief of the United States Geodetics and Coast Survey, concerning the Indiana-Ohio boundary line has been made to Governor Chase. It is a duplicate of that made to Governor Campbell at Columbus. Ohio has disputed the correctness of the Indiana line, claiming that it was too far east of its proper place at the northern extremity of the State. The survey of Professor Mendenhall and assistants shows that it is one mile east of its proper place at that point and converging to the proper point at the southern extremity. This would give Ohio nearly one hundred square miles of Indiana territory.

Fatal Dynamite Explosion.

Corrunna (Mich.) special: While workmen at the Corrunna coal mines, two miles northeast of here, were thawing out dynamite cartridges, the dynamite exploded with terrific violence, completely wrecking the shed in which the men were at work and instantly killing Michael Caster and seriously injuring two of his assistants. Caster was horribly mangled. The shock was distinctly felt at Durand, Vernon, and Owesso. At Durand it was taken for an earthquake. In the city windows rattled and it was at first supposed the explosion was within the city limits. The wreck at the mine is complete.

The Miantonomah Will Remain in American Waters.

Washington special: It has been decided by the Navy Department that the double turrented monitor, Miantonomah, which is regarded as one of the most formidable vessels in the new navy, shall not leave American waters this winter. Admiral Walker has left for New York. He is on his way to South America to take command of the Boston and will receive instructions while en route regarding his work. In naval and diplomatic circles these facts are regarded as significant. It is thought that all apprehension of further difficulty with Chili is over.

A $100,000 Fire at Chicago.

Fire threatened to destroy the Adams Express Company's building on Dearborn street, Chicago, and the Commercial Bank adjoining it on the south. As it was, the damage to the building will be over $100,000. The blaze started in the boiler room, and it was only after a hard fight that the flames were subdued.

King Fully Identified.

The identification of King as one of the kidnapers of the Beals child at Kansas City, was fully established by the messenger boy who carried the note to Mr. Beals. The boy was taken to the jail at Independence and at once identified King as the man who gave him the note.

Burned to Death in a Hotel.

The Grand Hotel, two stories high, at Leadville, was burned to the ground. It is believed that a man named Matthews, who was lying sick in the house, was burned to death, as he has not been seen since the fire broke out.

A Postmaster Goes Wrong.

Charles Westergren, postmaster at Marine Mills, Minn., has been removed, owing to a shortage of $450 in his accounts. Westergren's bonds are signed by James S. O'Brien.

A Narrow Escape.

The protectory building connected with the convent of the Sisters of Mercy, two miles north of Newburg, N. Y., burned to the ground. There were 240 children sleeping in the building, but all got out safely. The structure was a four-story brick. Loss about $40,000.

Shot His Wife and Himself.

George F. Barr, proprietor of the Hotel Warwick, Springfield, Mass., shot and killed his wife and then killed himself.

Christians Massacred.

London special: The Chronicle's correspondent at Tien Tsin says: The outbreak in the North, officially described as a raid of Mongolian robbers, proves to be an insurrectionary movement of serious dimensions. Dispatches received to-day state that in Mongolia and some Northern districts nearer the Capital the revolutionary feeling is spreading rapidly, and the number of rebels is becoming alarming. An insurgent force consisting of several squadrons of Mongolian cavalry, besides infantry, is reported to be advancing on Pekin, where the utmost alarm prevails. The population of a large area, actuated partly by inclination and partly by fear of the rebel soldiery has joined the movement, together with several mandarins. Imperial troops have started to meet the rebels. The entire Christian population of King Chou was massacred, with the Belgian priests.

PROBABLY A BLUFF.

President Montt Will Not Apologize for Chilian Indignities.

Valparaiso special: The United Press correspondent has it from a high authority in Santiago, one who is undoubtedly acquainted with the true state of affairs in Chilian Governmental affairs, that the Chilian Government has no intention whatever of offering an apology or indemnity such as the American President requested and had no intention of recalling or modifying the reply given to the American request and that any expectation that President Montt would in this respect modify the policy adopted by the junta was misleading. The President himself, it is said, was the most earnest advocate in the junta of a defiant retort to the United States, and virtually dictated the answer sent to Minister Egan. Montt has not changed his views since he exchanged the office of chief of the junta for that of President, and Chili is silent now because there is nothing to be said. Meantime, although President Montt has recommended a cutting down of the army and navy, no steps have been taken to carry out the recommendation, and even the volunteers sent back to their homes in the north were told to retain their arms.

INDIANS DECLARE WAR.

The Bloody Apaches Don the War Paint and Inaugurate a Reign of Terror in Arizona.

A special from Wilcox, Arizona, dated the 2d inst., says: The Apaches are on the warpath and have committed several depredations. One man has been killed and another wounded and the settlers are arming to protect themselves. Maj. William L. Downing, who lives about thirty miles south of this place, reached here Sunday night and reported that one of his men had been murdered by a war party of Indians, who disappeared after the killing and cannot now be found. The following telegram was received from Fort Bowie last evening:

"Major Downing was shot from ambush this evening while riding in his buggy, but not fatally injured. Lieutenant Irwin and ten soldiers are now leaving for the scene of the shooting."

This was written within a mile of the Major's residence. Robbery was not the object of the murderers. Great excitement exists among the settlers, who fear a raid from the Chiricalura Mountains, which are practically impenetrable by the whites against an armed force. The Indians are moving south. No other news is obtainable.

BLOODY WORK.

Chicago and Erie Trainmen Have a Battle With Italians.

A disastrous riot occurred at Yorkville, a small village on the Chicago and Erie railroad, about twenty-five miles northwest of St. Marys, Ohio, that resulted in the fatal wounding of three participants and dangerous wounding of two others. The westbound local crew on the Chicago and Erie has for some time been on bad terms with a party of twenty Italians, who are employed on the work train. The other afternoon while the Italians were cooped up in a caboose on the side-track, the local backed down on the siding and collided with the car containing the Italians with terrific force. Wild with rage the latter immediately attacked the local crew, but as the latter had armed themselves with revolvers, the Italians were soon put to flight, three of them, Frank Larani, Antonio Marzetti, and Frank Cappanni receiving perhaps fatal wounds. Two of the train crew, whose names could not be learned, were also dangerously injured by flying stones, but they may recover. After the excitement had cooled down somewhat the villagers attempted to take a hand in the row and the local crew came near being mobbed. Fresh trouble is expected.

EX-DICTATOR FONSECA

Surrenders Everything but His Life, Though That May Be Asked.

Valparaiso special: Advices received here from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, state that Fonseca, besides abdication of the dictatorship, has renounced his title of commander-in-chief and retired to private life. The papers are, however, demanding the impeachment of Fonseca and also of his ministers, on the ground that they are responsible for the moneys spent during the short-lived dictatorship. The Governors of all the States have proclaimed in favor of the new President Peixotto. It is rumored that the Federal capital will be removed from Rio de Janeiro to Niotheroy. Gen. Ossorrio, who commanded the insurgent army in Rio Grand do Sul, made a demand on the upper Uruguay squadron that it give in its adhesion. The demand met with refusal, and the squadron has gone to anchor in Argentine waters.

THE TOWN ARMED

And a Bloody Attack Expected.

Gurdon (Ark) special: The excitement here is intense, as a momentary attack by colored men is looked for. They say that the whites have been exercising superiority too long and that they will resist this condition of affairs. Citizens all go armed, prepared to resist any attack that may be made by the blacks. In Thursday's rioting Marshal Huffman was slashed with a knife, and, while his wound is not thought to be fatal, yet it is quite serious. The Marshal used his pistol to good purpose, bringing down his assailant with a bullet through the chest. An attack is fully looked for, as the colored citizens are inflamed with rage over the recent lynching. Henry Curley, the colored man who was rescued from the Marshal, has fled.

An Ex-Balmaceda Minister.

Valparaiso special: Francisco C. Concha, one of Balmaceda's Ministers of Justice, was shot by Government pickets in Cordilleras Pass while he was endeavoring to escape in the Argentine Republic. Senor Concha applied to United States Minister Egan two weeks ago for an asylum in the legation. His application was refused on the ground that the list of refugees in the legation had been furnished to our Government and Chili, and the Minister did not feel justified in adding to the number of refugees already under the protection of the American flag. Thereupon the unfortunate man made the attempt to escape with the above fatal result.

Must Call a Halt.

The conference of Irish-Americans held in New York, at which resolutions were passed warning the people of Ireland that "they can receive no further support, moral or financial, from this country until they call a halt in the war of factions and re-unite the forces now engaged in the work of self-destruction," was the first step of the adherents of Parnell in the United States to show that they were for union. About 100 men from nine States were present. Almost all of them were members of the Cronin wing of the Clan-na-gael.

The Awful Story Confirmed.

Tacoma (Wash.) special: The story that twenty men were left buried out of sight, but alive, under the earth and mud of the landslide at Canton Station by the Northern Pacific Company's bosses is confirmed and considered true. Officials of the company indignantly denied the story, but a special correspondent sent to the mountains wires confirmation of it. It is said that no effort is being made to recover the bodies. Eye-witnesses have been discovered who say the sight was bloodcurdling and the cruelty of it past understanding.

Telescope for the Fair.

H. C. Williams, editor of the Millstone, the organ of the Millers' Association of the United States, has contracted for the construction and erection at the World's Columbian Exposition of the largest telescope in the world. It will be composed of American material. Mr. Williams having induced the glassmakers of the United States to undertake the manufacture of the disc, a process hitherto entirely in the hands of the French. All the raw material, the complete objective and most of the mounting will be made in Indiana.

Mr. Beals Will Prosecute.

Kansas City special: Mr. Beals, after an interview with the prosecuting attorney on which the latter strongly hinted that Mr. Beals might be called to answer the charge of compounding a felony, has decided to prosecute the people who abducted his child. He has given a description of the man who brought back the child and as the police have found the picture of a man in the house occupied by King, which tallies with the description, it is believed the man will soon be under arrest.

Two Masks Found.

Detectives at work on clews to the recent train robbery near Racine, Wis., searched a house on Twelfth street in that city and found two masks, two slouch hats, two pairs of overalls and twenty-five brass shells loaded with buckshot. The rooms had been occupied by two men who worked for a contractor named Ricert. They disappeared shortly after the train robbery. Engineer McKay, of the robbed train, identified the garments as those worn by the robbers. Detectives left Racine hastily and arrests are expected.

For Peace Only.

St. Petersburg special: It is announced here that M. DeGiers, the Russian Foreign Minister, who is at present in Berlin, has been authorized by the Czar to assure Emperor William that the entente between Russia and France involves nothing that might be construed as a menace to the other countries of Europe. It is added that M. DeGiers is also authorized to state to the German Emperor that the aim of the understanding between Russia and France is to promote peace.

A Fleet of Smugglers.

San Francisco special: There are good grounds for the belief that Boom and Douglass, the Australian refugees, have joined an extensive opium smuggler's ring, at the head of which is the notorious Tom Whaley. Quite a number of small coasting freighters and a small fleet of vessels are supposed to be aiding in the bandit trade. The Beogle, on which Bloom and Douglass reached Honolula, is said to be so well armed that it would require a man-of-war to effect her capture.

Boiled to Death.

The 3-year-old son of Wm. Carpenter, living five miles north of Indianapolis, met a horrible death. The farm hands were making hominy and the child was playing near the fire, over which a kettle of lye was boiling. Suddenly a stifled scream was heard and a splash followed and the child was seen to fall into the kettle. The father rescued the child in an instant, but it was so badly burned that it died in terrible agony two hours later.

Burned at Sea.

The American clipper ship "Rappahannock" was burned to the water's edge on the night of Nov. 14, while at anchor in the harbor of Cumberland Bay, in the northern part of the South Pacific Island of Juan Fernandez. Capt. Dickinson, his wife, and the crew escaped. They will be sent to San Francisco. The Rappahannock left Liverpool on Aug. 29 last and was bound for San Francisco with a valuable cargo of merchandise. Spontaneous combustion is supposed to be the cause of the fire.

$500,000 Fire.

A fire in the Chicago Arc Light and Power Company's plant at Washington and Market streets, Chicago, caused 2,300 lights to go out, leaving the down town district of the city in comparative darkness the remainder of the night. The loss will be upwards of $500,000. Seventy-five dynamos, valued at $3,500 apiece, were destroyed, powerful engines and boilers were ruined, and the building, which was worth in the neighborhood of $100,000, is a complete loss.

General Porter Will be Re-Appointed.

The official announcement has been received at Albany, N. Y., that Governor-elect Flower has decided to re-appoint Gen. Porter Adjutant General of the State.

Car Sheds Burned.

The car sheds of the Union Street Railroad Company, at St. Joseph, Mo., were burned, together with thirty-five electric motor cars. The loss is $70,000.

Accidentally Shot.

While out hunting near Paola, Ind., Lindsey Holiday was seriously wounded in the hip by the accidental discharge of a shotgun which he was handing to Wesley Kimbuel.

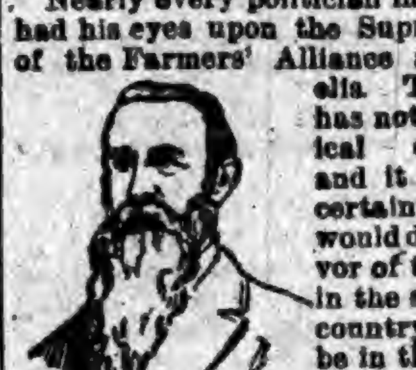
THE FARMERS ARE FOXY

THEY AVOID ALL ENTANGLING ALLIANCES.

They Stand by the Ocala Platform, the Sub-Treasury Plan, and Fire the State Business Agents from Membership—President Polk Re-elected.

Result of the Convention.



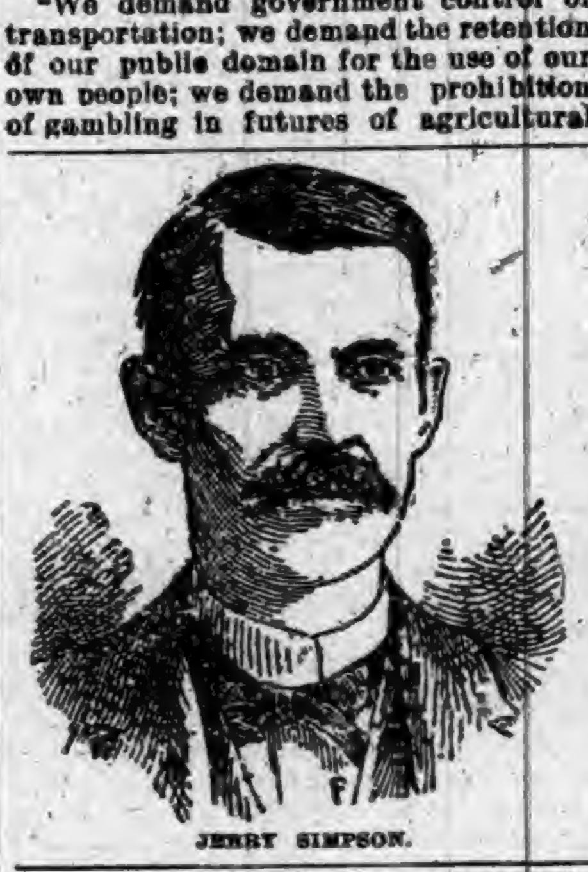
L. L. POLK.

Nearly every politician in the country had his eyes upon the Supreme Council of the Farmers' Alliance at Indianapolis. The Alliance has not been a political organization, and it was the uncertainty whether it would declare in favor of taking a hand in the saving of the country, which will be in the regular order of things next year, or not, that kept alive so much of interest among the professional saviors. Then, too, the National F. M. B. A. was also in session at the same time and place, which tended not a little to excite speculation as to the probable outcome.

There were present nearly all the men who have attained prominence in this movement, among them those whose portraits are presented in this article.

Upon the assembling of the Supreme Council Mayor Sullivan delivered an address of welcome, to which J. F. Tillman, secretary of the executive committee, responded. At the open meeting on the first evening President Polk delivered his annual address.

He began by calling attention to the grave responsibilities which rest upon the members of the Supreme Council and predicting glorious results if the power of the alliance was wisely directed. The speaker, after presenting an argument showing discrimination against the agricultural classes, proceeded to state their demands, saying:

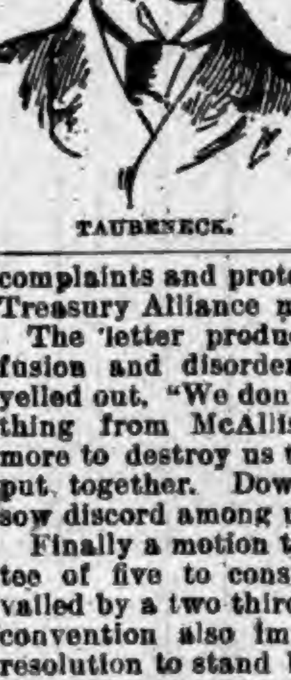


JERRY SIMPSON.

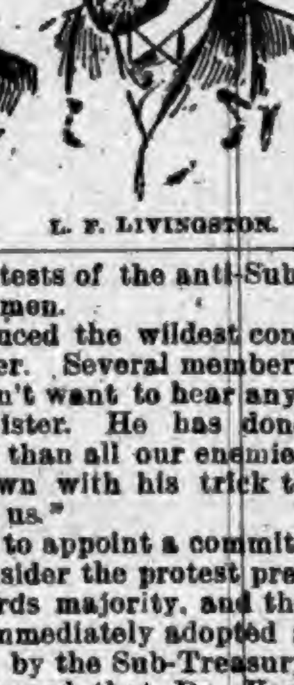
"We demand government control of transportation; we demand the retention of our public domain for the use of our own people; we demand the prohibition of gambling in futures of agricultural and mechanical products; we demand the free coinage of silver; we demand that no class or interest shall be taxed to build up any other class or interest; we demand the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people; we demand a graduated tax on incomes; but, more important than all these, broader and deeper than all these, and first of all these, is the transcendentally paramount demand that our national bank system be abolished and that the people's money shall be issued to the people direct by the government at a low rate of interest and in sufficient volume to meet the requirements of our growing population and trade.

"The supreme issue before the American people is and must be financial reform. These powers and functions, designed by the framers of our constitution for the benefit of the people, and which have been stealthily usurped and appropriated by corporate and monopolistic combinations, must be restored to the people, to whom they rightfully belong. This can be done only through persistent effort, unswerving fidelity to principle and harmonious, united action."

Early in a business session President Polk laid before the convention the official letter addressed to him by Chairman W. S. McAllister, of Mississippi, requesting to be heard in behalf of the complaints and protests of the anti-Sub-Treasury Alliance men.



TAUBENECK.



L. F. LIVINGSTON.

The letter produced the wildest confusion and disorder. Several members yelled out, "We don't want to hear anything from McAllister. He has done more to destroy us than all our enemies put together. Down with his trick to sow discord among us."

Finally a motion to appoint a committee of five to consider the protest prevailed by a two thirds majority, and the convention also immediately adopted a resolution to stand by the Sub-Treasury plan. It was arranged that Dr. Yeamans present the protest before the National Alliance, and that a reply be permitted. Later, the committee of the antis was informed that they could not be heard unless they furnished the council with a copy of the protest. This the antis refused to do unless they could present their protest in person, and that ended negotiations between the two wings of the Alliance.

Discussions upon many questions were spirited, but resulted in no decisive action. The election of officers resulted in the selection of L. L. Polk, President; J. H. Loucks, of South Dakota, Vice President; J. H. Turner was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer, and J. F. Willetts, of Kansas, National Lecturer.

The committee on confederation of the various industrial organizations is composed of five representatives from each of six organizations, and was chosen by the latter for the purpose of calling a congress of all the labor and industrial classes. It had been decided previously to convene the congress at Washington, on Feb. 22, but the South and West made such strong objections to that place that it became necessary to decide upon some other location. The matter occasioned lengthy discussion, and ended in referring the question to a sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Terrell, Taubeneck and Baumgarten, with instructions that either Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, or Springfield, Ill., be chosen. This committee will make a decision soon.

A committee of four, consisting of C. W. MaCune and H. Baumgarten, F. W. Gilruth and J. B. Steele, was appointed to prepare the address to the laboring people, setting forth the objects and purposes of the February meeting, which address is to be published within twenty days.

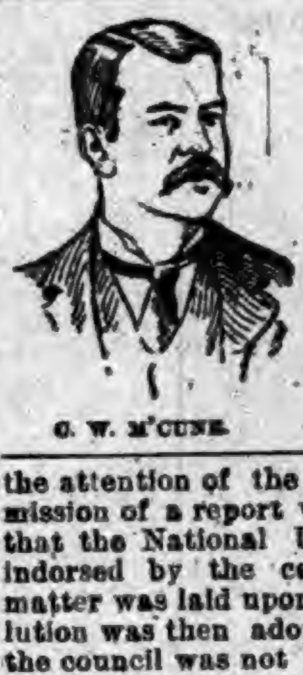
The committee on constitution submitted a lengthy report, making various recommendations, and every recommendation was adopted. By one of the amendments the State business agents, who have heretofore been members of the council, were excluded from membership.

An amendment aimed against the Knights of Labor was also adopted. Under the constitution persons with "mixed occupations" were entitled to membership, but this clause was repealed and the discussion showed a determination on the part of the Alliance to confine its membership to farmers and farm laborers.

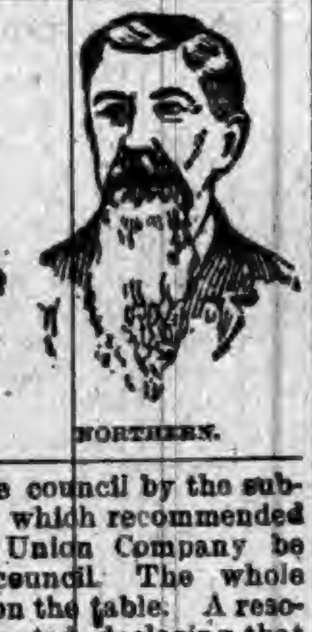
The clause which provides for a national legislative council composed of the various State Alliance presidents was stricken out. A substitute was adopted constituting a committee of five to be elected by the council and to act as advisory to the President. Another amendment permits females to pay the per capita tax and become the basis of representation as well as males.

A resolution was offered, asking Congress to pension only honorably discharged and indigent soldiers and to provide for the payment of all pensions by issuing Sub-Treasury notes for that purpose. Jerry Simpson and General Weaver led the opposition, and Congressman Livingston, President Polk and others from the South favored its adoption. When put to a vote the resolution was carried by a decided majority.

The scandal growing out of the connection of the State agents with the National Union Company was called to the attention of the council by the submission of a report which recommended that the National Union Company be indorsed by the council. The whole matter was laid upon the table. A resolution was then adopted declaring that the council was not responsible for the acts of the business agents.



C. W. M'CUNE.



NORTHERN.

The Ocala platform was approved with but two changes in the wording of the Sub-Treasury plank. Where that section now reads "shall loan money" upon imperishable farm products it is changed to "shall issue money," and where it reads "not more than 2 per cent. interest" the last word is changed to "tax." The report was received with cheers.

The first official boycott ever declared by the Alliance was ordered against the clothing exchange of Rochester, N. Y. Some 13,000 garment makers are now locked out, and the Alliance denounced the concern as a trust, and ordered the State Alliance to investigate as to stores that sold exchange goods and refuse to buy them.

The resolution instructing alliance congressmen not to take part in party caucus was defeated and a substitute adopted asking them not to participate in a caucus "if the Ocala demands were likely to be sacrificed."

A memorial indorsing D. P. Duncan, of South Carolina, for a place on the interstate commerce commission to succeed General Bragg was adopted, and a committee composed of President Polk, J. B. Beverley, of Virginia, and Hugh Mitchell, of Maryland, named to personally present it to President Harrison.

Work and Wages.

At the recent meeting of the learned British Association there was a discussion of the difference in the wages of men and women doing the same work. The conclusion seemed to be that there is no great difference, after all, and therefore not much to discuss.

The same matter is debated now and then in this country. All right-thinking people will agree that a woman is entitled to the pay which a man would receive for the same work, equally well done.

Nevertheless, this does not mean that Alice Jones, who is a clerk in Rupert & Co.'s dry goods store, and who stands at the counter beside James Stark, should have the same weekly wages as he. It is the universal custom to put more work and heavier upon the men, and usually the greater responsibility is laid on them.

Moreover, it is a matter of common experience that men are less frequently compelled by illness to be absent from their work, and their power of endurance is, in general, greater.

This is not all, for while it takes one man to marry one woman, the man usually continues at his employment after marriage, while the woman does not. It follows that a man, being more likely to stay and to learn the ins and outs of trade, is worth more to an employer than a woman who may marry and leave him at any time.

It follows also that in any employment where men and women are at work together, the average experience of the men is the greater.

These facts do not excuse unfairness in giving wages to men and women, but they do explain away some things that seem unfair, and that turn out not to be so.—Youth's Companion.

A Missionary Joke.

One story from the American Board is almost too good to be true, viz.: That one Pittsfield lady reported to the committee that she could spare five rooms, but that they must send her one live missionary, a man from the Cannibal Islands preferred, and if he had been a little gnawed so much the better. The committee rose to the occasion and sent her a Mr. Nordhoff, formerly of the Fiji Islands. We do not see how they could have done better unless they had assigned to her house an Eaton family.—Congregationalist.

Girls in Turkey.

The Turkish girl of the present generation is expected to know as much about mathematics, geography, and the sciences as any average American girl, while in needlework and general housekeeping she surpasses her American sisters.

SIX MEET THEIR DOOM.

FRIGHTFUL WRECK IN THE CITY OF TOLEDO.

Passengers on the L. S. & M. S. Railway Crushed, Burned and Scalded to Death by an F. & P. M. Train—Many Seriously Hurt.

Wrecked in a Tunnel.

A passenger train on the Flint & Pere Marquette Road crashed into the rear of the Lake Shore express at Toledo, Ohio, causing the death or injury of a score of persons. The collision occurred about forty rods from the Union Depot at 5 o'clock in the evening, and by 11 six dead and sixteen terribly mangled and scalded people had been taken from the wreck. A babe, scalded until it was an unrecognizable mass, and several women whose limbs and features were cooked beyond recognition added to the horrors.

Ambulances and patrol wagons conveyed the dead and wounded to St. Vincent's hospital and to different houses, and it was with the greatest difficulty that names could be obtained. A list was furnished by Superintendent Whittlesey, of the Lake Shore, supplemented by the coroner.

The following were killed:

Mrs. Mary McCoign, Madison, Ill.

An 8-year-old son and an infant son of Mrs. McDonald, of New York.

Ellen Meyer, Cleveland, Ohio.

Howard Vaughn, San Fernandina, Cal.

James McQueen, Elkhart, Ind.

Joseph Anderson, Riverside, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. George James, of New York.

John Campbell, New York.

Rudolph Murphy, Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie and daughters, Pearl and Maud.

John Conly, Millville, Mass.

Patrick Taylor, Arthur, Nev.

Mrs. John P. Nelson, of Toledo, is the only one outside of the hospital who is in a dangerous condition.

Others, less seriously injured are:

Jos. Ludwig, Peoria, Ill.

Warren L. Potter, Pittsburg, Pa.

Conductor Hunter, Marquette train.

Dolly Fisher, Toledo.

Mrs. J. O. McDonald, New York.

Miss Anna Mack, New York.

D. T. West, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. E. J. Galloway, Toledo.

The Pere Marquette train is due in Toledo at 4:53, and the Lake Shore follows at 4:55. From Air Line Junction the trains use the same track. The Lake Shore was seven minutes late and the Pere Marquette train nine minutes late. The Lake Shore train pulled down from the junction ahead of the Marquette, though there was but little room between them. About forty rods from the union depot is a tunnel fifty feet long. The Lake Shore had gone nearly through this with its seven heavy vestibuled parlor cars, and the day coach on the rear, when a freight ahead made it pull up. The brakeman ran back to give the signal to the Pere Marquette engineer, but it was too late. The trains were too close.

The engineer and fireman of the oncoming train laid down in their cab and crashed through the dimly lighted tunnel into the rear of the Boston and Chicago special. The day coach was split in twain: the engine plowed through until the rear of the car made a cover for the engine clear up to the cab. The steam escaping in volumes hid the wreck from the view of the big crowd which had run out of the stores, saloons and houses on the high bank along which ran the street above. Miss Dolly Fisher, the daughter of Health Officer Fisher, maddened by the pain of the scalding steam, leaped from the window and was cut and slightly bruised.

Help came immediatly, and the wounded were drawn out. One man, Warren L. Potter, himself slightly scalded, attempted to pull Mrs. McCoign from the car, and the flesh came off in great shreds from the woman's arm. A baby was scalded to death and taken out of the smashed car a cooked and blistered mass of flesh, almost beyond recognition as a human form. A ghastly hand was found after the wreck had been cleared away and the wrecked car taken off, but no body had been found without a hand, and another search commenced to find the body to which the hand belonged, without avail. There was no fire, and few were injured except by escaping steam.

Mrs. McCoign occupied a seat near the rear of the coach and a babe was toddling in the aisle when the accident occurred, according to one of the eye-witnesses. Taking place as it did in the city, an immense crowd assembled at the scene of the wreck. In four hours all the debris had been cleared away, and the trains began to run as usual. No one was hurt on the Marquette train.

An investigation will be made at once as to the cause of the wreck, and the Lake Shore officials will see if it is possible to make the Pere Marquette people pay for the damage incurred.

The engineer of the Marquette train was a new man on the run. When found the lever was almost perpendicular and not reversed. The brakeman and conductor of the Lake Shore had a narrow escape. They had gone to the rear to hang out the red lights, when they saw the headlight of the rear train right upon them. It was a big jump into the ditch, but they took it and escaped with a slight shaking up.

APACHES ON THE WARPATH.

Hostiles Once More Threaten Settlers in Arizona—An Ex-Soldier Killed.

Says a dispatch from Wilcox, A. T.: The Apaches are on the warpath and have committed several depredations. One man has been killed and another wounded, and the settlers are arming to protect themselves. Major William L. Downing, who lives about thirty miles south of this place, rode in great haste and reported that one of his men had been murdered by a war party of Indians, who disappeared soon after the killing and cannot now be found. The name of the dead man is R. H. Daniels, of Ontario, Canada, an ex-soldier, and 35 years old. Trailers were employed, and followed the tracks of the Indians some distance. They returned the next morning and state positively that the footprints showed the string on the moccasin. One track led directly from the body of the dead man. The Coroner's jury found a verdict in accordance with the above report.

"Major Downing was shot from ambush while riding in his buggy, but not fatally injured. Lieutenant Irwin and ten soldiers now leaving."

This was written within a mile of the major's residence. Robbery was not the object of the murderers. It is the season when the redskins become uneasy, and a dispatch says it would be well for all citizens to look to their arms before more lives are wantonly taken. Bowie is eighteen miles from the scene of the killing. The military are taking every precaution to defend the settlers. Great excitement exists among the settlers, who fear a raid from the Chiricalura Mountains, which are practically impenetrable by the whites against an armed force. The Indian hostiles are moving south.

JOHN HOLLIDAY, a farm-hand, was seen walking home from Indianapolis, on the I., B. & W. track. He lived with his grandmother two miles west of Haughville. Several boys who were returning home from a spelling-school saw the remains of a human body and parts of clothing scattered along the track for a half a mile. Upon investigation later they were proven to be the remains of Holliday. Whether he was intoxicated or did not hear the train is not known. Evidently he had been run down and killed by the incoming train from the West, and his remains again run over by the outgoing train. Holliday was a single man, 23 years old.

AUBURN, IND., Oct. 3, 1890.

Dr. J. W. Bergen:

Dear Sir:—By this time, I presume, you will want to know how I am getting along with Bergen's Asthma Cure.

Well, you have heard of persons obtaining a new life. Now I really feel that way myself. When I began taking Bergen's Asthma Cure, I was just coming out of a long siege of it, and was reduced to 115 pounds; weak, short of breath, chills, fever, and badly demoralized generally, coughing from half an hour to an hour every night.

Since commencing, from the third night, I have not lost ten minutes' sleep all night, cough gone, gained seventeen pounds, chills gone, fever gone, shortness of breath and difficulty of breathing gone, consequently I feel a thousand per cent. better. I thank God every day that I ever saw your advertisement, and that I was induced to write to you.

This is peculiarly encouraging in my case, as I had suffered so long and was so discouraged about my case, having tried everything. I am telling the good news every day.

Yours Very Gratefully,
R. McDOUGALL.

CHAPTER V—Continued.

"I am glad the poor animal has escaped," breathed Inez.

"It means danger to us."

"Danger to us?"

"Yes. Despard will see the horse and think we are here."

Inez looked distressed.

"We dare not return to the main canyon, and we will be found if he and his men come this way."

"What shall we do?"

Darrel surveyed their situation critically.

He observed that across the little stream the canyon seemed to afford a large number of secure hiding-places.

"Beyond the quicksands yonder we might cross the river," he said.

"Will not Despard follow us there?"

"No; the river will be a barrier."

"And he may think we have perished in the quicksands."

"Yes; we can at least conceal ourselves for a time."

They traversed the ledge to the verge of the stream. It was shallow at one place, and lifting the girl in his arms Darrel forded it in safety.

Just as they reached the opposite shore an ominous shout echoed down the valley.

"Do you hear that?" asked Inez in a terrified tone.

"Yes."

"It is Despard and his men."

"Probably. We will go farther down the stream. See! there seems to be some kind of a cave yonder."

A few minutes later they reached a large cavern-like aperture in the rocks.

Here they stood silently for some minutes, watching the stream and the quicksands beyond and awaiting developments.

They came a few minutes later. Suddenly, some distance away, several forms came into view.

"Despard and his men," murmured Darrel.

"They will discover us."

"No. Retreat into the cave where they will not see you."

Inez did so and Darrel, observing that the outlaws were nearing the spot, followed her.

The cave seemed to have been occupied by some human being at some time, for it bore marks of habitation in the ashes of a fire and several broken Indian arrows.

Darrel looked back from its shadows toward the quicksands.

He could observe the outlaws without being seen, and saw them pause as they reached the quicksands.

Despard seemed to converse in an ominous manner with his associates. Then the quartette retreated from the spot. Darrel breathed easier.

"We are safe," he spoke to Inez. "Undiscovered; supposed to be engulfed in the quicksands."

A sudden cry of alarm from Inez interrupted him.

"We are lost!" she cried, wildly.

Darrel Grey turned to face a new and terrible peril. Glowering upon them with ravenous, fiery eyes, there appeared at the entrance of the cave three enormous panthers.

CHAPTER VI.

IN THE CAVE.

The truth came to the mind of Darrel Grey in a moment of time, as he faced the new foes which so strangely confronted him.

"A panther's den," he muttered grimly. "Quick, Inez! Miss Tracey, get behind me."

With a low cry of dismay and dread the girl glided to the side of the cave.

The panthers had advanced so as to cover the entire exit from the cave, and crouching there, they glared ferociously at the startled intruders.

Darrel saw that a terrific combat with the infuriated brutes was imminent, and quickly drew his knife and placed himself on the defensive.

For the next few moments the scene was one of intense interest and silence, broken only by the low, ominous growling of the panthers.

Slowly, steadily they began to circle toward their intended victims, their fangs showing hideously, their eyes glaring with horrible ferocity.

Suddenly one of them made a spring. It was only to receive a shot from the revolver which Darrel had drawn

The weapon, contained but one cartridge. As he noticed that the bullet had barely wounded the beast, but driven it to a temporary retreat, Darrel flung the revolver to the ground.

Then, alone and armed only with the knife, he stood at bay.

Again the fierce brutes crouched for a spring. This time one of them sprang boldly upon Darrel.

Inez had recoiled in terror as she witnessed the attack of the panther. As her foot stumbled over some object on the ground she seized it.

She summoned all her courage as she saw that Darrel Grey was engaged in a terrible struggle with the panther. The ax in her hand, the intrepid girl hastened to the aid of her imperiled friend.

The three panthers now entirely surrounded Darrel, harassing him on every side. Inez lifted the ax. It descended with all the force of her frail arm upon the head of one of the attacking animals. That strength, however, was sufficient to send the panther to the ground with a howl of pain. She followed up the attack. One of the panthers had already been dispatched by Darrel and lay dying on the floor of the cave.

A second blow of the ax killed one of the remaining ones, but the larger animal clung to Darrel, endeavoring to tear his face and hands. The knife descended at last in a vital spot of the panther's frame, and it fell dying at Darrel's feet.

It was all he could do to stagger to the open air, weak with the loss of blood and exhausted from the terrible struggle in the cave.

Inez bent over him with anxious, solicitous eyes.

"You are not seriously injured?" she asked, in a tremulous tone.

"No; only a few trifling bruises."

Within half an hour Darrel was fully recuperated.

"We will try to leave the gully," he said.

"By the way we came?" inquired Inez.

"No; I fear our enemies might be in the vicinity of the canyon."

"But there seems to be no outlet this way."

"Then we will remain here until night."

It was late in the afternoon when they gained a narrow gulch which they found led into the main canyon.

Two hours later, just at dusk, after traveling cautiously for some miles, they came out on a plateau. A mile beyond them the lights of a village showed plainly.

"Miner's Gulch, at last!" remarked Darrel.

They descended toward the settlement, but paused as at the edge of an intervening thicket they heard human voices in the distance.

"Remain here for a few minutes," spoke Darrel. "It may be our enemies yonder."

He penetrated the thicket by a wide detour and reconnoitered for some time.

Despard and Danton were conversing near a large tree, while their two comrades were at some distance. Sheltered by the darkness and the dense foliage, Darrel could distinctly overhear their conversation.

"We had better leave here at once," Despard was saying. "We lost two of our men at the train, but the girl's fate is settled."

"Yes, that is certain."

"We have learned one disastrous fact, however, our worst enemy has escaped."

"Ranger Ralph?"

"Exactly. He is at the village yonder, wounded but ready to give us trouble as soon as he recovers. We will get the horses and leave. Then for the fortune to which I am now sole heir. We are Ranger Rube's two horses ahead, anyway."

Darrel crept from the spot at these words. He reached a place a minute later where six horses were tied. Two of them he recognized as the same ones that had borne Inez and himself to safety. The bandits had evidently found them in the canyon. Darrel secured them and began to lead them toward the spot where he had left Inez by a circuitous route. Suddenly he started.

A wild scream of alarm echoed through the silence of the scene.

"Her voice! She is in trouble again. Oh, why did I leave her!" ejaculated Darrel, wildly.

He urged forward the horses, having lost much time in endeavoring to evade the outlaws.

He reached the spot where he had left Inez.

She was gone!

His eye swept the scene beyond the thicket. Some distance away he made out a body of horsemen driving rapidly toward the hills.

From their midst a second scream for help confirmed Darrel's worst fears. Inez Tracey was again a prisoner in the hands of her enemies.

For a moment he determined to start in immediate pursuit. As he realized his unarmed condition, however, he saw the folly of such an undertaking.

"I will hasten to the village yonder," he decided; "secure help, and start in immediate pursuit of those scoundrels."

Leading one horse and riding the other, Darrel Grey hastened towards the settlement. He did not pause until he had reached a tavern before which stood a dozen men excitedly discussing some event, evidently of recent occurrence.

He caught the words "train wreckers" and "Ranger Ralph" several times.

"Hello, there!" he cried, without dismounting. "Can I speak to some of you?"

His intention was to arouse the men to instant pursuit of Despard. Before he could speak, however, one of the men sprang to the head of the horses and seized the bridle.

"Where did you get those horses?" he demanded, gruffly.

"I found them."

"You did, eh? Boys, our game has come into camp by mistake."

"What do you mean?" demanded the astonished Darrel.

"You know well enough. Down with him, boys. Here's a case for Judge Lynch, for these are Ranger Ralph's horses, and this man is one of the train wreckers."

Without being able to speak a word in defense amid the angry, excited crowd, Darrel Grey was dragged to the nearest tree.

"A rope! A rope!" shouted the leader of the throng.

"One moment! You are making a terrible mistake. I am no thief or train wrecker."

"Oh, no, of course not!" jeered the crowd.

"Send for Ranger Ralph. He is here. Ask him if he knows me."

"He is wounded—dying, for all we know. He's one of them, boys. He's the very man the depot agent described."

Amid that mad, unreasonable crowd Darrel Grey struggled vainly. It seemed all some terrible dream as the rope encircled his neck and was thrown over the limb of a tree.

"Up with him, boys!" shouted the leader of the men.

The next moment with a choking, blinded sensation, Darrel Grey felt himself dangling between heaven and earth.

CHAPTER VII.

AT MINERS' GULCH.

"Hold!"

Amid the confusion and horror of his supreme moment of peril, Darrel Grey was dimly conscious that this word was pronounced in a tone that thrilled him with familiar accents.

Then, too, in the flare of a torch carried by a man near the tree from which he hung suspended, the form of a newcomer on the scene was vaguely visible.

"Cut him down!"

"He's a hoss thief, Ranger Ralph."

"Cut him down, I say!"

"An' a train-wrecker. He answers the very description——"

"Of the depot agent, who thought this one was in with the outlaws. This man wasn't; I know him."

The rope was quickly slacked. Darrel fell in a heap to the ground, living, but insensible. The man who had saved his life spoke peremptorily to the lynchers.

"Now get him to my cabin and take care of him, and don't make any mistakes next time," he remarked.

It was Ranger Ralph who thus interposed in so timely a manner in behalf of his acquaintance of the Ten Spot depot.

He had returned to Miners' Gulch that afternoon, still suffering from the wound in the head the cowardly Dyke Despard had dealt him. Several times its effects had driven him to his couch, and it was only by the merest accident that, in a moment of temporary recuperation, he had wandered to the scene of the hanging.

Thus it was that, in less than an hour after the recapture of Inez Tracey by the bandits, Darrel Grey awoke to find himself an inmate of Ranger Ralph's cabin.

His senses were bewildered, his brow fevered, his neck and body in pain from his rough experience with the lynchers.

Gradually, however, he realized it all, and recognized the man who sat by his side holding a cup of liquor in his hand.

"Drink it, lad. It's got some roots and herbs in it that have made a new man of me already."

Darrel obeyed him, and then sat up on the couch of skins, staring mutely at the scout.

"The man I saw at the depot?"

"The same."

"Who told me about the train wreckers?"

"Yes, stranger; Ranger Ralph, that's me, and lucky for you I strolled down to the tavern a little while ago."

Darrel's hand went involuntarily to his neck and he shuddered.

"They tried to hang me," he said huskily.

"Yes, and almost succeeded."

"And you saved me?"

"In the nick of time, lad. There, you're getting back your color already. It was all a miserable mistake."

"The lynching?"

"Yes. The people are so excited over the train robbery that they act impulsively."

"The train robbery!" ejaculated Darrel. "Tell me about it."

"They beat off the robbers and killed two of the outlaws. They pursued the others to the north, and the vigilantes are after them now."

"To the north?" repeated Darrel, disappointedly. "They have gone in the wrong direction."

"How do you know?"

"You!" exclaimed the scout, in tones of the deepest amazement and interest.

"Not two hours since. It was to warn the people here to hasten in pursuit of them that I came to the tavern."

Ranger Ralph's face became serious.

"It's too late now," he muttered. "Which way did they go?"

"To the east."

"Toward their Indian allies. The trail will be lost among the hills. See here, stranger—let me see; what is your name?"

"Darrel Grey."

"Well, friend Darrel—for you've acted the friend to me in bringing back my horses—I've a question to ask you."

"What is it?"

"There was a deep motive for wrecking the railroad train at Ten Spot."

"I know it."

The scout started.

"You do?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"First, robbery; next, to secure possession of a beautiful orphan heiress, a distant relative to the leader of the band, Dyke Despard—Inez Tracey."

"Then you saw the girl?" he asked.

"I did. Let me tell my story, and you will know all about it."

Briefly, graphically, Darrel related all that had happened to him since he had left the scout at the railroad station. He found an interested listener in Ranger Ralph, and when he had concluded his recital, the latter grasped his hand heartily.

"Darrel Grey," he said, in tones husky with emotion, "you have done me a great service in protecting the poor orphan child fate threw in your way. She was the object of my coming to the depot. I am her father's oldest friend, and her own; while her enemies!—they are numerous and desperate. There's a fortune beyond it, and Dyke Despard is determined to secure it."

"He shall not if I can prevent him!" cried Darrel, with flashing, determined eyes.

"Ha!" cried the scout, as he read the enthusiasm of courage and the promptings of love in Darrel's handsome face. "I think I understand you; Inez Tracey has captured your heart as she did mine when she was a baby girl. What is it, friend Darrel? Do we abandon the fortune and the girl to that renegade and assassin, Dyke Despard?"

"Never!"

"No, never!" cried the ranger, "until his blood has washed out the cowardly blow he gave me last night. I don't know you, except that you are a true, earnest man; but I'd rather have you aid me in hunting down Despard and recovering the girl Inez than all the vigilantes in the settlement."

"Then it is a compact?" asked Darrel eagerly

"Yes."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Rocking the Empty Cradle.

It was a woman's voice crooning sweetly the old lullaby:

"Hush-my-dear-lie-still-and-slumber,"

And as she sung she rocked an empty cradle with her foot, keeping time with its melancholy refrain. From the nestling of the blankets it looked as if the baby had only just been lifted out.

A man passing heard the singing and retraced his steps so that he could look through the open door into the little plainly furnished room.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he said respectfully, "but I noticed that you were rocking an empty cradle. I reckon you have never heard of the superstition——"

"I am not superstitious," said the woman:

"Holy-angels-guard-thy-bed."

"Excuse me, ma'am, but folks told my wife that if she didn't stop rocking the cradle when the baby wasn't in it something would happen—an' it did. The baby died when he was a year old!"

"My baby won't die," answered the mother; "he's been an angel these three months, an' when I feel so bad that I can't live another minute I come in here and make believe he's asleep. It does me good an' mebbe God lets him know, and it comforts him. Is that superstition?"

"No, ma'am, I reckon not, an' I hope you'll excuse me."

The man walked on bearing his own burden of sorrow with him, and the desolate mother rocked the empty cradle and resumed her plaintive monody:

"Heavenly-blessings-without-number Gently-fall-upon-thy-head."

Then and Now.

A magazine published in Philadelphia in 1818 gave the following as an item of news: "In the course of the twelve months of 1817, 12,000 wagons passed the Allegheny Mountains from Philadelphia and Baltimore, each with from four to six horses, carrying from thirty-five to forty hundred weight. The cost of carriage was about $7 per hundred-weight, in some cases as high as $10, to Philadelphia. The aggregate sum paid for the conveyance of goods exceeded $1,500,000." To move a ton of freight between Pittsburg and Philadelphia, therefore, cost not less than $140, and took probably two weeks' time. In 1886, the average amount received by the Pennsylvania road for the carriage of freight was three-quarters of one cent per ton per mile. The distance from Philadelphia to Pittsburg is 385 miles, so that the ton which cost $140 in 1817 was carried in 1886 for $2.87. At the former time the workingman in Philadelphia had to pay $14 for moving a barrel of flour from Pittsbugh, against twenty-eight cents now. The Pittsburg consumer paid $7 freight upon every 100 pounds of dry goods brought from Philadelphia, while 100 pounds is now hauled in two days at a cost of fourteen cents.—Scientific American.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

THURSDAY……DECEMBER, 3, 1891.

ANOTHER anti-Harrison meeting of republicans at Indianapolis Saturday, Capt. White of Ft. Wayne, presided, and they were all for Blaine.

NEW YORK democrats have both house of the legislature: senate, 16 democrats; 15 republicans, and 1 independent. In In the House the democrats have five majority.

ENQUIRER, Cincinnati, offered $100 to the one who would guess nearest to the result of the election. Fourteen guesses were 21,500 for McKinley, and one was 21,502, while McKinley's real plurality 21,501. The first man to send in the 21,500 got the money.

ODON, IND., had a sensation last week. Two couples were married Sunday, Nov. 22, and all had a feast together. Suddenly one of the brides said she did not feel well, and left the table. A former lover was outside with a buggy, and she left with him for parts unknown.

IT IS now asserted that it cost Minneapolis money to get the republican national convention, and that she not only agreed as others do, to pay the expense of preparing a big hall, but that she paid off a big debt of $100,000 which the republican national committee has owed since the last election, and will donate liberally for the next campaign.

THE seat in the U. S. senate of Calvin S. Brice, elected by the Ohio democrats, may be contested. The republicans have a majority in the legislature this time, and can elect one, and now if they can keep Brice out, they will elect another. They may try it, but will not succeed, as so many of their own senators, like Jones of Nevada, are not residents of their states, and that is the charge against Brice.

Now, if Gov. Chase dies, F. M. Griffiths, senator from Dearborn, Ohio, and Switzerland counties, will become acting governor, as he is president, pro tem., of the state senate. If there had been no president pro tem., of the senate, then the secretary of state would call the state senate together to choose one of their number for this place, and he would at once become acting governor till the next election.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

To the Democrats of Indiana:

The Democratic State Convention of 1890 directed the formation of a new State Committee in the month of January, 1892, and every two years thereafter.

The Democrats of each county are directed to meet in mass convention at the county seat of each county at 1 o'clock p. m., on Saturday, January 2, 1892.

Each county convention shall select delegates to the district conventions hereinafter named in the ratio of one delegate for every two hundred votes (and for any fraction of more than one hundred votes) cast in said county for Claude Mathews, Secretary of State, at the November election, 1890.

On Friday the 8th day of January, 1892, at 1 o'clock, p. m., the delegates selected for this, the Twelfth congressional district shall meet in Fort Wayne, and shall proceed to select, by a vote of the majority of said delegates, a member of the State Committee for such district.

The chairman and secretary of each district meeting shall forthwith certify to the secretary of the State Committee the names of the persons selected as members of the State Committee for such district.

On the 20th day of January, 1892, the State Committee so selected will meet at the committee rooms in Indianapolis to elect officers and proceed with the work of organization.

By order of the Democratic State Committee.

CHAS. L. JEWETT, Chairman.
JOS. L. REILEY, Secretary.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

A very prominent citizen was yesterday arrested on suspicion of burglary. He had in his possession a very large line of the latest styles of Rogers Bros.' Silver Knives and Forks, Silver Tea, Dessert and Table Spoons, in his inside pocket; he had a nice line of Carving Sets, in Plush Boxes, Child's Sets of Knives Forks and Spoons, Nut Cracks and Nut Picks, in Plush Boxes; in his vest pockets; he carried a full line of Keen Kutter Pocket Knives, and Scissors in Plush Cases; Button-hole Scissors and Ladies Cutlery Cases. In his overcoat pockets he had Boys' Tool Chests, Skates, Sleds, and Toy Banks, and on his back he carried Domestic Sewing Machines and Toilet Cases. The goods were supposed to have been stolen from Santa Claus, but the evidence showed that they were a better class of goods than Old Kris. usually carried, and upon affirmation of Brown, Culbertson & Boland that they had bought them to sell along with their other Holiday Goods, which are all useful as well as ornamental, the court suspended sentence, pending the sale of the above goods, which he ordered Brown Culbertson & Boland on the North Side of Public Square to sell to the people of Auburn and vicinity at reasonable prices, together with their full line of Stoves, Hardware and Farm Machinery.

The Thanksgiving sermon of Rev. B. Ruf last week, at the M. E. church captured all his hearers. Dr. Ford came to Auburn just forty-seven years ago Monday, that is the last day of November. He stopped at the Auburn House, the very same building now known by that name. The next morning, which was Sunday, Dec. 1, 1844, he noticed two men carrying by, on a pole a deer they had just killed. They were Mr. Puffenbarger, then sheriff, and a Mr. Hart. They were taking it to the home of the former, where J. C. Henry now resides. It might be added that on every return of Dec. 1, from that day to this Dr. Ford has stood on the steps of the Auburn House, even putting off his last trip to California to do this. He has a long and interesting experience, to which he can turn, and the younger generation find his reminiscences very entertaining.

The ladies of the Methodist church are now ready to place before the people "The Kalender Kirmess." They have secured the large trimming room of W. H. Kiblinger on the corner of Seventh and Jackson streets. And will give their entertainment Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, which will consist of drills, music and winding of the May pole by ten little girls. In connection with this they will give to all who desire it, a good supper Friday evening for 15 cents, an oyster supper Saturday evening for 20 cents. 10 cents will admit you to the room. The ladies have spared neither time nor money to make this a grand success. The Kirmiss consists of twelve booths representing the months of the year, which will be handsomely decorated. The ladies in charge of these booths will be dressed in costumes appropriate to the season they represent, and will carry a full line of fancy work, which they will sell at very low prices. A most cordial invitation is extended to all.

Dr. Swarts wears a buffalo overcoat that he paid $18 for fourteen years ago. Now he could get $75 for it, for articles of that kind are no longer to be had. Such a coat will soon be worth more than sealskin. The sudden disappearance of the buffalo should warn our government to take steps to save the seals from destruction.

Mr. Charlie W. Felt and his sister Anna, from Lake Center, Allen county, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Croy of Auburn, over Sunday. Mrs. C. being their mother. Also Jacob Felger from the same place, came with them. All admired our beautiful city, and especially its flowing wells and fine churches. Auburn always impresses a stranger favorably.

David Greenwald rendered some fine music in the Auburn Grammar Department on his guitar and mouth harp last Wednesday, as it was "Columbus Day." He is an excellent player and performs his part well. Quite a number were present to hear the music. There were a large number of visitors present that day, and great interest was taken in the effort to make "Columbus Day" a success.

Clerk Bishop has a flowing well at his new residence, the water coming up from a depth of 180 feet. The flow is good and the water soft. This is a valuable feature of it and will perhaps induce others to drive deep wells. While we have many flowing wells in the southwest part of town, and along the creek bottom, we believe this is the first one to be secured as near the center as Mr, Bishop is.

Rev. Henry Johnson preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday, both morning and evening, and Mr. Healy was at South Bend, and preached there in his stead. Mr. Johnson is always popular here, and the bright day enabled a good number of his old friends to come out and hear him once more. His sermon, was one of unusual power, and we were glad so many could be present to hear it. That evening, the discourse, took the form of a lecture to young men, the subject being "Wendell Phillips." It was a masterly effort and intensely interesting, and held the audience with him to the close. He and his family, who had been here for Thanksgiving, returned to South Bend Monday.

Judge McClellan started off for Washington Monday afternoon, to be ready for the opening of the session next Monday. He went first to Philadelphia, to witness the launching of the great war vessel, New York, which was set afloat yesterday Dec. 2. We think all members, heads of departments and other high officers and notables, will be present by special invitation. The great ship is built by Cramp & Sons, the great ship builders, and will it is claimed be the most effective war vessel afloat. It is claimed it will have a speed greater than any other, and that it can go around the world without taking in coal. After taking in this great spectacle, the Judge will go on to Washington, and we presume, take such part in the speakership contest, as in his judgment will be best. We believe his constituents will be satisfied with any one of the statesmen so far named for the place,

One of the exhibits to be seen in the Moorish palace at the World's Fair will be a million of dollars in gold coin. There is renewed agitation in Springfield, Mass., of the dress question, the point of attack being the long dresses which sweep the streets and carry into the houses not only dirt but the germs of disease. The bugler of Tennyson's Light Brigade still survives and lives in Denver, it is said. The chances are that this good old man would long since have been gathered to his fathers had some fell accident ever brought him before a country school on "commencement day"—at which time and place it is an iron-clad custom to kill off and bring back from the jaws of death, back from the mouth of hell, this long-suffering 600.

It will take more than an open letter from Lord Tennyson to convince the world that the Czar of Russia is an excellent and amiable person, not at all responsible for the cruelties and crimes which make his domain a scandal to the world. Very likely the Czar was amiable to the poet, but let Lord Tennyson go to Russia and let fall a few revolutionary words and the chances are that his views will undergo a change.

Balmaceda and Boulanger each left an aged mother. It appears that each man wrote a letter the day before he committed suicide, addressed to his mother, which said simply: "I go on a long journey." This duplication of last maternal messages was not the only resemblance in their feverish career or their self-inflicted death. It already appears, too, that the cause that each man professed to hold dear has survived in each country. The Boulangists seem to have revived since the death of the man that gave their party its name, and the new Chilian "elections" have resulted in the choice of a Liberal (Balmaceda's party) Senate.

Buildings eight and ten stories high are not too high when the streets are broad, but beyond that there is hardly any surrounding space in a city wide enough to make them proper. Indianapolis, with her broad streets, could stand buildings of great height well so far as seemliness is concerned. In Paris the height of buildings is regulated by law according to the width of the abutting street; nowhere in that city are they a fourth as high as Chicago's sky-scrapers, and this suggests that there is more greed than need in such structures. London, with four or five million people, and Paris, with two or three million, transact their business without ten-story buildings, and sewerage and sanitary regulations are much better obeyed in those cities than here. The Chicago effort is timely. It should call a halt.

"Comparisons are odorous"—and somebody will think the following announcement out of all taste, and smelling very strong of anarchy, and all that sort of thing. Without pretending to settle the question of ethics or good taste, or the degree of crime in either case, we give it just as we find it in another newspaper: "Two Nebraska banks are in trouble. The First National Bank at Enterprise was robbed of several thousand dollars by three cowboys, and on the same day the National Bank at Tecumseh was closed by order of the Comptroller of the Currency, having been robbed of about $70,000 by the bank officials." Now where is the difference? Is it not really in favor of the cowboys? They had the courage to make the bank officers hold up their hands and violated no expressed faith to the public. The officers got the public confidence and cowardly stole behind people's backs. Yet the law, or the public as the case may be, will send the cowboys to the penitentiary, and if possible settle with the other thieves for 50 cents on the dollar. And this is—what do you call it, anyhow?

Boston builders and insurance men, according to the New York Commercial Bulletin, are disturbed over what seems to be the discovery that asbestos paper between floors is not only no protection against fire, but an increase of the danger. The law provides that in Boston buildings the whole area of the floor from wall to wall shall be deafened with one inch of plaster or two thicknesses of asbestos paper, or other incombustible material. It has been customary in complying with this law to use asbestos paper; but the American Architect reports some recent experiments in Germany which throw grave doubt on the value of the precaution. The fire inspector of Hamburg, it seems, has been experimenting with various kinds of floors and has found that a floor of two thicknesses of one and one-fifth inch boards joined at right angles was burned through in one hour and twenty minutes. The same construction with asbestos between the floorings was subjected to fire in the same way as the boards and burned in fifty-nine minutes, or twenty-three minutes quicker than without the asbestos. With ordinary roofing felt the floor burned in one hour and twelve minutes. The conclusion the inspector reached from these experiments was that all materials introduced between the floors are, to say the least, useless for protection and may be injurious on account of the foul smoke generated.

A Professor's Dialect.

A college professor and his daughter sat at a hotel table with the narrator of the story. In the course of conversation the professor, wishing to express negation, made use of the objectionable form "nope."

"Father," said the daughter, energetically, "you shouldn't say 'nope;' you should say no."

"I suppose so, my dear," acquiesced the father. "It is the force of habit makes me say 'nope.'"

"Why, father, have you always said 'nope?'" inquired the young lady.

The father reflected for a moment. A dreamy smile lit up his features, and he gently and peacefully murmured, "Yep."—St. Louis Republic.

A Daguerreotype's Endurance.

A remarkable example of the enduring qualities of the daguerreotype is to be found in the old graveyard at Waterford, Conn. In the headstone that marks the grave of a woman who died more than forty years ago her portrait is inlaid, covered with a movable shield. The picture is almost as perfect as when it was taken.

THE TARIFF BONUS.

WHAT WILL YOU FARMERS DO ABOUT IT?

The Cordage Trust Again Advances Prices—Carroll D. Wright on the Cost of Making Steel Rails—Who Pays the Tariff?—Tariff Shot.

McKinley Prices for Crockery.

A little over a year ago, when the McKinley bill was pending in Congress, the high-tariff organs vied with each other in the attempt to show how good a thing the McKinley bill was for the farmer. To carry out this idea McKinley declared that his bill was a farmers' bill, that the cause of the depression in farming was the increased importation of farm products. Accordingly he raised the duties on wheat, corn, oats, butter and meats.

Under cover of this big job all the important jobs were carried through. Such were the increases in the duties on earthenware and glassware, cutlery, and other manufactures of tin plate, woolen, cotton and linen goods. The object of this was to give the combinations engaged in the productions of these articles a complete monopoly of the home market.

Having secured all that they asked for, the leaders of the trusts gave the cue to their editorial friends to talk of something besides the tariff. Accordingly the latter are devoting their attention to our big farm crops. Nearly every issue contains an article giving some one's estimate of the amount of wheat and corn which we will be able to spare for export this year. They have forgotten all about the famous "home market" for farm products about which they wrote when the tariff bill was pending.

At the same time the financial editors of these high tariff organs are devoting their attention to estimates of the probable amount of gold which Europe will have to ship to us in exchange for our exports of wheat and cotton and corn.

But why must they ship gold? Why not crockery, glassware, and woolen goods? Have our farmers who have wheat and cotton to sell a superabundance of these things? This is hardly probable. The fact is the crockery and glassware trusts and the manufacturers of woolen goods had the duties on these products so increased in the McKinley bill that their importation was practically prohibited.

Now let us see how this compulsory sale of our farm products affects the farmer. We can illustrate it by supposing that the farmer's wife needs a set of crockery for her table. The farmer can sell his wheat abroad and buy his crockery there and when importing it pay the duties fixed by the McKinley tariff, or else he can take gold for his wheat and buy his crockery in Trenton or East Liverpool. How much he will have to pay for crockery in England and the United States is shown in the following table, which gives the net wholesale prices for first quality white-granite ware, and also the duties imposed upon each article by the McKinley tariff.

Articles.	Wholesale Prices. In England	Wholesale Prices. In United States	U. S. duties.
1 doz. flat plates	$0.35	$0.63	$0.19
1 doz. deep plates	.35	.64	.19
1 doz. fruit saucers	.14	.23	.08
1 sauce tureen	.23	.42	.13
1 doz. bakers	.84	1.40	.46
½ doz. bowls	.23	.37	.13
2 covered butters	.28	.47	.15
1 doz. coffee cups	.44	.80	.24
1 doz. tea cups	.37	.67	.26
½ doz. cover dishes	1.12	1.80	.62
½ doz. plain dishes	.23	.40	.13
2 sugars	.19	.35	.10
1 tea pot	.12	.23	.07
2 creams	.09	.20	.05
Total cost set	$4.98	$8.58	$2.74

If the duties on the packages and charges, and the cost of freight and insurance, were added, the cost of the foreign crockery laid down here would just equal the bill which the crockery trust charges.

This explains fully the reason why the crockery combination was so anxious to have the McKinley tariff passed. It gave them a two-fold advantage. First, by levying high duties on foreign crockery they need not fear competition, for thereby the farmers who export wheat will be unable to bring back crockery; and, second, the high duties enable the combine to keep up the prices to the importing point, and thus compel the farmers either to buy of them at their prices, or if they imported their crockery to pay to the United States Treasury a sum equal to the difference between the combine's price here and the foreign price.

Products.	In England.	In United States.
Wheat, at $1.10 per bu.	4.53 bu.	7.80 bu.
Corn, at 75c per bu.	6.64 bu.	11.44 bu.
Oats, at 40c per bu.	11.20 bu.	21.45 bu.
Butter, at 25c per lb.	19.92 lbs.	34.32 lbs.

Three and one-third bushels of wheat, nearly five bushels of corn, over ten bushels of oats, fourteen pounds of butter, and thirty-six pounds of cheese represent the tariff bonus which the crockery combine is able by the aid of the McKinley tariff to compel the producers of these products to pay it whenever they buy crockery-ware. Last year a larger amount of these products was needed to make up the tariff bonus, since their price was lower. The time is coming when the farmers will see this in its true light, and will demand the full value of their labor.

More Wage Reductions.

A dispatch to the New York Post from Pittsburg says: "It is reported to-day that the iron and steel manufacturers of the United States will make a general assault on the Amalgamated Association in the spring. The skilled workmen in all the union mills belong to this association, and the annual wage scale for the United States is made in this city. Preliminary skirmishes have already occurred, and in every instance the workmen were beaten."

Under the protection of the McKinley tariff the manufacturers have formed trusts and combinations to control prices and appropriate all the tariff bonus to themselves. At the same time they use their organization to stop the workmen from uniting and to keep down their wages.

The reductions in wages referred to in the above dispatch were those made by the Carnegies, the Pennsylvania Steel Company, the Bethlehem Iron Company, all members of the steel rail trust; by the firm of Jones & Laughlin, a member of the steel beam trust; and by the Oliver & Roberts Wire Company, which cut wages 20 per cent.; and the Baker Wire Company, both members of the Columbia Patents Company, popularly known as the wire trust.

What could show more clearly that the tariff is not for the workmen? "Hands off immigration," said Carnegie recently. High duties on the product of trusts and free trade in labor is the keynote of high protectionism.

Much stress is laid upon the fact that the McKinley tariff has almost completely prohibited the importation of woolen rags and shoddy from Europe to the United States. But no mention is made of the other fact that not a pound of woolen rags or shoddy is exported from this country. While England, Germany, Italy and poorer countries of Europe largely export these cheap materials, the manufacturers of the United States have need of all the rags and shoddy they can get as a substitute for pure wool to make into clothing for the richest people of the world. How often the domestic rags are worked over in the shoddy mills is a question to which the statistics of manufactures afford no adequate answer.—Philadelphia Record.

WHO PAYS THE TARIFF?

How the Plate Glass Combination Manipulates the Heavy Duties on Plate Glass and Collects the Bonus from Consumers.

Next to the duties upon window glass those on plate glass are the highest in the whole McKinley tariff. Our imports of polished unsilvered plate glass in 1890 were as follows:

Sizes—	Square feet.	Value.	—Duties— ¢ ft cts.	—Duties— ad val % c
Not above 10x15 inches square	93,819	$ 21,934	3	13
10x15 to 16x24 inches	193,399	53,278	5	18
16x24 to 24x30 "	956,182	294,568	8	26
Above 24x60 "	447,866	162,021	50	138

In the rolling of plate-glass manufacturers do not intend to turn out glass of sizes less than 24x30 inches. The smaller sizes are made only from defective or broken pieces of large plates. They are therefore in the nature of bye products only, and made only to a limited extent. The demand for such small plates for small mirrors, display shelves and counters has been so great that large imports are necessary.

The plate-glass manufacturers confine themselves to the larger plates only. The duties on these sizes are therefore their protection. Their annual production of polished plate is about 10,000,000 square feet, against an importation of less than 3,000,000 square feet; but so well do they manipulate the market and so strong is their control over production and prices that they get out of the tariff nearly all there is in it, as the following shows:

30x49 inches and over	30.44	73	42.56	50

The effect of this use of the tariff, to get out of it as much as possible to increase profits, may be shown by the history of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company. Nine years ago this company built its first works at Creighton, Pa; five years later another plant was erected at Tarentum. In 1889 J. B. Ford, one of the principal stockholders of the company, erected another plant at Ford City and sold it to the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company for $1,500,000, one-half of which was to be paid in bonds and the other half in stock of the company at par. Trouble arose at once, for the other stockholders objected to the payment of $750,000 at its par value only, for the stock had advanced 100 per cent. in the open market. The original stock of the company was $800,000, which was later increased to $2,000,000 and, when the Ford City works were purchased, to $2,750,000. In spite of the constant increase in capital the stock is now worth $200 per share, the par value being $100. Last year the company declared a dividend of 31 per cent.

Meanwhile the company pays its workmen lower wages than are paid in any other industry requiring skilled labor. The control of the industry by a combination of the manufacturers is complete.

Just so long as tariff continues as high as it is, just so long will the combination to fix prices so as to get as big a tariff bonus as possible and to keep down the wages of labor continue. If the men will not work in their factories at the wages they fix, "they can go like I done," as one of the workmen expressed it.

But "the tariff is not a tax," says McKinley, "for the foreigner pays it." Is he right?

TARIFF SHOT.

The Results of High Protection.

From 1847 to 1861 we had revenue tariffs, or what the high protectionists of to-day choose to call "free trade" tariffs. Under the operations of these tariffs our farmers were prosperous, and the cause of it is not far to seek, for all tariff duties were low and manufacturers could not combine and form trusts to raise the prices of their products on the one hand, and on the other to cut down the wages of their workmen.

The farmers therefore got in exchange for their corn and wheat the full value of these products in manufactured goods.

From 1847 to 1861 the average price of corn in New York was 69 4-10 cents per bushel, or

During the ten years ending with 1890 the average price of corn in New York was 54½ cents per bushel, or

If the high protectionists are right their system has reduced the price of corn over 21 per cent.

Window glass has been highly protected since 1816, except during the period from 1847 to 1861, when the duties were low, chiefly for revenue. In 1861 the duties were raised again, and many times since, till now under the McKinley tariff they average over 100 per cent. The result is shown in the following table:

Sizes. inches.	Quality.	Prices per box of 50 feet. 1860.	Prices per box of 50 feet. 1890.
8x10	3d.	$1.95	$1.90
8x10	4th.	1.60	1.80½
10x14	2d.	2.40	2.04
10x14	3d.	2.10	1.90
12x18	1st.	3.00	2.75

Under the protection of a high tariff the window-glass manufacturers have been able to combine to keep up prices, and as a result window glass is nearly as high as in 1860.

It took only 30 bushels of corn to buy the above eight boxes of window glass in 1860, at the average price of corn from 1847 to 1861, or

But in 1890 it took a little over 35 bushels of corn, at the average price of corn for the past ten years, to buy the same amount of window glass, or

The farmer's tribute to the bonus of high protectionism is therefore 5 bushels of corn. Wherein lies the beneficence bestowed upon the farmer by a high tariff, on the beauties of which McKinley and his associates delight to speak?

The Cordage Trust Advances Prices.

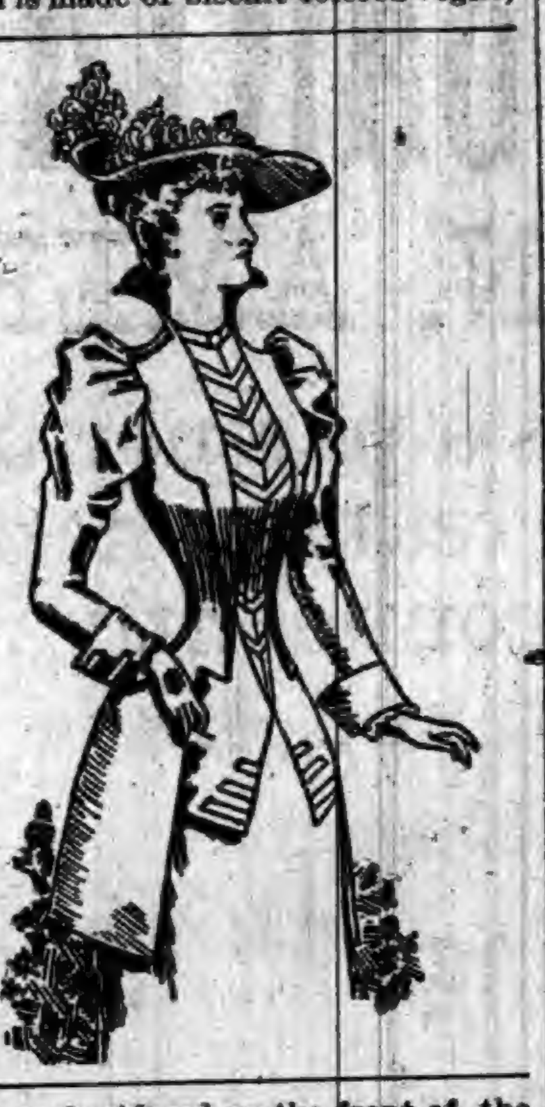
A further advance has been made by the National Cordage company, who on Saturday advanced the price of Manila rope three-fourths of a cent per pound, and sisal and New Zealand one cent per pound. This action is taken in view of the fact that they are securing control of the market and outside competition ceases to be an important factor. The tone of the market is decidedly strong and it is thought probable that further advances will follow.—Iron Age.

The McKinley tariff increased the duty on pickles 30 per cent. With this inducement to robbery on the statute book a combine of twenty-five companies in the West has been organized to get out of consumers all that the traffic will bear. Apparently there will soon be as many trusts in the country as there are protected industries.—Philadelphia Record.

A GOWN FOR CALLING.

One of the Newest and Most Striking of Fashion's Fancies.

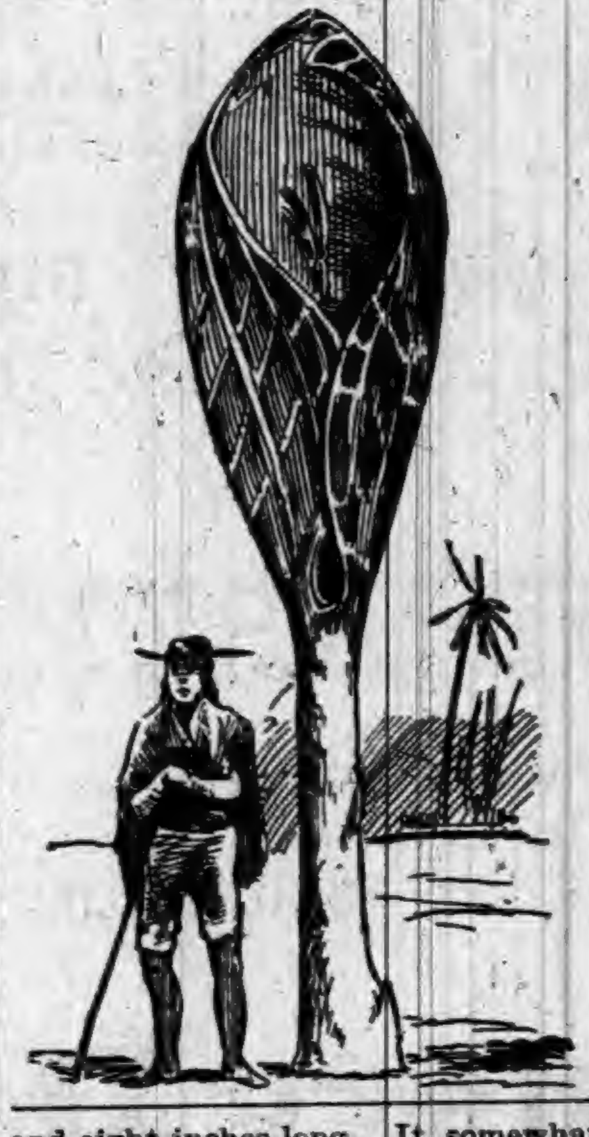
Oee of the latest models is a close-fitting coat of black broadcloth, with skirts which are long in the back and sides, but slope away in front, to show a deep waistcoat of watermelon pink cloth, which has rows of black braid forming a series of points down the front. The collar is flaring and does not close. It is lined with black velvet. A very handsome calling gown is made of biscuit-colored vogne, and embroidered on the front of the skirt with silk, shading from biscuit to cinnamon brown, with a touch of gold here and there to illuminate it. Around the bottom is a ruche of cinnamon brown feathers. The coat bodice is very long in the back, but only covers the hips; it is opened over an embroidered waistcoat which fastens with small gilt buttons. The high flaming collar and revers are faced with brown velvet and edged with the feather trimming. The felt hat is the same color as the dress, and is trimmed with cinnamon velvet, ribbons, and feathers.



A PECULIAR PRODUCT.

Nicaragua Has a Plant with a Single Leaf Thirteen Feet Long.

Nicaragua has one of the most peculiar plants to be found anywhere. In 1869 Dr. Berthold Seeman discovered it and in 1872 it was forwarded to Mr. Hull, an English horticulturist. It was a plant with a single leaf and the latter was thirteen feet and eight inches long. It somewhat resembles the Indian turnip. The spathe of the plant contained a flowering portion over four feet in length. In honor of a Mr. Godwin, an intimate friend of Dr. Seeman, the plant was called the Godwini. During the flowering time the plant has a most disagreeable odor.



Seal Poaching.

Here is the method employed by the hunters of British Columbia who poach upon the sealing grounds: When the schooner sights a seal the little boats are lowered: A hunter armed with two shotguns and a rifle and two sailors to pull the boat take their places and the hunt begins. The boat is pulled quietly toward the animal. In nine cases out of ten the seal takes alarm and dives out of sight before the boat is brought close enough to use the guns with effect, and in no case does the hunter shoot unless he feels sure of his quarry. The seal when shot at once commences to sink, and the boat has to be pulled rapidly up to it, when the body is "gaffed" and hauled aboard. This is repeated as long as a seal can be seen. In many cases only one or two will be killed during a two days' hunt, while at other times as many as twenty will be taken.

A Feminine Triumph.

Old Lady—No use talkin', I used to say this higher education of gals was all folderol; but I see I was wrong. There's my granddarter, for instance. She's just a wonder.

Friend—I understand she graduated with high honors.

Old Lady—Yes; graduated from Vassar, and she kin do what neither her mother nor me could ever hope to do if our lives depended on it.

Friend—Indeed! And what is that?

Old Lady—She kin tell the time a train is goin' to start by lookin' at a railway guide.—New York Weekly.

An Antique Custom.

The English people are very fond of keeping up antique customs. In olden times the Fruiterers' Company of London annually presented twelve baskets of apples to the Lord Mayor, and the Lady Mayoress put a bottle of wine in each of the empty baskets for the carriers, who were also given a dinner. Of late years pineapples, nectarines, peaches, and other choice fruits have been substituted for apples, and this year the ceremony was observed Oct. 7.

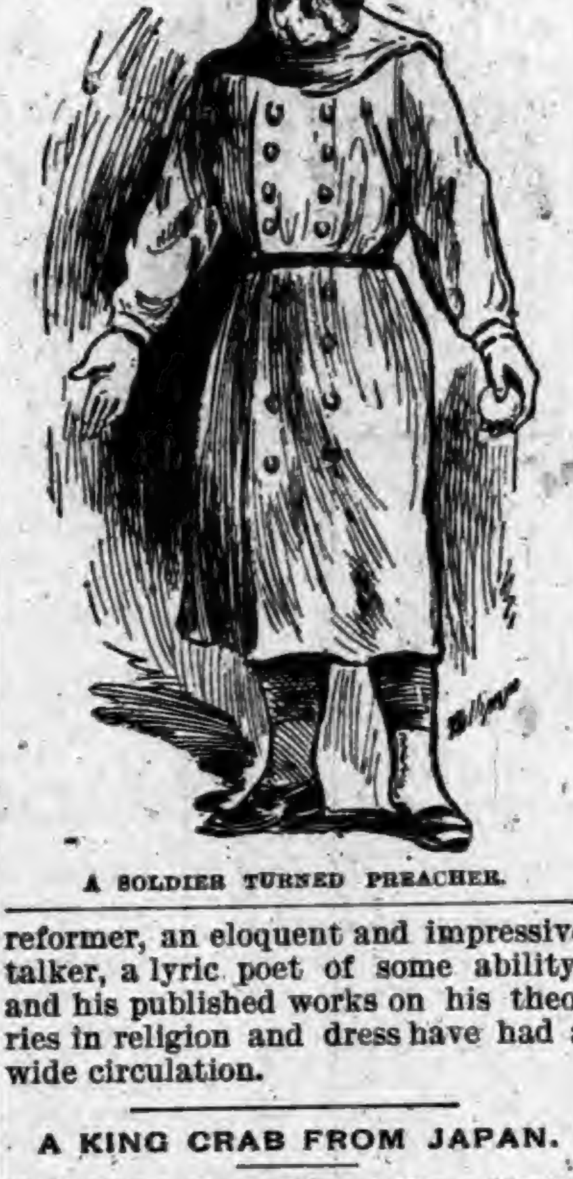
"PREACHER OF NATURE."

A Reformed Prussian Soldier Who Believes in Dress Reform and a Simple Religion.

Johannes Guttzeit, the so-called "preacher of nature," who attracts considerable attention in the famous old city of Leipzig, is an ex-Prussian army officer, who has taken up his abode in that hotbed of German socialism. He is a tall, handsome man, and he affects a curious costume which excites amusement and astonishment alike in strangers. His shoes are heavy and low cut; dark-gray woolen stockings reach to his knees; his trousers of white wool cover the upper part of his legs, while a broad, loose gown of the same material falls almost to his feet. This gown is fastened about his body by two long rows of buttons and a waist-girdle of cloth. On his head, from which long hair falls to his broad shoulders, he wears at times a crown of leaves.

Guttzeit was born in Koenigsberg, Prussia, in 1853, and was a member of a wealthy family. He early showed a liking for the life a soldier and entered the army in 1871. For a number of years he served as a lieutenant and differed little from his comrades. At the end of that time, however, he determined to quit the service in order to give to the world his religious and sanitary theories. He advocates a return to the simple life in vogue in the days of the apostles and is a strict vegetarian. He is a dress reformer, an eloquent and impressive talker, a lyric poet of some ability, and his published works on his theories in religion and dress have had a wide circulation.



A SOLDIER TURNED PREACHER.

A KING CRAB FROM JAPAN.

He Is Eighty Years Old and Has a Stretch of Eleven Feet.

The king of crabs ornaments the cabin of the British steamship Euphrates, which arrived from Japan with a cargo of tea, says the New York Recorder. He is the biggest specimen of his kind ever seen in New York, and is known as a lion crab. Capt. James Edwards, the commander of the Euphrates, and his crew had a lively time in capturing the crustacean.

He was seen when the vessel was at Hakodate, Yezzo. Efforts were made to capture him alive, but he fought so valiantly that he lost his life in his struggle to escape. He was pulled aboard and stuffed as a curiosity, and now occupies a place against the wall of Capt. Edwards' cabin, with an inscription in Japanese above, which, translated, means "a thousand miles in a thousand minutes." He will be taken to the London Zoological gardens. He is valued at $250.

In his native element the crab was of a deep green color, but in death he became red. The body is round, resembling that of a turtle, and is 7 inches thick and 40 inches in circumference. There are 10 legs, the forward ones measuring 61 inches in length and the hindmost pair 25 inches. The pincers of the forward legs are each 6 inches in length, the first joint is 22 inches, the second 8 inches, and the third 25 inches in length. The distance from claw to claw measures 11 feet.

His appearance indicated that he might have made a fierce battle for his captors and afforded food enough when killed for the entire ship's company. One of the sailors, a Japanese named Karena, explained that the lion crab is a very rare specimen and difficult to capture. He is supposed to move at the rate of a mile a minute, and is held in reverence by many of the religious sects in Japan. He grows an inch every year, and this particular crab is supposed to have been nearly 80 years old at the time of his decease.

Helpful Ailments.

The value of cow-pox, voluntarily induced, as a protection against small-pox, is generally recognized. The same principle has been successfully extended to some of the worst diseases among animals, and it is expected that it may yet be applied in the case of some virulent human diseases.

In England gout is a very prevalent and painful disease. In this country it is less common. Our climate inclines us to excessive mental activity. As a result of this the brain appropriates nervous force at the expense of digestive system, and so disposes us to dyspepsia; but dyspepsia compels its victims, in spite of themselves, to indulge somewhat sparingly in rich food, in the too free eating of which gout originates.

Of the two diseases, dyspepsia is to be preferred. It seldom interferes with the day's work, and, except in very obstinate cases, is almost certain to be relieved by proper diet and exercise.

Sick headache may often be counted in the class of helpful ailments, though it is a "bitter pill." There are two forms of it: one has its primary source in the brain, the other in the stomach. In both cases there is commonly some hereditary tendency to the disease, but the exciting cause is overwork; of the brain in one case, of the stomach in the other.

The headaches necessitate occasional rest, while the dread of them acts as a constant check upon tendencies which might otherwise result in grave harm. Indeed, attention to diet, with a little letting down of the average cerebral activity, professional, business or domestic, will generally insure a comparative immunity from attack.

Acute rheumatism often gives rise to permanent heart trouble. Chronic rheumatism, on the contrary, may be healthful in cases of heart disease.

For instance, enlargement of the heart tends to increase until it reaches the dangerous limit. The patient's safety depends largely on his training himself to such habits as reduce strain on the heart, rheumatic joints in the lower limbs are an admirable aid in this respect. The former rapid movements cease. A fatal running to meet the cars or the ferryboat is out of the question.

The rheumatism is an uncomfortable companion, no doubt, but it may help to a long life—a decade or more, perhaps, beyond the three-score and ten.—Youth's Companion.

A CITY OF RUNAWAY HORSES.

Dangerous Character of a Stroll in Bangor—The Wild Maine Colt.

The report of the statisticians that more lives are lost in the United States every year through runaways than by railroad disasters will be readily believed by Maine people, for in that state the runaway horse often causes more fatalities in a single month than can be laid to the railroads for the entire year. Almost every other man in Maine owns a horse of some kind, but only a small proportion of the owners are horsemen, and the horses for the most part are a wild, untrained lot, easily frightened by the breaking of a breeching, tug or whiffletree, or by any of the numerous little accidents that are liable to occur at any time. Thousands of fine colts are raised in Maine, but few of them are properly broken, with the result that the state is filled with unmanagable, dangerous horses.

Bangor has long been noted for the runaways that occur almost daily in its streets, and so pronounced has the nuisance become that in certain localities pedestrians are in more danger than they would be in crossing West street or Broadway in New York. Bangor is the center of a large farming district, and hundreds of untrained colts and green horses come into the city every day from the surrounding country. At this season of the year several hundred farmers' teams are daily huddled together in the open market places of Pickering and Haymarket squares, and when a runaway occurs there the results are disastrous. The principal streets of the city are traversed by an electric railroad, and the cars on the line, with their peculiar noise and occasional emission of sparks, are the pet aversion of the country horses.

It is no unusual thing to see a horse or a pair of horses, attached to a heavy cart, go tearing along one of the crowded business streets, wrecking carriages and knocking down pedestrians in their path, and perhaps finally taking to the sidewalk and crashing through the front of a shop. Four and five runaways frequently occur in a single day and the exciting events are a fruitful source of items for the local newspapers. Occasionally human life is sacrificed. Within a year two of the most eminent lawyers of the city, the Hon. Lewis Barker and ex-Judge James F. Rawson, have met their death in the streets from runaway horses, and matters have reached such a stage that a promenade in a saw-mill is a safe undertaking compared with a stroll in Bangor's business streets.

Old Aztec Mines.

A group of old Spanish or Aztec mines have recently been discovered at Las Placitas of this county, about twenty miles from this city, says an Albuquerque (New Mexico) correspondent of the St. Louis Republic. So many years have elapsed since these mines were worked that all trace of their history has been lost and the present inhabitants of the country know absolutely nothing about them.

Prospectors recently got on to the trail of what they thought was something good, and by pushing their investigation came upon unmistakable evidences of what were undoubtedly once rich workings.

A very extensive system of underground work has been brought to light. The mineral discovered, while not of the highest grade, is rich enough to pay handsomely, and runs generally from $50 to $60 to the ton. The remains have been found in several places of what were once furnaces for smelting the ore. There are also large quantities of slag, and in several instances have been found what are clearly remains of implements used by the workmen.

But what will still be more interesting to the general reader is that these explorations have developed unmistakable evidences of the fact that the work on these mines which was performed nobody knows how many centuries ago, was brought to a summary conclusion by an earthquake or general upheaval of some sort, for not only are the mine workings, smelters, furnaces, etc., buried under some fifteen feet of earth, but there have been found on the same level the ruins of what was once an aqueduct for bringing water to the camp from a source about ten miles distant.

The camp of Las Placitas, referred to, is on the eastern slope of the Sandia Mountains, about twenty miles from Albuquerque, and promises to become one of the most interesting fields of archæological research yet discovered in this country.

A Telegraph Blunder.

Thirty pupils of a deaf and dumb school in Virginia started for home over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad last week. The conductor of the train telegraphed to Parkersburg, "I have thirty mutes on board. Be prepared to receive them." The dispatch was received all right, but the operator read it mules instead of mutes. Two cattle-cars were awaiting his train as it pulled into Parkersburg.

The Refinement of Gallantry.

Fair but unfortunate maiden—Dear me! That's the twentieth time I've had to get up to let some fellow get by. It seems as if every man in the house wanted to pass me.

Gallant but crude companion—Can you blame them?

How Kid Gloves Are Made.

The kid gloves are a simple but very important article of dress. Of the millions of persons who wear gloves, how few ever give the subject of their manufacture a passing thought. The best skins generally come from Middle and Southern France. Fine seasons improve the quality of the skins greatly, as the animals are kept in the open air. In wet weather it is necessary to keep the kids housed. The confinement, if lengthy, causes heating and produces fever-spots on the skins. The animals on the Tyrol mountains furnish good leather for men's wear. South American kids being more or less wild, their coats become scratched and torn by contact with bushes, briers, etc., and are not desirable. The pelt as taken from the animal is dried; then through a series of baths, the hair and grease are removed and the skin cleaned thoroughly. A most difficult stage of the business is tanning and dyeing the leathers, so much skill being requisite to obtain the desired shades and colors. This is accomplished with the best success in France, as the French posess that art of leather-dyeing to a degree not yet attained by other nations. In order afterward to make the skin soft, full, and flexible, it is fed with—actually absorbing quite a quantity of—a preparation of wheat flour and egg-yelks. Subsequently the parts around the neck and shoulders where the skin is thickest, are shaved with a sharp knive to render it uniform in thickness throughout.

The leather fully prepared is carefully examined for imperfections; perfect skins are retained, imperfect ones laid aside. The cutting of material for kid gloves can only be done by hand, each piece being carefully measured in order to allow the proper stretching space. The stamping, which comprises cutting out the form of the glove, is done by machinery rapidly, as three pair are usually "stamped" at one time. From the cutter they pass to the embroiderer, thence to the sewer, then to the button-hole maker, afterward to the finisher, who binds the wrist, and finally to the person whose business it is to pair and press them. The long, mousquetaire gloves generally consume the entire skin of a kid. These are ordinary gloves, ten different sizes for ladies—5½ to 8; thirteen different sizes for men—6½ to 9; for misses the sizes are from 4½ to 6½, and for boys the cadet sizes range from 6½ to 7½.

The great manufacturing center for gloves is Grenoble, in the south of France, where several thousand persons are engaged in the factories. This firm having to supply so many markets—the United States, through its office in New York; Canada, through its representatives in Montreal; France, through its headquarters at Grenoble; England, through its branch house in London; Australia, through its connections in Melbourne—recently made a single purchase of 11,000 dozen skins, to be dyed and prepared as wanted. Pig and dog-skins exist only in imagination. What is called dog-skin is really lamb-skin, and the advertised dog-skin gloves are made of skin that no respectable dog would ever recognize as having belonged to any inhabitants of the dog world. New designs in embroidery for gloves, recently invented, will shortly be introduced; they surpass in appearance, design, colors and finish anything yet shown, and must become, as they deserve to be, immensely popular with all classes of glove-wearers.

A Tree with a History.

One hundred years ago a Mr. Marr, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., set out a willow slip, which grew to be a good-sized tree. Mr. Marr was an obliging sort of person, and he kept his grindstone—one of the few in that vicinity—under the willow by the roadside for the convenience of his neighbors. Some of the neighbors were ungrateful yokels, for often, when they had done grinding their axes, they would try the blades upon the sheltering tree, so that its beauty was spoiled and its life endangered. Then Farmer Marr drove a lot of spikes into the trunk, covering the heads artfully with bark, and when the neighboring vandals had spoiled a few axes they quit trying edges on the willow. Marr and his neighbors are all dead and forgotten these fifty years, but the willow still flourishes, and the ax marks are obliterated, while the protecting spikes are grown deep in the heart of the great trunk.

The Age of Muscle.

This is it undoubtedly. Never before in the history of the race did the cultivation of muscle receive such universal attention and encouragement. Even the gentler sex practices every branch of calisthenics affected by the trousered gender. This of course is well, for exercise is an essential of health. But to the feeble, the nervous, and the dyspeptic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters affords a guaranty of primal vigor upon which a superstructure of muscularity may advantageously be built. Most genial and speedy of tonics, it is also the most thorough of regulators, entirely rectifying errors of digestion and bilious secretion, and promoting a healthy habit of body. It conquers and prevents intermittent and bilious remittent fever, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble. The aged, infirm, and convalescing derive immeasurable benefit from its use; it imparts a hearty relish for food and overcomes insomnia.

A Four-Footed Life-Saver.

A very remarkable instance of canine sagacity was exhibited the other day by a pointer dog belonging to Mr. Charles Wallace of the Worth Lumber Company at Worth, Ga. The railroad track runs near the mills, and a Newfoundland puppy belonging to one of the employes had seated himself on the railroad track, and was complacently waiting the approach of a train, which in another moment would have interrupted his meditations. The pointer, which was standing near by, seeing the young dog's danger, rushed across the track, grabbing the puppy in his mouth as he went by, and placed him safely on the other side just as the train went thundering by.—Atlanta Constitution.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rubber Cement.

To fasten glass letters, figures, etc., on glass (show windows) so that, even when submerged in water for several days, they will not become detached, use an Indian rubber cement. The best for this purpose consists of one part India rubber, three parts of mastic and fifty parts chloroform. Let it stand for several days at a low temperature to dissolve the cement. It must be applied very rapidly, as it becomes thick very soon.

IT requires years to make one saint, but sinners can be turned out at the rate of a dozen a minute.

THE LOVELL SAFETY.

A New Bicycle Which the Public Likes.

While thousands within the last decade have enjoyed the sport of cycling, the fact is nevertheless obvious that many thousands more have been deterred from enjoying it in consequence of the high prices demanded for a really good wheel.

It remained for the John P. Lovell Arms Company of Boston to change this state of affairs. It was last year that the public first became aware that there was a new low-priced safety bicycle on the market, a wheel strictly high grade and equal in every particular to any manufactured in America or Europe. As previous to this all manufacturers had charged a very large price for a first-class wheel, the John P. Lovell Arms Company is therefore the first House that has ever offered the public such a wheel at a price that does not place it beyond the reach of the average person's purse. The company that manufactures this wheel (the Lovell Diamond Safety) is one of the oldest of all the manufacturing and mercantile houses in New England, having been established in 1840.

Besides being now one of the leading bicycle firms in the United States, the John P. Lovell Arms Company is and has been for years a well-known manufacturer and dealer in firearms and sporting goods of every description.

On June 13 of last year, the firm celebrated its half-century anniversary. The founder of this enterprising house, Mr. John P. Lovell, although over 70 years of age, is still an important and active member of this world-famed house.

Artificial Age.

Oak may be given the appearance of age by sponging with sulphuric acid and water equal parts, or what is preferable, staining with umber in thin shellac varnish. Iron work may be treated with a wash of sulphate of soda and heating over a fire, or by brushing a solution of flour of sulphur in ten parts of turpentine, dissolved by heating over the irons, then holding them over an alcohol lamp heat until the black polish appears.

Knowledge Is Wealth.

Druggist—You might have charged that young man $2 for filling that prescription. Why did you put the price at 25 cents?

Clerk—He understades Latin.—Street & Smith's Good News.

The Favored Classes.

Teachers, ministers, farmers, mechanics, merchants, as well as their wives, daughters, and sons, who would like to devote at least a part of their time and attention to a work that would bring them in a lot of ready money during the next few months, would do well to look up the advertisement of B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., in another column, as it may be the means of opening up to many new life and larger possibilities. These gentlemen have been extensively and successfully engaged in business for many years, and they know what they are talking about when they tell you they can show you how to better your financial condition.

Uncle Sam's Ink.

A million pounds of ink are required every year to print Uncle Sam's paper money and revenue stamps. It is all manufactured on the premises of the bureau of engraving, the Treasury Department buying the materials in the shape of "dry colors" and linseed oil.

JOHN A. SMITH, Ligonier, Ind., had been suffering from severe backache caused, physicians told him, by chronic kidney trouble, and was all broken down in health. He began using Swamp-Root and is now able to do a good day's work and considers himself a well man again. Swamp-Root did the business. He considers it by far the best remedy he has ever used for Kidney Disease.

It Would Be Very Warm.

Prof. Mayer has calculated that, if the motion of the earth were suddenly arrested, the temperature produced would be sufficient to melt and even volatize it; while if it fell into the sun, as much heat would be produced as results from the combustion of 5,000 spheres of carbon the size of our globe.

"A sense of gratitude and a desire to benefit those afflicted prompts me to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all who have catarrh. Very Much Discouraged

At last I decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and began to get relief. I have now used, within two years, ten or twelve bottles, and I feel better than I have for years. I attribute my improvement wholly to the use of A Hindoo Bride's Jewelry.

A native bride in Hindostan is loaded down with all the jewelry she can get. She has a girdle at the waist, numerous rings, anklets, bracelets and bells, and decorations for the hair. The priest takes a corner of the bride's veil and ties it to the groom's shawl, and they are married.

For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

This week Elder Keller of Hicksville, Ohio visited here.

Mrs. W. H. McIntyre, of Auburn, was in our city Sunday.

Judge McBride and wife of Elkhart, spent Sunday here.

Samuel Kennedy has moved into Waterloo from the country.

Mrs. Myers of Butler, spent Thanksgiving with friends here.

Tuesday of this week Mr. Stauffer, of Loundonville, Ohio, was in town.

Bent Henning, of North Baltimore, O., has been spending some days in Waterloo.

Rose Blair has been quite sick, the trouble being some form of throat disease.

Rev. A. F. McCloe is holding a protracted meeting in the U. B. church in Corunna.

Scott Lotzenheiser and family have returned from Bowling Green to spend the winter in Waterloo, with "the old folks at home."

The members of the M. E. Sunday school of this [illegible] are arranging to give a fine Ch[illegible] entertainment, to which all are i[illegible]

Mrs. Stevens and her neice Grace Roby, have returned from their visit of some weeks at Danville, Ill., with the family of Fred. Roby.

A good active Young People's Christian union has been organized in the U. B. church of this place, and held a successful meeting on last Sunday night.

Thanksgiving day at 2 o'clock p. m., Henry Luce and Mattie Shanks were married at Butler, Rev. Koltz, of Waterloo, performing the ceremony. The young couple will make their home in Toledo.

Mrs. Lightner writes to her friends here, that her husband thus far finds where they are at Los Angeles, to agree with him. His health is improving, and he has commenced working at his business.

Charles Bassett, sen., returned some days since from Battle Creek, where he has been for some weeks under treatment at the sanitarium. His health is somewhat improved although he is at present suffering from a severe cold.

A young man named Elliott, who resided near Summit, was killed last Thursday while cutting down a tree. A young man was with him and it appears that as the tree fell it split, one part striking him. He was buried at this place Saturday. His age was about twenty.

Monday evening of this week a sleighing party from Angola arrived at Locke's hotel after eight o'clock in the evening, having telegraphed their coming several hours before. About ten o'clock the company partook of an elegant supper, not taking their departure for home until after midnight. They evidently enjoyed themselves.

Mrs. Faucett received a letter from Michigan directly after her daughter arrived from the West informing her of the critical illness of her mother, Mrs. Tefft. As soon as it was possible to leave Mrs F. hastened to the bedside of her parent, but too late to see her alive. Mrs. Stanley, having taken a severe cold, together with the fatigue and exposure of her journey, was very sick after reaching home, and her baby also. They are all improving now, but the family have suffered much from sickness for many months past, and have the sympathy of all.

Thanksgiving services were well attended at the Presbyterian church in the morning and the U. B. church in the evening, at which time Elder Silas Mort preached the sermon. Rev. W. S. Tracy was expected to preach in the morning, but owing to his severe illness it was arranged there should be a short address from several ministers from the different churches. Accordingly Revs. Marshall, De Weese, McCloe and Klotz were listened to by an interested audience. The music was also fine. The union services were not only well attended, but were interesting and appreciated.

CORUNNA

Gerry Rudolph of this place, who is clerking in a furniture store in Toledo, has recovered from an attack of lung fever.

The merry sound of the sleigh bells was again heard on our streets. Everybody made good use of the snow as it is the first chance we have had for three or four years.

The new Hartman building is almost completed and is a grand addition to the town. It consists of basement, store room and town hall. The latter is a very much needed room.

A series of meetings were commenced at the U. B. church last Sunday evening by Rev. McCloe. Rev. Pattee filled the appointment Sunday evening. The meetings will continue for some time and all are cordially invited to attend.

George Harmes and Millard Trumbull went to Kendallville on Thursday of last week and took in the Thanksgiving dinner prepared by the ladies of the Disciple church of that place. Never mind boys, next year is leap year and then the girls will go, and perhaps leave you at home.

The oyster supper at Kline's hotel given by the Young Ladies' Relief club was a grand success, socially and financially. They pledged themselves to give $25 to the new church and they have made a good part of of it. They will give a butterfly social at the hotel some evening next week. All are cordially invited to attend.

The new Disciple church at this place was not dedicated on the 22d on account of the rain which poured down incessantly, and they will make another attempt on the last Sunday in December, which we hope will be more successful. Notwithstanding the rain there were quite a number present, and over $500 was raised to cancel the debt resting on the church, and there is still over $800 to be raised at the final dedication.

The Thanksgiving sermon preached by Rev. Pattee at the M. E church was a grand effort and we are sorry that there was not a larger audience out to hear him. There are too many Marthas who remained at home to prepare the dinner and not enough Marys to sit and learn at His feet, and give thanks for the many blessings they have received during all these 365 days. But of course it is the fault of the men, because they require it.

DEKALB.

There is lots of corn to husk yet.

Will Kemery left our city last week.

Charles Stroh, of Garrett, is staying at Jim Kemery's for a several weeks.

E. L. Lane has taken a wife to cheer up his life. Again we wish them a happy life.

Mrs. Housel is recovering rapidly and and the probabilities are that she will soon be well.

John Fair lost his barn by fire last week, and his hay and two hundred bushels of wheat and some oats.

Alex Baltz was placed to rest last Sunday. He was a good citizen. He leaves a wife and many friends to mourn his departure.

Mrs. Annie Lane, the former wife of E. L. Lane, is now running a restaurant in Waterloo. We hope she will have good success in her occupation for her support.

The new store in the old McKinley building is doing a big business and keeps everything the community wants. That is what we have needed here and we hope that they will stay here for some time.

The literary at the Knott school house is doing fine and looks as though it would prove to be a success if some of the boys and girls would behave themselves and show better training.

SUMMIT.

Miss Olevie Grambling was home over Sunday.

H. D. Snowberger went to Waterloo on business last Friday.

Rev. Clayton, of Hudson, was on our streets last Wednesday.

To Our Readers

Our readers will see that we make a far better offer than any other paper in this part of the state, when we send them FREE for one year, a good monthly paper. "Sunshine" is full of good stories, and of various good reading matter for the young. Each subscriber gets it, so that no one need feel that we have left them out because they had not "paid in advance." But we believe this spirit of fairness will be appreciated, and that those who have become careless will make an effort to do as well by us, as we are trying to do by them. And let each one to whom the "Sunshine" comes, mention it to the neighbors who do not happen to take the COURIER, for we will also send it to every new subscriber who who starts in between now and Dec. 1, 1892. Remember that the COURIER gives more home reading that the people of the county at large care for, than any other paper published in the county, that there are only two other papers in the county of the same size, while all the others are much smaller. So that with this free paper, we are giving about double what others do for the same money. That the COURIER is appreciated by the people, is proved by its steadily increasing list, and we ask each of its friends to say a good word for it and its companion, "Sunshine," and before the year is out, we shall have still more friends and readers.

An Ancient Postmaster.

The Angola Republican says: During a visit at Orland last week we were pleased to meet among many others the genial postmaster, Christian Schneider, who is always at his post of duty. Some of our exchanges have of late mentioned a postmaster in Indiana whose commission was given under the administration of President Buchanan, but here is a servant of the people who received authority to act as postmaster at Orland in 1856 when Franklin Pierce was at the head of the government. For thirty-five years he has received and delivered letters and papers to the good people of that vicinity, among them the Republican, the first issue of the same being sent out the year he took possession of the office. During all these years he has not been absent from the office more than one day at a time and less than a week altogether. We have no hesitancy in saying that no other postmaster in the United States can show such a record. Since Aug. 1, 1870, he has issued 20,019 money orders. He is seventy-three years of age.

Carpets Less than Cost of Manufacture.

The most extraordinary sale of carpets ever known, took place in New York last week. Within four days, sixty thousand pieces, aggregating nearly four million yards and selling for nearly three million dollars, were thrown upon the market and sold for what they would bring. These goods were brussels, velvets and moquettes of the celebrated make of Alex Smith's Sons & Co. and were all of them of the handsomest designs of this season's make. The great houses of H. B. Claflin & Co. of New York, and Marshall Field & Co. of Chicago, each bought about half a million dollars worth of these goods. The Foster Furniture & Carpet Co. of Ft. Wayne, Jackson, La Fayette and Terre Haute, were among the heaviest purchasers. This firm desires us to say to our readers, that every dollar they can rake and scrape together, should at once be taken to Ft. Wayne and with it purchase a new carpet for every worn out one in your house. The Foster Co., offer the best 85 cent ingrain carpet for 65 cts, elegant brussels for fifty cts. and moquette $1. No such chance is likely to occur again in twenty years.

Harper's Weekly.

The Columbian Exposition, the Army and Navy, great public events, disasters on land and sea, and the doings of the celebrated people of the day will be described and illustrated in an attractive and timely manner. THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

SANTA FE, N. M. Nov. 1, '91.

EDITOR COURIER: At Albuquerque, where we were on Saturday Oct. 31st, there is an old and a new town. The old town, situated about one mile from the new town, is approachable by street railroad, and about the only American building it contains is the court house, whose beauty and modern architecture contrast oddly with the vista of antique portals which front the street with a wind mill in the back ground.

The full and early name of the Duke City was, San Felipe Nevi de-Albuquerque and is named in honor of Francisco Fernandez de-la-Cueva, duke of Albuquerque, who was viceroy of Mexico during the periods of 1659 60 and 1701 11. The town was founded by Spaniards about 1660 and is said to have occupied a different site, then, from its present one. The change was brought about by the original founders being driven from their homes during the Pueblo Indian raids of 1680 and after the Spanish reconquest of New Mexico in 1692, the white settlers returning, located the town in its present place, which had been the hacienda of the lieutenant governor, Alonzo Garcia.

For over a century and a half after the reconquest Albuquerque was a noted and important place among the Mexican settlements along the Rio Grande and when New Mexico became a part of the United State the importance of the town increased very rapidly. Then in 1880 came the extension of the A. T. & S. F. railroad which occasioned the platting of the 'new town' about the railroad, whose steady growth has made Albuquerque one of the leading cities of the southwest. The new town is distinctively American, in its buildings, business enterprise, mode of living, industry of its citizens and its habitations. The place contains four banks, two foundries, three flour mills, two good hotels, besides numerous smaller institutions, as an ice factory, planing mills, etc., etc. The buildings now being constructed are mostly of red sand stone from Arizona, which is capable of a very nice polish and presents a nice appearance when in the wall.

There are under construction here now about twenty good buildings ranging in in price from $2,500 to $65,000. The Albuquerque Commercial Club (whose guests we were while in the city and who entertained us magnificently,) have nearly completed their club house at a cost of $60,000.

The scenery about Albuquerque is beautiful and picturesque. To the east is a mesa ten miles in width, which lies parallel with the river and divides the valley from the mountain's base. To the northeast, the lofty oblong summits of Sandia mountain rise far above this tableland, their rocky, partly timbered sides revealing in the evenings, sun varied hues.

South of the Sandias lies a lower range of mountains in which are located many canyons and through which the Espanola extension of the D. & R G. railroad is to run, these affording a passage from the eastern plains down to the valley and the city among the sands. Southeast of these mountains rise the far off crests of the Manzena range whose tall cloud scraping summits look like great walls of rock shutting out all the world from this place.

West of the river the low rolling wave like bluffs, which form its bank, gradually rise and form the base of the Ladrones mountains, desolate, wild and lonely mountains and possibly a rendezvous for robbers, desperadoes and troublesome Indians.

In the northeast are seen, blue in the distance, the San Mateo and Juarez mountains, while between these great walls of blackness on east and west flows the Rio Grande on it way to the Gulf distributing along the valley, through which it passes, deposits of volcanic, granitic and silicious soil, increasing the fertility of the valley by every little wave that passes across its turbid surface, thus resembling much the river Nile. Its banks fringed with low thickets of green cotton wood furnish sustenance for the inhabitants of the numerous Spanish American and Indian villages of low rectangular adobe houses which lie about the quaint massive church so familiar to these towns as to appear almost indispensable. The people, following the religious faith of the conquistadores, make much of the saint's days.

Bernalillo county, of which Albuquerque is the county seat, takes its name from Father Juan Bernal, a pious prelate who was very popular among the people of central New Mexico in 1680, and after whom Bernal mountain, or Starvation Peak, as now called, was named, which is located in San Miguel county, north of here, around the rocky base of which I have witnessed many beautiful sunsets.

At Albuquerque we were met at the train by a committee of the press of the city and escorted to the principal hotels where arrangements had been made for our entertainment, spending the forenoon as each one's inclinations bent, either listening about the hotels, writing or strolling about the city in which (the new town), there is not much to see that is quaint, old or picturesque; and when, after we had dined bountifully, we were taken by the committees in carriages around the principal streets to the Indian school, the university and the antiquated old town of Albuquerque along whose streets moves the groups of Navajos Indians with their curiosities for sale, the Pueblo Indians driving donkeys laden with their trinkets, Mexicans astride little burros, and six-mule teams and ox teams from the mining camps for supplies, and from the ranches with wool and grain to exchange for commodities for the return trip, each member of the party was fully enthused with the beauty and grandeur of the scenery in that vicinity, and fully prepared to listen to the interesting remarks of Judge Lee, that evening at the club rooms, who in his address of welcome described in glowing terms the many fine things Albuerque and Bernalilo county has to offer to the world and its many advantages and prospects.

On the occasion of this reception Mr. Stoll of South Bend, Mr. French of Michigan City, Mr. Childers of Albuquerque, and Mr. Honck of Marion, Ind. all did themselves proud as speech makers. After the reception was over we were escorted to the depot by the Press Club of the city and at 12:40 a. m. Nov 1, left for Santa Fe, where we arrived at 8:30 the same morning and were met at the train as usual and entertained by the citizen's committee during the entire day.

Yours Truly,
FRANK E. ROSE.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and tonic acts directly on these vital organs. This is to certify that I had a tumor growing on my face between the cheek and the bone. It got so bad that I went to Detroit to the Medical Institute and had an operation performed and was unconcious for forty eight hours. I returned home and the tumor commenced growing again. I went again and had another operation performed and came near bleeding to death. Returning home the tumor commenced growing a second time. I returned the third time and the doctor said another operation was necessary, but I chose death rather than another operation. I then went to A. Y. Rosenbury and he simply passed his hands over my cheek at different times, and the tumor commenced getting soft and has entirely disappeared, and I feel safe to say that I was cured through the treatment of A. Y. Rosenbury. These are facts as I state them.

A Mute Recovers Speech.

Alphonce Hemphling, of Summit township, Butler Co. Penn made an affidavit that his twelve-year-son, who had had St. Vitus dance for twelve years, lost his speech, was completely cured after using three bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and also recovered his speech. Thousands testify to wonderful cures from using it for nervous diseases, dyspepsia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, headache, etc. Four doses of this Nervine cured Mrs. W. E. Burns, South Bend, Ind., who had been suffering with constant headache for 3 months. Trial bottle and elegant book free at F. E. Davenport's. 4

"My grandfather has'nt had his hair cut for ten years," remarked Twynn.

"Bald, I suppose?" replied Triplet with an air of one who is not to be caught so easily.

"No; dead."

Sleep on Left Side.

Many persons are unable to sleep on their left side. The cause has long been a puzzle to physicians. Metropolitan papers speak with great interest of Dr. Franklin Miles, the eminent Indiana specialist in nervous and heart diseases, who has proven that this habit arises from a diseased heart. He has examined and kept on record thousands of cases. His New Heart Cure, a wonderful remedy is sold at F. E. Davenport. Thousands testify to its value as a cure for heart diseases. Mrs. Chas. Benoy, Loveland, Col., says its effects on her were marvelous. Elegant book on heart disease free. 4

"You don't follow the hounds much in this country, do you, Miss Hawkins?" asked Lord Noodleby.

"No; we have professional dog catchers," replied Miss Hawkins.

A Slip of Paper.

S. D. Henderson, of Mead Centre, Kas. says: I cannot say too much in praise of your Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup and the peculiar way I came to try this medicine. I once found a slip of paper laying along the road, on which was printed these words, "Use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup for asthma," and my wife being troubled with asthma for several years, and having tried a great many differant medicines, I thought I would just spend 50c. more and try yours and I must say it is the best she ever used, and think it will cure her sound and well. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Wonderful Cures.

WATERLOO, IND., May 28, 1876.

I, the undersigned, have, have been troubled with hip joint disease for five years which at times was very painful and was getting worse all the time. A year ago Rosenbury treated it, and since that time it has not troubled me any, and I can safely say that I think the cure was effected by his treatment. He also treated me for rheumatism, with the same result.

Members of Congress.

Republican and democratic papers have been discussing the congressional situation in this district, and all alike, seem to have no settled opinion, though they appear to be fully interested. Several of the former are inclined to criticise the democrats of the district for allowing a man to "drop out" of the place after he has, as all concede, "done well." Then after these have had their say, comes the Butler Record, of Nov. 27, and has this:

"If the rule of succession is observed in the next House of Representatives the South will have forty-two chairmanships of committees out of a total of fifty six. The North makes a poor showing in the National Government after a democratic victory. The northern democracy is only the tail of the southern dog."

There is some truth in this. The north does make a poor showing, but in part at least, the north alone is to blame for this condition of things. In the southern states, it has always been the custom to keep a member in congress till he can learn the business, and then if he proves worthy, to keep him right along, unless, as will then often happen, he is called to a higher place. In the north this is not always possible, for we have more changes in political sentiment, and the district that sends a democrat one year, may two years later send a republican, and so the district has inexperienced men all the time. Again, as in our own district, there may be a reliable majority, and yet the politicians of the district get it into their heads, that the office must be passed around, so a number of them may be honored. This very unwise and unpatriotic plan has always marked the course of this district, and though we have a strong democratic majority, yet the selfishness of a few men has deprived the people of a great part of the benefit that might be had from keeping an experienced and able man for a number of terms. When this district, as now made up, was first organized, we should have taken up a promising man and kept him there right along. To-day, he would be in the line of promotion, one of the best known and most influential of northern members, and certain to receive a good chairmanship in which he could be of some service to his district and to his state. He might even become speaker, an office next in importance and influence to the presidency. Instead of this, we have taken the suicidal policy of sending a man for two terms only, and then choosing a new one. Hence, this great, strong Twelfth district, with its intelligent and prosperous people, and its many needs, gets nothing of value from the general government, because it remains comparatively a stranger in the halls of congress. That is why we get no chairmanship up this way, and why we have so little influence at Washington. The COURIER has often alluded to this undesirable state of things and has objected to it in no uncertain manner. The COURIER is still opposed to it, as it believes every thinking man, republican or democrat is, unless he be an aspiring politician. The question is: For what purpose did the general government provide for congressional districts? Was it to bestow a brief title and a fleeting honor on some individual here and there over the Union? Or was it to enable the people better to secure their rights under a free government? Manifestly the latter. The office is the people's property, and does not belong to a few. At the earliest opportunity, the people should assert their rights. We are speaking for the Twelfth district. We should have stopped this suicidal arrangement long ago When Mr. Colerick was our member, we should have continued him, for he would have proved useful, and by this time would have been high in the national legislature. Failing to keep him then, we should have retained Judge Lowry for the same reasons. And for the very same reason, we should keep Judge Mc Clellan. And if he won't serve we should select his successor, with the same principle in view, a determination to get an able man, and then keep him there. What made the well merited fame of Randall, Carlisle, Crisp, Mills, Morrison, our own Judge Holman, and a host of others, but keeping them in their places, and therefore "in the line of promotion" as they have been kept? Let us stop this foolishness, if not now, then at the earliest possible date.

DIED.

Merchie May Powell, daughter of Francis and Sarah A. Powell, born Nov. 14, 1887, died Nov. 30, 1891, age 4 years and 16 days. The services were at the residence, by Elder James Barton, and interment at Union Cemetery, northwest of Garrett, Dec. 2.

Dearest Merchie, how we loved thee;
Can it be that thou art gone,
Shall we never more behold thee.
Have you left us here alone?

Methinks I hear her sweetly saying,
Parents dear, O, do not weep.
Don't you know, God's guardian angels,
A silent watch o'er loved ones keep?

I am waiting for your coming.
Parents loved and sister dear.
Love and trust your blessed Savior,
Then you will surely meet me here.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1856—Continued.

An address delivered by W. H. Dills, esq., at the fourth annual reunion of the pioneer association of DeKalb County in June 1881, and published in full in the COURIER of June 23, is an able and realistic portrayal of the pioneers' experiences and a credit to the mind that concieved and executed it. We quote in this connection his reference to our town as follows:

"Let the curtain exhibit this village of Auburn in December, 1856—now nearly twenty five yerrs, when I located here. Upon inquiry you will find only nine families occupying the same homes as then, viz: Dr. Ford, Mrs. Leasure, Mrs. Mott, George Brandt, G. W. Stahl, Major Sprott, James Brinkerhoff, Mrs. H. Jones and Mrs. Houghton, upon whose grounds we are now assembled—nine in all. Besides those named, the following families still reside in town, as in December, 1856: S. W. Ralston, S B. Ward, J. W. Case, L Bowers, James and Hiram Griswold, Mrs. Puffenberger, Mrs. Stephen Latson, Geo. Wagoner, Mrs. C. S. Hare and Mrs. W. A. Sawrey—11, in all 21 families But of these twenty families, death has entered and carried away either a husband or wife in all but eight.

Let us go out on the streets and ramble among the business men and houses—about the mills, shops, and in the professional ranks, examine the faces of these active men and see if any are here to-day still engaged in the same business as twenty-five years ago. I look carefully and find but three. Not counting Dr. Ford, who has retired from active practice, I find J. W. Case, then and now a mechanic; I see also G W. Stahl still cutting out pants and cooking the same old goose he did of yore—laughing just as joyously but not so vigorously. The third, myself, an humble follower of Blackstone and Kent. Those of my profession where are they? Judge Mott, good old soul, who never by word or action intended a wrong, and his son, Sheridan, bright brilliant and promising—father and son lie side by side and fill honored graves at their old homestead. T. R. Dickinson, though eccentric, yet abounding in enterprise and integrity; as good a neighbor and citizen as ever lived, is buried in Waterloo. His son Timothy, of many rare qualities, is now only a breathing corpse—dying a slow death of softening of the brain, induced by over mental and physical labor. A. S. Blake is in Denver, Colorado. S. J. Stoughton and S. W. Dickinson I believe are dead. James Brinkerhoff is, and has been an invalid for years, and out of practice. And last of all, Judge Morris, a name honored and spoken of with reverence by all old settlers, resides at Fort Wayne and now the peer, if not the superior, in legal lore, in varied and enlarged intellectual attainments, and in unsullied integrity of any of his distinguished associates upon our supreme bench. Indeed

> "I feel like one who treads alone,
> Some banquet hall deserted,
> Whose lights are fled, whose garlands dead
> And all but me departed."

Twenty-five years ago we thought we had a "staving" good town here. There was not a steam or flouring mill in it, not a wheel turned by steam power, not a bakery, meat shop, family grocery, store nor even a millinery or barber shop here.

Of the young men then of our town, on whom devolved the responsibility of taking care of the social affairs, I now recall Philip Flnke, then tanning leather, making money and gadding all over the country. Judge McClellan was shoving a pen in the auditor's office. Our present good-looking sheriff Gust Leas, Ame Park, now of Kendallville, and Lewis Ochs, a brother of Isaac and Simon Ochs were all clerking in dry good stores. The two Weaver boys, Eli and Enos, were running drug stores, and sometimes horses, but always after the girls. Steve Ford, Whead Griswold and Tom Gross, who were born tired, were not permanently engaged at anything, but were ready to snap up any good offer that presented itself. Ex-Auditor Hague and Thad Meese were taking their first lessons in making boots and shoes, under the lynx eye of Isaac Brandt. John Somers was then, as now, temporarily absent in the western mountains, engaged in the pleasant pastime of killing Indians and picking up nuggets of gold. At the same time we claimed as belonging to our crowd, two others, (still veterans in the cause) Uncles Jacob Somers and Moses Brandon, then just as desirable "catches" as they are today. I do believe they are engaged in the fatal game of wearing each other out by seeing which can outlive the other in the state of "single blessedness."

We then had a younger class coming on, then just in their teens, who were neither man nor beast—the liveliest set of miscreants you ever knew. If you would catch out at night Dick and Guy Plumb, Jack and Coop Ralston, Sam and Clark Ford, the Mott boys, Joe Loveland, Bill Tinney, Dry Houghton, Harry Ward, Sam Puff, and a few others I could mention, you would next morning find there had been done more gilt-edged, clear-cut, mischievous devilment, than could have been accomplished in a week by a regiment of old settlers, all of whom today are good business men and citizens and alive, except poor Clark Ford and Sheridan Mott, who sacrificed their young lives upon their country's altar."

Ten years have gone by and Mrs. Mott still lives at the pleasant home of her daughter, Mrs. Julia Hodge, north of Auburn; George Brandt, Major Sprott, S. W. Ralston, Mrs. Puffenbarger, Mrs. Stephen Latson and Mr. Dills himself have joined the majority in eternity. J. W. Case, Hiram Griswold and Mrs. C. H Hare have removed elsewhere, and the rest only so much older still occupy their old time homes. [S. W. Dickinson spoken of above is still alive in Branch county, Michigan. He made a friendly call on the editor a few months ago. Ed]

Of the young men named some have died, some remain and few are left to know who walked the streets of our town but ten short years ago.

(To be continued next week.)

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

SANTA FE, N. M. Nov. 1, '91.

Santa Fe is located in a cup-like hollow of a great tableland at the base of the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky Mountains, which approach within a mile of the town on the east and on the north, thus protecting the place from the blizzards and cold north winds, which, at the altitude of Santa Fe, (7,029 feet) would be severe were it not for these bulky giants interposing. These mountains, which thus enfold this Holy City, afford an endless number of canons and passes of scenic beauty, and are either clothed with verdure or covered with snow.

Santa Fe has changed greatly in the last ten years, and as you now wander around the old town between the great high business buildings, churches and modern dwellings it is hard to realize that you are in the oldest town in the United States, the original home of the cliff builders of six centuries ago whose lineal descendants now roam the streets of Santa Fe, clad in their fantastic "gearings," awe stricken at the wonderful changes time and American energy have made in the "Holy City," where they once held free sway, living according to their religion and traditions in their curiously constructed pueblas.

After breakfast at the Palace Hotel (where we also came for dinner and supper) we went to visit the "Palace" which is an adobe building 200 years of age, and formerly the residence of the Viceroy of New Mexico, and now used as offices for the Governor, the postoffice and the Historical Society. The walls are three feet in thickness and the building about 250 feet long by 70 feet wide and contains the room were Lew Wallace, one of Indiana's most distinguished sons and brilliant writers, wrote "Ben Hur," when he was governor of New Mexico. The rooms of the Historical Society in the building are filled with the old and curious things that were once the property of the ancient dwellers in these lands, consisting of old documents, treaties with Indians, state letters, old pieces of furniture of historial grandeur, old wagons, swords, arrows, quivers, guns, specimens of ore, stones, Indian blankets, earthen ware, etc. The "Plaza" is near this building and in its center is erected the only monument in the United States on which appears the word "rebel."

We next visited the Roman Catholic cathedral, where services were being held. The building is a magnificient stone structure of great dimensions, and the hundreds of ardent worshippers who congregate there do as did the ancient Moslem—sit on the floor. Near this cathedral is the hospital of the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul, where the sick and lame can find a comfortable home with the good sisters who anticipate and provide for every want, and where the bountiful and extensive grounds and flower gardens afford a beautiful place for the convalescent to enjoy healthful exercise.

A short distance from the cathedral, in another direction, I don't know what direction, however, is the school of the Sisters of Loretto, where girls are instructed in the various branches of learning and taught the arts and accomplishments of refined life. The grounds surrounding this school are also very extensive; fruit trees of all kinds are growing here, and when one enters the solemn, flat roofed cloisters, built of adobe, brilliant with flowers and sees the dark robed sisters gliding here and there in the discharge of their duties, it is hard to imagine himself in America. Next we wandered through the lovely garden of the bishop and the one belonging to Arthur Boyles, each of which is one immense flower bed; all the known species of flower can be found here in all their beauty and the air is filled with their fragrant perfume. From here we wandered on through the narrow tortuous streets, by low, flat roofed adobe houses, the inhabitants of which, and their characteristic dress bespeaking a time long since past, and came to the school of St. Michael, where under the management of the Christian Brothers, youth is trained for the great battle of mature manhood. In the same inclosure as St. Michael is the oldest Christian church in the United States, which was consecrated to God in 1582, by the devoted followers of the cross, who sacrificed home, friends and the comforts and pleasures of life that they might exhibit their obedience to the mandate of the Master. On the walls of this old church are hung sacred paintings, dimmed by the corroding finger of time, pierced with arrows; for this as well as all old churches in this country has in its time served as a citidel. This old church was razed to the ground twice, rose again at the bidding of Marquis de la Penuela and upon a beam spanning the rear of the church is carved in quaint letters a record of his religious care for the sacred edifice. This beam of pinyon pine, together with a great many other parts of the building, as it now stands, has survived the sieges and desecrations of three centuries of revolutions and Indian wars. At the right of the main entrance of the building directly as you pass the portal is an old bell whose doleful tones began to vibrate in 1357.

Next in the order of our wanderings about the city we visited the Territorial Capitol, which is an imposing structure of snuff colored sandstone, ornate and exceedingly effective. The building is situated in the center of a large square and has cost about $150,000. After, dinner, by a little secret arrangement, made with Mr. Hugh, internal revenue collector, formerly of Bloomington, Ind., a party of ten, under his careful guidance, instead of visiting the Indian schools, penitentiary, etc., went to look at nature in the mountains, going up the old Santa Fe canon to Aztec Springs, where we remained during the afternoon and returned in the evening over the mountains by a narrow crooked road, whose elevation in many places rises to 1000 feet above the city of Santa Fe. You cannot deviate in many places six inches from the pathway, or you will be precipitated to an abyss 150 below, while on the other rise a solid wall of rock equally as high, and as you whirl around a rock onto a sharp curve, the buggy wheels scraping up the earth in trying to prevent dashing its occupants to certain death, it makes the blood run cold with fear.

We were way "up among the clouds" when day departed and saw a sunset among the mountains in all its varied hues of gold, purple and crimson commingled in one grand pillow of beauty as the shadows of the mountains stretched across the valley to join its neighbor on the other side.

After our return to Santa Fe we spent the evening in pleasant chats with the kind people of Santa Fe who entertained us so grandly and will leave at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning without having had the time to visit the one third of what Santa Fe contains that is old and curious, and being Sunday, no opportunity to see any of its business places in active life.

There is located near Santa Fe, at Los Cervillos, the only turquoise mines in the Western Hemisphere. The numerous caves of the upper Pecos, the cliff dwellings of the ancient Aztecs, the old tribes of Tesuque and Nambe, and many, many other things well worth seeing had we the time at our disposal to stay here longer.

Yours truly,

FRANK E. ROSE.

THE FAIR,

J. WM. WAGNER, Pro.

He was a Nuisance.

Cedar Creek furnished a queer sensation last week. Complaint was made that a man named James Jones had become unbearable in the way he treated his wife. Constable Stoner went down Wednesday and arrested him, and he was put into jail. The next day he was brought before Justice Walborn for trial and Prosecutor Garwood sifted the matter to the bottom It appeared from out a mass of testimony that Jones was a sort of crank, deaf, with limited powers of speech, and perhaps weak minded. But what few faculties he had, he had used to make his wife miserable and himself a nuisance among the neighbors. He was jealous of his wife, and would hang around, and neglect his work, and use vile language to her, and to others till all were heartily tired of his style of doing things. One woman, into whose house he had followed his wife became disgusted at his vileness and ordered him to leave. He didn't start quick enough to suit, and she "whaled" him with the broom. Then as he seemed to think nothing of that, she got she stove hook and went for him. This was an argument, that even in his deafness he seemed to understand and he got out. The lady gained the good opinion of the reporters, by saying, audibly, in the 'Squire's court, that she "would do it again, if ever he came in and talked that way again." After a full hearing, Jones was ordered to stay with Sheriff Plum 26 days, till his fine and costs are boarded out, and perhaps by that time he will conclude it will pay to go home and behave himself. He had already become tired of his new life, as it was developed in Auburn, and wanted to go home.

Change of Commissioners.

Gilbert I. Patterson met with the board Monday for a short time, to close out his work with them, and then retired giving place to Lyman Lockwood, who succeeds him for the coming term of three years. It is a matter of regret that Mr. Patterson could not go right on in the work he has so far helped the board to do. He has been careful and conscientious in all his three years' service, and has kept his face steadily toward the interests of the people. Had he been more of a politician and less earnest in the public welfare, he might to-day, be serving his second term. But, we presume he will lay down the burdens of public service and retire to private life, with a sense of relief. The good wishes of the people will follow him. His successor, Mr. Lockwood, is a man of ability and large business experience, and we know of no reason why he should not take up the work before him, and assist in its proper disposal, with the energy and success that he has put into his own private interests. At all events, the COURIER will not suspect him because of his being a republican, nor criticise him in advance. A public officer should serve the whole people, and not a party, and if he does this he should be subjected to no more adverse criticism than if he belonged to one's own party. So we say, give the new member a fair chance.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

A very prominent citizen was yesterday arrested on suspicion of burglary. He had in his possession a very large line of the latest styles of Rogers Bros.' Silver Knives and Forks, Silver Tea, Dessert and Table Spoons, in his inside pocket; he had a nice line of Carving Sets, in Plush Boxes, Child's Sets of Knives Forks and Spoons, Nut Cracks and Nut Picks, in Plush Boxes; in his vest pockets; he carried a full line of Keen Kutter Pocket Knives, and Scissors in Plush Cases; Button-hole Scissors and Ladies Cutlery Cases. In his overcoat pockets he had Boys' Tool Chests, Skates, Sleds, and Toy Banks, and on his back he carried Domestic Sewing Machines and Toilet Cases. The goods were supposed to have been stolen from Santa Claus, but the evidence showed that they were a better class of goods than Old Kris. usually carried, and upon affirmation of Brown, Culbertson & Boland that they had bought them to sell along with their other Holiday Goods, which are all useful as well as ornamental, the court suspended sentence, pending the sale of the above goods, which he ordered Brown Culbertson & Boland on the North Side of Public Squar eto sell to the people of Auburn and vicinity at reasonable prices, together with their full line of Stoves, Hardware and Farm Machinery.

RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

How to Prepare and Address Packages Sent by Mail.

The season is approaching when the mails will be filled with holiday presents, and a great many are unnecessarily lost, delayed or damaged each year because of the indifferent manner in which they are prepared for mailing.

Newspaper or other thin paper should never be used for wrapping, and packages as ordinarily wrapped where purchased are not sufficiently secure for forwarding in the mails.

Use strong paper; make a solid package that will not crush easily; tie well with good twine; address legibly and correctly with ink on the lower right-hand corner and very few packages will fail to reach destination in good condition.

It is always advisable to place the name and address of the sender in the upper left-hand corner of all packages, etc., sent in the mails, so they may be returned in case the addresses cannot be found. Postal statistics show that more delays result from incorrect addresses than from errors in distribution by postal employes.

In case of loss or delay report the same to your postmaster with all the information that can be given.

For the benefit of the patrons of Auburn postoffice we will add that Second, Third and Fourth Class matter must be prepaid. Do not guess amount of postage on packages small enough to mail, without passing on in at the wicket. Packages are weighed before dispatched, and delay is caused when not fully prepaid.

FRIGHTFUL.

Five Men Killed in a Wreck at West Plains, Mo.

Kansas City special: Further details of the wreck at West Plains, Mo., picture the scene that followed the collision as being frightful. The caboose attached to the construction train contained thirty-eight men, not one of whom escaped injury. Five were killed and twenty others were seriously hurt, some of them fatally. The following are among those whose injuries are likely to prove fatal: John Foley, Ben Martin, Matt Harrison, James Davis, Ike Garner, Charles Laughery, and Jas. Wilson. Among those seriously injured, but who will recover, are: Mike Murphy, George Miner, James Daly, B. Nelson, John Dunlon, Thomas Connell, Chris Weiss, Peter Pignes, Hugh Shipley, Fred Butler, Pres. Bryant, Oscar Davis, James Conner, James Mack, E. L. Conkling, S. E. Wall. The wreck was caused by a misunderstanding of train orders by the conductor and engineer of the construction train. At least five others in the Sister's hospital at Fort Scott will die.

Attempted Train Wrecking.

The west-bound Vandalia passenger train came near being wrecked at the curve near Terre Haute, Ind. As the train came around the curve at the rate of about forty miles an hour, a man was seen throwing railroad ties around the track, but the train could not stop in time. The engine struck the ties. One tie broke the pilot and was fastened between the engine and wheels so that it could hardly be removed. About a mile further along, when the train was running slower, another tie was encountered, tied to the track. The railroad men have names of men whom they have reason to suspect. They were actuated by vindictiveness toward the railroad company, and drove away the man who remonstrated with them and who tried to save the train.

Murderer Freed by Friends.

Starke (Fla.) special: Frank Foster, who was to have been hanged here for the murder of W. H. Epperson, two years ago, was forcibly taken from the County Jail by a party of unknown men. It was at first believed that he was the victim of a lynching party, but as no trace of Foster's body can be found the opinion is now general that he was rescued by friends. Foster is a very desperate character, and a great deal of uneasiness is felt because the man had threatened to kill the county officials who were prominent in securing his conviction for murder. A posse has been sent to look for the prisoner.

Returned a Verdict of Not Guilty.

The case of the United States against Samuel Brokaw, of Fort Wayne, who was charged with robbing the mail-pouches while employed as baggage-master on the Grand Rapids and Indiana road between Fort Wayne and Richmond, was called in the United States District Court at Fort Wayne. Judge Walter Q. Gresham, of Chicago, presided, and the jury was instructed to bring in a verdict of not guilty on technicality. The indictment read that Brokaw was an employe of the Government, while the evidence showed that he was employed by the railroad.

How Chilians View Mr. Tracy's Report.

Valparaiso special: The cabled resume of the report of Secretary Tracy regarding the killing of the Baltimore sailors has created a sensation here, and is looked upon as indicating that the American Government intends to pursue the claim for apology and indemnity. Americans here are highly pleased with Mr. Tracy's report. The Chilians show no disposition to insult Americans.

More Trouble in Brazil.

Rio de Janeiro special: The situation in the State of Rio Grande do Sul is becoming critical. The opposing parties are arming themselves. Governor Portello holds Nictheroy. The insurgents have established a provisional government, and have selected Parahoyo as their capital. They are organizing for an attack on Nictheroy. The Government is apathetic.

Stormed the Eureka Mine.

News has reached Brazil, Ind., by telegraph of the action of numerous enraged miners at Carbon. Several miners went to work in the Eureka Mine, belonging to Brownlee, Woodruff & Wilton. This enraged the men to such a pitch that several hundred went in mass to the mine, tore down the machinery and engine and dumped them all in the shaft.

Democratic National Committee.

The Executive Committee of the National Democratic Committee met at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, and decided to call a meeting of the full committee in Washington on Jan. 21 to determine upon the time and place for holding the National Democratic Convention in 1892.

Threats of Indians.

Orders have been received from headquarters in St. Paul for the troops at Fort Keogh to go to Cheyene agency, as the reds are dancing in violation of the orders of the agency, and have notified the agent that they intend to make an attack.

Baby Killed by Its Sister.

The 18-months-old child of James Murphy, of Marion, Ind., was dropped from the arms of its 10-year-old sister. The head struck the pavement, inflicting injuries that in a few hours resulted in death.

John L. Sullivan Will Take the Keeley Cure.

A Chicago paper announces that the mighty pugilist John L. Sullivan, has decided to go to Dwight, Ill., and submit to the bi-chloride of gold cure for drunkenness.

A Train Held Up.

A special from Rome, Ga., dated the 6th inst., says: The southbound East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia train that left here about 11:30 last night was boarded by two masked men at a crossing about three miles south. The men jumped on the rear end of the baggage car and locked the forward coach door. After the train started they entered the baggage car and covering the express messenger and baggage master with their revolvers, secured the keys to the safe, which they plundered. The robbers then signalled the train to slow up, jumped off and escaped. The express company's agents say the robbers secured but $65 in cash. A posse of officers and citizens are on their trail. It is thought the robbers were railroad men.

LOPPY DEAD.

The Wife Murderer Walks to the Deadly Chair With a Firm Step.

Martin D. Loppy was killed by electricity at Sing Sing Prison, N. Y., for the murder of his wife. As Loppy entered the room he looked about once, and then his eyes fell on the death chair and rested there. The keeper motioned to it, and without a word Loppy walked over and sat down. His eyes stared straight ahead as he settled himself back, with his head against the rubber cushion. The deputy keeper put his arms in position along the arms of the chair. He made no sign of resistance as the straps were adjusted and buckled tight. Dr. McDonald superintended the adjustment of the straps, while the Warden stood by, a silent spectator. Other straps were adjusted about the legs and others across the chest until the man was firmly bound down. Then the face strap, covering the chin, and in part the nose was fastened in place. When the current was turned on the body of Loppy stiffened with a suddenness that was startling to the witnesses, to whom electrocution was new. It strained against the straps until they seemed cutting into the flesh. Every muscle was tense. When it was turned off the body relaxed. It was allowed to remain in the chair for a few minutes, and then the straps were unbuckled. Where the electrodes were bound, the heat had burned the skin, and it was puffed and blistered. The body was lifted from the chair quite limp and carried into the adjoining room where it was laid out on the table to await the surgeons' knives.

BURNED TO DEATH.

A Gasoline Can Explodes and Does Terrible Havoc.

The family of Jasper Mans, consisting of father, mother, and three children, was horribly burned at Creston, Iowa, by the explosion of a large can of gazoline that had been stored in the oven of a cook stove and forgotten. The dead and injured are: Jasper Mans, burned on face, arms and body, will die; Mrs. Mans, burned, may recover; Walter Mans, aged 3, dead; Bessie Mans, aged 2, dead.

At the time the accident occurred the entire family were gathered about the stove. All the doors and windows were locked and the neighbors who were called to the rescue by the explosion and cries of the injured were obliged to break in the doors. The small room containing the stove, was a mass of flame when broken open and its inmates were rescued with great difficulty. The two younger children lived but a short time, and the father and mother are suffering the most intense agony from their burns, and cannot live.

Two Farmers Killed.

A terrible accident occurred at Ottawa, Ohio. William Maidlow and Harry Conine, farmers residing near that place, were instantly killed by passenger train No. 2 on the D. & M. railroad. They had started home in a buggy, and while crossing the railroad were run into by the locomotive and instantly killed. The bodies of both were beheaded and their heads ground to pieces, not a vestige of their heads being found. The body of Conine was dragged a hundred yards before being thrown from the track, while that of Maidlow was carried nearly 400 yards before it was thrown from the locomotive. Mr. Maidlow was a prominent farmer and very highly respected. Mr. Conine was a young man also highly respected, and both were well known in this community.

Bold Bank Robbery.

Two well-dressed strangers entered Fahyer's bank, at Marion, Ohio, and while one engaged the cashier's attention, the other reached through the railing and grabbed a tray containing $1,500. The two men made good their escape, although pursued by the police. About 10 o'clock at night the robbers were apprehended at Kenton, Hardin County, and a posse started in pursuit. The smaller man escaped but his pal was finally fatally shot in the fight and is now dying. A large crowd surrounded the place and the excitement was intense. Over $1,100 was recovered upon the person of the wounded man, whose identity is unknown. It is said the robbers were father and son, and the father was the one shot.

A Disgrace to America.

Valparaiso special: The appearance in court of a sailor of the United States steamship Baltimore in an inebriated condition was a regretable incident more than one way. The Judge of Crimes called the attention of Capt. Schley to the suggestion that the probable cause of the disorders of October 16th, was for a similar state of intoxication on the part of his men. This is taken as a forecast of a decision by the court to that effect. The guilty tar has been court martialed on the Baltimore. His sentence is thirty days on bread and water in double irons. The sailor also loses three months pay. The sailor is an Englishman by birth.

Rebels Defeated.

Shanghai special: An official report has been received by the Chinese Government from General Nich. commanding the troops in the Kinchow district, to the effect that he had met and engaged the rebels on November 25, and defeated them with great loss. The leader of the rebels and 600 men were killed. A dispatch from Jeho also announces a successful engagement by the General commanding the imperial troops in that district with the rebels. A dispatch from Tien Tsin says the senior British officer at that place has received advices from Niuchang, stating that the revolt there has been suppressed and the rebels dispersed.

Whale Found on the Shore of Maryland.

A sperm whale was found on Green Run Beach, near Snow Hill, Md., by Surfman Jesse G. Stanford, of the North Beach Life-Saving Station. The point where the animal was found is about fifteen miles from where the United States steamer Dispatch foundered. The monster is thirty feet long and weighs 10,000 pounds. The surfmen have cut it up, and will reduce it to oil. Inside the whale were found a number of empty bottles and a five-gallon demijohn, sealed up and full of good old rye whisky. This may appear incredible, but the demijohn was taken to Snow Hill with its contents intact.

McManus Hanged.

John McManus was hanged in Moyamensing prison yard, Philadelphia, Pa. After the prisoner had ascended the scaffold he deliberately sat down and took off his shoes, he having sworn that he would "never die with his boots on." He then stood up and in a broken voice said that he humbly asked forgiveness and said that he freely forgave everybody. His arms were then pinioned, the rope adjusted to his neck, the black cap placed on his head and while the priests were praying for him the signal was given and the drop fell. His neck was broken by the fall. His crime was the murder of Eugene McGinnis on February 21.

Christians Murdered.

Paris special: Advices received at the legation says a revolt was inaugurated by the secret societies in the province of Jehol, against all the foreigners and Christians in that province on Nov. 18. During the revolt a number of Mongolian princes and several hundred Christians were put to death. Also a number native priests' churches were burned and other property destroyed. Native troops were ordered to the scene and quelled the revolt. On November 23 they met the rebels, and, after a desperate resistance, were successful in defeating them.

Another Dreadful Explosion of Gas.

Baltimore special: An explosion of gas occurred at the works of the Maryland Steel Company, Sparrows Point, and several men were injured. Three of the victims have since died. Forty men were at work in the immediate vicinity when the explosion took place. The furnace was being blown out for repairs. Hot bricks were thrown in every direction with great force. The fire spread rapidly to some of the injured men whom the flying bricks had knocked senseless. The uninjured workmen at once went to the rescue of their co-laborers and dragged them out of further danger.

Horrible Crime.

Great excitement prevails at Mahanoy City, Pa., over the finding of the dead and half-clothed body of Mrs. Agnes Lawrence on the mountain near that city. The ground in the vicinity showed evidences of foul play. The limbs were cut and bruised and her clothing was covered with frozen blood that flowed from her wounds. An examination by eminent physicians revealed the fact that the woman was outraged and afterwards murdered. Officers are now searching for a clue that will lead to the capture of the murderer.

Liberal Millers.

Minneapolis special: The millers propose sending a shipload of 40,000 barrels of flour to starving peasants of Russia. Five thousand American millers will be asked to co-operate. The Russian Minister at Washington has been communicated with and in his absence the charge d'affaires at New York wires that he has laid the matter before his country. Railroads are willing to give the transportation and the deal will be closed as soon as the Russian Minister returns from home. Minneapolis millers will give twenty car-loads of the cargo.

Buried to Their Death.

The boiler of J. W. Houston's saw mill at Collinsville, Tenn., exploded, killing two persons and destroying the entire plant. John Smith, the engineer, had his leg cut off below the hip and the rest of his body landed in the forks of a tree 150 feet away. Ed. Lownes was sitting on a log eating his breakfast. His clothing was torn into shreds and his body was found lying fifty yards away. An iron pipe twelve feet long was hurled against a tree with so much force that it pierced it. The loss is $50,000.

A Lawyer Horsewhipped.

W. P. Bentley, a prominent attorney, was severely horsewhipped by three men on Chestnut street, St. Louis. W. B. Harris, one of the men, claimed that Bentley insulted his wife. Mr. Bentley claims he is innocent of the charge. Bentley was Chief Clerk of the State General Assembly seven years ago, and was defeated for the same position by Turner Henbucklin two years ago. He was also defeated for Reading Clerk of the last National Democratic Convention.

Reign of Terror.

There is a veritable reign of terror in Oakland, Cal. Footpads, burglars and thieves are plying their callings practically unmolested, and outrages are becoming more numerous than ever. An idea of the seriousness of the situation can be obtained from the fact that the Wells Fargo Express Company has ordered its express wagons to be accompanied to and from the depot by a guard armed with shotguns, a thing that has not been done since frontier days.

A Brave Burglar.

A peculiar robbery occurred at Freelandville, Ind. The thief entered the jewelry store of Mr. Ritterskamp and took jewelry to the amount of over $100. Then he entered the store of William Kerchoff. The building was surrounded by a number of citizens, and when the robber discovered his situation fled, breaking through the line of men and escaping unhurt. No one knew him. He also carried off the jewelry.

The Anarchist Cases.

The United States Supreme Court has postponed until the second Monday in January the hearing of the cases of Fielden and Schwab, the Chicago anarchists now imprisoned at Joliet, Ill., for complicity in the Haymarket riots.

Congress Convenes.

Both branches of Congress convened Monday at noon, and immediately adjourned, owing to the fact that the Democratic caucus had failed to come to a choice for officers of the House of Representatives.

THE CARPET INDUSTRY.

DISASTROUS EFFECTS OF THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

Brilliant Promises End in Failure—Wage Reductions—Bill McKinley and His Bill—Wages and Profits—Tariff Shot, Etc.

What Carpet Men Think.

According to their own admissions the carpet manufacturers raised a fund of $300,000 to assist in the election of Benjamin Harrison to the Presidency. In return for this benevolence they were promised additional protection. Some of them wanted free wool, others lower duties on carpet wools which are not raised in this country, and all were in favor of higher duties on carpets.

A fact which in part explains their desire for higher duties was this, that at that time they were making arrangements to form a cast-iron agreement to limit production and raise prices, and in this way get back from consumers the money they had raised for campaign purposes.

Those who asked for lower duties on carpet wools were disappointed, for the duties on carpet wools were raised so high and such onerous restrictions were imposed on their importation that many kinds could no longer be imported. In this way the cost of the materials used in carpet manufacture was largely increased. McKinley, however, granted the carpet men a liberal advance in duties on their products, the purpose of which was to give them full control of the home market.

Now, what has been the result? The carpet manufacturers have been forced to pay higher prices for their wool, all of which has to be imported. As a result, they had to raise the prices of their carpets. The people refused to pay these advanced prices, preferring to follow the advice of Jay Gould to the farmers and workmen in regard to their clothing, "to get along with one suit where they would otherwise have two." The old carpets were left on the floors.

The result of this is that one of the largest carpet firm in the country, that of Alexander Smith & Sons, has been forced to sell its stock of over $2,000,000 at auction at what it will bring. At the opening of the sale Walter W. Law, the sellers' representative, said to the gentlemen of the carpet trade:

"The Alexander Smith & Sons' Carpet Company offer you to-day an unparalleled opportunity for supplying yourselves with their fabrics at your own price. We have no hesitation whatever in inviting you to put your own value upon every piece we have in stock, excepting only the few patterns which we have prepared for the spring of 1892. With the removal of these accumulations, the only serious problem with which carpet manufacturers will have to contend is the high price of wool caused by the McKinley bill and the still more severe interpretation of its meaning by the Treasury Department. Remember, high prices for wool mean high cost to manufacture carpets. Gentlemen, this is your day, ours will come later."

Nor are Alexander Smith & Sons alone in showing the blighting effects of the McKinley tariff on the carpet industry. The actual situation could not be shown better or clearer than does the following from Mr. Arthur T. Lyman, the Treasurer of the Lowell Carpet Company, the largest establishment in New England. Mr. Lyman said:

"That the McKinley bill increased the cost of carpets; that the prices of carpets were increased in consequence of the McKinley bill; that they would not have advanced if the McKinley bill had not been passed; and that if wool had been made free the cost and prices of carpets would have gone down are facts that cannot be disputed by anyone who understands the carpet manufacture and trade and its conditions in 1890 and 1891."

In every industry there are four classes of persons interested:

(1.) The producers of raw material.
(2.) The manufacturers
(3.) The consumers of the manufactured articles.
(4.) The workmen employed in turning the materials into finished products.

The McKinley tariff on carpets has certainly not been of any benefit to the first class in this country, for no carpet wool is grown, or would be grown, here under any tariff.

Instead of benefiting the manufacturers, it has positively injured them as their own testimony shows.

The third class, composed of the consumers of carpets, did not ask for increased duties, but resented the enforced increase in the price of carpets by refusing to pay it. No one would claim in view of this that they have been benefited by the tariff.

And, finally, have the workmen employed in spinning the yarn and weaving the carpets been benefited by the McKinley tariff? Have more workmen secured employment? Have wages been raised? The answer to both questions is the same. There is no evidence of any increase in wages or opportunities for work. On the contrary, wages have been cut down.

When Alexander Smith & Sons had finished their auction sale, they went back to their factories and told their workmen that the men must accept a cut in their wages or the works would be shut down. The men preferred the former, and wages were reduced.

No interest, therefore, has been benefited by the McKinley tariff on carpet wools and carpets. Why, then, should it stand, since it works nothing but injury to all concerned?

The Glassware Industry.

Just as in its effect on the wages of workmen, on the prices of the finished products and on trusts in other industries, the McKinley tariff is rapidly vindicating itself in the glassware industry.

We have shown how the manufacturers of glassware took advantage of the increased duties and formed a trust under the name of the United States Glass Company last July; how this trust promised not to raise prices, but immediately did so, and at the same time threw many workmen out of employment, and now comes the announcement of another reduction in wages. The Crockery and Glass Journal publishes the following:

"A dispatch from Anderson, Ind., Nov. 10, says: The glass-blowers employed at the Pennsylvania Glass Works, which has been considered one of the most prosperous in the city, struck this morning and walked out of the factory because the Board of Directors at its meeting yesterday ordered a reduction of 25 per cent. in their wages. The company is a co-operative and non-union factory, and last year paid a dividend of 64 per cent. The claim made by the management is that the present state of the glass market compels this step. The men didn't see it that way, so they quit. The works are now deserted, but the management will endeavor to replace the strikers with new men."

Surely the editors of the New York Press, the high tax tariff organ of New York, were right when they said some time ago that the McKinley tariff was passed to make profits big.

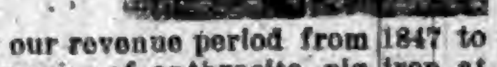
WHILE in Fall River the writer has learned one thing about the wages of cotton operatives that must be interesting to the public in general. An old English weaver, who has been several times across the ocean, has just returned from Burnley, England, one of the great weaving centers. He says that a weaver working fifty-four hours per week in that town makes 612 yards of cloth, for which he receives $7.04, or £1 9s. per week. The same weaver in Fall River has to run eight loom machines instead of four, as in England, sixty hours a week, and weaves 2,304 yards for a little more than $9. In other words, nearly four times as much work is done in this city for one quarter more per week. To add to this difference, every weaver in England is allowed a helper.—New York Times.

Tariff Shot.

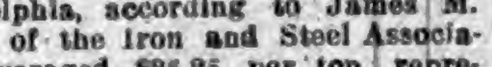
The period from 1846 to 1861 is the one to which the high tariffites of to-day refer as our "free trade" period. They do this because the tariffs during this period were revenue tariffs, the operation of which put all producers on a plane of equality and gave special privileges to none. The farmers therefore got the full value for all of their products, while the manufacturers were unable to combine and could not therefore exact a tariff bonus from the farmers. In speaking of this period, Mr. Blaine says, in his "Twenty Years of Congress:" "The principles embodied in the tariff of 1846 seemed for the time to be so entirely vindicated and approved that resistance to it ceased, not only among the people but among the protective economists, and even among the manufacturers to a large extent. So general was this acquiescence that in 1856 a protective tariff was not suggested or even hinted by any one of the three parties which presented Presidential candidates."

The reason why the people, especially the farmers, were satisfied with the tariffs of 1846 and 1857 was because they got the full value of their products. The reason why they are not satisfied now is because they do not get the full value of their corn, wheat, oats and other produce.

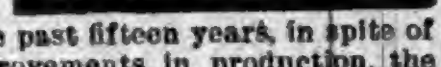
From 1847 to 1861 the average price of corn in New York was 69.7 cents per bushel, represented by



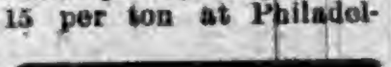
After our years of high protection the the price of corn in New York from 1877 to 1891 averaged 54.1 cents per bushel, or



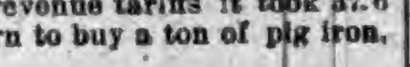
During our revenue period from 1847 to 1861 the price of anthracite pig iron at Philadelphia, according to James M. Swank, of the Iron and Steel Association, averaged $36.35 per ton, represented by



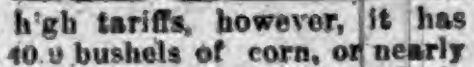
During the past fifteen years, in spite of great improvements in production, the price of the same quality of pig iron averaged $23.15 per ton at Philadelphia, or



Under our revenue tariffs it took 37.6 bushels of corn to buy a ton of pig iron, or this



Under high tariffs, however, it has required 40.9 bushels of corn, or nearly 3⅓ bushels more to pay for a ton of pig iron.



This comparison is not open to the charge that there have been great improvements in the machinery used in raising corn, and none in that used in producing pig iron. On the contrary, the reverse has been the case. The truth of this charge of shot is that the corn producers have not been, nor in the very nature of things could they be, protected; on the other hand, the tariff on pig iron has kept out foreign competition and thus enabled the iron men to combine to keep up prices as high as possible. To this extent high tariffs have affected the corn producer in that it has required nearly three and one-half bushels more of corn to buy a ton of pig iron during the past fifteen years than it did from 1846 to 1861, a period which the high tariffites of to-day derisively call our "free trade" period.

McKinley and His Bill.

Last week Major McKinley was the principal guest and speaker at the banquet of the Home Market Club. In his speech after the dinner was over he made a new departure or, rather, he added a little more to his old sterotyped speech on the tariff. Of course, he said that the foreigner pays the tariff taxes and that his bill was passed to raise the wages of workmen, utterly ignoring the fact that all the important industries, on the products of which duties were increased by his bill, the wages of the workmen have been cut down. The new feature of his speech was that portion of it in which he told the people of Massachusetts how much they suffered under the revenue tariffs from 1846 to 1861. Concerning his statements the American Wool and Cotton Reporter says:

"Major McKinley was, of course, the hero of the hour, and made an eloquent and interesting address; but while he was deploring the condition of the country in the fourteen years of tariff for revenue only from 1846 to 1861, the Democratic Treasurer of the great Amoskeag Mills, who sat upon the platform and approved the proceedings, could have told the Ohio statesman that the period from 1846 to 1861 was not characterized by such unalloyed poverty and distress as some would have us believe. In 1846 the Amoskeag declared dividends of 25 per cent. in stock and 10 per cent. in cash, in 1847 it declared 25 per cent. in stock and 5 per cent. in cash, and in 1849 it declared 20 per cent. in stock and 3 per cent. in cash, and there were but few half years from that time to 1860 in which it did not pay semi-annual dividends. A panic occurred in 1857, and the Bay State Mills at Lawrence failed; but so did a panic occur in 1873, and in 1889 some very important mills failed.

"The following great textile corporations were started between 1846 and 1861: Atlantic mills in 1849; Lyman mills, at Holyoke, 1854; Naumkeag steam cotton mills, at Salem, in 1847; Pepperell mills, at Biddeford, in 1852; Bates mills, at Lewiston, in 1852; Hill Manufacturing Company, at Lewiston, in 1855; Franklin Company, at Lewiston, in 1857.

"Furthermore the cotton manufacturing industry of the United States has not chanced to be as prosperous since the passage of the McKinley bill, as it was for a year or two before that measure became a law. The great Merrimack Manufacturing Company, at Lowell, has recently reduced its semi-annual dividend to 2 per cent. It paid 3 per cent. semi-annual in 1890 and 4 per cent. semi-annual in 1889, and in 1891 the shares of the company sold for just half what they brought in 1881, viz., $2,000 in 1881, and $1,000 in 1891."

And yet in spite of this McKinley will go on asserting that the years during which we had revenue tariffs were disastrous, just as he continues to declare that "the foreigner pays the tariff tax—you don't," even though he knows that it is not true.

A YELLOW-PINE trust in New York State is the latest development in the trust world. The promoters of the enterprise are already calculating the exact size of the dividends they expect to declare. The fact that the lumber-buying community will have to pay these fine dividends is not especially dwelt on, it being considered immaterial.—Philadelphia Record.

The nomination of Crisp was made unanimous on motion of J. D. Brown of Indiana. Immediately there were loud cries of "Crisp! Crisp!" And a committee was appointed to notify the successful candidate of his selection and escort him to the chair. Applause and cheers greeted the gentleman from Georgia, and after bowing his acknowledgments Mr. Crisp spoke as follows:

"Representatives, I am profoundly grateful for this mark of your confidence and esteem. I pledge myself here and now to devote whatever of industry and ability I possess to the advancement of the real interests of the Democratic party. I beg to say to you now as I speak to you my first words since I am your selection for Speaker, that my election means no step backward in tariff reform.

"I beg to say to you that there is in our party to-day no man who more earnestly believes in the Democratic doctrine of tariff reform than I do. After the long struggle through which we have passed, when Representatives are fatigued, when other officers are to be nominated, it does not become me to consume your time. I beg to say, however, that during the progress of this canvass I have said no word respecting any individual which would at all justify him in having any harsh feeling of any kind against me. I have felt that it was a friendly struggle. I have felt that we were all Democrats, and I have felt that whoever might be chosen Speaker, whenever this House meets and organizes we stand as one body, working and laboring for a common cause—the principles of the Democratic party.

"I thank you again for your confidence and your kindness, and assure you that this whole contest has left in my bosom no unkind feeling toward any member of the House."

BIOGRAPHY OF THE SPEAKER.

Charles Frederick Crisp was born in Sheffield, England, June 29, 1845, his parents being on a European tour at the time. They returned to America the year of his birth, and went back to their old home in Georgia. He was educated in the common schools of Macon and Savannah, and in May, 1861, he entered the Confederate army as Lieutenant in Company K, Tenth Virginia Infantry. He was taken prisoner of war May 12, 1864, and confined in Fort Delaware until June, 1865. Then he was released and went to live with his parents, who were residing at Ellaville, Schley County, Ga. Soon after he removed to Americus and studied law, being admitted to the bar there in 1866, and going back to Ellaville to practice. He continued in private practice there until 1872, when he was appointed Solicitor General of the Southwestern Judicial Circuit, and was reappointed in 1873 for a term of four years. In the same year he moved to Americus again and since then that town has been his home. June, 1877, Mr. Crisp was appointed Judge of the Superior Court of the Southwestern Circuit, and in 1878 elected to the same office by the General Assembly. He was re-elected Judge in 1880 for a term of four years, but resigned in 1882 to accept the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Third District. He was also President of the Democratic State Convention of 1883. He was elected to the Forty-eighth Congress and has been returned to that body continuously ever since.

OUR IRON HIGHWAYS.

The express companies pay to railways as rentals $20,207,711 a year. They are in reality engaged in the business of quick delivery of freight, and as such should be amenable to control.

Railway travel is the least safe in the States south of the Potomac and Ohio Rivers. Thus, in this territory an employe is killed for each 241 men employed, and one trainman is killed for each 65 employed. One passenger is killed for each 838,553 passengers carried.

The increase in railway capital over the previous year is $444,263,798. The proportion of capital represented by stocks is 46.82 per cent. The amount of stocks per mile is $28,322, and the amount of outstanding obligations, including bonds, equipment, trust obligations, etc., is $28,262.

The number of passengers carried during the year was 492,430,865. The aggregate number of miles traveled by all passengers was 11,847,785,617, an average journey of 24.08 miles per passenger. The freight carried was 636,441,617 tons, the average carry per ton having been 119.74 miles.

Going to Meet Her Father.

Miss Nellie Gatrell, a compositor in the Muncie Times office, went to Cincinnati recently to meet and accompany her long lost father to his home in Muncie. Sixteen years ago Henry Gatrell, a printer, left his wife and three little daughters and nothing more was heard of him. It was supposed by the family, with the exception of Nellie, that Mr. Gatrell was dead. The daughters have grown to womanhood, the oldest having died, leaving Miss Nellie and her younger sister Men to support the mother. Miss Nellie has quietly been sending letters addressed to her father to newspapers in all parts of the country, with a perseverance of hope that only a woman can entertain. A week since a letter addressed in care of the Boston Post reached the desired person, and he at once answered it and prepared to return to his family. In a few days the wife and other daughter will greet the long lost husband and father.

In 1889 she produced 92,796 pounds. Franklin, Perry and Ripley counties are the hop-producing counties of the State at present.

ANSIL BROWN, a young man of 25 years, visited Lafayette, his home being about a mile from Stockwell. Brown had been suffering from consumption for some time, but the weather being pleasant, he concluded to drive to the city. Here he transacted his business and started for home. He passed through Stockwell all right, and was met by a friend about three-fourths of a mile from his home. He spoke to the latter, and that is the last time he was seen alive. When the horse and buggy reached his home members of the family came out to assist him to alight, but were horrified when he did not answer their questions. Examination showed that the young man was dead. He was sitting upright in the buggy, his hands firmly grasping the lines, but the vital spark had fled. The Waif of the Western Prairies.

BY WELDON J. COBB.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Their hands and eyes met. One glance at their resolute faces told that Dyke Despard need have a care for himself when these two men started upon his trail.

"Remember," spoke the scout, "this is no ordinary venture."

"I realize and am ready for it," replied Darrel sturdily.

"Already Despard has crossed the dead line of civilization and is among the bad lands to the east."

"Then we can follow him there."

"Yes; only he is at home and among friends, where the white renegade and the red warrior will alike be banded against us. Patience, courage, and craft can alone overcome our enemies."

"I will dare it all for the sake of the imperilled girl we seek to save," cried Darrel, enthusiastically. "But you are ill from the wound you received—unable to proceed on the trail until you are recovered."

"Not so, Darrel," replied the scout. "The herbs I have taken have restored my strength."

"Then we start——"

"At once."

One hour later, mounted on two superb steeds and fully armed and equipped for the expedition, the old scout and his young companion set forth upon the most perilous and momentous adventure of all their eventful lives.

CHAPTER VIII.
ON THE TRAIL.

The night was bright as day as Darrel and Ranger Ralph rode from the little town at Miners' Gulch toward the hills to the east in the near distance.

As nearly as possible, the former informed the scout of the course Despard had taken in carrying away the recaptured maiden, Inez Tracey.

They soon found themselves threading a rocky defile, along which the practical eye of the scout discovered evidences of recent travel.

"They have come this way," he said to Darrel.

"Then we may overtake them."

"Not so easily as you think."

"Why not?"

"They have a fair start of us, and once in the mountains it will be difficult to follow their trail."

The landscape became wild, and at times almost impassable, as they proceeded on their way. At midnight the scout came to a halt, utterly at fault.

"We are in a quandary now," he remarked.

"How?" asked Darrel.

"Here the course diverges. The outlaws may have gone down the valley to the wilderness beyond, passed through the gulch yonder to the outlaw country, or struck direct through the hills for the Indians."

For nearly an hour they reconnoitered a short distance in each direction. The scout's face showed a satisfied expression as he returned to the head of the canyon.

"Have you learned anything?" asked Darrel, eagerly.

"Yes?"

"What is it?"

"This."

The scout showed a ribbon, which Darrel recognized as belonging to the dress worn by Inez Tracey.

"Do you recognize it?" asked Ralph.

"Yes."

"Then the Indian country is our destination. They are carrying the girl to their old-time allies, the Modocs."

Darrel looked deeply concerned, but the scout seemed more encouraged and vigilant than ever, and urged his horse to a more rapid rate of speed.

The morning light brought them encouraging traces of the persons they sought. They were toiling up a steep ascent, when Darrel found a piece of bridle rein. It evidently belonged to Despard's band, and they pressed on, confident that they were on the right trail.

"Beyond here the mountains come to a stop," remarked the scout.

"And beyond that?"

"Prairie and forest, and the camping grounds of the marauding bands of savages. Ha! smoke!"

As Ranger Ralph spoke, his companion discerned a slight volume of smoke emanating from some rocks beyond them.

They drove along as rapidly as the broken roadway would admit. At a turn a scene of wondrous beauty and extent held them momentarily spellbound.

The mountain of stone shot down sheer a thousand feet perfectly perpendicular, and beyond it stretched a wooded plain far as the eye could reach.

There seemed no means of reaching it except by a toilsome ride to where there was a more gradual descent.

"Look," spoke the scout suddenly.

Darrel thrilled to keen excitement as he glanced at a point some distance below them.

A body of horsemen were just disappearing into a dense stretch of timber.

"Despard and his men!" he cried.

"It must be them."

"Then they have escaped us."

"No, necessarily, the trail will be better on the lowlands than here. I think I know Despard's plans."

"What are they?"

"To rejoin one of his old allies in stage robbery and war on the settlements."

"An Indian?"

"Yes."

"Who is he?"

"Shadow Snake, the Modoc warrior. What is that?"

Directly before them, emanating from a rocky defile, smoke ascended—the same they had observed a few minutes previously.

"Can it be a party of Indians?" asked Darrel.

"I think not. It is probably the deserted camp-fire of Despard's band."

Both men halted perplexed and bewildered, as they traced the smoke to its source. At a cave-like aperture in the rocks, a large amount of bushes and reeds and leaves were piled. These had been recently ignited, and dense volumes of smoke issued from the heap.

The two men gazed at one another in the profoundest wonder.

"What does it mean?" asked the mystified Darrel.

"I do not know."

"You think Despard's men built the fire?"

"Yes; for they must have recently passed this spot."

"For what purpose?"

"That I cannot tell."

"Then let us ascertain."

They dismounted and approached the cave. Both started as a low wail, like that of a person exhausted by pain, seemed to emanate from the smoking cave.

"Do you hear that?" cried Darrel, excitedly.

"Yes."

"Some one is in there!"

"Probably a wild beast that they tried to smoke out!"

The cry was repeated—agonized, muffled, but still perfectly distinct.

Darrel Grey turned pale.

"It is a woman's voice," he gasped, wildly. "Ah! Ralph, if it should be——"

"Who?"

"Inez."

The scout started.

"No, no; they wouldn't dare to kill the girl that way."

"You do not know them. No crime is too deep for these inhuman ghouls. Quick! Aid me; I must know who is in that cave."

In a moment they were at work tearing and dragging the half-flaming mass from the mouth of the cavern.

Even after they had removed it the place was so filled with smoke as to choke and blind them.

Still, Darrel did not delay, but dashed recklessly forward.

A cry of horror and yet of relief escaped his lips as he saw a human form lying on a pile of leaves. It was that of a woman, but it was not Inez Tracey.

Instead, the dim light of the cave showed a face dusky, though beautiful—the countenance of an Indian maiden.

She was bound hand and foot, almost suffocated by the smoke, exhausted, dying, threatened by a terrible death when Darrel found her. He lifted her bodily in his arms and bore her to the outside air.

Darrel released the bonds that secured the girl. Her wild, haunted eyes swept his face for a moment her bosom heaved, and she grasped his hand in the deepest emotion.

"The White Fawn will never forget you!" she uttered, in a gasping cry of gratitude.

"Who is she—how came she here?" asked the bewildered Darrel.

"Ask her; she speaks our language, it seems," suggested the scout.

The Indian girl shrank back at the words; she shook her head vehemently.

"The White Fawn has her secrets, and will not tell them. But when the day comes when the Black Crow stands face to face with her again, let him beware!"

"Despard!" ejaculated the scout. "It was he who shut her up in that cave to die. See here, my girl, we've helped you out of a difficulty; will you return the favor?"

The Indian maiden did not direct attention to the ranger, but fixed her eyes with a devoted light on the face of Darrel.

"The White Fawn would die to serve the young pale-face," she said earnestly.

"Then lead us to the prairies below," spoke Darrel.

She sprang before his horse.

"Follow!" she said.

They obeyed their dusky guide, who led them from the spot with the swiftness and accuracy of one familiar with the locality.

Not a word was spoken until they reached the base of the descent to the plain below. The broad prairie, with its wooded stretches, lay before them.

As far as one of these the girl accompanied them. Then she turned as if to leave them. Suddenly she paused, in a listening attitude. Then she sped lightly through the timber.

"She will return," said Ranger Ralph.

"She has discovered something, you think?" asked Darrel.

A minute later the lithe figure of White Fawn reappeared.

"A camp of friendly Sioux," she said, briefly. "They are on their way to the reservation. They are my friends. They go my way. Come; your horses shall be cared for, and you shall be fed."

She led Darrel's horse by the bridle until they reached a spot where about twenty Indians sat around a camp-fire.

The savages greeted them in a friendly manner, and they remained for an hour with them, securing valuable information as to the country around them.

They were informed that the roving bands of Indians were massing their forces under the leadership of a chief of the Nez Perces, who was urging them to a general attack on the settlements of the pale faces.

It was as they were leaving the camp that White Fawn clasped the hand of Darrel Grey in a warm, earnest pressure.

"You have saved my life," she said. "White Fawn never forgets friend or foe. Take this, and in your hour of danger, it may serve you, if you ever fall into the hands of Shadow Snake or his tribe."

She flitted away ere Darrel could ask for an explanation of her strange words.

He regarded the singular ornament she had given him, as his horse started away. It was a piece of Indian chalkstone, with some strange characters engraved upon it, and bound together by a chain made of the rattles of a snake.

Little did either of the men dream of its future value to them, or of the effect upon their future the mystery surrounding White Fawn was destined to exert.

They were now compelled to exert caution in their movements, and kept to the timber as much as possible.

The information they had received led them to believe that their enemies had gone to join the savages, massed in camp at the Pueblo River, forty miles across the country.

To reach this they would undoubtedly have to pass through much danger, and it might be impossible to follow Despard's trail closely.

Several times that day they saw vagrant parties of Indians in the distance, but concealed themselves until they were out of sight.

"There are two points for us to remember," said the scout that evening at dusk.

"What are they?" asked Darrel.

"First, to attempt the rescue of Inez and remove her to a place of safety."

"And the other?"

"To reach Walford the Recluse, to whom Inez's father left her fortune, before Despard learns where he is. We are likely to encounter many dangers ere we accomplish it, and must be wary, for we may come upon our enemies at any moment."

"Hist!"

They had come to the banks of the river and were waiting while the horses drank. Sheltered by a little clump of trees they could scan the stream without being observed.

Darrel had uttered the warning word as he saw a canoe coming down the stream.

"An Indian," breathed the scout. "Silence, till he passes."

They remained perfectly still as the canoe neared them. Just as the boat came opposite them one of the horses hoofs gave way under the soft turf fringing the stream. His foot came down with a splash into the water.

The Indian in the canoe started, glanced toward the thicket and evidently saw his ambushed foes. With one wild yell he abandoned the canoe and sprang into the water.

Instantly the cry was answered by a score of voices both up and down the stream. They seemed to accompany their owners toward the very spot where Darrel and the scout were at that moment.

"Cross the stream," spoke Ranger Ralph quickly. "We are surrounded and that is our only means of escape."

CHAPTER IX.
THE MODOCS.

Ranger Ralph directed his horse across the river and Darrel Grey followed closely after him. The stream was very deep at its center, but the horses breasted the swift current and landed them safely on the opposite bank.

"Dash straight ahead," shouted the scout; "it is our only chance."

"No, no! look, Ralph; there is a camp-fire in our path."

The ranger brought his horse to its haunches and glanced quickly and concernedly about him. Behind them and on both sides the woods seemed filled with yelling Indians. They had been attracted to the spot by the warning cry of the Indian in the canoe.

Immediately after discovering the strangers, the savage had disappeared, and doubtless reached his companions who were hastening to the thicket.

"Dismount!" ordered the scout, in a low tone. "We are in a scrape and must make the best of it."

"Shall we abandon the horses?" queried Darrel.

"For the time being, yes," replied the scout. "The Indians are coming. We had better separate."

Ranger Ralph suddenly swung himself up by the branches of an immense tree under which the horses stood.

Darrel Grey sought to follow his example, but, bewildered by the excitement of the occasion, delayed a moment too long.

Three stalwart savages suddenly came into view.

That they had discovered him, the yells of the Indians instantly informed him. He started for the river and ran down its banks swiftly.

A cry of concern broke from Darrel's lips as he glanced ahead. Several other Indians were running in an opposite direction.

He was completely hemmed in, and there seemed no means of escape except a wild dash inland, which action would expose him to the fire of his enemies.

He cast one quick glance at the tree-lined stream, and determined to trust himself to the water. Then Darrel dropped out of view and began to wade out into the swift central current of the river.

He could hear the savages talking excitedly, and apparently making their way toward him. Near the shore the drooping willows afforded a shelter from their prying eyes, but that he would not long be safe there he fully realized.

He thrilled to a new idea of safety as he saw an object floating near him.

It was the canoe that the Indian had abandoned, and it was upside down.

Instantly Darrel conceived a daring plan of eluding his enemies, at least temporarily.

He dodged down and came up with his head under the canoe. Then he stood in the water perfectly motionless.

The savages came down to the edge of the stream and began searching for him.

He could discern that they were making a thorough quest, and that finally they divided and proceeded up and down the stream.

When all was silent he ventured to withdraw his head from the canoe and glance about him. No one was in sight in his near vicinity.

"If I could locate the tree where Ralph hid himself I would rejoin him," he soliloquized.

Just then, however, as he glanced at the opposite shore, his eyes met a vision that startled and enchained him.

A camp-fire had been built, and a large number of Indians were busy putting up some tents.

Near the fire stood a savage, evidently their chief, directing their movements.

There were two white men near him, and they were conversing with him.

Darrel started as he recognized them! One was Dyke Despard; the other was his accomplice, Jim Danton. Even as he watched them, he saw their two comrades of the previous day pass, leading their horses.

On one was seated a girlish form.

The heart of the young scout thrilled to wild emotion as he caught sight of the beloved face of Inez Tracey.

"She is in the camp, a prisoner," he breathed. "I will rescue her, or die in the attempt."

He dodged down again as, against the light, he made out a savage form coming down the banks of the stream. In a moment Darrel was in his old position under the boat.

He believed he was as safe as before, but he learned his error a moment later.

The boat was suddenly pulled toward the shore, and he knew that the Indian he had seen was its former occupant.

Darrel quickly comprehended the situation. Dodging down under the water, he remained there for a moment. Then he raised himself slowly.

The savage was adjusting the canoe a few feet away. Darrel crept cautiously toward him. A brilliant idea, to enter the Indian camp in disguise, had entered his mind.

Seizing a heavy stone he dealt the savage a terrific blow. The latter fell to the ground with a groan.

"Victory!" muttered Darrel, excitedly. "I will yet rescue the imperilled Inez!"

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Dangerous Handful.

A Georgia farmer, living in rather an obscure part of the State, whose labors are such as to compel him to be in the field much of the time, says that one day last year he was engaged in clearing up a field covered with a thick undergrowth of bushes and briars, and had employed two negroes to help him. The three men built a fire in the middle of the field, and gathered the brush in their hands and burnt it up.

I was working at some little distance from the fire, and of course had to travel back and forth with every handful. I had just returned from the fire, and had stooped to pick up another handful of brush, when I was conscious that I had hold of a snake, and mechanically tightened my grip.

I looked down and saw that I had a good-sized rattlesnake. I had grabbed him by the neck in such a position that so long as I kept a tight hold he could not strike.

As soon as the snake saw that he could neither get away nor strike me, he wound his body around my arm, which was bare to the elbow, and attempted to pull his head through my fingers. I tell you, I never until that moment realized what tremendous strength there was in a snake's body; it seemed almost as if my arm were being pulled to pieces.

I had grabbed his neck between my fore and middle fingers, so that I was at a great disadvantage; but I knew that if he once got his head free, I should be struck not once only, but as many times as he pleased; so I held on and squeezed for dear life.

I shouted to the negroes to come over and kill him, and they came at once; but as soon as they saw what it was I had hold of, they would not come near me. Nothing that I could say, neither threats nor persuasions, would induce them to give me help. So all I could do was to hold on and squeeze my snake.

After what seemed an age, and when I was about ready to drop from exhaustion, I felt the coils begin to loosen, and with that encouragement I squeezed harder than ever. Gradually the snake relaxed its grip, and at last the body hung limp and motionless from my hand. I walked over and dropped it into the fire, and I can tell you I watched it burn with a mingled sensation of relief and thankfulness.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

NERVINE TONIC

—AND—

Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

Crisp for Speaker.

Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia, is the new speaker of the house of representatives. The caucus met Saturday evening and took 17 ballots. Monday forenoon, they took two more; in the afternoon 10 more ballots. At eight in the evening they took three more, Crisp on the 30th getting 119 votes, 114 being a majority. Judge McClellan voted for Springer, up to the 24th, when he supported Crisp. The new speaker is a very able man, the equal of any of the others probably. Though many think Mills or Springer should have been chosen, we think all will be satisfied as the House progresses in its work. See a full account on the inside of this paper.

WHAT has become of the tin plate factories since the Ohio election?

CHASE, the new governor, wants to run for that office next year. He may be the man.

WABASH COLLEGE at Crawfordsville, has received a donation of $20,000 from an unknown friend.

THE official count gives the democrats in New York, a plurality of 47,937. Total votes for all candidates, 1,165,085.

REPUBLICAN papers should tell why tin plate has not been made in this country before. McKinley bill did nothing but place more obstructions in the way.

OF OUR forty-four states, thirty have democratic governors, and Indiana and Illinois with their republican governors, gave democratic majorities at their last elections.

PICK up any Canada paper, and you see the necessaries of life advertised at about half what we pay in the United, States. They don't have to pay so big a tariff as we do, and therefore the cost of the things they need, is much less.

DOM PEDRO, Ex-Emperor of Brazil, died at the Hotel Bedford in Paris last Friday night. He was crowned July 18, 1841 and was driven off in November, 1889, though he had been a good ruler. He had been the only monarch in the new world.

CHICAGO has fifty-seven separate post-offices within its limits. They belong to the numerous suburbs with which the city is surrounded. So far they have been independent, but a movement is now on foot to make them subject to the main office up town, and all uniform as to system.

CRAZY man went into the office of Russell Sage. N. Y., last Friday and demanded a million and a half of money. Sage refused, when the man threw a bomb of dynamite. Sage and his clerks were badly hurt, but the crazy man and an accomplice were torn to shreds. Several others were killed or may die. The building was a good deal injured.

They Buried the Dog.

Frank Hoff rather enjoys a joke, so we are told. Monday his dog died, and of course Frank felt like giving poor "Fido" a decent burial. Frank Hildebrand, who travels for A. C. Trentman was in town and had to go across the country to Corunna. Postmaster W. H. Crane of Sedan, was here also, and it was arranged that he and Mr. Hildebrand should go together. Frank Hoff, however, asked that they first go with him over east of town to select a horse, and the two rigs started off, that way. Mr. Hoff had deposited a respectable looking box in Mr. Hildebrand's buggy, without the latter seeing it, and on arriving at the fair ground, Hoff said they would find the horse inside the big fence. He got out his buggy, took out a shovel and began to dig. Hildebrand, began to wonder, but just then seeing the box in his own buggy, he took the hint and on lifting the lid, saw the corpse, and the joke at the same time. He had gone a mile out of his way to help bury a dog. It cost him the cigars, but a traveling man never gets mad—that is, hardly ever.

The Dispatch says, "we will pay $26,000 more tax this year than we did last, and yet not have enough to meet current expenses unless they are lower." According to this we must have run behind last year $26,000. But we were back just $3,378.27, which we must conclude the Dispatch believes to be a greater sum than $26,000, for we certainly don't want to accuse him of falsehood.

The Reading Room will not go to the second story as at first contemplated. It will remain right where it has been all the while. The front will be occupied by E. Spangle, the jeweler, and by J. I. Chaney, dealer in musical instruments. These two gentlemen will take charge of the Reading Room through the coming year, for the free use of the part they occupy. This will be a saving to the society of about $200 a year, and this enables them to retain their present commodious quarters. We are glad to hear it, for this is certainly better.

The Auburn Flouring Mills in the south end of town are temporarily closed in order to put in a lot of new machinery. So no grinding is done, though the other business goes right on. "You must laugh. It's a matter of compulsion, not inclination," was the remarks made by a crowd of ladies as the large audience was leaving Harris' Theater yesterday, and almost every face was wreathed in smiles after the performance of "A Soap Bubble." The humor of this successful farce-comedy seemed to affect everybody, and at times the applause was so loud that it could be heard a block away, and continued so for several minutes.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mrs. Emily Dills can beat Dr Ford in point of residence in Auburn, by two years. She came here with her father, S. W. Ralston, forty-nine years ago this Saturday, Dec. 12. She was then four year old, and Jack was one. They stopped at a house on the lot where Dr. James Adams now lives, though the old building is now moved back to another lot to make room for the present brick dwelling. It must be a study for anyone to look back tp Auburn as it was then, and then compare with the Auburn of to-day.

Let us all turn out. A collection will be taken, but no admission charged.

H. C. Shull, our popular milkman had a pretty serious runaway Sunday afternoon. While going along near the Hollister House on Main street, the king bolt broke and the usually gentle team took fright and ran. At the same time some dogs saw them go clattering down the street, and took after them, thus making the matters worse. They kept the street pretty well till they reached old Mr. Picker's, when they turned enough to run across the front part of his lot, and tore off a bit of fence there, and going across the street south came full tilt against the strong iron fence around Mr. McIntosh's grounds. The force of the collision carried one of them clear over the fence, leaving the other on the outside. The latter was considerably injured, as an iron picket point was forced into his breast, but by careful treatment is now all right. The one on the inside was stunned, and lay as if dead for awhile, but was soon all right, and at work on the route next day. The fore wheels that followed the horses were ruined.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

MANY RECOMMENDATIONS OFFERED TO CONGRESS.

A Careful Review of the Chilian Complications—Other Foreign Relations—Tariff Legislation—His Views on the Silver Question—Concerning Suffrage, Etc.

The Annual Document.

TO THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

The reports of the heads of the several executive departments, required by law to be submitted to me, which are herewith transmitted, and the reports of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney General, made directly to Congress, furnish a comprehensive view of the administrative work of the last fiscal year relating to internal affairs. It would be of great advantage if these reports could have an attentive perusal by every member of Congress, and by all who take an interest in public affairs. Such a perusal could not fail to excite a high appreciation of the vast labor and conscientious effort which are given to the conduct of our civil administration.

The reports will, I believe, show that every question has been approached, considered and decided from the standpoint of public duty and upon considerations affecting the public interests alone. Again I invite to every branch of the service the attention and scrutiny of Congress.

The work of the State Department during the last year has been characterized by an unusual number of important negotiations and by diplomatic results of a notable and highly beneficial character. Among these are the reciprocal trade arrangements which have been concluded, in the exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Tariff law, with the Republic of Brazil, with Spain for its West India possessions, and with San Domingo. Like negotiations with other countries have been much advanced, and it is hoped that before the close of the year further definite trade arrangements of great value will be concluded.

In view of the reports which had been received as to the diminution of the seal herds in the Behring Sea, I deemed it wise to propose to her Majesty's Government in February last that an agreement for a closed season should be made, pending the negotiations which then seemed to be approaching a favorable conclusion. After much correspondence, and delays for which this Government was not responsible, an agreement was reached and signed on the 15th of June, by which Great Britain undertook, from that date and until May 1, 1892, to prohibit the killing by her subjects of seals in the Behring Sea, and the Government of the United States during the same period to enforce its existing prohibition against pelagic sealing, and to limit the catch by the Fur Seal Company upon the island to 7,500 skins. If this agreement could have been reached earlier, in response to the strenuous endeavors of this Government, it would have been more effective; but, coming as late as it did, it unquestionably resulted in greatly diminishing the destruction of the seals by the Canadian sealers.

In my last annual message I stated that the basis of arbitration proposed by her Majesty's Government for the adjustment of the long-pending controversy as to the seal fisheries was not acceptable. I am glad now to be able to announce that terms satisfactory to this Government have been agreed upon and that an agreement as to arbitrators is all that is necessary to the completion of the convention.

Provision should be made for a joint demarcation of the frontier line between Canada and the United States wherever required by the increasing border settlements, and especially for the exact location of the water boundary in the straits and rivers.

I should have been glad to announce some favorable disposition of the boundary dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela, touching the western frontier of British Guiana, but the friendly efforts of the United States in that direction have thus far been unavailing. This Government will continue to express its concern at any appearance of foreign encroachment on territories long under the administrative control of American states.

The law of the last Congress providing a system of inspection for our meats intended for export and clothing the President with power to exclude foreign products from our market in case the country sending them should perpetuate unjust discriminations against any product of the United States, placed this Government in a position to effectively urge the removal of such discriminations against our meats. It is gratifying to be able to state that Germany, Denmark, Italy, Austria and France, in the order named, have opened their ports to inspected American pork products. The removal of these restrictions in every instance was asked for and given solely upon the ground that we had now provided a meat inspection that should be accepted as adequate to the complete removal of the dangers, real or fancied, which had been previously urged. The State Department, our Ministers abroad and the Secretary of Agriculture have co-operated with unflagging and intelligent zeal for the accomplishment of this great result. The outlines of an agreement have been reached with Germany looking to equitable trade concessions in consideration of the continued free importation of her sugars, but the time has not yet arrived when this correspondence can be submitted to Congress.

The recent political disturbances in the republic of Brazil have excited regret and solicitude. The information we possessed was too meager to enable us to form a satisfactory judgment of the causes leading to the temporary assumption of supreme power by President Fonseca; but this Government did not fail to express to him its anxious solicitude for the peace of Brazil and for the maintenance of the free political institutions which had recently been established there, nor to offer our advice that great moderation should be observed in the clash of parties and the contest for leadership. These counsels were received in the most friendly spirit, and the latest information is that constitutional government has been re-established without bloodshed.

The lynching at New Orleans in March last of eleven men of Italian nativity by a mob of citizens was a most deplorable and discreditable incident. It did not, however, have its origin in any general animosity to the Italian people, nor in any disrespect to the Government of Italy, with which our relations were of the most friendly character. The fury of the mob was directed against these men as the supposed participants or accessories in the murder of a city officer. I do not allude to this as mitigating in any degree this offense against law and humanity, but only as affecting the international questions which grew out of it. It was represented by the Italian Minister that several of those whose lives had been taken by the mob were Italian subjects, and a demand was made for the punishment of the participants and for an indemnity to the families of those who were killed. It is to regretted that the manner in which these claims were presented was not such as to promote a calm discussion of the questions involved; but this may well be attributed to the excitement and indignation which the crime naturally evoked. The views of this government as to its obligations to foreigners domiciled here were fully stated in the correspondence, as well as its purpose to make an investigation of the affair with a view to determine whether there were present any circumstances that could, under such rules of duty as we had indicated, create an obligation upon the United States. The temporary absence of a Minister Plenipotentiary of Italy at this capital has retarded the further correspondence, but it is not doubted that a friendly conclusion is attainable.

Some suggestions growing out of this unhappy incident are worthy the attention of Congress. It would, I believe, be entirely competent for Congress to make offenses against the treaty rights of foreigners domiciled in the United States cognizable in the Federal courts. This has not, however, been done, and the Federal officers and courts have no power in such cases to intervene either for the protection of a foreign citizen or for the punishment of his slayers. It seems to me to follow in this state of law that officers of the State charged with police and judicial powers in such cases must, in the consideration of international questions, growing out of such incidents, be regarded in such sense as Federal agents as to make this Government answerable for their acts in cases where it would be answerable if the United States had used its constitutional power to define and punish crimes against treaty rights.

The Chilian Complications.

The civil war in Chili, which began in January last, was continued, but fortunately with infrequent and not important armed collisions, until August 28, when the Congressional forces landed near Valparaiso, and after a bloody engagement captured that city. President Balmaceda at once recognized that his cause was lost, and provisional government was speedily established by the victorious party. Our Minister was promptly directed to recognize and put himself in communication with this government as it should have established its de facto character, which was done. During the pendency of this civil contest frequent indirect appeals were made to this Government to extend belligerent rights to the insurgents and to give audience to their representatives. This was declined, and that policy was pursued throughout which this Government, when wrenched by civil war so strenuously insisted upon on the part of European nations.

The Itata, an armed vessel commanded by a naval officer of the insurgent fleet, manned by its sailors and with soldiers on board, was seized under process of the United States Court at San Diego, Cal., for a violation of our neutrality laws. While in the custody of an officer of the court, the vessel was forcibly wrested from his control and put to sea. It would have been inconsistent with the dignity and self-respect of this Government not to have insisted that the Itata should be returned to San Diego to abide the judgment of the court. This was so clear to the Junta of the Congressional party, established at Iquique, that, before the arrival of the Itata at that port, the Secretary of Foreign Relations of the Provisional Government addressed to Rear Admiral Brown, commanding the United States naval forces, a communication, from which the following is an extract:

"The Provisional Government has learned by the cablegrams of the Associated Press that the transport Itata, detained at San Diego by order of the United States for taking on board munitions of war, and in possession of the marshal, left the port carrying on board this official, who was landed at a point near the coast, and thus continued her voyage. If this news be correct, this Government would deplore the conduct of the Itata, and as an evidence that it is not disposed to support or agree to the infraction of the laws of the United States, the undersigned takes advantage of the personal relations you have been good enough to maintain with him since your arival in this port to declare to you that as soon as she is within reach of our orders this Government will put the Itata, with the arms and munitions she took on board in San Diego, at the disposition of the United States."

A trial in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of California has recently resulted in a decision holding, among other things, that, inasmuch as the Congressional party had not been recognized as a belligerent, the acts done in its interest could not be a violation of our neutrality laws. From this judgment the United States has appealed, not that the condemnation of the vessel is a matter of importance, but that we may know what the present state of our law is; for, if this construction of the statute is correct, there is obvious necessity for revision and amendment.

During the progress of the war in Chili this Government tendered its good offices to bring about a peaceful adjustment, and it was at one time hoped that a good result might be reached; but in this we were disappointed.

The instructions to our naval officers and to our Minister at Santiago, from the first to the last of this struggle, enjoined upon them the most impartial treatment and absolute non-interference. I am satisfied that these instructions were observed and that our representatives were always watchful to use their influence impartially in the interest of humanity, and on more than one occasion did so effectively. We could not forget, however, that this Government was in diplomatic relations with the then established Government of Chili, as it is now in such relations with the successor of that Government. I am quite sure that President Montt, who has, under circumstances of promise for the peace of Chili, been installed as President of that Republic, will not desire that, in the unfortunate event of any revolt against his authority, the policy of this Government should be other than that which we have recently observed.

No official complaint of the conduct of our Minister or our naval officers during the struggle has been presented to this Government, and it is a matter of regret that so many of our people have given ear to unofficial charges and complaints that manifestly had their origin in rival interests and in a wish to pervert the relations of the United States with Chili.

The collapse of the government of Balmaceda brought about a condition which is unfortunately too familiar in the history of the Central and South American States. With the overthrow of the Balmaceda Government, he and many of his councillors and officers became at once fugitives for their lives and appealed to the commanding officers of the foreign naval vessels in the harbor of Valparaiso and to the resident foreign ministers at Santiago for asylum. This asylum was freely given, according to my information, by the naval vessels of several foreign powers and by several of the legations at Santiago.

The American Minister, as well as his colleagues, acting upon the impulses of humanity, extended asylum to political refugees whose lives were in peril. I have not been willing to direct the surrender of such of these persons as are still in the American Legation without suitable conditions.

It is believed that the Government of Chili is not in a position, in view of the precedents with which it has been connected, to broadly deny the right of asylum, and the correspondence has not thus far presented any such denial. The treatment of our Minister for a time was such as to call for a decided protest, and it was very gratifying to observe that unfriendly measures, which were undoubtedly the result of the prevailing excitement, were at once rescinded or suitably relaxed.

On the 16th of October an event occurred in Valparaiso so serious and tragic in its circumstances and results as to very justly excite the indignation of our people and to call for prompt and decided action on the part of this Government. A considerable number of the sailors of the United States steamship Baltimore, then in the harbor of Valparaiso, being upon shore leave and unarmed, were assaulted by armed men nearly simultaneously in different localities in the city.

One petty officer was killed outright and seven or eight seamen were seriously wounded, one of whom has since died.

So far as I have yet been able to learn no other explanation of this bloody work has been suggested than that it had its origin in hostility to these men as sailors of the United States, wearing the uniform of their Government, and not in any individual act or personal animosity. The attention of the Chilian government was at once called to this affair, and a statement of the facts obtained by the investigation we had conducted was submitted, accompanied by a request to be advised of any other or qualifying facts in the possession of the Chilian government that might tend to relieve this affair of the appearance of an insult to this Government. The Chilian government was also advised that if such qualifying facts did not exist this Government could confidently expect full and prompt reparation.

It is to be regretted that the reply of the Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the provisional government was couched in an offensive tone. To this no response has been made. Our Government is now awaiting the result of an investigation which has been conducted by the Criminal Court at Valparaiso. It is reported unofficially that the investigation is about completed, and it is expected that the result will soon be communicated to this Government, together with some adequate and satisfactory response to the note by which the attention of Chili was called to this incident.

If these just expectations should be disappointed or further needless delay intervene, I will, by a special message, bring this matter again to the attention of Congress for such action as may be necessary. The entire correspondence with the Government of Chili will at an early day be submitted to Congress.

Other Foreign Relations.

I renew the recommendation of my special message dated January 16, 1890, for the adoption of the necessary legislation to enable this Government to apply in the case of Sweden and Norway the same rule in respect to the levying of tonnage dues as was claimed and secured to the shipping of the United States in 1828 under Article 8 of the treaty of 1827.

The adjournment of the Senate without action on the pending acts for the suppression of the slave traffic in Africa, and for the reform of the revenue tariff of the independent State of the Congo left this Government unable to exchange those acts on the date fixed, July 2, 1891. A modus vivendi has been concluded by which the power of the Congo state to levy duties on imports is left unimpaired, and, by agreement of all the signatories to the general slave trade act, the time for the exchange of ratifications on the part of the United States has been extended to Feb. 2, 1892.

The late outbreak against foreigners in various parts of the Chinese Empire has been the cause of deep concern in view of the numerous establishments of our citizens in the interior of that country. This Government can do no less than insist upon a continuance of the protective and punitory measures which the Chinese Government has heretofore applied. No effort will be omitted to protect our citizens peaceably sojourning in China, but recent unofficial information indicates that what was at first regarded as an outbreak of mob violence against foreigners has assumed the larger form of an insurrection against public order. The Chinese Government has declined to receive Mr. Blair as the Minister of the United States on the ground that, as participant, while a Senator, in the enactment of the existing legislation against the introduction of Chinese laborers, he has become unfriendly and objectionable to China. I have felt constrained to point out to the Chinese government the untenableness of this position, which seems to rest as much on the unacceptability of our legislation as on that of the person chosen, and which if admitted, would practically debar the selection of any representative so long as the existing laws remain in force.

You will be called upon to consider the expediency of making special provision by law for temporary admission of some Chinese artisans and laborers in connection with the exhibit of Chinese industries at the approaching Columbian Exposition. I regard it as desirable that the Chinese exhibit be facilitated in every proper way.

The government and people of Spain propose to celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by holding an exposition at Madrid, which will open on the 12th of September and continue until the 31st of December, 1892. A cordial invitation has been extended to the United States to take part in this commemoration and, as Spain was one of the first nations to express the intention to participate in the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, it would be appropriate for this government to give this invitation its friendly promotion.

Surveys for the connecting links of the projected Inter-Continental Railway are in progress, not only in Mexico, but at various points along the course mapped out. Three surveying parties are now in the field under the direction of the commission. Nearly 1,000 miles of the proposed road have been surveyed, including the most difficult part, that through Equador and the southern part of Colombia. The reports of the engineers are very satisfactory and show that no insurmountable obstacles have been met with.

On Nov. 12, 1884, a treaty was concluded with Mexico reaffirming the boundary between the two countries as described in the treaties of Feb. 2, 1848, and Dec. 30, 1853. March 1, 1889, a further treaty was negotiated to facilitate the carrying out of the principles of the treaty of 1884.

The death of King Kalakaua in the United States afforded occasion to testify our friendship for Hawaii by conveying the King's body to his own land in a naval vessel with all honors. The Government of his successor, Queen Liliuokalani, is seeking to promote closer commercial relations with the United States.

This Government has found a reason to express in a friendly spirit, but with much earnestness, to the government of the Czar, its serious concern because of the harsh measures now being enforced against the Hebrews in Russia. The immigration of these people to the United States—many other countries being closed to them—is largely increasing, and is likely to assume proportions which may make it difficult to find homes and employment for them here, and to seriously affect the labor market.

The annual report of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua shows that much costly and necessary preparatory work has been done during the year in the construction of shops, railroad tracks and harbor piers and breakwaters, and that the work in the canal's construction has made some progress.

I deem it to be a matter of the highest concern to the United States that this canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and giving us water communication between our ports on these two great seas should be speedily constructed, and at the smallest practicable limit of cost.

International Copyright.

International copyright has been secured, in accordance with the conditions of the act of March 3, 1891, with Belgium, France, Great Britain and the British possessions, and Switzerland, the laws of these countries permitting to our citizens the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to their own citizens or subjects. With Germany a special convention has been negotiated upon this subject, which will bring that country within the reciprocal benefits of our legislation.

Tariff Legislation.

The general interest in the operations of the Treasury Department has been much augmented during the last year by reason of the conflicting predictions, which accompanied and followed the tariff and other legislation of the last Congress affecting the revenues, as to the results of this legislation upon the treasury and upon the country.

It is not my purpose to enter at any length into a discussion of the effects of the legislation to which I have referred; but a brief examination of the statistics of the Treasury and a general glance at the state of business throughout the country will, I think, satisfy any impartial inquirer that its results have disappointed the evil prophecies of its opponents and in a large measure realized the hopeful predictions of its friends. During the twelve months from October 1, 1890, to September 30, 1891, the total value of our foreign commerce (imports and exports) was $1,747,806,406, which was the largest of any year in the history of the United States. The largest in any previous year was in 1890, when our commerce amounted to $1,647,139,093, and the last year exceeds this enormous aggregate by over one hundred millions. The average annual value of the imports of merchandise for the ten years from 1881 to 1890 was $692,186,522, and during the year ending Sept. 30, 1891, this annual average was exceeded by $132,528,469.

The value of free imports during the twelve months ending Sept. 30, 1891, was $118,092,387 more than the value of free imports during the corresponding twelve months of the preceding year, and there was during the same period a decrease of $106,846,508 in the value of imports of dutiable merchandise. The percentage of merchandise admitted free of duty during the year to which I have referred, the first under the new tariff, was 48.18, while during the preceding twelve months, under the old tariff, the percentage was 34.27, an increase of 13.91 per cent. If we take the six months ending Sept. 30 last, which covers the time during which sugars have been admitted free of duty, the per cent. of value of merchandise imported free of duty is found to be 55.27, which is a larger percentage of free imports than during any prior fiscal year in the history of the Government.

If we return to exports of merchandise the statistics are full of gratification. The value of such exports of merchandise for the twelve months ending September 30, 1891, was $923,091,136, while for the corresponding previous twelve months it was $860,177,115, an increase of $62,914,021, which is nearly three times the average increase of exports of merchandise during any year in the history of the Government. The increase in the value of exports of agricultural products during the year referred to over the corresponding twelve months of the prior year was $45,846,197, while the increase in the value of exports of manufactured products was $16,838,240.

There is certainly nothing in the condition of trade, foreign or domestic, there is certainly nothing in the condition of our people of any class, to suggest that the existing tariff and revenue legislation bears oppressively upon the people, or retards the commercial development of the nation.

I think there are conclusive evidences that the new tariff has created several great industries which will, within a few years, give employment to several hundred thousand American workingmen and women. In view of the somewhat overcrowded condition of the labor market of the United States, every patriotic citizen should rejoice at such a result.

Receipts and Expenditures.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury shows that the total receipts of the Government, from all sources, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, were $458,544,233.03, while the expenditures for the same period were $421,304,470.46, leaving a surplus of $37,239,762.57. The receipts of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, actual and estimated, are $433,000,000 and the expenditures $409,000,000. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, the estimated receipts are $455,336,350 and the expenditures $441,300,093.

Silver as Currency.

Under the law of July 14, 1890, the Secretary of the Treasury has purchased since Aug. 13, during the fiscal year, 48,393,113 ounces of silver bullion at an average cost of $1.045 per ounce. The highest price paid during the year was $1.2025, and the lowest $0.9636. In exchange for this silver bullion there have been issued $50,577,498 of the treasury notes authorized by the act. The ablest advocates of free coinage in the last Congress were most confident in their prediction that the purchase by the Government required by the law would at once bring the price of silver to $1.2929 per ounce, which would make the bullion value of a dollar 100 cents and hold it there. The prophecies of the anti-silver men of disasters to result from the coinage of $2,000,000 per month were not wider from the mark. The friends of free silver are not agreed, I think, as to the causes that brought their hopeful predictions to naught. Some facts are known. The exports of silver from London to India during the first nine months of this calendar year fell off over 20 per cent., or $17,202,730 compared with the same months of the preceding year. The exports of domestic silver bullion from this country, which had averaged for the last ten years over $17,000,000, fell in the last fiscal year to $13,797,391; while, for the first time in recent years, the imports of silver into this country exceeded the exports by the sum of $2,745,365. In the previous year the net exports of silver from the United States amounted to $8,545,455. The production of the United States increased from 50,000,000 ounces in 1889 to 54,500,000 in 1890. The Government is now buying and putting aside annually 54,000,000 ounces, which, allowing for 7,140,000 ounces of new bullion used in the arts, is 6,640,000 more than our domestic product available for coinage. I hope the depression in the price of silver is temporary and that a further trial of this legislation will more favorably affect it.

I am still of the opinion that the free coinage of silver under existing conditions would disastrously affect our business interests at home and abroad. We could not hope to maintain an equality in the purchasing power of the gold and silver dollar in our own markets, and in foreign trade the stamp gives no added value to the bullion contained in coins. The producers of the country, the farmers and laborers, have the highest interest that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the government shall be as good as any other. If there is one less valuable than another its sure and constant errand will be to pay them for their toil and for their crops. The money-lender will protect himself by stipulating for payment in gold, but the laborer has never been able to do that. To place business upon a silver basis would mean a sudden and severe contraction of the currency by the withdrawal of gold and gold notes, and such an unsettling of all values as would produce a financial panic. I cannot believe that a people so strong and prosperous as ours will promote such a policy.

I believe it is the earnest desire of a great majority of the people, as it is mine, that a full coin use shall be made of silver just as soon as the co-operation of other nations can be secured and a ratio fixed that will give circulation equally to gold and silver. Bi-metalism is the desired end, and the true friends of silver will be careful not to overrun the goal and bring in silver monometalism, with its necessary attendants, the loss of our gold to Europe and the relief of the pressure there for a larger currency.

The Flow of Gold.

The exports of gold to Europe, which began in February last and continued until the close of July, aggregated over 70,000,000. The net loss of gold during the fiscal year was nearly $68,000,000. That no serious monetary disturbance resulted was most gratifying, and gave to Europe fresh evidence of the strength and stability of our financial institutions. With the movement of crops the outflow of gold has speedily stopped, and a return set in. Up to Dec. 1 we had recovered of our gold loss at the port of New York $27,854,000.

Surplus Revenues.

The presence of a large cash surplus in the Treasury has for many years been the subject of much unfavorable criticism and has furnished an argument to those who have desired to place the tariff upon a purely revenue basis. It was agreed by all that the withdrawal from circulation of so large an amount of money was an embarrassment to the business of the country and made necessary the intervention of the department at frequent intervals to relieve the threatened monetary panics. The surplus on March 1, 1889, was $183,827,190.29. The policy of applying this surplus to the redemption of the interest-bearing securities of the United States is thought to be preferable to that of depositing it without interest in selected national banks. There have been redeemed since the date last mentioned of interest-bearing securities $259,079,25, resulting in a reduction of the annual interest charge of $11,684,675. The money which had been deposited in banks without interest has been gradually withdrawn and used in the redemption of bonds.

The result of this policy, of the silver legislation, and of the refunding of the 4½ per cent. bonds, has been a large increase of the money in circulation. At the date last named the circulation was $1,404,205,896, or $23.03 per capita; while on the first day of December, 1891, it had increased to $1,577,262,070, or $24.38 per capita. The offer of the Secretary of the Treasury to the holders of the 4½ per cent. bonds to extend the time of redemption, at the option of the Government, at an interest of 2 per cent., was accepted by the holders of about one-half the amount, and the unextended bonds are being redeemed on presentation.

The Army.

The report of the Secretary of War exhibits the results of an intelligent, progressive, and business-like administration of a department which has been too much regarded as one of mere routine. The work of securing sites for shore batteries for harbor defense and the manufacture of mortars and guns of high power to equip them have made good progress during the year.

The project of enlisting Indians received my approval. Seven companies have been completely organized, and seven more are in process of organization. The results of six months' training have more than realized the highest anticipations.

Private Land Claims.

The Judges of the Court of Private Land Claims provided for by the act of March 3, 1891, have been appointed and the court organized. It is now possible to give early relief to communities long repressed in their development by unsettled land titles, and to establish the possession and right of settlers whose lands have been rendered valueless by adverse and unfounded claims.

The Chinese Question.

The enforcement of the Treasury Department of the law prohibiting the coming of Chinese to the United States has been effective as to such as seek to land from vessels entering our ports. The result has been to divert the travel to vessels entering the ports of British Columbia, whence a passage into the United States at obscure points along the Dominion boundary is easy. The Dominion Government collects a head tax of $50 from every Chinaman entering Canada, and thus derives a considerable revenue from those who only use its ports to reach a position of advantage to evade our exclusion laws.

There seems to be satisfactory evidence that the business of passing Chinamen through Canada to the United States is organized and quite active. The Department of Justice has construed the laws to require the return of any Chinaman found to be unlawfully in this country to China as the country from which he came, notwithstanding the fact that he came by way of Canada. This construction robs the law of all effectiveness, and I recommend such legislation as will remedy defects in the law.

The Postal Service.

In the report of the Postmaster General some very gratifying results are exhibited and many betterments of the service suggested. Ocean mail postoffices have been established upon the steamers of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg Lines, saving, by the distribution on shipboard, from two to fourteen hours' time.

Eight thousand miles of new postal service have been established upon railroads, the car distribution to substations in the great cities have been increased about 12 per cent., while the percentage of errors in distribution has, during the past year, been reduced over one-half.

An appropriation was given by the last Congress for the purpose of making some experiments in free delivery in the smaller cities and towns. The results of those experiments have been so satisfactory that the Postmaster General recommends, and I concur in the recommendation, that the free delivery system be at once extended to towns of 5,000 population. It is not just that the farmer who receives his mail at a neighboring town should not only be compelled to send to the postoffice for it, but also to pay considerable rent for a box in which to place it or to wait his turn at a general delivery window, while the city resident has his mail brought to his door. I also recommend the extension of the money order system.

The Navy.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy shows a gratifying increase of new naval vessels in commission. When it is recollected that the work of building a modern navy was only initiated in 1883, that our naval constructors and ship-builders were practically without experience in the construction of large iron or steel ships, the progress that has been made is highly satisfactory. I commend to your favorable consideration the recommendations of the Secretary, who has, I am sure, given to them most conscientious study. There should be no hesitation in promptly completing a navy of the best modern type, large enough to enable this country to display its flag in all seas for the protection of its citizens and of its extending commerce.

Indian Affairs.

The report of the Secretary of the Interior shows that a very gratifying progress has been made in all of the bureaus which make up that complex and difficult department. The work in the Bureau of Indian Affairs was perhaps never so large as now by reason of the numerous negotiations which have been proceeding with the tribes for a reduction of the reservations. The providing of adequate school facilities for Indian children and the locating of adult Indians upon farms involve the solution of the "Indian question."

The Land Office.

Early in this administration a special effort was begun to bring up the work of the General Land Office. By faithful work the arrearages have been rapidly reduced. At the end of the last fiscal year only 84,172 final agricultural entries remained undisposed of. Your attention is called to the difficulty presented by the Secretary of the Interior as to the administration of the law of March 3, 1891, establishing a court of private land claims. The small holdings intended to be protected by the law are estimated to be more than 15,000 in number. The claimants are a most deserving class, and their titles are supported by the strongest equities.

The Pension Bureau.

The administration of the Pension Bureau has been characterized during the year by great diligence. The total number of pensioners upon the rolls on the 30th day of June, 1891, was 676,160. There were allowed during the fiscal year ending at that time 250,575 cases. Of this number 102,387 were allowed under the act of June 27, 1890. The issuing of certificates has been proceeding at the rate of about 30,000 per month, about 75 per cent. of those being cash under the new law. The Commissioner expresses the opinion that he will be able to carefully adjudicate and allow 350,000 claims during the present fiscal year. The appropriation for the payment of pensions for the fiscal year 1890-91 was $127,685,793.89, and the amount expended $118,530,649.25, leaving an unexpended surplus of $9,155,144.64.

The Commissioner is quite confident that there will be no call this year for a deficiency appropriation, notwithstanding the rapidity with which the work is being pushed. The mistake which has been made by many in their exaggerated estimates of the cost of pensions is in not taking account of the diminished value of first payments under the recent legislation. These payments, under the general law, have been for many years very large, as the pensions, when allowed, dated from the time of filing the claim, and most of these claims had been pending for years. The first payment under the law of June, 1890, are relatively small, and, as the per cent. of those cases increases and that of the old cases diminishes, the annual aggregate of first payments is largely reduced. The Commissioner, under date of Nov. 13, furnishes me with the statement that during the last four months 113,175 certificates were issued, 27,893 under the general law and 85,282 under the act of June 27, 1890. The average first payment during these four months was $131.85, while the average first payment upon cases allowed during the year ending June 30, 1891, was $239.33.

The estimate for pension expenditures for the next fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, is $144,956,000, which, after a careful examination of the subject, the Commissioner is of the opinion will be sufficient.

Subsidized Railroads.

The report of the Commissioner of Railroads shows that the total debt of the subsidized railroads to the United States was, on Dec. 31, 1890, $112,512,613. A large part of this debt is now fast approaching maturity, with no adequate provision for its payment. Some policy for dealing with this debt, with a view to its ultimate collection, should be at once adopted.

Progress of the Census.

The work of the Census Bureau is now far in advance and the great bulk of the enormous labor involved completed. It will be more strictly a statistical exhibit and less incumbered by essays than its immediate predecessors. The methods pursued have been fair, careful and intelligent, and have secured the approval of the statisticians, who have followed them with a scientific and non-partisan interest.

Irrigating Arid Territories.

The report of the Secretary exhibits, with interesting fullness, the condition of the Territories. They have shared with the States the great increase in products, and are bringing yearly large areas into cultivation by extending their irrigating canals. This work is being done by individuals or local corporations, and without that system which a full preliminary survey of the water supply and of the irrigable lands would enable them to adopt. The future of the Territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Utah in their material growth and in the increase, independence and happiness of their people is very largely dependent upon wise and timely legislation, either by Congress or their own Legislatures, regulating the distribution of the water supply furnished by their streams. If this matter is much longer neglected, private corporations will have unrestricted control of one of the elements of life of the arid lands. The United States should part with its ownership of the water sources and the sites for reservoirs, whether to the States and Territories or to individuals or corporations, only upon conditions that will insure to the settlers their proper water supply upon equal and reasonable terms.

Utah and Polygamy.

The legislation of Congress for the repression of polygamy has, after years of resistance on the part of the Mormons, at last brought them to the conclusion that resistance is unprofitable and unavailing. The power of Congress over this subject should not be surrendered until we have satisfactory evidence that the people of the State to be created would exercise the exclusive power of the State over this subject in the same way. The question is not whether these people now obey the laws of Congress against polygamy, but rather would they make, enforce and maintain such laws themselves if absolutely free to regulate the subject? We cannot afford to experiment with this subject, for when a State is once constituted the act is final, and any mistake irretrievable.

Department of Agriculture.

If the establishment of the Department of Agriculture was regarded by any one as a mere concession to the unenlightened demand of a worthy class of people, that impression has been most effectually removed by the great results already attained. Its home influence has been very great in disseminating agricultural and horticultural information; in stimulating and directing a further diversification of crops; in detecting and eradicating diseases of domestic animals; and, more than all, in the close and informal contact which it has established and maintains with the farmers and stock-raisers of the whole country. Every request for information has had prompt attention and every suggestion merited consideration. The scientific corps of the department is of a high order, and is pushing its investigations with method and enthusiasm.

The inspection by this department of cattle and pork products intended for shipment abroad has been the basis of the success which has attended our efforts to secure the removal of the restrictions maintained by the European governments. It is particularly fortunate that the increased demand for food products, resulting from the removal of the restrictions upon our meats and from the reciprocal trade arrangements to which I have referred, should have come at a time when the agricultural surplus is so large. Without the help thus derived, lower prices would have prevailed. The Secretary of Agriculture estimates that the restrictions upon the importation of our pork products into Europe lost us a market for $20,000,000 worth of these products annually.

The grain crop of this year was the largest in our history, 50 per cent. greater than that of last year, and yet the new markets that have been opened and the larger demand resulting from short crops in Europe, have sustained prices to such an extent that the enormous surplus of meats and breadstuffs will be marketed at good prices bringing relief and prosperity to an industry that was much depressed. The value of the grain crop of the United States is estimated by the Secretary to be this year five hundred million dollars more than last; of meats, one hundred and fifty millions more; and of all products of the farm, seven hundred millions more. It is not inappropriate, I think, here to suggest that our satisfaction in the contemplation of this marvelous addition to the national wealth is unclouded by any suspicion of the currency by which it is measured and in which the farmer is paid for the product of his fields.

Civil Service.

The report of the Civil Service Commission should receive the careful attention of the opponents, as well as the friends, of this reform. The commission invites a personal inspection of its records and methods. The efforts of the several executive departments have been directed to establish at once an efficiency record as the basis of a comparative rating of the clerks within the classified service, with a view to placing promotions therein upon the basis of merit. I am confident that such a record, fairly kept and open to the inspection of those interested, will powerfully stimulate the work of the departments and will be accepted by all as placing the troublesome matter of promotions upon a just basis. I recommend that the appropriations for the Civil Service Commission be made adequate to the increased work of the next fiscal year.

Protection for Railroad Employes.

I have twice before urgently called the attention of Congress to the necessity of legislation for the protection of the lives of railroad employes, but nothing has yet been done. During the year ending June 30, 1890, 369 brakemen were killed and 7,841 maimed while engaged in coupling cars. The total number of railroad employes killed during the year was 2,451, and the number injured 22,390. This is a cruel and largely a needless sacrifice. A law requiring of every railroad engaged in interstate commerce the equipment each year of a given per cent. of its freight cars with automatic couplers and air brakes to be used would very soon and very greatly reduce the present fearful death rate among railroad employes.

Constitutional Amendment Suggested.

The method of appointment by the States of Electors of President and Vice President has recently attracted renewed interest by reason of a departure by the State of Michigan from the method which had become uniform in all the States. Prior to 1832 various methods had been used by the different States, and even by the same State. After a full test of other methods, without important division or dissent in any State and without any purpose of party advantage, as we must believe the practice of all the states was brought into harmony. That this concurrence should now by broken is, I think, an unfortunate and even threatening episode, and one that may well suggest whether the States that still give their approval to the old and prevailing methods ought not to secure by a constitutional amendment, a practice which has had the approval of all. The recent Michigan legislation provides for choosing what are popularly known as the Congressional Electors for President by Congressional districts, and the two Senatorial Electors by districts created for that purpose. This legislation was, of course, accompanied by a new Congressional apportionment, and the two statutes bring the electoral vote of the State under the influence of the gerrymander.

These gerrymanders for Congressional purposes are in most cases buttressed by a gerrymander of the legislative districts, thus making it impossible for a majority of the legal voters of the State to correct the apportionment and to equalize the Congressional representation of all the districts. A minority rule is established that only a political convulsion can overthrow. I have recently been advised that in one county of a certain State three districts for the election of members of the Legislature are constituted as follows: One has 65,000 population, one 15,000, and one 10,000, while in another county, detached non-contiguous sections have been united to make a legislative district. These methods have already found effective application to the choice of Senators and Representatives in Congress, and now an evil start has been made in the direction of applying them to the choice by the States of Electors of President and Vice President. If this is accomplished we shall then have three great departments of the Government in the grasp of the "gerrymander," the legislative and the executive directly and the judiciary indirectly through the power of appointment.

An election implies a body of electors; electors having prescribed qualifications—each of whom has an equal status and influence in determining the result. So when the Constitution provides that each State shall appoint (elect) in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, etc., an unrestricted power was not given to the Legislatures in the selection of the methods to be used. "A republican form of government" is guaranteed by the Constitution to each State, and the power given by the same instrument to the legislatures of the States to prescribe methods for the choice, by the State, of electors, must be exercised under that limitation. The essential features of such a government are the right of the people to choose their own officers and the nearest practicable equality of value in the suffrages given in determining that choice.

Nothing just now is more important than to provide every guarantee for the absolutely fair and free choice by an equal suffrage, with the respective States, of all the officers of the National Government, whether that suffrage is applied directly, as in the choice of members of the House of Representatives, or indirectly, as in the choice of Senators and electors of President. Respect for public officers and obedience to the law will not cease to be the characteristics of our people until our elections cease to declare the will of majorities fairly ascertained, without fraud, suppression, or gerrymander.

All the States have, acting freely and separately, determined that the choice of elections by a general ticket is the wisest and safest method, and it would seem there could be no objection to a constitutional amendment making that method permanent. If a legislature chosen in one year upon purely local questions should, pending a Presidential contest, rescind the law for a choice upon a general ticket and provide for the choice of electors by the Legislature and this trick should determine the result, it is not too much to say that the public peace might be seriously and widely endangered.

Frauds Against the Suffrage.

An attempt was made in the last Congress to bring to bear the constitutional powers of the General Government for the correction of frauds against the suffrage. It is important to know whether the opposition to such measures is really rested in particular features supposed to be objectionable or includes any proposition to give to the election laws of the United States adequacy to the correction of grave and acknowledged evils. I must yet entertain the hope that it is possible to secure a calm, patriotic consideration of such constitutional or statutory changes as may be necessary to secure the choice of the officers of the Government to the people by fair appointments and free elections. I believe it would be possible to constitute a commission non-partisan in its membership, and composed of patriotic, wise and impartial men, to whom a consideration of the question of the evils connected with our election system and methods might be committed with a good prospect of securing unanimity in some plan for removing or mitigating those evils. The Constitution would permit the selection of the commission to be vested in the Supreme Court, if that method would give the best guaranty of impartiality.

While the policies of the General Government upon the tariff, upon the restoration of our merchant marine, upon river and harbor improvements and other such matters of grave and general concern are liable to be turned this way or that by the results of Congressional elections and administrative policies, sometimes involving issues that tend to peace or war, to be turned this way or that by the results of a Presidential election, there is a rightful interest in all the States and in every Congressional district that will not be deceived or silenced by the audacious pretense that the question of the right of any body of legal voters in any State, or in any Congressional district, to give their suffrages freely upon these general questions is a matter only of local concern or control. The demand that the limitation of suffrage shall be found in the law, and only there, is a just demand, and no just man should resent or resist it. My appeal is, and must continue to be, for a consultation that shall "proceed with candor, calmness and patience upon the lines of justice and humanity, not of prejudice and cruelty."

To the consideration of these very grave questions I invite not only the attention of Congress, but that of all patriotic citizens. A trust, momentous in its influence upon our people and upon the world, is for a brief time committed to us, and we must not be faithless to its first condition—the defense of the free and equal influence of the people in the choice of public officers and in the control of public affairs.

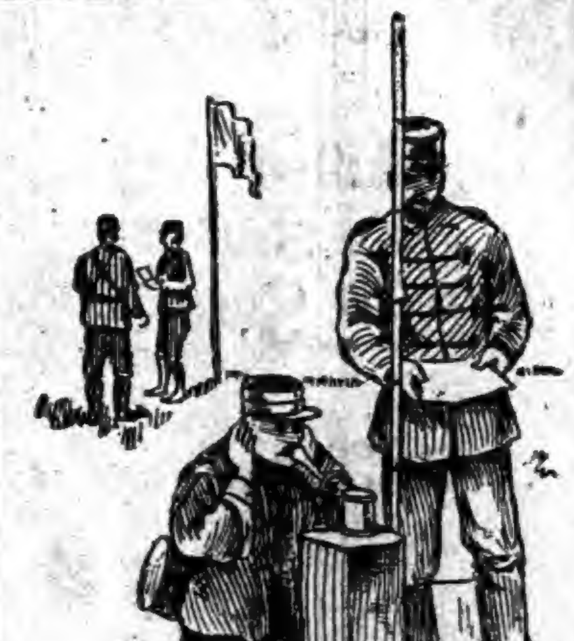
MACHINE-MADE WAR.

And How It Is to Be Waged in Europe in the Near Future.

Verily, the general reader will stare when he begins to read accounts of the next war in Europe.

Instead of the familiar talk about the advance of the cavalry, covering the march of the main column, and the story of the maneuvers of scouts and the headlong charging to and fro of aides-de-camp with messages, this is something like what he will be called upon to read:

"Yesterday at dawn a company of riflemen, mounted on bicycles, suddenly appeared at the entrance of Gansendorf. This was the first intimation that the enemy was so near at hand. The last balloon had gone up toward midnight, availing itself of the exceptionally bright moonlight; from it had been seen nothing to indicate an advance. These bicyclers must have come dashing along the highway soon after the balloon descended. When the riflemen saw that there was a large army near they departed as swiftly as they had come, and the air was soon thick with balloons, from which our sharpshooters attempted to pick off the saucy wheelmen. But an adverse current prevented the punishment of the enemy as he deserved.



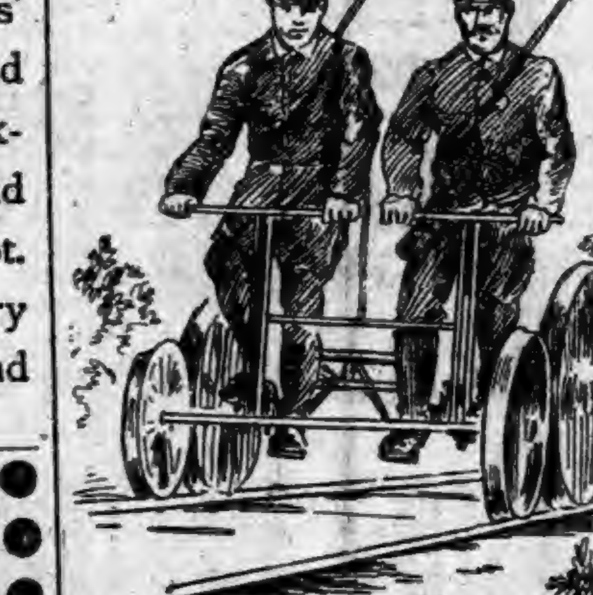
COMMANDING SIX ARMY CORPS BY TELEPHONE.

"In the afternoon the chief of staff was very busy with the long-distance telephone and communicated with the commanders of seven army corps, which are now on their march to this neighborhood, where an important battle must soon be fought. In less than five minutes a radius of territory many hundreds of miles square was completely covered with these telephonic messages, and half an hour after the general order was given the chief of staff knew that the head of each column was on the march, and had an important conversation with each general commanding a corps.

"During the evening the body of one of the enemy's riflemen, together with his bicycle, was brought into the village. On his person was found a paper containing a reference to a quadricyclar scouting expedition which was to take place on a branch line of rail not far from our village next morning. These quadricycles, adapted to the railroad, are now in general use in both armies. They look not unlike the old-fashioned hand-car, denuded of its framework of wood, and are managed by two stout soldiers, seated side by side. The soldiers have carbines slung over their shoulders, and carry pistols in holsters.

"The hind wheels of these railway quadricycles are made much larger than the forward wheels, and the treadles are so arranged as to give immense speed. Great services have been performed on both sides by these scouts, skimming swiftly as swallows along the humming rails, and fighting fiercely whenever interrupted in their journey of inspection."

Or, after a little, this may be read: "We are greatly interested in the manner of operations of the new bicycle ambulance corps, which we saw at work for the first time. Even while the battle was raging those intrepid servants of mercy were threading their way, on their rapidly revolving wheels, among the wounded and dying, and their skill and discretion were alike marvelous. With hammocks rigged between their bicycles, which they kept equidistant, they succeeded in carrying off to the hospital a great many badly wounded men who must have perished had they remained on the field half an hour longer. These wheelmen are equally useful as ambulance men or as light cavalrymen. We saw, in the recent battle, whole squadrons of them dash up against light artillery, which the enemy were bringing into position for demoralizing an advance, and so quickly did they charge that the guns were surrounded and taken before the enemy fancied himself in danger."



QUADRICYCLE MILITARY SCOUTS EXAMINING A RAILROAD

The recent military maneuvers in France, Germany, Austria, and England have amply demonstrated that bicycle, long-distance telephone, quadricycle, military balloon, battalions of bicycle-mounted riflemen, wheelmen as scouts in advance of the main column—all these things will be in active and constant use in the next campaigns. Of what vast service the long-distance telephone would have been in the campaigns around Paris in 1870, or in the marching and countermarching before Plevna in 1877. And the time when paintings which depict the wild charges of wheelmen over the smokeless battlefields of the future will be as picturesque and exciting for us when seen in historical paintings as the fearless rides of horsemen up to the mouths of cannon are to-day.

Not much can be said as yet of the terrible guns which are to discharge hundreds of shots per minute, and which will mow down thousands where now only hundreds are slain. But when we read of the exploits of Hotchkiss and the Nordenfeldt, we shall feel as if we were reading fairy tales. It will scarcely seem credible to us that the march of invention has been so mighty in a quarter of a century.

A Goodly Commission.

In business matters Mr. Scott, the Pennsylvania millionaire, who died recently, was quick in his conclusions, sound in judgment, inexhaustible in resources. The public remembers yet the sale by Wm. H. Vanderbilt of $20,000,000 worth of stock in the New York Central at 120. That sale was made by Wm. L. Scott.

Vanderbilt, harassed and worried in the management of the property, vexed by public criticism, and uncertain about his health, expressed, in the presence of Scott, a wish to be rid of the property.

"You are not in earnest?" said Scott.

"I was never more in earnest in my life," was the reply.

"Why not sell it then?" the Pennsylvanian asked.

"Sell it!" exclaimed Vanderbilt, "where can I find a purchaser for $20,000,000 of the stock?"

"I can find such a purchaser," said Scott, "at a fair commission."

"Do it," was the response, "and I will give you $500,000."

In a few days Scott had organized a syndicate among the bankers of New York to purchase the Vanderbilt stock at 120, and without any difficulty the transaction was concluded.

Then came Mr. Scott's demand for his commission of $500,000. Vanderbilt demurred; $500,000 was a big sum of money for such work. Mr. Scott insisted that it was a bargain made openly and seriously, and carried to a conclusion. Still Vanderbilt objected that it was too big a commission.

"What is it worth?" asked Mr. Scott.

"Oh," said Mr. Vanderbilt, "$200,000."

"Very well, then, let me have the $200,000," said the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and the matter was settled. Had Mr. Scott insisted there is little doubt the $500,000 would have been forthcoming. As it was, the commissions was as easily earned as any money Mr. Scott ever made.

Hannibal and Sherman.

A writer draws a comparison between Hannibal, the famos Carthaginian general, and the late William Tecumseh Sherman. The two men had the same sort of temperament, and, if we may trust the ancient descriptions, they resembled one another in physical stature not less than in the thoroughness of their military education. Hannibal was the first man to depart from the battle tactics which were the method of fighting adopted by Alexander. He had methods of his own, and his success, until the Romans had learned from him how to use his own weapons, was due to the same qualities which distinguished the military services of Gen. Sherman. He gained his first and last victories by the use of strategy. He did the unexpected thing. All his career was the doing of things that nobody else did, and throughout the late civil war Gen. Sherman was the man who constantly improved upon military rules by methods of his own. The passage of the Alps by Hannibal was not more wonderful in his day than the operations which Sherman planned and executed in his march to Chattanooga, and his gigantic conception of an invasion of Italy has its parallel in Gen. Sherman's plan of the march to the sea and the support of his army by levying contributions upon the people through whose homes he was passing. The American general did not stay for sixteen years in the country of his enemies, as Hannibal did, and compel subjugated provinces to support him, but he could have done it as easily as the Carthaginian did if the same occasion had existed. There was in our Sherman the same insight into the conditions of war, the same comprehension of the vital point at issue, the same swift reading of men, the same power of control, and the same ability to keep his own counsel.

Her Money-Makers.

"Come out and see my money-makers," said a lady living in the country to a friend from the city who was visiting her. "These," she continued, as they came to a large and well-appointed hen-house, "are my 'church-hens;' all that I make out of them above expenses is devoted to religious objects.

"The geese you see down there on the pond are my 'poor and needy geese.' They cost little or nothing, and the profits are applied to the relief of the poor and needy. Away down beyond that wood I keep a drove of hogs; 'dress hogs' I call them, because I buy my dresses out of what I make from them.

"Those Alderney cows are my 'theater and opera cows.' I saw four Wagner operas last winter out of the profits of one of them. You see that bed of strawberries? Well, we don't call them strawberries, but 'shoeberries.' I buy all the children's shoes and my own, too, out of the income from that strawberry-patch.

"These and many other little money-making schemes I manage myself, without troubling my husband, who works in the city for a not very big salary. Consequently we have a great many comforts and luxuries that we couldn't otherwise have; and I thoroughly enjoy the work, too."

Do not this lady's methods suggest a host of little things which other ladies might turn to use as money-makers, and find health and pleasure in so doing?

DUDELY CANESUCKER, a New York Society man, met with a serious accident and was taken to a hospital. One of his friends called and asked if Dudely was delirious. "Well, yes," replied the doctor, "I think he is a little cut of his head. He talked very sensibly a while ago."—Texas Siftings.

The True Gentleman.

True gentlemen are to be found in every grade of society. The plowman with his broad sun-burnt hand, his homely dress, and his open, honest countenance, is oftener found to be possessed of the real attributes of the gentleman than the enervated man-milliner, who is much more careful of his gloves than his honor; whose shirt bosom must be as pure as a virgin's form; and who, if one curl of his glossy wool were displaced, would be immediately thrown into strong convulsions. The blood which flows in a rich and generous stream through the heart of a Russian serf is as pure in the eyes of God as the life current which eddies round the princely fountain of the highest of England's noblemen. It is a false, illiberal idea, that because a man cannot claim alliance with the proud and wealthy his name should be stricken from the list of gentlemen. We are all created alike—our mothers suffer the same pangs; and shall the one who is ushered into life upon a silken couch spurn him whose limbs were first laid on a truss of straw? Which class from time immemorial has shed honor and glory on the earth—the proud aristocrat or the poor peasant? Whose names are enrolled on the pages of history—the gentleman of fashion or the gentleman of nature? Whose voices are most heard, and to most effect, throughout the world? Why, those of men born in poverty, but clothed by truth with the jeweled robe of honor. Does the mere fact of a man's being able to make a bow with scrupulous exactness constitute him a gentleman? Shall the children of one another be divided because one portion are gifted with gracefulness of action and coxcombry of demeanor; while the others will not cringe at flattery's fawn, or waste the hours given them by heaven to improve, in the useless study of the puerile forms of fashion?—City and Country.

Embroiderer's Cramp, the Latest Malady.

I am rather interested in the latest malady, which has been called embroiderer's cramp. It seems to be something after the nature of writer's cramp, and can only be removed by perfect rest and care. The elaborate altar cloths, stoles, and vestments, the embroidering of which has become quite a craze, are, of course, accountable for the greater part of the damage. While on this subject rumor has come my way that tatting is coming into fashion again, and I should think would be rather popular. Our grandmothers used to possess elegant shuttles, sometimes jeweled, so possibly the jeweler of to-day will find a new tax upon his ingenuity, compensated by a new source of profit.—Ladies' Pictorial.

A Chamber of Horrors.

The apartment to which the unhappy wretch is confined by inflammatory rheumatism is indeed a chamber of horrors. Appalling are the tortures inflicted by this agonizing complaint, and those endured by persons suffering from milder forms of it are severe enough. Obstinate as it is in its mature development, it is surely remediable at the outset with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an infinitely safer as well as more effective remedy than the poisons often used to subdue it. Always should it be borne in mind by those seeking relief from rheumatism, that though conquerable in the incipient stage, it is not only stubborn but dangerous when fully developed, on account of its tendency to attack the vital parts. This consideration should lead to the early adoption of curative measures. The Bitters will overcome malarial, kidney, dyspeptic and bilious trouble.

Ohio's Coal Product.

Ohio produced in 1889, according to the eleventh census, 9,976,787 tons of coal, valued at $9,355,400. This was an increase of more than 50 per cent. on the output of 1880, which was a little over 6,000,000 tons; but the increase in value was much less, as the average price at the mines was $1.28 per ton in 1880, and only 94 cents in 1889. The coal companies of the State hold 66,697 acres of land, besides large tracts under lease, the whole valued at $9,027,640. They have over $14,000,000 of capital invested, the number of their employes in 1889 was 19,343, and they paid $6,730,778 in wages.

Russian Wine.

Russia most people are accustomed to regard as a very cold country, and so it is in the northern region, but it has a large area in the southern zone. It will surprise many to learn that it has an area of vineyards amounting to about 458,250 acres, the average yield of wine from them being 55,300,000 gallons, of which rather more than half is grown in Caucasus.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. The Philanthropic Shoe-Man.

Irate Customer—Those shoes I bought for my boy last week are half worn out already, and I found a thick piece of pasteboard in the soles. What have you to say to that?

Dealer—My dear sir, the pasteboard is put in to keep the feet from touching the ground when the leather wears out. You wouldn't want your little boy to catch cold and die of consumption, would you?—Street & Smith's Good News.

Beauty Shows.

Beauty shows are, it appears, not quite a novelty. There was one held at Paris in 1655. In remembrance of the oldest competition of the kind, the prizes were golden apples. The first prize was, of course, awarded to the Queen of France, and the second was obtained with 1,723 points by a Mlle. Semure. Most of the prizes were given to ladies from Normandy.

Of Catarrh and You Have Permanent Cure

Diseases of long standing require persistent treatment to effect perfect cure, and this is particularly true of Catarrh in the head. This is a constitutional disease and therefore requires a like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Local applications, like snuffs and other inhalants, can at best give only temporary relief, as they reach only the result and not the cause of the disease. The latter is found in the impure taint in the blood, which Hood's Sarsaparilla removes, and thus the benefit from this medicine is permanent. Many people testify to cures of Catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Color Printing on Metals.

A wonderful process for direct polychrome printing upon metallic surfaces has been exhibited, by its inventor, before the French Society of Encouragement of National Industry. Mr. Josz, the inventor, calls his process metallochromy. The metal is prepared for printing by the mechanical action of very fine sand. A fine and close grain is the result, which is cleansed by immersion in several alkaline solutions. This surface thus slightly roughened has a velvety feel, and takes a lithographic impression as well as paper and other fabrics. Directly after the printing the metal is moderately heated, the object being to cause the ink to enter the pores. The impression, thereby, is printed in the metal itself, and is not merely superficial. The tests showed that metallochromic prints, covered with hot varnish and set by heat, presented the same appearance as enamel.

Purple.

It is often said that the old Phœnicians discovered the purple dye in the murex shell by observing a dog which had eaten one of the mollusks, and thus colored his chops with a rich purple satin. Curtius observes that the ancients were accustomed to hunt the murex by the assistance of pointer dogs. Some of the myths say that Heracles, by the aid of his dog, first discovered the purple murex.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

a remedy which if used as directed for a few weeks before confinement, robs it of its Pain, Horror and Risk to Life of both mother and child, as thousands who have used it testify.

A Blessing to Expectant Mothers.

Mother's Friend is worth its weight in gold. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her first two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of Mother's Friend. It is a blessing to mothers.

Literary Note.

The early days of the Illinois "Sangamon country" were prolific in matter for modern fiction, hard and unromantic as they seemed to the early settlers. The Youth's Companion of December 3, begins a bright story called "Chick-Shack," the scene of which is laid in the Sangamon County of sixty years ago. Abraham Lincoln, who was then trying his luck at surveying, plays a chivalric part as one of the characters of the story.

CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

Some of our young people meet weekly to read Milton's Paradise Lost.

Monday the collectors for the McCormick Harvester gave our town a call.

Mr. Cunningham of Reading, Mich., was in Waterloo the middle of last week.

J. F. Shuman was over at Auburn this week on some case before the commissioners.

Mrs. W. A. Fisher who has been visiting friends in Ft. Wayne, returned home Monday.

Holiday goods are being placed in position at our stores and we are looking for a lively trade.

Mrs. F. J. Yesbera and Mrs. Anice Leas of Auburn were calling on friends here Tuesday.

J. Lowenstein & Co. hope to close out and be able to go to Denver, Colorado, early in the New Year.

A Mrs. Lane occupies the building south of Zerkle's grocery and advertises to furnish hot meals at all hours.

Mr. Miller who keeps a saloon in the McAnally building, is going to move his family and saloon business to Auburn.

The ladies' of the M. E. church gave a supper last week Wednesday evening at the parsonage, for the small sum of 10 cents.

Mrs. Pierce of Toledo, Ohio, spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. DeWeese of this place, returning to her home Monday.

F. W. Thompson has rented the building on west side of Wayne street, north of Dr. Carpenter's drug store, where he will work up scrap leather.

Miss Cheney and Miss Jenny Timmerman went to Huntertown the latter part of last week to visit Miss Timmerman's sister, returning home early this week.

Three of our attorneys, C. M. Phillips, Gen. Blair, and W. H. Leas were in Auburn early this week, looking up matters that come before the board of commissioners.

An auction store has opened, and is in full blast, in the Duncan building, north of F. W. Willis' store. They have a variety of fine books' pictures, silver ware, etc, and seem to draw crowds of people.

One of our contractors from Illinois, on the new railroad, was thrown out or fell from a buggy at or near Hudson, and his neck was broken. Some one coming along found him dead. It occurred Sunday, we believe, and he had been drinking.

Mr. Morell spent Thanksgiving day with his son's family in Elkhart, returning home Saturday. Mrs. Morell spent the day in Auburn the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Nill: they had guests from Ft. Wayne and Toledo and intended it as a family reunion. Some of the invited could not make it convenient to be present. Mrs. M. is suffering yet from the cold she took a long time ago, and her friends are quite concerned about it.

BUTLER.

The M. E. friends are preparing for an old fashioned Christmas tree, and a good time is anticipated.

George Train is reported slightly improved. His family are worthy subjects of charity, and are not being forgotten by our good people.

The M. E. revival continues with varied fortune. Mrs. Hemphill is a very pleasant lady and her talks seem to create a very favorable impression.

A book auction has been here for the past two week, and has scattered a great many volumes of excellent reading matter in town and vicinity. Prices have ruled very low, and many books have been sold for less than the cost of binding.

Rev. Tedrow who recently came among us in the interest of the U. B. church, is creating a very favorable impression. The Rev. gentleman seems to posses not only ability in the pulpit, but a kindness and affability outside of it, that is winning his many friends.

The town power house has been pushed forward during the mild weather and is now roofed. The well is about completed. The iron mains are distributed along the principal streets and altogether our little town begins to look citified. The poles will be put up in a few days and the electric wires put on them, and as soon as the engine can be placed in position and the machinery put in, we will have electric lights.

Mrs. Walter Maxwell, died suddenly last Monday morning. She had undergone a surgical operation at Detroit, some months since, and had every indication of of regaining her former health, but a sudden relapse caused her death as above stated. She was a daughter of John Shoub's of this place, and leaves a husband and several small children.

ST. JOE.

George Ridgway has moved to the east end and is occuping the new residence of John Lochner.

The stock yards war has quieted down with Culbertson, White and Stafford still a little in advance.

O. H. Widney has added quite an extensive addition to his residence since his return to this place.

Will Leighty has a position as night operation at Holgate, Ohio, and left Sunday for that place.

William Simanton has his new residence nearly completed and will have when done one among the finest residence in town.

A. F. Woodcox, of Coldwater, Michigan, who has been working for J. Simanton the past winter returned to his home last Wednesday.

Warren A. Mason, of Butler, was in town Friday of last week in company of Attorney Frank Brick, of Newville, on business in the J. P. court.

Grandpa Leighty and Mrs. H. W. Bowman returned from Minnesota a few days ago. They report excellent sleighing and very cold weather when they left.

J. D. Leighty made a business trip to Baltimore last week. Failure of a certain commission firm to whom himself and Barney Bro. had made consignments of grain was the cause of the trip.

James Ryan was at Garrett and Auburn Wednesday of last week. At the latter place he was on business connected with the removal of his wife's remains from one lot to another in the Catholic cemetery.

Jacob Sechler and Frank Barney are champion sheep buyers. If the B. & O. railroad could only furnish cars enough, the above firm will contract to keep New York, Baltimore, Buffalo, Boston and all other eastern cities and runing over with sheep.

Our old friend Sol. Shilling was in town on Saturday looking after the interest of several car loads of stock which his sons were shipping. Uncle Sol's. presence on our streets for a few hours brings back old times when if we did not see him every day it was feared something serious was the matter.

Some one remarked last Saturday that from the appearance of things we were likely to loose one of our school teachers. A young gent by the name of Sherman Bond was seen going down street in a rush with Emma close beside him. Any one knowing of their wherebouts will please report to township trustee.

Uncle Jim, our jolly old postmaster keeps improving in and around the post-office, although Bill Curie tells him that there are no less than five or six good democrats who have their traps set for his place as soon as the votes are counted in November 1892. Uncle Jim don't seem to feel very much alarmed.

If any of the parents of our schools will take the pains to visit the school they will find everything moving along in the best of order. Miss Laura Shutt is principal and it is conceded by all that there are few better for such a position. Fred Jenkins has charge of the grammar department and needs no words of ours to say that the department is well looked after. Miss Emma Curie has charge of the intermediate and is giving the best of satisfaction, as this is her third term in that department and certainly speaks well for her. Miss Audry Woodcox is queen over the primary, and she wields the scepter right royally. She has from 40 to 50 wee boys and girls, nearly all one size, and to be there on a cold evening when school is about closing, a person would naturaly suppose that the little ones were in good homes. So careful is she of their welfare that the wraps of all must be properly adjusted so that all will keep warm on their way home. On several occasions it has been our luck to be there at the closing and it is amusing to hear the little ones in all parts of the room whispering "teacher will you please fix my coat, hat or cap." And then to see the motherly manner in which she does her kindly acts to one and all. Again we say, parents visit the schools and see how your children are being cared for.

CONCORD.

G. W. Draggoo was at St. Joe Tuesday.

"Kalender Kirmiss."

The ladies of the Methodist church are now ready to place before the people "The Kalender Kirmess." They have secured the large trimming room of W. H. Kiblinger on the corner of Seventh and Jackson streets. And will give their entertainment Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, which will consist of drills, music and winding of the May pole by ten little girls. In connection with this they will give to all who desire it, a good supper Friday evening for 15 cents, an oyster supper Saturday evening for 20 cents. 10 cents will admit you to the room. The ladies have spared neither time nor money to make this a grand success. The Kirmiss consists of twelve booths representing the months of the year, which will be handsomely decorated. The ladies in charge of these booths will be dressed in costumes appropriate to the season they represent, and will carry a full line of fancy work, which they will sell at very low prices. A most cordial invitation is extended to all.

Great Argument.

In big headlines the Dispatch says, in the first, "The Courier favors higher taxes," and in the second, right after it, it adds as the Courier's idea "The levy must be made so small that people cannot see it." As the levy is now large enough to be seen easily, we don't see how making it so small as to be invisible would be increasing it. So the Dispatch contradicts itself right in its own headlines. And as if this were not foolish enough, it goes on and quotes what we said about building a poorhouse. In that we said we were willing to trust to the judgment of the commissioners, and that when they saw that we must have a new one, let them make as small a levy as possible so it would not oppress the people, and then a year or two later, we would have a little money ahead for this purpose, and then we could build, not a gaudy structure, but a comfortable one. After quoting us in this, the Dispatch goes on to argue against our plan, and carries the idea that we cannot wait, but must build at once. This would of course mean much higher taxes at once than the Courier proposed, and again contradicts the Dispatch in its efforts to make the people believe that the Courier wants as high taxes as the Dispatch does. One would think that a man in his right mind would see the effect of his own words. But the Dispatch can't see as far ahead as some people. In the shortest form, the article stands. (a) The Courier would have the new poorhouse when it must be built, put up with as small a levy as possible. (b) The Dispatch says put it up at once, without regard to cost. Therefore, (c) The Courier is in favor of a higher tax than the Dispatch is. A man who puts out a false statement accompanied by his own contradiction thereof, will never succeed as a falsifier.

It Should be in Every House.

J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpsburg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with pneumonia after an attack of "LaGrippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of Auburn Lodge, K. of P., No. 191, to be held on Friday evening, Dec. 25, 1891, there will be an election of one Trustee, to serve for three [3] years, or until his successor is elected.

M. B. Willis, jr., K. of R. & S.

Our Sunday Mail.

Auburn never had such complete mail facilities as now. We gave notice last week of several points that were new. We might add that these new mails are not only for week days, but for Sundays. On Sunday morning two mails are received, one over the Wabash, and one over the B. & O. In the evening one is sent over the B. & O. going east and west. In this way each morning we get last evening's mail from Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville, Detroit, etc., and get our mail to them about the same way. It is a great advantage. Mr. Gordon has labored faithfully to secure these changes, and should have credit for it. Of course this additional work falls heavy on Wash Askew who has the contract to carry mail between town and the Junction as several changes have been added to him. He should now have more pay.

MR GLADSTONE'S WIFE.

Mrs. Wm. E. Gladstone has long been known as one of the most motherly women in England. When a young wife, years ago, she began to make a careful study of the bringing up of children. No trouble was too great for her to spend upon the children which came to her, and that she succeeded in finding the best methods is attested by the positions which her children occupy in England today. What required years of labor for her to learn, Mrs. Gladstone has now consented to tell in a series of articles which will be published in the Ladies' Home Journal, of Philadelphia, during 1892. Mrs. Gladstone calls her series, "Hints from a Mother's Life," and in her articles she will tell what should be a young mother's first step with her baby; a child's best surroundings; how to wash and dress an infant; what an ideal nursery should be; how a child can be kept healthy, and gives, besides, some rules which are destined to become standard. The articles will be like a manual for the nursery, and thousands of American mothers will read Mrs. Gladstone's words. It is seldom that a woman of Mrs. Gladstone's high position writes on such a practical subject, and this fact will lend all the more interest to this series in the Journal. It is said that Mrs. Gladstone was paid an enormous price for the articles, and it is creditable to the enterprising publishers that they had the liberality to secure and place such material before American mothers.

The Ohio Line.

It turns out as the Courier said it probably would, a very small matter. The surveyors report that the line may vary a mile or two, and that is all. Sometimes it will be on one side, then on the other, the trouble being caused by imperfect instruments, and possibly by not fully allowing for what is called "variations of the needle." The report will advise the legislatures of the two states to have the matter adjusted, but it is hardly probable that anything will be done further.

Man near Columbus, Ind., digging a well last week, found several well preserved logs at a depth of forty feet. They were of a strange kind of timber.

Save Your Eyes.

Don't ruin your eyes, by wearing improper glasses, or those not properly fitted. Get an experienced and skillful man to fit them to your eyes. So wait till C. J. Porter, the Waterloo optician, comes to Auburn. He will be at the Hollister House, the first Tuesday in each month. Don't forget the date.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

Mrs. N. P. Ferguson has been very sick sor some time. She is treated by Dr. Nusbaum.

The singing class that was organized at No. 9, last April by H. Maggins closed Sunday night, Nov. 29. It has been a successful class. They gave a concert at the Mt. Olivet church.

H. J. Hyatt continues his singing class twice a week at Grove Bethel.

John Bailey has moved from Auburn to the country.

The hands working on the John Cool ditch were stopped on account of high water last week.

Financially Embarassed.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarassed, and who overworked and broken down with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. He ought to have advised him to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the best remedy for nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, headache, ill effects of spirits, tobacco, coffee, opium, etc. Thousands testify to cures. This is to certify that I had a breaking out that extended all over my back and from my shoulders to my hips, my suffering was intense. I tried three different doctors that treated my case for two years without receiving any benefit, I then went to A. Y. Rosebury and in five weeks he dismissed my case and at present I am feeling comfortable. It has been over a year since he dismissed my case. My wife was troubled very much with scrofula, and A. Y. Rosenbury treated her case at the same time, and she is quite well at this writing.

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

SANTA FE, N. M. Nov. 1, '91.

Leaving Santa Fe on Monday evening, Nov. 1st, passing through the most picturesque part of the trip in the night time but we were all astir at daylight to see Starvation Peak (or Bernal Peak) which is named to perpetuate the memory of Father Juan Bernal, who it is said was murdered by Peublo Indians in 1680 while on the top of the mountain engaged in solitary prayer.

The top of the peak is perfectly flat containing about fifteen acres, where is found a small white flower with a red center which has never been found anywhere else. There was erected many years ago, on top of the peak, five huge crosses which are plainly seen from the tableland below. From Santa Fe to Las Vegas we passed through some very fine timbered country, especially in the neighborhood of Glorieta mountains, where there are erected great troughs from the summit of the mountain to its base, down which they slide the logs, when cut, to be loaded on wagons, or cars, at the base of the mountain for shipment. We crossed the Pecos river at San Miguel.

The valley there is very much narrower than at Eddy, some 200 miles below. In many places the tillable land is not more than one-fourth of a mile wide, while on either side for miles is a formation of limestone with a covering of sand not more than six inches in depth in many places.

At 8:25 a. m. we steamed into Las Vegas, the most thoroughly American town of any note in New Mexico, where we were taken in charge by the Montezuma Club and driven to the Plaza Hotel for breakfast, where were many of the Indiana citizens now residents of New Mexico, to bid us welcome. And a very conspicuous figure was that of Judge Long, formerly Chief Justice of New Mexico, but now enjoying a lucrative law practice there, who met many of his old Indiana friends. After breakfast Dr. Gould, editor of the Las Vegas Optic, delivered the address of welcome to the Hoosiers, and his speech was so grand that not even our orator, Mr. Stoll, could recover from the spell of admiration a sufficient length of time to respond. After breakfast we were driven about the city to see the wondrous growth of American enterprise. Las Vegas (or the city of the meadows, in English) is the county seat of San Miguel county, one of the largest in area and population in the Territory. As such it has a fine jail costing $150,000, and the Territorial insane asylum to cost, when completed, $175,000. These buildings as well as the Episcopal church, the Tamme opera house, the First National bank the magnificent store structure of Chas. Ilfied, the Montezuma Hotel, the Catholic Cathedral and a number of private dwellings, are built of white and red sandstone which is found on the border of the town in almost inexhaustible quantities. Las Vegas is also quite an educational center. They have located there the Jesuit College, the Christian Brothers College, the Convent of the Sisters of Loretto, the Presbyterian Mission school, the Academy, the Seminary, and three public schools. They have the first public school building at Las Vegas ever erected in the Territory by public taxation, and the New Mexico school system is the same as that of Indiana, being copied almost verbatim from the Acts of Indiana legislature. Las Vegas has a population of about 6,000, is located at the heighth of 6,500 feet above sea level, is the largest distributing center in the Territory, and handles immense quantities of wool, grain and lumber. The sheep raisers in New Mexico, many of them, clip their sheep twice a year, in the spring and fall, although the wool marketed does not bring as good price as that which grows the full year.

We were shown through the large store rooms of Grass, Blackwell & Co. where team after team loaded to their utmost capacity were unloading their freight of wool, hides and grain, and filling their wagons with flour, sugar, etc., for the return trip to the ranches or mines. Las Vegas is a commercial town of no mean importance and commands the major part of all the industries of the Territory unless it is fruit raising and mining. The people of Las Vegas are much enthused over the prospects of a new railroad running from Trinidad, Col., to El Paso, Texas, which will pass through the better parts of the tillable land of eastern New Mexico, and also be within easy access to many of the better mines. The building of this road will open up new counties for the enterprising merchants Las Vegas to trade with and thus be of great advantage to them as they now must depend on freight wagons, for much of this traffic with the producing sections of their part of the Territory. Las Vegas has one of the best equipped health resorts in the United States, situated in a hollow in the mountains, surrounded by high peaks on every side; the magnificent hotel which will accommodate 700 guests commands a beautiful view. We dined at this hotel and remained at the Hot Springs all night, then in the early morning returned to Las Vegas and then commenced our return trip, as we had made our last stop and it was well, for the excursionists were getting tired, as the two weeks life in a sleeper is not very invigorating. On our return we passed through the coal fields of New Mexico, where they mine several hundred cars daily. The principal coal fields of the Territory are located in the Raton mountains. We also crossed the tract of land known as the Maxwell Land Grant, of which so much was heard a few years. The grant was a very large one but as far as anything is visible from the cars, not very valuable for anything except for mining purposes. After passing through Raton tunnel we came out into level country and by daybreak were spinning across the rolling prairis of Kansas

All during our journey everything was done by the people, entertaining the Association that could be done to make it pleasant for the party. The editors themselves extended to those of us who were not "real editors" every courtesy that could be asked and endeavored to make us feel as one of them.

To the secretary, Mr. Louis McDonald, is due the greatest praise, for the faithfulness and promptness with which he managed every detail of the party's trip, and looked after the convenience of each individual member in the two cars. In this he was greatly assisted by Mr. Hartwell, traveling passenger agent of the Santa Fe railroad, who accompanied us on the whole trip. The Santa Fe railroad has every convenience of travel, and is especially to be praised for its fine system of dining rooms all along its picturesque route. The excursion they gave the members of the Northern Indiana Editorial association will long be remembered by the participants, who each feel that too much cannot be said in behalf of the Santa Fe railroad and of New Mexico.

The truth of it is that the territory of New Mexico with its increasing wealth and population begging for admission to the sisterhood of states, is not half appreciated by those outside of the Territory. It is a grand place and when known by the people generally, will grow to be one of the richest states in the Union, should it ever be so fortunate as to receive an answer to its repeated knockings for admission.

Bad Work.

M. E. Blair, the tooth puller, is getting up quite a reputation such as it is. He has had bad luck at other places besides Auburn, but he had the closest call for a bad case here last Thursday. John Stonestreet, a well known young farmer of Butler township, came up that day to get a couple of extracted and finding that Dr. Johnston, who had always done his work, was at Waterloo, about four o'clock he went up to Dr. Coats' office where Blair works when here and he undertook to do the job. Blair gave him some of his patent preparation to kill pain, and the teeth were taken out but in bad shape. The patient however, didn't come out at all, but lay there three or four hours, while strenuous efforts were made to revive him. At last Dr. Buchtel was summoned, and after a time, Stonestreet seemed to show more life. As soon as they could, he was carried to Dr. Buchtel's office, and remained there till morning gradually getting into better shape. Toward morning some parties who thought Blair should be brought to punishment for the matter, got Mr. Hartman to prepare a warrant for his arrest, but we believe it was not, finally, served. When the north-bound freight came, he left for Waterloo. In the meantime Stonestreet had recovered sufficiently to be out on the street, though he remained exceedingly weak. It was a close call for him and he says no money will tempt him so close to death's door again. Dr. Johnston fixed up his mouth for him before he went home. As to Blair it is believed he did not know the character of the medicine he was giving or else made a mistake. He may, or may not be a dentist, but he has a certificate as a physician. His mode of pulling teeth is propably a painless one. But this case proves it also, to be very dangerous. Our own home dentists have various improved methods for doing the same work, that are at the same time, safe. We shall always believe that the best way to have a tooth pulled, is to have it pulled without taking anything, but done by a skillful, experienced and responsible man. But if, however, a person feels the need of some means by which the harshness of the operation can be toned down, then a thousand times more, is the necessity having it done by safe hands. Have it done by a dentist whose skill, honesty and responsibility have been tested by years of experience in our midst.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 5, 1891.

EDITOR COURIER;—The snowlands are left behind; summer in all its glory is around us, and our hearts beat high in anticipation of good things yet to come. The steamship lies at the wharf waiting for the signal, then all aboard and we will away for the sunlands beyond the sea, where grows the cocoanut, where sleeps the lazy native beneath his shady bough, where roams the tiger and the boar, where gentle zephyrs from the sea rustle through the lemon trees, where birds and bees and fruits and flowers add beauty to the leafy bowers. Only thirty-five hours from home via Illinois Central. We will now go aboard the steamer, Dashing Wave, and in three days we will land in the republic of Honduras. We will not speculate on the ultimate outcome of our expedition, but will let the readers of the COURIER hear from us from time to time, and shall endeavor to present facts as truthfully as possible as they appear to me. Resp'y yours,

JOSEPH A. SHADE.

Auburn in Luck.

For some time there has been a desire on the part of many of our citizens for a course of lectures this winter. A call or two have been made for a meeting to arrange for this much needed social and educational work in Auburn but nothing has been accomplished. We are, however, to be favored with at least one first-class lecture. The "famous wit and orator," John De Witt Miller, of Philadelphia, will lecture Thursday evening, Jan. 21st, 1892. Dr. Miller is to lecture in the regular lecture course of the Tri-State Normal school at Angola, Jan. 20, and again in one of the western cities the 22d, leaving the evening of the 21st vacant. Because of this vacancy Mr. Merica, as superintendent of the M. E. Sabbath school, has been able to secure this great lecturer in the interest of the school. It is a big undertaking of the school in securing such talent, and this enterprising spirit for the social and educational welfare of the town should be encouraged by a very liberal attendance.

Annexation Still Growing.

That there is some agitation in Canada over the matter of annexation, is plain as the talk in their papers will show. A late copy of the "Victoria Warden," published at Lindsay, Ontario, has a British flag displayed at the head of its editorial columns, under which is a paraphrase of our old stanza about "the Union of hearts" etc., and theirs ends instead of "the flag of the Union, forever," with "the flag—British Union. forever." And in another column, headed by a big flag, is a spirited anecdote about the circuit judge at Sandwich, below Detroit, and who finding no flag on the court house asked the sheriff the cause. The latter replied that they had no good flag, and felt ashamed to put up the old one. The judge told him that old or new, it must go up, and it did. But next morning there was again no flag, and the sheriff excused its absence, to the judge, by saying the halyards were rotten and had broken. The judge ordered the halyards mended by noon. At noon, however, he saw it had not been done, and again called up the sheriff. The latter said the reason was, the county clerk had refused to have the repairs made, as it would cost about $10. The judge retorted that it would cost the county more than that if he had to adjourn court as he certainly would if no flag was on the court house, as the law said a flag must be floating while court was in session. That settled it, but it shows there is a certain amount of feeling there, on the subject.

Continued Another Week.

A very remarkable carpet sale inaugurated last week by the Foster Furniture & Carpet Co., of Fort Wayne, has caused a big sensation in northeastern Indiana. Hundreds of pieces of beautiful brussels carpets sold at 50 cents a yard, for which one usually has to pay one dollar a yard, is cause enough for wonder and excitement. A cotton ingrain carpet costs that much. Moquette carpets which usually sell at $1.75 per yard now being sold by them for $1.00 per yard is another matter of wonder. You perhaps never supposed the time would come when you could afford a moquette carpet on your parlor, but here is an opportunity to buy a moquette carpet at the usual price paid for a brussels. When purchasing your carpets you can also make your Christmas selections of furniture of the same firm. Bear in mind that for a holiday, birthday or wedding present, nothing is so acceptable as some useful piece of furniture. The Foster Furniture & Carpet Co. are largely monopolizing the Fort Wayne trade in their lines of goods.

Drunkenness, or the Liquor Habit, Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never Fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars free. AUBURN AND VICINITY.

The railroad to Auburn had suspended, but the Air Line east and west through the north central part of the county had continued straight forward through successive stages of survey, grading and track laying till on May 26, 1856, the villagers of Butler heard with pleasure the first sound of the whistle as an engine entered the place.

The projectors of the Air Line had excellent credit and the records show a loan to them by an eastern capitalist of a million and a half dollars.

Capitalist likewise were interested in the growth of a village and shipping point at Waterloo, while Sedan and Corunna came into existence as the road extended west through the county.

The possibilities of the new villages attracted attention from some of Auburn's leading citizens, and in 1857, among the names of A. and D. W. Blaker, Wm. L. Blair, Benj. Casey, Joseph Beck, Charles Norris, George Egnew, James Revett and George W. Maxwell, lot owners in the village of Butler. We find also, of T. R. Dickinson credited with title in No. 175 of the newly platted lots.

Among a dozen persons in business there were, Stiefel & Wolf, familiar names to Auburn people. A. A. Kinnedy had built a large tavern-stand which was dedicated on July 4, 1857, on which occassion, the railroad company gave an excursion ride to Toledo and return the same day.

The railroad gave an outlet for produce that brought grain and produce buyers to Butler, and farmers then had a market for their produce that then successfully competed with the old market of Ft. Wayne. Butler won and held a reputation as a trading point and the door of prosperity stood open.

Meanwhile Waterloo began existence. A railroad office erected upon what was known as the Gillet lot, was the first building put up. Eli Williamson built the first house, James Irving and John Wood put up the store buildings; the former rented to the firm of Willard & Keller, the latter kept a grocery and restaurant. Various parties engaged in business for brief periods of time.

Among lot owners in 1857, were Robert Lockhart, J. Winslow, H. P. Colgrove, and again here the familiar names of R. Ettinger and T. R. Dickinson.

There were 41 owners of lots. The lot having the highest value of improvement $400, was the property of J. U. Winslow, and the highest assessed personal property owner was W. R. McAnally, who is listed $1550.

Thus with speedy growth these villages began to claim and receive the patronage of the farmer and at the same time despite its central location, county seat, public buildings, and long settlement. Auburn was placed on the defensive and without a market, was for years compelled to look on and see wagons freighted with grain from the southern townships passing through her streets northward bound to Corunna and Waterloo, and to enter upon a long and at times almost hopeless struggle, even for its then chief distinction of being the seat of government.

Meantime with the growing villages, the county kept pace and the farmer in near market for the products of his fields and woods, felt the stimulus, and the great task of converting the forest to arable lands went on.

The traveler upon our roads will occasionally come upon a hewed log house, perhaps yet occupied, but most are deserted and crumbling—suggestive relics of the olden day, and behind many a fine frame or brick dwelling, may be seen the old log house where the start was made, the family raised and the unalloyed happiness that comes of busy hand, honest purpose, good digestion, sound sleep and that greatest of blessings—perfect health.

The old orchard still stands but the well sweep has been superseded by the wind pump and the "old oaken bucket" no longer hangs in the well.

In 1857, the improvements and facilities now known were unimagined, yet the value of assessables increased and as ever, the tax lines were augmented in full proportion.

The condition of the county treasury is shown by the statement of June 1st when the total receipts were given as $20,382.67; the disbursments had been $18,421.31, leaving in the treasury $1961.36 and orders outstanding to the amount of $3,988.17. The tax duplicate of 1857, amounted to $29,542.07.

On March 5th, L. D. Britton, who had previously served, W. C. McGonigal, publisher of the DeKalb County Democrat and Rev. Randall Faurot, a Disciple minister of scholastic attainments, were appointed school examiners. Thus the farm, the press and the pulpit were represented in the teachers' examining board, who were recommended by the commissioners to hold two public examinations during the year, at such times and places as a majority of them should agree upon. This may be taken as a step in advance from the hasty, imperfect, private examinations held as applicants presented themselves before any one of the examiners.

Mr. McGonigal some years later gave up the business of publishing a newspaper and returned to DeKalb county where he became himself a teacher for a number of years in the public schools, and finally removed to the west.

Mr. Faurot was a teacher as well as preacher, and many of the once students at the Newville Academy will recall his appearance, his grave tones and his admonitions to take "Time by the forelock."

He went south during the war in the interest of the freedmen, returning to this county, and finally removed to Mississippi, where he resumed work among the colored people and where he died.

At the May election in Auburn, three tickets were in the field but the number of votes cast was but 49. The years have been busy with these and one-fourth are dead, one-fourth still live in Auburn and the rest have moved elsewhere.

The new Town Board were Messrs. Ettinger, Espy, Berry, Tinney and Chamberlain; O. C. Houghton was clerk; Hiram Griswold, marshal; J. P. Widney, assessor, and J. W. Rickel treasurer.

A Mail Wagon Robbed by Masked Men in the Heart of Chicago—An Inhuman Father—A Regular Blizzard in Colorado.

INHUMAN ACTS

Of Thomas Sidler, a Bohemian Farmer.

The people of Weir City and Cherokee County, Kan., are amazed at the inhuman acts of Thomas Sidler, a Bohemian farmer. Last week while his daughter was dying, he would not allow a clergyman, who wished to see her, to enter the house. The following day one of the boys was sick, but Sidler refused any assistance from the doctor or neighbors, shutting them out and declared he would kill the first man who attempted to enter the house. The next day the boy died, and the neighbors instituted an investigation and found that Sidler had been giving his children a solution of alum with other poisonous drugs. A third child is reported dying, and another is very sick. He does not act like a crazy man, but if he is not a lunatic he is one of the most cold-blooded and heartless of murderers.

Engineer and Fireman Killed in a Wreck.

The Chicago limited express on the Hudson River railroad, leaving New York at 4:50 p. m. and making no stops between New York and Albany, ran into a train of three coal cars, an engine and tender, at Fishkill Station, N. Y. Both engines were completely wrecked. The fireman of the express, John Smith, of Albany, was scalded to death; and the engineer, James Kelly, of Albany, was so badly scalded that his life is despaired of. Several passengers were cut by glass from the windows, and others bruised by concussion. None were fatally injured. The limited was behind time, and the coal train was switching with semaphores set for danger. The tracks were wet and the air brakes of the limited refused to work.

Daring Robbery.

A United States mail wagon in Chicago filled with registered and other matter was stopped by five men and robbed of its contents. The robbery took place on Mather street, between Desplaines and Halstead streets, and was so quickly done that before the affair was reported to the police, the robbers had half an hour start. In a refuse box on the north side, three miles from the scene of the robbery, the cut mail pouches and their rifled contents were found. The wagon was on its way to the main postoffice with mail from the stock yards and southwest stations. How much matter the bag contained or the value of the contents, the officials were unable to determine.

A Regular Blizzard.

Pueblo (Col.) special: The severest storm ever known here raged six hours Wednesday. Wires of all kinds were prostrated and traffic generally suspended. A regular blizzard is blowing. Two houses have been blown down, but no one was hurt. Reports from other Colorado points and Raton, N. M., state that business is almost entirely suspended on account of the blizzard. Runners from the ranges in Montana report cattle standing half covered with snow and thousands dying from cold and starvation.

In Uncle Sam's Clutches.

Lester Payne, operating under the name of Lester Payne & Co., was arrested by the postoffice authorities at Battle Creek, Mich., charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes. At the examination he was bound over to appear at the United States District Court next spring, bail being placed at $1,000. Payne's practice has been to order goods from wholesale houses, not paying a cent for them, and selling them at half their value. It is said he has obtained $30,000 worth of goods in this way.

A Serious Railway Accident.

There was a serious railroad accident at Accrington, Lancashire, nineteen miles from Manchester, England, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire railway. A freight train overran its steps and burst into the wall of the freight depot. That building thereupon collapsed burying several people in the ruins. One dead body has been extricated from the ruins and many persons are injured. The search for the wounded continues.

Found a Bag of Gold Dust.

A bag containing $5,000 worth of gold dust, which may have been secreted by express robbers, has been found in a heap of cinders by some workmen who were employed in laying a granite sidewalk at Twelfth street and Lucas avenue, St. Louis. The bag was 14 inches long and weighed about twelve pounds.

Attempted Assassination.

A desperate attempt was made by a crank to assassinate Judge Horace S. Clark, Commander of the G. A. R. of Illinois, at Mattoon. The Judge received a number of severe wounds, but they are not likely to prove fatal. Frank Hornish is the name of the crank who did the shooting. He was captured.

A Town Badly Crippled.

An Oakes, N. D., special says: The business portion of that town was destroyed by fire, and Dr. Nelson, in whose office and drug store the flames started, was burned to death. The losses will aggregate $30,000, about two-thirds covered by insurance.

The Report Not Credited.

The report that Turkey and Greece desire to join the Zolvereign is not credited at the embassy in London of either of these countries.

A French Duel.

M. Chas. Soiler and Col. Andruzzi fought a duel in Paris. M. Soiler was "pinked" in the arm, but received only a slight wound, while Col. Andruzzi sustained a severe wound in the breast. The quarrel originated in a discussion on colonial politics.

Not a Candidate for Re-election.

Senator Quay told four newspaper men in an interview that he was not a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

Concerning Free Passes.

Attorney General Miller has determined to test the right of railway companies to issue free passes. The question to be decided is whether the issue of such passes is a violation of the Inter-State Commerce Law. He will shortly bring suit against one of the New England railroads, known to have largely issued passes, proably the Boston and Maine. The suit will be instituted in New Hampshire and a special attorney will be appointed to conduct the case. The Government is eager to obtain a judicial construction of the act upon this point and the issue hangs upon the question of whether or not there is a prohibition against passes including the clause prohibiting that no rates shall be given either more or less than the fixed schedule of the road.

GAVE THE WORD,

And Seven Men Were Shot.

Denver special: A strike of the miners of the Colorado Coal and Iron Company, at Crested Butte, has resulted more seriously than was at first anticipated, and there are yet indications of further bloodshed before the battle is settled. About two weeks ago 500 Austrian and Italian miners, employed at these works, went out on strike because of a proposed reduction of wages announced by the company. Since the men went out they have been very ugly, and have paraded the streets heavily armed, threatening death to any one who should attempt to assist the company. The other day Sheriff Shares, of Gunnison, arrived there with a posse of twenty-five men for the purpose of taking possession and guarding the mines. No sooner had the Sheriff and his men alighted from the train when they were attacked by about 200 armed Sicilians and Austrians, who began firing with their Winchester rifles. The officer held his men for a moment, and then ordered them to return the fire, which they did with deadly effect, killing Mike Copuicine, Mike Minnelon, Mike Guericio, Mike Warn, and John Poche. They were all Italians. George Simonich and Matt Grakak, Austrians, were fatally wounded. After the firing the miners retreated, and the Sheriff's posse marched up the hill and took possession of the mines and threw up redoubts. The miners are swearing revenge upon every friend of the coal company, and the town of Crested Futte is upon the verge of a riot. Further trouble is feared, which, if started, will result in many dangers.

The Governor has called out the State militia.

THIRTY WERE LOST.

The British Ship Enterkin Goes Down.

London special: Thirty lives are reported lost by the foundering of the British ship Enterkin. She was bound from Hull for Brisbane, and was caught in the channel during the heavy storm. Notwithstanding the utmost efforts to save the vessel, she was driven on the sand near Ramagate and went to pieces. The only person known to be saved was an apprentice boy.

The Enterkin was standing on an inshore tack and the wind blew so furiously that it was impossible to carry sail enough to prevent her from making leeway, and she was driven ashore almost broadside. After she had struck a part of the crew succeeded in launching a boat and got clear of the ship. They headed shoreward, but were almost immediately thrown into the sea by the swamping of their boat by a high-roller, which broke over the stern and filled it. Every man who was in the boat was drowned almost in sight of his comrades on the wreck.

Shortly afterward, the ship, which had been standing upon a comparatively even keel, was struck by a tremendously high sea, and she heeled over throwing every person aboard of her into the water. Only one of them, the apprentice boy, whose name is Lewis, succeeded in gaining the weather rigging, which by the keeling over the vessel was just awash. Here the lad remained throughout the night, drenched and almost frozen. Next morning a fishing smack under very short sail, sighted the wreck and bore down to it. With much difficulty a boat was got alongside the Enterkin and Lewis was taken off. Many of the thirty drowned seamen were foreigners.

AGAIN DEFEATED.

Chinese Rebels Slaughtered Before the Imperial Troops.

Shanghai special: The rumor that the rebels have suffered another defeat is confirmed. They were followed up so closely by General Nich after the battle of Chao-Yang that they made another stand in desperation, and were again driven with great slaughter before the imperial troops. The particulars of the fight have not been received. Europeans here express the opinion that the rebels would have surrendered or dispersed, but for their knowledge that no mercy would be shown to them. Information from rebel sources is to the effect that certain Mongolian tribes were initiated into rebellion by the increased exactions and greater vigor of the Chinese authorities.

The Chinese have lately been establishing a stricter administration in the portions of the Empire adjoining Russian territory, and the Mongols have been brought that closely within the imperial jurisdiction. The motive of this is to present a compact defense to possible aggressions by Russia.

Li Hung Chang has ordered the punishment of all who were engaged in the massacre of native Christians at Tien Tsin, and several rioters have been captured and executed, the Pekin Government having granted leave for immediate beheading in all such cases.

Burned to Death.

Bertha Hanke, a young girl of 13 years, living with the family of her brother, Albert Hanke, at St. Paul, Minn., was burned to death. The child had gone to her room, and was about to retire. A small kerosene lamp stood on the bureau, and in trying to extinguish it by blowing into the top of the chimney, the lamp exploded, the flames striking the little girl full in the face and breast. She rushed from the room wildly screaming, and terrifying the other members of the family who were about to retire. Mrs. Hanke hastily snatched some quilts and threw them about the little form now completely enveloped in flames but they were evidently too light to extinguish the blaze and the frantic child rushed from the house, shrieking wildly. Mr. J. Rausman, who occupies the lower floor, heard her screams and hurried to the rescue, and wrapping a thick woolen blanket about the girl put out the flames. The little victim was carried up stairs and a physician summoned. She suffered frightful pangs of agony, but lived for two hours and was conscious up to the time of her death. The flames had burned her lips to a crisp and penetrated her lungs, almost entirely destroying them.

Swept by a Storm.

London special: Another severe gale has swept over the British Isles causing an immense amount of damage almost everywhere. Houses were unroofed, chimneys blown down, and a number of wrecks are strewn along the coast. Happily, up to the present, there has been no loss of life reported; but there is much additional suffering among those who have already lost by the half dozen serious storms which have marked the past year as being an unprecedented one in the weather history of this side of the Atlantic. Owing to the fact that the telegraph wires are down in several sections, communications with those parts is momentarily interrupted.

Arrived Home Naked and Died.

The other night William Ronzer and a young lady named McBride were returning from a dance near Slanesville, Hampton County, W. Va., when they lost their way in the woods, and concluded to build a fire and camp out till daylight. By some means the young woman's clothing caught fire and was entirely burned from her body, although Ronzer rendered every assistance in his power and was himself burned so badly that his arms will have to be amputated. Notwithstanding that she was nude and frightfully burned, Miss McBride found her way home by morning, and died shortly after reaching there.

The Fort Nilt Affair.

London special: Dispatches received here from Calcutta say that there has been considerable fighting near Gilgal, on the Pamir frontier. The tribesmen have taken to the hills and all pursuit has been stopped for the present. There has been no further loss of life among the British and the wounded are all doing well. Considerable activity is manifested in certain government offices here, especially in the Indian offices, but it is anticipated that no further steps will be taken until the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Governor of India, has forwarded to England his report of the Fort Nilt incident.

Constitutional Amendments.

When the Congress is in condition to proceed with business Representative Bryan, of Nebraska, will propose a constitutional amendment that will, if adopted, permit any State to elect its United State Senators by the vote of the people. Another measure it has in view, is intended to correct an evil that he says prevails to a great extent in the Northwest. He proposes to compel the sale of all property under United States Court processes in the county where the property is sold, and causing the advertising of to be likewise made in the county.

Louisville Has It.

Grip has struck Louisville, Ky., on its return engagement with great force. Within the past three days it has become almost epidemic there. A prominent physician says that there are at least 10,000 cases in the city. The ailment does not appear to be very malignant, but its victims are prostrated and suffer severely. All the physicians are busy night and day, and they predict that the present visitation of the grip will be the worst yet experienced, as the atmospheric conditions are considered peculiarly favorable for its spread.

The Color Line.

Olvin J. Nall, a colored man, has begun suit in the Circuit Court at Chicago against the McVicker's Theater Company to recover $500 under the civil rights law. December 1, Nall says he invested $2 for a box seat to witness the "Country Circus." The doorkeeper took his ticket, but kept the coupon and told plaintiff that he could not have a seat in a box, but that he could have a seat in the gallery. So Nall will ask a jury to fix the price of his rights under the act of 1885.

Redkey Laid in Ruins.

The business part of Redkey, Jay County, Indiana, was destroyed by fire. An overheated natural gas stove set fire to N. Cadwallader's livery barn, which was destroyed with a loss of $2,400. There being no fire protection in the town twelve buildings were soon ablaze and destroyed before assistance could arrive from Muncie and Hartford City. The total loss of the conflagration will reach $45,000, on which there is less than $10,000 insurance.

Edward M. Field Arrested.

New York special: Edward M. Field, of the firm of Field, Liendly, Weichers & Co., was arrested by Inspector Byrnes' men at the Manchester mansion, a private insane asylum near Truckahoe, N. Y. He is now locked up in this city. The arrest was made on a warrant issued by Judge Martine, and the charge is grand larceny in the second degree.

Prospective Poor Wheat Crop in Illinois.

There will not be a very big winter wheat crop next year in Illinois, according to a bulletin issued by the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. The bulletin states that wheat has been greatly injured by the drought, and the stand as a whole is very uneven, and the outlook for a wheat crop in Illinois in 1892 is not very encouraging.

Diamonds Recovered.

The diamonds, which are valued at about $18,000, and which were stolen a few days ago on a train at Dayton, O., from the agent of a Cincinnati firm, are said to have been recovered by Detective Norris, of Springfield. The announcement is made in police circles that the jewels are safely locked up in the Beckel house.

The troops of the insurgents of Rio Grand do Sul have laid down their arms and disbanded.

THE STARCH TRUST.

CONCERNING ITS ORIGIN AND HISTORY.

How It Manipulated Its Job in the McKinley Bill and Thus Gained Complete Control—Reciprocity and Our Export Trade—Two Pictures Contrasted—Tariff Shot.

Another Octopus.

On February 5, 1890, the leading starch manufacturers of the United States met in Buffalo to consider the advisability and the ways and means of uniting their interests. The outcome of this meeting was the formation of the National Starch Company, popularly known as the "Starch Trust." The Trust was organized at the end of March with a capital of $10,000,000, at Covington, Kentucky. Hiram Durye, of the Glen Cove Starch Company, was elected President and Frank Schuler, of the A. Erkenbrecher Starch Company, of Cincinnati, Secretary. Eighteen of the largest concerns in the country came under the absolute control of the trust. Some of these were bought outright for cash, but the greater part were sold for 25 per cent. cash and 75 per cent. in debenture bonds.

The only large factory not in the trust is that of the Kingsford Starch Company, whose product is a special class of goods not competing with that of the trust. Two defunct concerns, the American Starch Company, of Columbus, Indiana, and the Ottawa Starch Company, of Ottawa, Illinois, threatened competition with the trust, but were appeased, the former by being taken into the trust on a long lease and the latter by being guaranteed a sufficient income to keep out of business.

The trust thus organized proceeded to business. When the trust was formed lump starch was selling at $50 per ton. The price was raised to $55 by the trust and afterward to $60, to $70, and, on Aug. 2, to $80 per ton, or an increase of 60 per cent. above the price prevailing earlier in the year.

In order to make its hold on the market absolutely secure, President Duryea had a consultation with Mr. Thurber and other members of the Wholesale Grocers' National Association, the outcome of which was an agreement on the part of the trust to sell at wholesale only, and on the part of the wholesale grocers and jobbers to buy only of the "trust" and to maintain the trust prices. The trust also agreed to grant the jobbers a rebate of 12 per cent. and freight (less one-twentieth of 1 per cent. for expenses). This rebate is paid to the grocers' association and distributed by it to all buyers who maintain prices.

Having thus secured absolute control over the production and sale of starch in the United States, the trust began to formulate its "tariff job." The duties on starch itself under the tariff of 1883 were practically prohibitive. Dextrine and sago flour, the former manufactured by roasting starch, and the latter an East India product made from the pith of several varieties of palms, were still imported in considerable quantities. Both are used largely in textile and wall paper manufacture, as sizing. It was the aim of the trust to have the tariff so raised as to shut out both of these products, and in this way give it a complete monopoly of the home market.

To carry out this purpose the trust did not appear at the public hearings of the Ways and Means Committee, but secured the private ear of the high-tariff leaders.

The tariff of 1883 covering starch and kindred products was as follows:

"Sago, sago crude, and sago flour, free.

"Potato or corn starch, 2 cents per pound; rice starch, 2½ cents per pound; other starch 2⅜ cents per pound.

"Dextrine, burnt starch, gum substitute, or British gum, 1 cent per pound."

The schedules as recommended by the Starch Trust, and carried through by Major McKinley, were as follows:

"Sago, crude, and sago flour, free.

"Starch, including all preparations from whatever substance produced, fit for use as starch, 2 cents per pound.

"Dextrine, burnt starch, gum substitute, or British gum, 1½ cents per pound." The only apparent change in these schedules was that increasing the duty on dextrine to 1½ cents per pound. The textile and wall paper manufacturers opposed this increase, but at the same time they thought that as long as "sago flour" was on the free list the Starch Trust could not force them to pay exorbitant prices for its dextrine.

They were mistaken, however, for in January last the Treasury Department decided that sago flour was subject to a duty of 2 cents per pound, being a "preparation, fit for use as starch." The job concocted by the Starch Trust and carried through by McKinley, was thus complete. The Trust had gained its object. The already prohibitive duty on starch was retained, that on dextrine was raised 50 per cent. and a prohibitive duty was imposed on sago flour.

The effect of this job on the dextrine and sago flour used by the wall paper and print cloth manufacturers can be easily shown by a comparison of the prices before the McKinley tariff was enacted with those ruling now. These are as follows:

	August, 1890. cts. ℔ lb.	November, 1891. cts. ℔ lb.
Dextrine	4⅜@4½	5 @6¼
Sago flour	3 @3⅜	4@4¼

This increase in the prices of dextrine and sago flour bears heavily upon the cotton-cloth manufacturers, since it affects the cost of the goods which we are exporting to China and other Asiastic countries in competition with France and England.

Such is the history of the Starch Trust and its operations. No wonder that McKinley wants the tariff let alone. And why? Because its jobs are manifold, and when brought to light will cause the repeal of his bill.

The Furniture Trade and the Tax on Lumber.

At a time when a large proportion of the people of the United States were demanding free lumber, the McKinley tariff-mongers took occasion to levy duties upon every species of lumber that had previously been on the free list. Mahogany, rosewood, lignum vitæ, and every variety of lumber used in manufacturing furniture and cabinet-ware, were removed from the free list and subjected to a duty of 15 per cent on the value. It was probably feared that if mahogany, rosewood and other tropical lumber should become too cheap and abundant, the use of pine, oak and cherry in making furniture for the American people would be interfered with seriously. Why, it was asked, should the people of the United States send to Central and South America and to other tropical regions for rare and costly woods, when they have at home an abundance of cheap materials for making furniture? In response to this question the McKinley statesmen clapped a duty of 15 per cent. upon the materials of numerous and important American industries.

As a consequence of this malignantly stupid legislation the American manufacturers of cabinetware, who are unexcelled in taste and workmanship, have been put in a more unfavorable position than ever for competing with their European rivals in the world's markets. They cannot use a stick of lumber, whether of foreign or of home production, that has not been enhanced in cost by the tariff. While the best woods of the forests of Brazil and of Honduras are sent to Europe, American manufacturers must content themselves with cheaper domestic substitutes that are protected by a duty of 15 per cent. No protectionist government in Europe imposes a tax upon the imported lumber used in the manufacture of household furniture. That stroke was reserved for the latter-day protectionist statesmen of the United States, who, in their jealousy of everything foreign except imported pauper labor, would exclude foreign woods from use in the manufacture of cabinetware for the American people.

The tariff-enhanced cost of lumber discourages the consumption of its finished products and lessens the opportunities of remunerative employment to the mechanics who work in wood. While the duties check the importation of valuable foreign woods, they at the same time obstruct the exportation of furniture. Of the exports of wood and its products in the last nine months, amounting to nearly $19,000,000, household furniture figured for a little more than $2,000,000. Nearly all the rest consisted of lumber to be wrought elsewhere into finished products. But this exportation of American furniture in spite of tariff obstruction, small as it is, shows what could be accomplished in this branch of trade if lumber should be placed on the free list.—Philadelphia Record.

Reciprocity and Our Export Trade.

The following table shows the value of our exports to the different quarters of the globe in 1890 and 1891, and the percentage which exports to each section bears to total exports:

	1890.	1891.	Per ct. of total.
Europe	$677,264,965	$697,614,106	79.97
British N. America	38,544,454	43,813,519	5.02
South America	37,745,002	37,345,515	4.29
Asia & Oceanica	35,921,452	33,415,176	3.83
Mexico, C. America & B. Honduras	18,118,947	21,296,545	2.43
Africa	4,590,127	4,768,647	.54
All other	906,810	979,172	.11

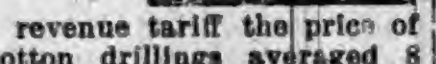
This shows that Europe takes nearly 80 per cent. of our total exports. The South American countries, about which the believers in the reciprocity plans advanced by Secretary Blaine are so solicitous, take but 4.29 per cent. of our exports. Even the provinces north of us, whose trade our statesmen have discouraged as much as possible, going even so far as to snub with cool deliberation the commissioner sent here to discuss a reciprocity treaty, take over 5 per cent. of our exports. If reciprocity with South America is to boom our export trade, why not try it with the countries north of us as well? A more pertinent question suggested by the above figures is wherein lies the wisdom and consistency of discouraging, by every form of restriction, trade with Europe, which takes nearly 80 per cent. of our total exports, and making such extravagant predictions of the good to come from treaties of reciprocity with a section of the world which is able to take less than 5 per cent. of what we can sell them.

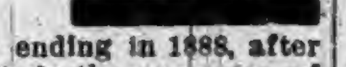
Again, Secretary Blaine claims that his reciprocity treaties with South America are chiefly in the interest of our farmers, utterly ignoring the fact that it is just these countries which in the future will be our strongest competitors in furnishing the world with the food supply it needs. How can our export trade in farm products be increased by reciprocity treaties with countries which are themselves exporters of these very products? Clearly then, if Secretary Blaine is sincere in his beliefs, he is using the farmers' interest as a dodge to conceal his real purposes. The best that can be said of reciprocity as at present outlined is that it is a brilliant coup d'etat, to detract attention from the outrageous high tariff and to give to its originator such political glory as can come from it, before its sham character is fully understood.

Tariff Shot.

From 1847 to 1861, when we had a tariff for revenue, a period which the followers of McKinley's high tariff policy describe as "our disastrous free trade period," wheat averaged $1.24 per bushel in New York, represented by this line,



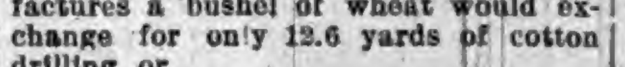
During the ten years ending in 1888 wheat averaged only 92 cents per bushel in New York, or this line,



Under our revenue tariff the price of standard cotton drillings averaged 8 cents per yard, or

For the ten years ending in 1888, after many improvements in the processes of production, cotton drillings averaged 7¼ cents per yard, or

Under revenue tariffs a bushel of wheat was exchanged for 16 yards of cotton drilling, or



But under a high tariff on cotton manufactures a bushel of wheat would exchange for only 12.6 yards of cotton drilling, or

Under which period was the farmer better off?

Two Pictures Contrasted.

In its issue of Nov. 21, the Manufacturer, the organ of the High Tariff Manufacturers' Club, of Philadelphia, was printed the following editorial:

"Messrs. Marshall Brothers, manufacturers of iron, at Front street and Girard avenue, Philadelphia, and members of the Manufacturers' Club, are now making between six and seven tons every day of bright tin plate of good quality. They actually make the article from the raw material in the shape of steel ingots, which they roll into plates suitable for tinning. The tin plate thus produced is sold as fast as it is made, and the firm is now preparing to double the output, so that, within a short time, it will be making between twelve and fifteen tons a day.

"We have two free trade journals in Philadelphia, and the methods of access to the Marshall mill are easy, and the cost of movement thither upon a horse car small, and yet neither of them has undertaken to supply its readers with the facts respecting this introduction of an important new industry to Philadelphia."

This paragraph came to the notice of the editors of the National Provisioner who are in quest of bright tin plate in carload lots. They accordingly telegraphed to Marshall Brothers asking their prices for their tin plate. In due time they received the following telegram:

"PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 27, '91.
"The National Provisioner, New York:

"GENTLEMEN—Your dispatch just received, and we are not at present making bright tin plates, only roofing ternes. Therefore have no quotation to make. We are making preparations for bright plates and later on shall be pleased to quote.

Yours truly,
"MARSHALL BROS. & CO."

Ought not the editor of the Manufacturer to have invested ten cents for a round trip, by horse car, to the Marshall Brothers' works before pointing the way to others?

THE following item appeared in a Mississippi paper: "Rev. A. Cathy, a Methodist minister, aged 70 years, living at Burnsville, recently eloped with Miss Millie Marior, aged 51 years. The lady's parents objected."

FISH-COMMISSIONER DENNIS wants $1,000 with which to make an Indiana fish exhibit at the World's Fair. He should also take some of the polluted water from White River, near the Noblesville Strawboard Works, to the great fair.

MRS. W. H. LONG, living near High Rock, Morgan County, gave birth to a daughter that weighed only one pound. The child is said to be perfectly formed, and is as lively as a cricket. The parents of this midget are large and robust people.

CHRISTIAN SMUCKER, a German farmer living at Napanee, is a monomaniac on the subject of witches. He claims to be followed with invisible spirits both day and night, writing unintelligible words on the wall and crying out in the night time.

PETER FLEMING KENNEDY, one of the honored citizens of Shelby County, died from a stroke of apoplexy, at his home in Hendricks township, aged 75 years. Deceased has been a resident of Shelby County since 1829, and has reared a large family.

WHILE Homer Lane, a Wabash brakeman on the east-bound local freight train, was attempting to make a coupling in the yards at Roann, his left hand was caught between the draw-bars and his thumb and three fingers mangled. He went immediately to Dr. Brodbeck's office, where his wound was dressed, and he left for his home in Peru.

JUDGE KIRKPATRICK overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of John Bonecutter, who had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for the murder of Fred Hoobs, at Kempton, last July. The prisoner was completely overcome and broke down. The scene was very touching. Bonecutter is 54 years old, and from the appearance of the long sentence, it is hardly possible he will live to be a free man again. An appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court for a new trial.

ANOTHER fatality occurred at Daleville recently. A little boy had his life crushed out under the eyes of his parents. Michael Stephenson, a prosperous farmer, residing near Daleville, had brought a load of corn to Graham's elevator. His wife and four children, rode to town on the wagon. Mr. Stephenson was assisting the families from the wagon when the horses started, knocking a little 2¼-year-old son down. The little one's head fell directly under the wheels, and its skull was crushed in a frightful manner.

IN 1875 Frank P. Smith, now of Columbus, then employed on the O. & M. railroad as a fireman, went into the strike of that year, which resulted in his discharge when the trouble was ended. He was previously married to a daughter of Judge Crandall, of Joliet, Ill. Losing his position he drifted Westward, leaving his wife and two children. He found employment on the Union Pacific railroad, and later lost that position. He then tramped his way to Columbus, became industrious and rapidly accumulated wealth. In the meantime his first wife had been divorced and went to Chicago. She maintained her two sons by hard work at the sewing-machine. Smith remarried, and soon had another family. In the latter part of October Smith, who had grown both wealthy and influential, suddenly disappeared. Prior to this time he was engaged in the livery business, and was city water-works trustee. His last wife remained faithful; though he deserted her. Last week his first wife came to Columbus and registered at a prominent hotel, proposing to remain until she gets satisfaction.

GEORGE RICHARDS, the young man who rented 300 acres of land of John Pucket of Tipton, giving him forged notes to the amount of $2,200, pleaded guilty to forgery, and was sentenced to three years in prison.

HENRY HERMAN, a Polish laborer, was run over and instantly killed on the Lake Shore railroad, near Rolling Prairie. He was a section hand and was employed in shoveling snow at the side of the track. He attempted to cross the track as the train was approaching. The alarm was given in time, but he appeared to take no notice of it. Some think it was a deliberate suicide.

WHILE climbing a fence of his farm, Charles Wright, a young farmer, living near Wabash, dropped a revolver from his pocket. The weapon was discharged and the ball entered his groin, where it yet remains. There is slight hope of his recovery.

IT is asserted, upon what seems to be unquestionable authority, that Rev. J. H. Oechterin, rector of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of Fort Wayne, has been selected bishop of the diocese of La Crosse, Wis., to succeed the late Bishop Flasch. It is said that Father Oechtering was the chosen candidate of the council of bishops of the Milwaukee district, and that his election has been ratified by the authorities at Rome.

ROYAL RANGER RALPH;

—OR—

The Waif of the Western Prairies.

BY WELDON J. COBB.

CHAPTER X.
THE MODOC CAMP.

The spot by the river to which the two scouts had come was, indeed, as they supposed—the general camping place of the Modoc and Sioux savages.

Within an hour after their arrival the banks of the stream were lined with camp-fires and wigwams, and the war-paint of the Indians and the general bustle and activity told that some movement of importance was meditated by the blood-thirsty hordes.

It was destined that Ranger Ralph should soon learn all the plans of the Indians and their renegade white allies, and that he should be plunged into active contest within a very short time.

When he so summarily sprang into the tree where Darrel had been compelled to leave him, he lost sight of his companion amid the excitement of the hour.

He saw the Indians scour the vicinity, secure the horses, and lead them away; and then all became still in his immediate neighborhood.

"There's a perfect nest of them around here," he muttered, grimly. "It's going to be no easy task to escape. I wonder what has become of young Grey? He isn't any too familiar with this kind of work. The Indians seem to be starting out on some kind of an expedition, and while I'm in the corral of their camps I intend to find out what it is."

Ranger Ralph was an expert scout, and was thoroughly familiar with frontier tactics of craft and warfare. He descended from the tree and began to reconnoiter his position.

He made out that the main camp of the Indians was directly across and down the stream a little distance. Making sure that he was unobserved, the scout forded and swam the river, landed on the opposite bank and then gradually and stealthily began approaching the camp of the Modocs.

He at last gained a point of espionage most favorable to his plans, a small knoll of bushes and stunted trees enabling him to completely survey the camp and its inmates.

"Shadow Snake's band," he muttered concernedly, as his eyes swept the scene; "and in war-paint, too. It means trouble for the settlements. Ha! It is as I thought! Despard has come to his old friends. Then the girl Inez must be here also."

The scout's face darkened and he frowned ominously as he recognized, as Darrel had done, the form of Dyke Despard in the throng about the campfire.

As he discerned the number of his enemies and realized the hazards of approacing them any nearer, he reflected deeply.

He was plunged deep in his meditations, when the sound of a familiar voice near at hand startled him and enchained his attention.

"Despard," he murmured excitedly; "and Danton is with him."

It was indeed the outlaw leader and his chief associate.

They paused in a careless stroll from the camp and sat down on a log near the very spot where the scout was secreted.

The latter thrilled with the keenest satisfaction at this opportunity of overhearing the plans of his enemies.

"You wanted to see me alone?" were Danton's first words.

"Yes."

"What about?"

"Our own affairs; we've got among friends, but I ain't satisfied."

"Why not?"

"I'm uneasy. The old chief Shadow Snake is reckless and revengeful; and if he should suspect us——"

"About the girl?" asked Towner.

"White Fawn—yes."

"How can he?"

"Should he meet any of the Nes Perces reservation Indians he would learn of our treachery."

"How?"

"They would tell him that the girl never reached them."

"That's true."

"So, whatever we do, we must act quickly."

"But we agreed to accompany Shadow Snake on the raid on the emigrant train."

"No; I gave him the information of its whereabouts—that is all."

"But he expects us to go with him."

"We will have to disappoint him. Here we are safe from pursuit from the vigilantes. That is why I came here."

"What do you propose to do?"

"To remove the girl down the valley to-night."

"Alone?"

"No. You and one of the others will take her away from here about midnight. I will remain with Vance and guide the Modocs across the country to the train, and rejoin you later."

"And the rest of our band?"

"Are at Damon's Bend. I will send them forward to meet you. Go to the old rendezvous and wait for me. You see, the Snake agrees to divide liberally for my share in the present venture. Once I get that, I will leave the camp, for he will soon find out about White Fawn."

"And then?" queried Danton.

"We will carry out our plan to find the hermit who has Inez Tracey's fortune, secure it, and, leaving the boys to their own plans, go East and enjoy our wealth."

The old scout looked grim as he overheard the plans of the conspirators.

He knew now how to act, if he could evade the savages and follow on the trail of Despard's men.

The two men left the spot and returned to the camp, and Ranger Ralph began to determine how he would make a detour and reach a point down the valley where he might intercept Despard's men, who would leave for the bandit rendezvous that night.

He began to cautiously work his way back to the river, believing escape by that avenue more easy than by the land.

He crept from thicket to thicket and from covert to covert, gradually nearing the stream, and meeting with none of his enemies.

At last he came to a point where he paused in dismay. Since he had last been there a campfire had been built by a little coterie of savages, directly in his course to the river.

It cut off all safe escape in that direction, and nothing but a bold dash across an open space, or a slow and perilous retreat by the way he had come would avail him.

He resolved on the former course, even hoping that by a sudden run across the place he might gain the river unperceived.

With a spring he broke from the thicket and started across the open space.

A series of loud, alarmed yells from the fire told that he was discovered.

Within ten feet of a thicket where the horses of the Modocs were grazing, Ranger Ralph's foot caught in a trailing rope.

He fell heavily.

The next moment a score of dusky warriors were upon him.

Ranger Ralph was a prisoner in the hands of his most merciless enemies.

CHAPTER XI.
THE ESCAPE.

Ranger Ralph made a desperate resistance against his savage captors, but struggled vainly in their iron grasp as they bore him towards their camp-fire with yells of triumph.

The demonstration soon drew a large throng to the spot, and the scout, securely bound, was tied against a tree, the cynosure of many murderous eyes and the object of the jeers and insults of his victorious foes.

A grim look came over the old ranger's face as he saw the Modoc chieftain, Shadow Snake, approach the spot.

With him were his renegade allies, Dyke Despard and Jim Danton.

The outlaw leader started, and then stared in mute wonderment at the man he had endeavored to kill at Ten Spot two nights previous.

"Ranger Ralph!" ejaculated Danton, with a savage scowl. "He bears a charmed life."

The eyes of the Modoc chief kindled with satisfied hate as he recognized an enemy who had more than once crossed his trail to his serious disadvantage.

"The Ranger is a spy," he hissed. "What brings him here?"

The scout was silent.

"Yes; he has been trying to incite the pale faces to attack the tribes," said Danton. "He is a dangerous enemy."

"Let him die before we leave here at another sun," ordered the Snake briefly to the Indians about him.

The old scout did not speak. Into his mind came a memory of what he had overheard Despard and Danton say about the daughter of the old chief.

He resolved to bring this intelligence to the knowledge of Shadow Snake, but the opportunity was not yet presented.

He formed a plan to see the chief alone, when Despard and Danton would not be near to deny his statements or silence him.

For over an hour he remained secured to the tree watching the savages, who paid no further attention to him for the present.

In some way they had secured a keg of liquor, and were intently engaged in disposing of it as rapidly as possible.

The old scout knew from experience that as soon as the Indians were fighting drunk they would pay attention to him.

He recalled his many battles with the tribe, and knew that they were full of animosity and hatred toward him.

To his surprise, however, when they had finished the liquor the majority of them staggered from the camp, entirely ignoring his presence.

Only a few sleeping inebriates now guarded the prisoner.

The scout endeavored to free himself, but was not able to break the bonds that secured him.

In a few minutes the Indians returned with a second keg of whisky, from the direction of the main camp.

They were all, or nearly all of them, very much intoxicated, and straggling along with them were several other savages from a different camp. One of these attracted the ranger's attention by his helpless and reeling condition.

As the savages placed the keg on the ground and began to drink from it, this Indian stretched himself out on the green sward as if to sleep.

His hand almost touched the form of the captive scout, and the latter looked somewhat startled as he observed that, unperceived by his companions he had drawn a knife which he held half concealed in his hand.

The Indian appeared to be drawing nearer and nearer to the scout, and finally stealthily drew the keen blade of the knife over the withes which secured Ranger Ralph to the tree.

The next moment the lariat that held the ranger's form captive was also cut.

Ranger Ralph was relieved of his bands.

"Don't move yet!"

The scout started as his strange friend uttered the words in a low, cautious tone of voice.

"Darrel Grey!" he muttered, in amazement. "How did you come here?"

"Never mind now, but act quickly. These Indians are so drunk they will not notice you. Make no suspicious move while I talk with you, and warn me if any of them seem to notice us or come this way."

Darrel lay with his back turned to the Indians, who were perhaps ten feet distant.

The old scout kept his eye upon them and listened intently as Darrel resumed the conversation in cautious tones.

"There is one way to escape safely," he said. "You must follow that."

"Where?"

"To the east. Once across the river, strike to the north and you are safe from ambush, for the savages are intending to move south and are camped in that direction."

"How did you come here—this disguise—were you not afraid?"

"I risked it, and luck has favored me."

"You cannot long continue it," remarked the scout.

"Why not?"

"You cannot speak a word of the Modoc language."

"That is why I pretended to be intoxicated."

"You cannot keep up that pretense all night."

"I don't expect to."

"What then?"

"To find the girl and escape with her."

"To-night?"

"Yes."

Ranger Ralph looked serious.

The inexperience of his young friend, he feared, would lead him into trouble.

So far, however, Darrel had outrivaled himself in his tactics of dealing with the Indians.

"I have marked out a course of action," said Darrel, confidently, "and I expect to carry it out successfully. You know what these red fiends meditate?"

"The attack on the emigrant train?"

"Yes. From what I have heard, they intend moving at once. The train should be warned. You can do that."

"How? I cannot reach them in time?"

"You can with a horse. In a few minutes I will stagger to the corral and have a horse ready for you. Then you must ride as fast as possible to the trail and give the warning of the proposed attack."

"I fear that I leave you in danger."

"No; I am safe for the present, and I believe I shall succeed in rescuing Inez," replied Darrel.

The young scout arose to his feet and reeled toward the thicket where the horses were kept, a minute later.

The savages gathered around the camp fire were too much occupied in drinking to notice his absence.

Ranger Ralph waited for some time, and then allowed the cut ropes to fall to the ground.

Then he stole quietly to the thicket.

"Quick! Here is the horse and there is a rifle and small arms strapped to the saddle."

"Then it's one of Despard's horses?"

"Probably. Lose no time. Cross the stream and keep to the north of the camp."

The old scout sprang into the saddle and a minute later the horse was crossing the river.

No one seemed to have noticed his escape, and he made a wide detour of the camp and then directed the steed toward the distant emigrant trail.

He chose a lonely road, evading what he believed would be the course pursued by the Modocs.

Twice he nearly ran into a party of horsemen, and the discovery made him very anxious.

"It cannot be possible that the Indians have started on the war trail already," he muttered, concernedly.

Suddenly, an hour later, the sound of shooting some distance ahead alarmed him. He hastened toward the spot. As he emerged from the woods a sight met his vision that thrilled him to the keenest excitement.

Ranger Ralph was too late with his warning.

The emigrant train had already been attacked by the allied Modocs and Sioux, and the wagons were now the scene of an animated contest.

The red demons were pillaging and burning and killing, while the shrieks of the unfortunate emigrants echoed on every side.

"Too late to warn and save them!" ejaculated Ranger Ralph, grimly; "but not too late to help them against their murdered foes."

He directed the horse into the thickest of the conflict as he spoke and, rifle in hand, determined to sell his life dearly in protecting the lives and property of the imperiled emigrants.

It was a brief and sanguinary battle. The Modocs and Sioux and their renegade allies were superior in numbers to the emigrants, who were surrounded, driven back, and butchered mercilessly.

The brave old scout saw the horse he rode shot down and himself wounded; he dragged his form to a covered wagon, and crept into it for safety and concealment. Then, as the blood oozed from a terrible wound in the breast, Ranger Ralph sank into a blank lethargy of insensibility.

When he awoke it was broad daylight.

The wagon was moving, and he peered cautiously forth from a pile of hay in the bottom of the vehicle.

He was weak and in pain, and almost helpless; but he made out his situation at a glance.

Behind the wagon on horseback were half a dozen men, doubtless another portion of Despard's band.

Driving the vehicle was Jim Danton, and the scout doubted not but that they were proceeding to the outlaw rendezvous at Lone Canyon.

So far, evidently, his presence in the wagon had not been discovered; he knew that he was in a position of great peril, and that affairs were fast assuming a shape most favorable to the plans of Dyke Despard.

From Cradley Heath.

Recently a deputation of women went from Cradley Heath, in England—a place where women are employed at heavy work in forging chains—to London, to protest against the passage by Parliament of an act which proposed to prohibit the use by women of a heavy forging implement known as the "oliver." They objected to the passage of the bill on the ground that it would deprive them of employment.

At London they were questioned at length upon the manner of their employment by the Home Secretary—an officer whose position in the British Government is much the same as the Secretary of the Interior of this country. Between Mr. Matthews, the Secretary, and the chain-woman the following dialogue took place:

Mr. Matthews—And what is the precise nature of the employment in which you are enga——

Chain-woman (breaking in)—I doan't want my work taken awaay from me!

Mr. Matthews (blandly)—Pardon me, that is not quite the point on which I desire information. If you will please explain to me the nature of the operation in which——

Chain-woman (firm though flustered, and determined to get out what she had come all the way to London to say)—It never done me no harm, sir!

Mr. Matthews—But, my good woman, if you will suspend your observations long enough to communicate some idea——

Chain-woman—I likes the 'eavy work, sir; an' I says, Let each one do what they can!

The interview proceeded in this unsatisfactory way until a questioner was found who could talk to the chain-women in their own language.

Evolution of the Knife.

"This case full of instruments which we have newly placed on exhibition is designed to show the development of the tool which we call the knife, beginning from the earliest times," said Prof. Mason at the National Museum. "First, you observe, is the fragment of flint, which the savage split by banging it on top with a stone hammer into a number of flakes. The smaller ones were used for arrow points and the bigger ones for knives, their edges being split off so sharp that you might almost shave with some of them. Next you see the flint inserted into a handle of split wood or bone, and, as further improvements, the fastenings of this primitive knife in the handle by the rosin of trees and by cord of one sort or another bound around to secure it. The most beautiful knife in the collection is this exquisitely molded blade of greenish jade, belonging to the stone age, handled with a walrus tusk. You can hardly find a more admirably formed weapon among the products of modern cutlery wares. Most curious of the modern tools here is this sailor's knife, square at the end instead of pointed, to prevent stabbing in a row, or the dangerous falling of the weapon from aloft. Its blade drops out of the end of the handle when a spring is touched, so that Jack can hold a rope with one hand and open the knife for service without the need of ten fingers."

Prayers for Rain.

I have heard my father say that in the days of his early manhood, which dates back to more than a century, in a season of protracted drought it was a custom for the deacons of the church situated in the old town of East Windsor to call together the members on a week day and put up petitions for rain. And he has assured me that these meetings were always followed by rain. He failed to tell me just how soon. Among those always in attendance was a man of the name of Potwine, one wonderfully gifted in prayer. My father called to mind some of the pious man's earnest expressions, such as "Send down the rain, O Lord! not in torrents but in copious [sic] effusions." On an occasion of extraordinary and prolonged drought he put his petitions nearly in the form of a demand. Rain they must have, rain they would have, and they could not do without it. Realizing that he had gone too far in that direction, he qualified his demands by saying, "O Lord! we do not wish to dictate, but only to advise."

THE Professor had just explained that in mediæval times they used to bring brute beasts and reptiles into court and try them for misdemeanors. "Professor," asked a young man in the rear seat, "is that the origin of the frog felon?"

IT is very discouraging to have your tailor tell you that the most desirable thing this season for clothing is a large check.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK.

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Many Odd, Curious, and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day.

Warranted Safe.

Mr. Goodman—I want to buy a nice toy pistol for my little boy. Something handsome but not dangerous, you know.

Mr. Binks—Here's the exact thing you're after, sir. A French duelling pistol—very pretty, and perfectly harmless.—Grip.

The Figure Fiend.

Mrs. Colemigger—I'm surprised that your husband earns so little if he works as hard as you say. What does he do?

Mrs. Pentweazel—The last thing he did was to figure out how many times a clock ticked in the course of a year.—Epoch.

He'd Made a Discovery.

Thinkhardt—Isn't it curious?

His Wife—What?

Thinkhardt—That although a watch is misplaced or even lost, it is still handy.—Jewelers' Weekly.

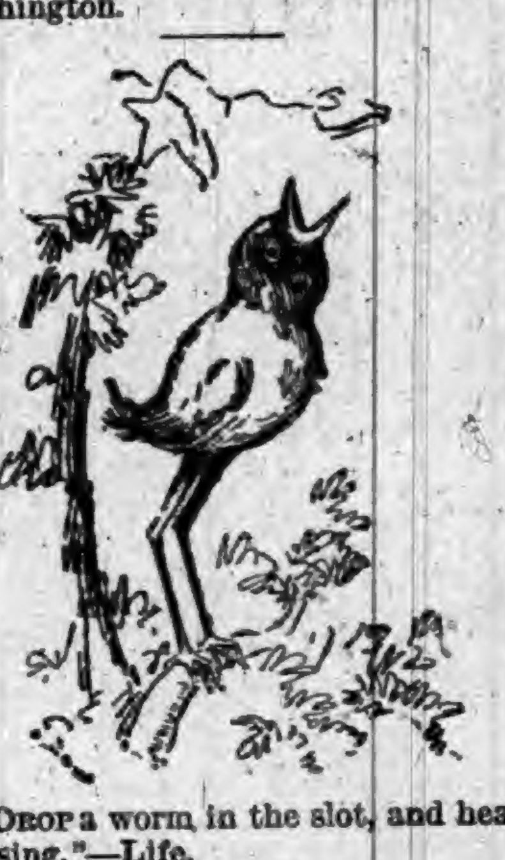
A Spirit-ed Discussion.

"What was the subject of your debate this evening?"

"Whisky."

"Was it well discussed?"

"Yes; most of the members were full of the subject."—Kate Field's Washington.



"DROP a worm in the slot, and hear me sing."—Life.

It Was Late.

I had asked the colored porter at the depot if the train from Savannah was on time, and he replied in the affirmative, writes M. Quad in the New York World, when another colored man came up and inquired:

"Did yo' want to know sunthin', sah?"

"I was asking him if the train was on time."

"And what did he say, sah?"

"He said it was."

"Hu! Dat's all he knows 'bout it! Dat pusson, sah, ar' employed to sweep out de depot an' fill up de water-cans."

"And you?"

"While I, sah, ar' employed to put de checks on de baggage an' put de baggage on de kyars! Yo' wanted to know if de train was on time, sah. No sah, it hain't, sah. De train is exactly two seconds late, sah!"

Dangerous Revelations.

Belle—Don't you think a gentleman should always wear a dress suit when he makes a call on a young lady?

Nell (doubtfully)—Well, I don't know. If he wears a full dress suit his shirt bosom when he gets home gives him dead away.—Somerville Journal.

Doubly Defined.

Tommy—What is a "running account?" Pa says it's an account merchants have to keep of customers that are in the habit of running away from paying their bills.

Uncle—That's one definition of it.

Tommy—Is there another?

Uncle—Yes. A running account is, in some instances, an account that gets tired out running after a while, and then it becomes a standing obligation.—Boston Courier.

Useful if Not Ornamental.

Stayer—I—I hope I'm not keeping you from anything, Miss Pert?

Miss Pert—Oh, dear, no! I like to have you sit there, where you are.

"M—may I presume to——"

"Why, certainly! Yes, you hide that spot on the wall paper, that has been an eyesore to me, beautifully.—Boston News.

A Cat Colloquy.

Mouser—See, here, Maltie, you are playing a little too rough! You yanked out a good bit of my coat that time.

Maltie—Excuse me; I only intended it for a joke.

Mouser—Yes, but it was rather fur-fetched.—Yonkers Gazette.

Making It Realistic.

Quester—I wonder where Shakspeare got the idea reflected in the sentence, "When graveyards yawn?" Based altogether on superstition, I imagine?

Jester—Perhaps, although I can believe such a thing possible to be brought about.

"How?"

"By having Dominie Prolicks visit any of them and preach a funeral sermon."—Boston Courier.

Ill-Omened Jane.

Jane, as borne by the royal families of Europe, has always been a name of ill-omen. Lady Jane Gray was beheaded for treason; Jane Seymour was one of the victims of King Hal; Jane Beaufort, wife of James I. of Scotland, was savagely murdered; Jeanne de Valois, wife of Louis XII., was repudiated for her want of personal beauty; Jeanne d'Albret, mother of Henry IV., was poisoned by Catharine de Medici; Jane of Castile lost her reason through the neglect of her husband, Philip the Handsome, Archduke of Austria; Jane I. of Naples caused her husband to be murdered and married his assassin, and Jane II. of Naples was one of the most wanton of women.—American Notes and Queries.

GANTER'S MAGIC —CHICKEN— CHOLERA CURE!

Thousands of dollars worth of chickens are destroyed by Cholera every year. It is more fatal to them than all other diseases combined. But the discovery of a liquid remedy that positively destroys the Microbes has been made. Half of the young chickens are killed by Microbes before they are fryers. A 50-cent bottle is enough for 100 chickens. It is guaranteed. If, after using two thirds of a bottle, you are not satisfied with it as a cure for Cholera, return it to the druggist from whom you purchased it, and he will refund your money.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine-Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, post-office as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....DECEMBER, 17, 1891.

PATRICK HENRY, the famous, was once governor of Indiana. We were then in "Illinois county," a part of Virginia, when P. H., was governor of that state.

SENATOR TURPIE has a bill providing for the election of U. S. Senators by a direct vote of the people. Also, a bill for the relief of Henry Swartz, of Collingwood, Allen county.

IT IS admitted by republicans, that they had to locate their national convention in the northwest, to keep the Alliance, and other farmer organizations from capturing that section.

HARRISON'S message completely ignores Blaine's pet scheme of "reciprocity" and that makes Blaine's friends mad. Harrison is smart enough to see that reciprocity, if it is carried out, becomes freer trade—a thing he and his party dislike. It is even too much like free trade to suit democrats.

NEARLY all our democratic exchanges over the state, are pleased with the way our members voted on speaker. Mills, Springer and Crisp were supported, and when Springer dropped, most of them were for Crisp. We believe all our democratic friends, will soon see they have as good a man as could have been chosen.

IT IS a bad year for sons of noted men. Only a week or so ago, the son of Cyrus W. Field ruined his millioniare father by his dishonesty. Then came the arrest of Joaquin Miller's son for robbing a stage coach and then a son of the famous scout, Kit Carson, killed his wife's father and mother. And the list might be prolonged.

THE ESSEX FREE PRESS, Canada, speaks of the annexation sentiment like this: "Sol White, M. P. P., of Windsor, held an annexation meeting in Woodstock, last Tuesday evening. About 500 people were present. A resolution against annexation was almost unanimously carried, only about 25 of the audience expressing themselves in sympathy with White's views.

SCOTT-RALSTON.

As pleasant a social event as has come to our knowledge was the wedding at the A. J. Ralston residence Tuesday evening. The high social position of the parties and the prominence of the bride's people in Auburn, added to the interest felt in the occasion that was to unite Mr. Scott and Miss Ralston for that long journey which is to terminate only with death, and which all who witnessed the ceremony sincerely hope may extend in happiness to the golden shores of the great hereafter. Over 100 invitations had been issued, and the guests included not only Auburn friends, young and old, but a number of the groom's friends from Angola, Elkhart and Fort Wayne. Though the guests numbered many, there was room for all, and the spacious rooms were early filled with a waiting and expectant company. The rooms were tastefully, yet simply decorated with smilax, and the array of bright faces, and beautiful dresses presented a scene of animation and loveliness not soon forgotten. At 8:30 all were assembled; Mrs. A. E. Tauberg took a seat at the piano and played the wedding march; the minister, Rev. Geo. Wade Healy, of the Presbyterian church, led into the room the parties who were to participate in the ceremony. With him came Mr. Boyd, of Fort Wayne, the groomsman; then the bride's brother, George, and her sister Helen; then came the groom, Harry Kistler Scott, and Mrs. Ralston, the bride's mother, and following them the bride, Miss Alzein Aileen Ralston, with her father A. J Ralston. Entering the parlor they took their places, standing under festoons of smilax.

The bride looked charming in a dress of white crepe de chine trimmed with white silk lace, and carried a lovely boquet of tea roses, with a rose in her hair.

The ceremony was the beautiful, yet impressive Episcopal form, and though much longer than the ceremony adopted generally in this state, it was finished without a break or hesitation, and left on the hearers an impression not soon effaced. The bride was given away by her father and the sister, Helen, assisted in bestowing the ring. Then came the greetings, during which Mrs. Tanberg again took her place at the piano and the long lines went by marching to the accents of sweet music. The bride and groom went through the long ordeal with ease and grace. The lunch which followed was in good taste, of course, and most abundant and enjoyable and all did enjoy it. After a season of social greetings the guests departed with abundance of good wishes for the young couple. The bride and groom left an hour or so later on a bridal tour which will include a few days in Chicago, after which they will return to Angola, where a cozy home is already fitted up for them.

The presents were of the choicest, the loveliest and were most abundant, testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple were held, and included almost everything the heart could wish, both of the useful and the beautiful. As appropriate a gift as any was the Webster' international dictionary and holder, presented by some of the members of her club, the L. L. C., and accompanied by appropriate and original lines by one of the members. Mrs. Lida Leasure. There were many lovely toilets worn by the ladies, which it would be impossible for us to describe, and many of the gentlemen were in full evening dress, showing how our society people appreciated the occasion. Among the friends from abroad were, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds and daughter Alza, of Butler, and Mrs. Crane of the same place; Mr. Barney, of Elkhart, Mr. Boyd, of Fort Wayne; while from Angola, were F. M. Powers, Fred Bradner, Jack Craxton, Miss Lizzie McConnell and Mr. and Mr. Nyce.

Another DeKalb boy gone—right. Word comes here that Rev. C. O. Merica, well known as a teacher in this county, and later as a minister of the M. E. church, has been chosen president of the M. E. university at Mitchell, S. D. Since graduating at DePauw, he had taught latin, and later had the chair of mathematics, in the college at Mt. Pleasant, Ia. Now as noted above, he is at the head of the new university. We are glad to hear it.

Perhaps few cider mills hereabouts can show a record of a larger amount of business for the season than Shultz & Oberlin's, of Butler. Mr. Shultz told us, while here the other day, that they had pressed 41,154 gallons of cider, working up about 13,000 bushels of apples; all of which were ground with ease by two horses; which is a point in favor of the late improved cider-making outfit which they have. They use the Bullwer & Boshet knuckle screw press, which perhaps has no equal.

We have purchased a full line of samples, consisting of Rogers' Silver Plated Table Cutlery, Rogers, Silver Plated Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit Knives, Carvers, Child's Sets, Nut Picks, Ladies' Cutlery Cases, etc., etc., which we propose to close out at very low figures. J. E. Buchanan, one of the bright young Fairfield men is here now, studying law in the office of J. E. Rose. He is a son of Albert Buchanan, and if he has the push and energy of his father, as we presume he has, he ought to succeed in the profession he has chosen.

The new passenger house for the Lake Shore road is nearly ready to use. The painters have nearly completed the inside, and then the furnishing can soon be put in. It is good large building, and will be a great comfort to passengers, as well as a credit to the road. The large area of ground that has been filled in is a great improvement over the wet land there.

Miss Georgia Chapman one of Smithfield's young lady teachers was in the city Saturday. She has charge of the Center school and we presume she will see that good work is done. We might add that Miss Chapman has taken the COURIER for some time, and in her own name, and pays with money she earns herself. Such young ladies are an honor to society and to teachers.

Our friend J. G. Raub is one of our intelligent and prosperous farmers. In 1871 he bought out Jotham Woolsey, in Jackson township, and next spring was surprised to see a lot of men with stakes and flags going through his fields. They said they were going to build a railroad, and they did. After the B. & O. went through he did not like the place so well, and a few years later sold it, and bought out John Lipsett northwest of Sedan, where he still lives.

The COURIER, as usual, got the start of all the other county papers last week, in publishing the presidents message, except the Butler Record, which goes to press a day later. The COURIER not only gives the most news but the best and the latest. The other papers will send out the message this week, a week late—and then wonder why the people don't seem to care for it. That's one of many reason why people take the COURIER rather than other papers. They don't want to wait till their mental food gets cold, before having it dished up.

Mr. and Mrs. Coop Ralston gave a game supper Saturday evening to a few of their near neighbors, including the families of T. C. Ford, G. H. Yesbera, Mrs. Lizzie Kelley and J. A. Barns. The supper was really grand. Coop had evidently killed only the choicest game, and the cooking was simply perfection. The guests felt like extending a cordial invitation to all the game in the county, to come to Auburn, where they could be "better dressed" than they had ever been before. Mrs. Ralston is certainly a genius in the art.

THERE are to be 1,000 cooks employed at the World's Fair, and New York will unquestionably discover in the fact evidence that the broth will be spoiled.

UNDER her accustomed diet of dogs' flesh the plucky young woman in Indiana, encouraged by her physicians and friends, has managed thus far to keep pup wonderfully.

SOMEONE has invented a gun which will fire under water. This appears to be a rascally attempt to pursue the United States navy to its chosen resting place in the bottom of the ocean.

A CHICAGO judge has flatly refused to hold court in the room provided for him on the ground that it is dangerous to his health and the health of those who have business in the court

THE chrysanthemum may be a fashionable flower, but a posy that looks like a bunch of French sliced pota toes dipped into stewed tomatoes can never appeal to the hearts of the people.

YOU will be disappointed if you build your hopes of happiness on living in some other town or country. Wherever you go, you will still be yourself, and will carry your aches and pains with you.

A BABY that is born on Sunday is popularly supposed to be a favorite of fortune. The chances are that the legend will be borne out in the case of the Astor baby, especially as his inheritance will amount to about $150,000,000.

IF the next orator who has to respond to the toast "The Press" at a banquet would just consider that it was the wine-press, he was to honor he would avoid the utterance of many a stale platitude and touch his hearers at a tender point.

THE New York World printed the portraits of ten Gotham capitalists whose wealth aggregates nearly $800,000,000. The most striking feature about them is that they look like almost any other ten men that could be picked up at random anywhere.

SIR MORRELL MACKENZIE has aroused much discussion of the question: "Should clergymen smoke?" Since everybody knows that they will, it would be at once a pity and a grave error of policy for the church authorities to prove that they should not.

THE long catalogue of vices contained in the pastoral that the Methodist Ecumenical Conference has sent out to the churches might seem to indicate a remarkably comprehensive knowledge on the part of the authors of the letter of the sharp practices and evils of this wicked world.

THE number of through lines of railroads, the demand for the canal across Nicaragua, and the increased emigration to the far West, all point to a great boom in the commerce of the Pacific in the near future. "Westward the star of empires takes its way"—is something more than poetic fancy.

THERE is a certain pathos as well as a degree of suggestiveness in the story that a little Indian boy recently staggered the Superintendent of the Pine Ridge Agency by asking timidly if there was any immediate danger of an uprising of the white people. There are always two sides to the shield.

IT does look a good deal as if the Chicago police were frightened at their own shadows when they made their recent raid on the alleged "anarchists." And yet it cannot be forgotten that on one occasion—and that not so long ago—they were as much too dilatory as they have now shown themselves too previous.

THERE is a revival of the rumor that Lillian Russell, the queen of comic opera, is again about to wed. As Miss Russell has already ventured twice on the sea of matrimony, it is apparent that she is not quite ready to pronounce marriage a positive failure. She may be a believer in the base-ball proverb, "three times and out."

A BOSTON lawyer relates that not long ago a jury went out early in the day on a simple case, and, when it had got near time for the court to rise, his honor sent for them. He asked the foreman if he required any further instruction. The foreman replied: "Your honor, here are eleven pig-headed men who won't agree to anything."

PRESS dispatches recently appeared in the newspapers from Copperopolis, Col., and Paragould, Ark. Whoever named these two towns were possessed of talents in nomenclature which were certainly unique, possibly useful. Certainly no letter addressed to any one in either of them is likely to go astray, for there are no other such names on earth.

ALMOST a daily news item is an account of a man who goes away to make a fortune for his family, stays fifteen or twenty years without communicating with them, and then is horrified, when he comes back, to find that his wife was married during his absence. He evidently thinks she should have earned the living, reared the family, and then should have supper ready and be waiting at the front gate when he returns.

THE two German bankers retiring to their counting-room and committing suicide because they found themselves and the bank hopelessly involved, furnishes a striking contrast to the two Boston bankers, who have wrecked themselves and hundreds of others, hunting for bail preparatory to defending against a prosecution for their crime. Suicide, of course, must not be commended; but one can hardly help feeling sympathy for the men who saw no other way out.

A LARGE company of railroad officials in New Jersey held a meeting to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the running of the first train of cars by a locomotive in the State. Two generations have elapsed since railroading was such a curiosity that the whole New Jersey Legislature turned out to see the little "John Bull," the puffing engine which George Stephenson had sent over to the Camden & Amboy Road. In these two generations what colossal progress has been made! It is only by looking backward that we can appreciate it. We send locomotives to John Bull now, and if the tokens do not fail we will soon send him some which will make his hair rise with awe and wonder.

SAILORS are laughing at the impulsive, unconventional young Emperor of Germany because he proposes to abolish the terms "starboard" and "port" in the German navy, substituting therefor the lubberly words "right" and "left." "Why not talk so any landlubber will know what you mean?" he is reported to have inquired with some asperity of the horrified naval commander. The Emperor is yet young. A wise choice of parents brought him a throne, but years alone will bring him that horse-sense bred of observation. In time he will learn that every profession has its cant lingo, employed, not to make the utterances of those who use it more intelligible to each other, but to make them wholly unintelligible to outsiders. By this means the dignity of the profession is conserved and the unlearned are discouraged from prying so closely into its mysteries as to discover its general superficiality.

THEY are discussing in the English papers in a way which must make the sluggish blood of the traditional British matron curdle in her veins whether the keeping of the seventh commandment is a mere climatic vagary. It seems that the tales of Rudyard Kipling have brought home to the English mind the idea that the observance of the aforesaid law is so exceptional in India that it is really not to be expected, and there is no end of persons ready to write letters to the press telling all they know or all they do not know of the matter, with affirmations and denials ad nauseam. The phrase of Byron is quoted in which he affirms the immorality of folk "where the climate's sultry," and there is a certain air of impropriety about the whole matter which seems to lend it a most attractive piquancy. The fact is that the Englishman out of sight of his insular world is always likely to be immoral and not a little likely to be a beast, and in India it is to be expected that this phase of British character shall come well to the fore, as it does in fact. The question is, What is there to be done about it?

Wanderers on the Sea.

The discoveries of modern science have revealed monsters of the deep as terrific as any that ancient fancy created, and have shown that oceans are not mere wastes of waters, but the homes of an astounding variety of living things. More than this, it has been discovered that the seas themselves have each a sort of law of existence which they obey. The Hydrographic Bureau at Washington for two years has been trying to learn something of the characteristics of the Atlantic Ocean as a great moving body of water by means of bottles, containing papers, which have been dropped overboard from vessels in many places, to drift at the mercy of the winds and waves.

Many of these bottles have been found and picked up again either in the open sea, or on shores where they had stranded.

Knowing from its records where the bottles had been thrown overboard, the Bureau had been able to trace, in a general way, the path they must have followed in order to reach the places where they were found. In a report published on the first of July this year, and accompanied by a map of the Atlantic, the adventures of a hundred and thirteeen bottles are recorded.

Being partially filled with air and then securely corked, the bottles float on the surface of the water, and go wherever the wind and the currents of the sea carry them. Each bottle contains a record of the place and the date of its starting. Some of these found have floated for many months on the bosom of the Atlantic, and traveled thousands of miles.

It has been found that bottles dropped overboard between the shores of the United States and England or France generally travel toward the northeast, following the course of that great river in the ocean called the Gulf Stream. Bottles started off the coasts of Spain or Africa travel westward until they arrive among the West India Islands. Along the European side of the ocean the bottles take a southerly course, and along the American side a northerly course.

Thus, as a result of winds and currents, the whole Atlantic is shown to be slowly circulating round and round, like an enormous pool. This accounts for the stories that were current in Europe, hundreds of years ago, of strange objects of human manufacture having floated from the New to the Old World, thus giving a clue to the existence of undiscovered lands beyond the sea.

MANY NEW SENATORS.

A GROUP OF SEVENTEEN IN THE UPPER HOUSE.

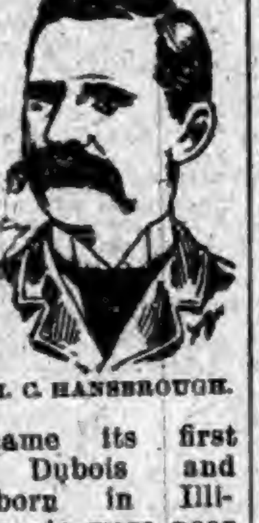
Two-fifths of the Senate Admitted in the Last Two Years—An Unprecedented Influx of New Men—The Newcomers Pictured in Portraits and Paragraphs.

New Blood and Brains.

At the opening of the Fifty-second Congress the Senate received seventeen new members. Two years ago but six new men took seats. Later eight Senators of the incoming States of North and South Dakota, Montana and Washington appeared. Then followed the admission of Idaho and Wyoming. Mahogany had to be telegraphed for; the Senate cabinet-maker worked nights to keep up with the call for new desks and chairs. In two years this staid and continuous old body has been renewed to the extent of two-fifths of its number by men wholly untried in its forms and methods of legislation, wholly reckless and fearless of its traditions or its dignity.

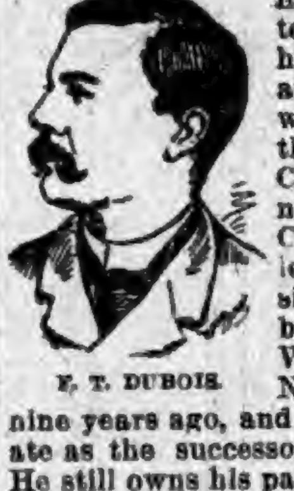
The new Senators represent a good deal of diverse talent. At least one is a millionaire, another is a physician, several are printers, one is a clergyman, and a number are lawyers. They represent all shades of belief. A more motley crowd in this respect was never before seen.

The Congressional Directory will classify the new recruits as follows: Republicans 5, Democrats 9, Farmers' Alliance 3. The Senate therefore stands Republicans 48, Democrats 37, Farmers' Alliance 3.



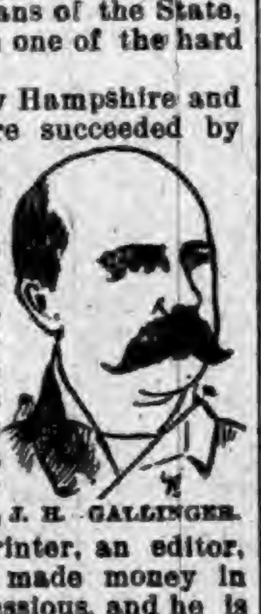
H. C. HANSBROUGH.

Some of the brightest of the young men come from the West, and two of these are so young that they are hardly out of their short clothes. Dubois of Idaho and Hansbrough of Dakota are the babies of the Senate. It is all Dubois can do to raise a mustache and Hansbrough does not look to be over thirty. Still both of them have been in the House, and Hansbrough was editing a paper at Devil's Lake when the State of North Dakota was admitted, and he became its first congressman. Both Dubois and Hansbrough were born in Illinois. Hansbrough's parents were poor and got he his education in the printing office. He left Illinois after learning his trade and went to California. There he published a daily at San Jose and worked for a time on the San Francisco Chronicle. He was news editor of the Chronicle in 1879 and left to go to Wisconsin to edit the Baraboo Bulletin. From Wisconsin he went to North Dakota about nine years ago, and he comes to the Senate as the successor of Col. Gil Pierce. He still owns his paper at Devil's Lake and varies his Congressional work by writing editorials for it.



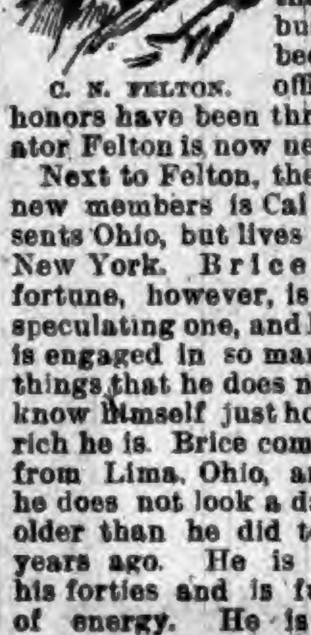
F. T. DUBOIS.

Dubois is a younger man than Hansbrough. Dubois' parents were well-to-do and he received a good education. He went to school at Yale and he was there noted as an athlete as well as a student. For four years he was the catcher of the base-ball nine of his class. His ambition grew with his muscles, and after his graduation he found Illinois too small for him and he moved to Idaho. He put his muscle into politics, and during his first Congressional campaign he spoke in every settlement in Idaho, traveling over its 85,000 square miles of mountainous territory on mules and in stage coaches and being at times nearly a month away from the railroad. His indefatigable energy enabled him to beat the older politicians of the State, and this will make him one of the hard workers of the Senate.



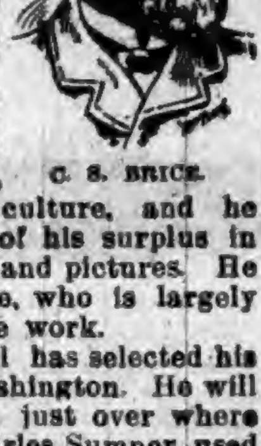
J. H. GALLINGER.

Senators Blair of New Hampshire and Hearst of California are succeeded by two men who served together in the House of Representatives. These are Dr. Jacob Gallinger and Charles Felton. Gallinger is a bright-eyed, black mustached, semi-bald little man, whose frame is packed full of nervous activity, he is a smart politician and a ready speaker. He began life poor, and has been a printer, an editor, and a doctor. He has made money in all his trades and professions, and he is now a well-to-do man.



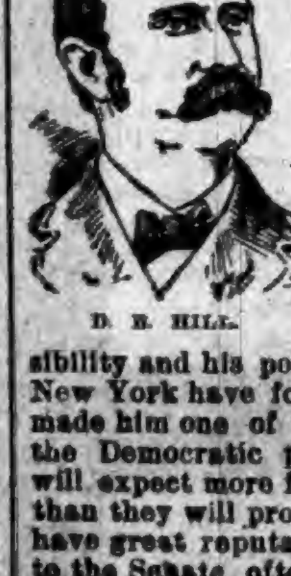
C. N. FELTON.

Charles Felton also started in life with nothing and he is now a rich man in that State of rich men, California. This means that he is a millionaire. He owns mining stocks, railroad stocks and bonds, and owns the water works of one of the best suburban towns near San Francisco. He is very modest with all his millions, and he is one of the most earnest and practical men in Congress. He was born in New York, and at seventeen went to California to make his fortune. He studied law, tried one case and then dropped the law and went into business. He has never been a candidate for office, and his political honors have been thrust upon him. Senator Felton is now nearly 50 years old.



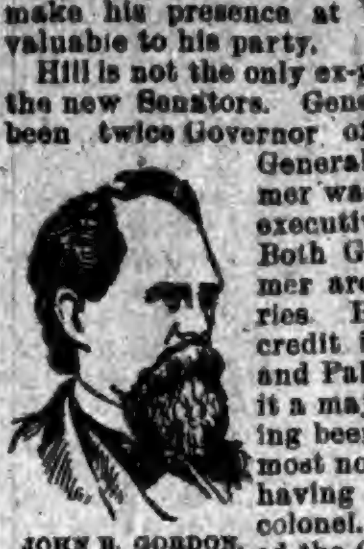
C. S. BRICE.

Next to Felton, the richest man of the new members is Cal Brice, who represents Ohio, but lives in New York. Brice's fortune, however, is a speculating one, and he is engaged in so many things that he does not know himself just how rich he is. Brice comes from Lima, Ohio, and he does not look a day older than he did ten years ago. He is in his forties and is full of energy. He is a man of considerable culture, and he spends a great part of his surplus in fine books, bric-a-brac and pictures. He has a very bright wife, who is largely interested in charitable work.



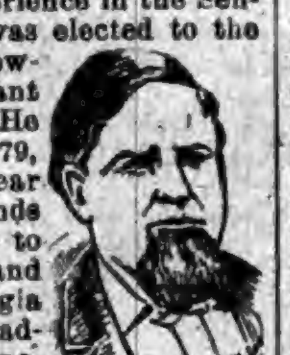
D. B. HILL.

Senator David B. Hill has selected his winter quarters at Washington. He will live just over where Charles Sumner used to hold forth, and just across the street from where President Madison lived after he left the White House. His quarters are bachelor ones, and his hotel is the Arlington. Hill will be one of the great characters of the Senate. The discussion of him as a Presidential possibility and his position as Governor of New York have for the last five years made him one of the leading figures of the Democratic party, and the people will expect more from him as a Senator than they will probably get Men who have great reputations before they get to the Senate often fail there because they do not come up to public expectations, and Hill will have to be a genius to make a great figure during the first two years. The probability is that he will speak very little, but his industry will make him a valuable man on committees, and his power of managing men and working the political wires will make his presence at Washington invaluable to his party.



JOHN B. GORDON.

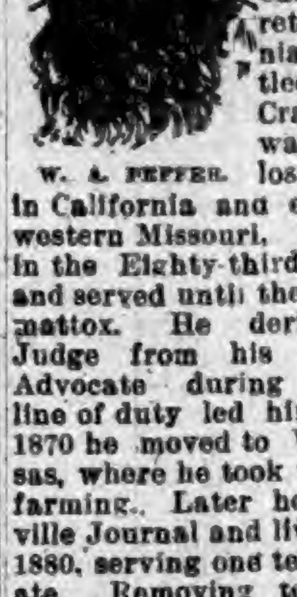
Hill is not the only ex-governor among the new Senators. General Gordon has been twice Governor of Georgia, and General John M. Palmer was once the chief executive of Illinois. Both Gordon and Palmer are men of histories. Both served with credit in the late war, and Palmer came out of it a major general, having been in some of the most noted battles, and having started in as a colonel. Gordon entered the Confederate service as a captain, and he rose to be lieutenant general, and he was commanding his troops at the time that Lee surrendered at Appomattox. He was shot all to pieces during the war and his handsome face bears the scars that he received during its battles.



JOHN M. PALMER.

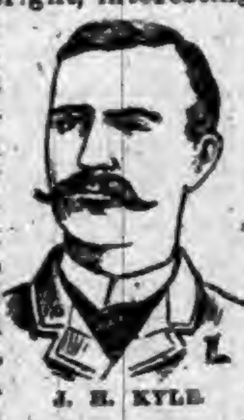
Gordon has had experience in the Senate in the past. He was elected to the Senate in 1873 and showed himself a brilliant speaker and debater. He was re-elected in 1879, but resigned the year following on the grounds that he was too poor to remain in politics, and went back to Georgia and engaged in railroading. He made a fortune, but reverses came and he lost it. He was elected Governor of Georgia in 1886 and he has been in politics more or less all his life. Gordon is one of the fine-looking men of the new members.

Gen. John M. Palmer is a very popular man. He is the oldest of the new members, and with the exception of Morrill he will probably be the oldest man in the Senate. He was born in Kentucky just seventy-four years ago, and he moved to Illinois at the age of 15. He belongs to that pioneer school of politicians of which Lincoln and Douglas were the highest types. He was a friend of both. In 1864 he came to Washington as a delegate to the Peace Congress. He had Lincoln's confidence, and rose to the rank of Major General of Volunteers. In 1872 he left the Republican party to support the Cincinnati platform and Mr. Greeley. He never returned.



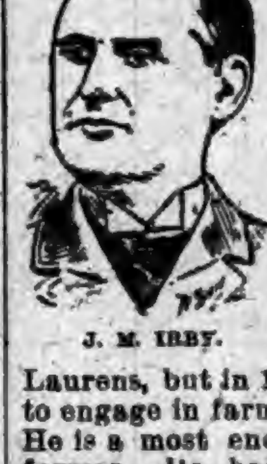
W. A. PEFFER.

The two simon-pure Alliance Senators are Judge William A. Peffer, of Kansas, and John H. Kyle, of South Dakota. Senator Peffer is a Pennsylvanian, born in Cumberland County sixty years ago. At 19 he joined the Argonauts and made a small fortune gold-hunting in California. In 1852 he returned to Pennsylvania, married, and settled on a farm near Crawfordsville, Ind. It was not long before he lost the money he made in California and emigrated to Southwestern Missouri. In 1862 he enlisted in the Eighty-third Illinois Volunteers, and served until the surrender at Appomattox. He derived the title of Judge from his service as Judge Advocate during the war. This line of duty led him to study law. In 1870 he moved to Wilson County, Kansas, where he took up a claim and tried farming. Later he started the Coffeyville Journal and lived in Coffeyville till 1880, serving one term in the State Senate. Removing to Topeka, he took charge of the Kansas Farmer, of which he afterward became the proprietor. When the Alliance movement began he went to work for it with a will.



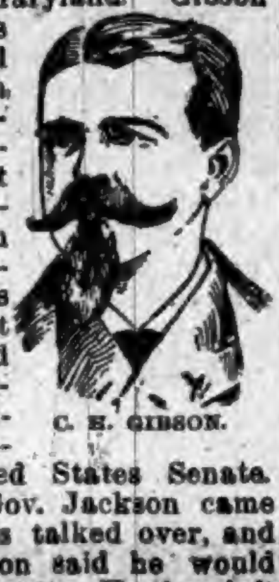
J. H. KYLE.

The new Senator from South Dakota, John H. Kyle, is a bright, interesting young Congregational minister. He was born at Xenia, Ohio, 38 years ago. He graduated from Oberlin in 1873, studied theology in the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa., where he was ordained in 1882, and then preached for a year or two in a Congregational church in Salt Lake City. In 1886 he went to Yankton, S. D., and a little later became financial secretary of Yankton College. He has been a member of the South Dakota State Senate.

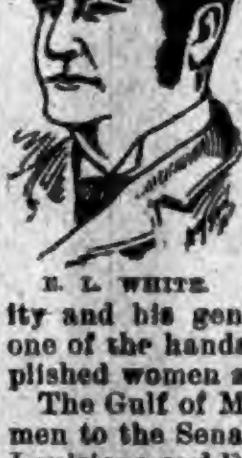


J. M. IRBY.

The third Alliance Senator is Col. John Laurens Manning Irby, who takes the seat of Wade Hampton. He comes of old revolutionary stock long honored in South Carolina. He was educated in the University of Virginia and attended Princeton College for a time. He studied law at his home in South Carolina and was admitted to the bar in 1867. He practiced several years at Laurens, but in 1878 abandoned the law to engage in farming on his plantation. He is a most energetic and progressive farmer. He had always been a Democrat until the Alliance movement began, when he joined in its work. Col. Irby is an eloquent speaker.

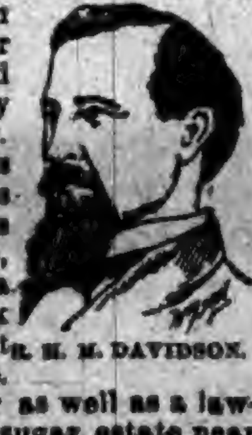


C. H. GIBSON.



E. L. WHITE.

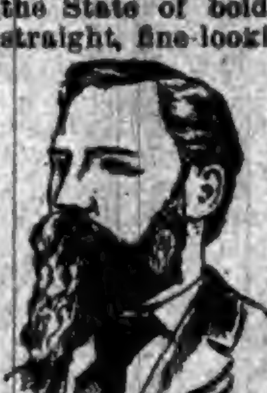
A curious appointment was that of Senator Gibson, of Maryland. Gibson has been in Congress for several terms and he was about to open a campaign as a candidate for the clerkship of the present House when he received a note from Senator Gorman asking him to call at his house. He went at once, and Gorman told him that Gov. Jackson intended to appoint him to the vacancy in the United States Senate. Shortly after this Gov. Jackson came in. The matter was talked over, and Gibson said he would accept it. He then left Senator Gorman, and shortly after this Governor Jackson called upon him at the hotel and formally tendered him the appointment. His office will last only for a few months, as the vacancy which he fills is only a short one. He is noted for his good fellowship, his hospitality and his generosity, and his wife is one of the handsomest and most accomplished women at the capital.



R. H. M. DAVIDSON.

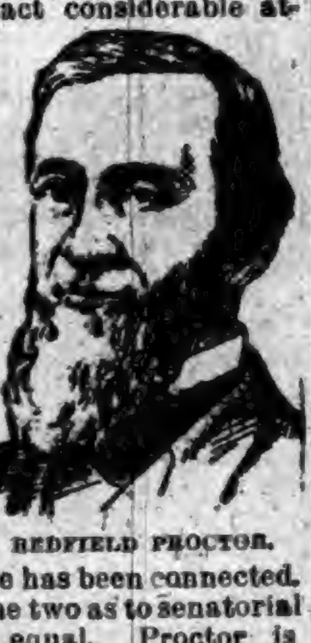
The Gulf of Mexico furnishes two new men to the Senate. These are White of Louisiana and Davidson of Florida Senator White is a lawyer, and is noted for his vitality and nervous energy. He is six feet tall and has a robust frame. He is well educated, speaks French like a creole, and is very fluent as a debater. He is quick at repartee, though not bitter in his remarks. He is a sugar planter as well as a lawyer, and has a large sugar estate near New Orleans He is a bachelor, but prefers his own home to a hotel, and he will probably keep house at Washington with his sister as the female head of the house.

Senator Davidson, of Florida, has been in the lower house of Congress for years. He is a man of fair, average ability, but with none of the elements of great statesmanship or great oratory about him. He is well educated, and during the late unpleasantness he won his spurs on the Confederate side, entering the service as a captain and coming out a lieutenant colonel.



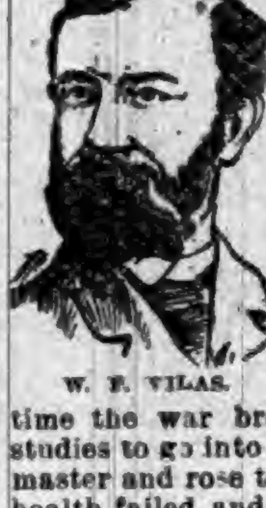
HORACE CHILTON.

Senator Chilton, of Texas, comes from the State of bold, bad men. He is a straight, fine-looking fellow, and wears when at home a great sombrero. He is a much stronger man than the average, and starting life with nothing, he has made a reputation as a lawyer and a speaker. He is appointed to the Senate by his old friend Governor Hogg. The two were boys together, and they slept under the same blanket. Now Hogg has become Governor, and he gives his old playmate the best office in his power. Mr. Chilton is 40 years old, and a native-born Texan. He began life in a printer's office as a "devil," worked up to the case, and finally started a small newspaper for himself. For years he set type, and supported his mother and gave his sister an education.



REDFIELD PROCTOR.

The two ex-Cabinet officers who come into the Senate attract considerable attention. Proctor, of Vermont, is a mild man, but he is fresh from the great Department of War, and there is fire in his eye. Vilas has been digesting the postal schemes in the long walks which he has taken about his Wisconsin home, and he will trot out new bills for the improvement of the two great departments with which he has been connected. The race between the two as to senatorial notoriety will be equal. Proctor is rather a business man than a speaker, while Vilas has a great reputation as both. Senator Proctor has made a fortune by his business brains. He was made receiver of the Vermont marble quarries and he managed them so that they have made him rich. He is now about 60 years of age. He was born in Vermont and was studying law at the time the war broke out. He left his studies to go into the army as quartermaster and rose to be Colonel, when his health failed and he went to farming. He was farming when he became receiver of the marble quarries, and he still owns a big farm and runs it



W. F. VILAS.

Senator Vilas' father was well-to-do. He moved to Wisconsin from Vermont at an early date and young Vilas was given a good education. He went to school at Madison and graduated at the college there at thirteen, and at the age of twenty he had won his first case before the Supreme Court of his State. He showed himself to be a good lawyer and he has made a great deal of money at his practice. He has saved his money and invested it, and his investments have been particularly lucky ones. He made a fortune out of the Gogebic iron region, where he bought a large tract of land before the mineral was discovered, and held it, thinking that the timber on it would some day be very valuable, and that his children would realize out of it if he did not. The iron was found in large quantities and of the most excellent quality, and the lands became valuable as mineral regions rather than for their timber.

Too Long to Wait.

A German peasant family had made all their arrangements to emigrate to the United States. The day before the family was to take its departure, the eldest son, Hans, who was an enormous eater, intimated that he did not care to go West."

"Has some village maiden beguiled thee to remain behind?" asked the father.

"Nothing of the kind."

"Why, then, doest thou not wish to go with us?"

"I have been talking with the schoolmaster, and——"

"Well, what did he say?"

"He says that when it is 12 o'clock with us here in Germany that——"

"That what?"

"When it is 12 o'clock here with us that in America it is 9 o'clock in the evening."

"Well?"

"I don't want to go to a place where I have to wait that long for my dinner." And the poor fellow completely broke down at the mere thought of it.

St. Giles.

St. Giles, saint, was born at Athens, and died abbot of Nismes, France, in the year 750; he is said to have been so pious that he sold not only his patrimony, but even his coat, to enable him to bestow charity upon poor Christians. St. Giles became the patron of cripples, in consequence of his refusing to be cured of an accidental lameness, caused by the arrow of a huntsman's bow, lest he might not otherwise have sufficient means of mortifying himself. The churches dedicated to him have generally been in the suburbs; and at Cripplegate, in London, even before the Conquest, cripples used there to solicit charity, from the example of the lame man who begged alms of St. Peter and St. John at the gate of the temple. St. Giles is the patron saint of Edinburgh, and the High Church of the Scottish capital is dedicated to him. Many marvels are gravely recorded of him, and he still retains the title of patron of beggars and cripples.

Sneezing.

According to a Rabbinical legend, sneezing, as a habit, is only referable to the time of Jacob. Before patriarchal days no one sneezed more than once; for the sufficient reason that the shock was invariably fatal. At Jacob's intercession this law was abrogated, but only on condition that all races of men should thenceforth employ fit words of congratulation for the sneezer's happy deliverance.

A PHILANTHROPIC farmer of Mt. Carmel, Conn., offered some time ago to "deliver free of expense during the month of October fifty bushels of apples to deserving poor families providing the members of these families do not use intoxicating liquor or tobacco or keep a dog." Nine got their apples.

A Great Medicine Institution.

It is not often that THE TIDINGS indulges in a puff of any business enterprise, but in this instance we are induced to say a few words in reference to the great growth of the Dr. Kilmer Medicine Company at Binghampton, N. Y. From a small beginning a dozen years ago the Dr. Kilmer Company have grown to immense proportions already. Having only just completed a large five-story addition to their factory the rapid growth of their business demands still more room, until another large addition is now being contemplated to their enormous establishment. In addition to the special practice of Dr. Kilmer himself, extending into several States, his several proprietary remedies have large sales and enjoy great popularity all over the country. The justly celebrated kidney remedy, known throughout the land as SWAMP-ROOT, has already reached the largest sales of any kidney remedy in the world. And what is more this remedy has acquired its popularity and enormous sales, not by great advertising, but mainly through the reputation of the cures which it has wrought. Testimonials as to its merits and the cures it has made have been received by hundreds from every State in the Union. Where a remedy accomplishes such cures as SWAMP-ROOT has done in cases where they were even regarded as hopeless it is a pleasure to refer to such facts in our columns.—Buffalo Saturday Tidings.

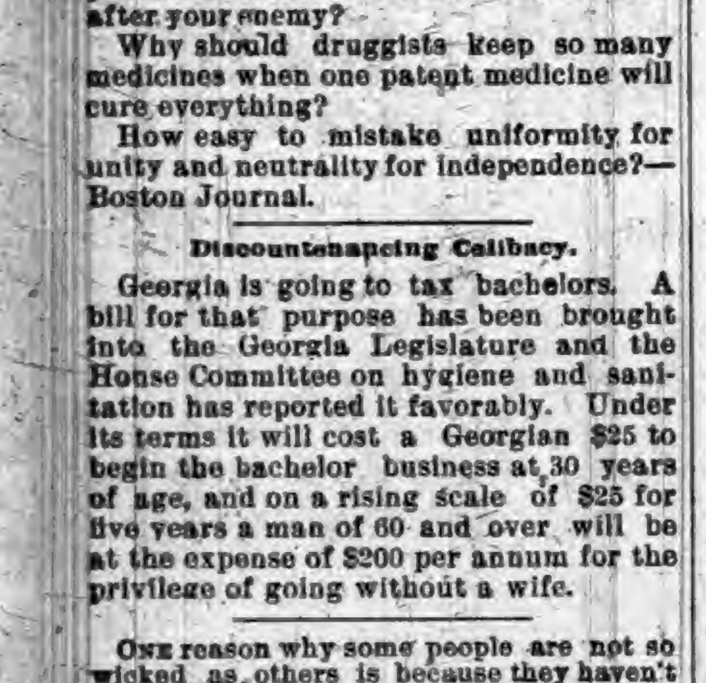
Discountenancing Celibacy.

Georgia is going to tax bachelors. A bill for that purpose has been brought into the Georgia Legislature and the House Committee on hygiene and sanitation has reported it favorably. Under its terms it will cost a Georgian $25 to begin the bachelor business at 30 years of age, and on a rising scale of $25 for five years a man of 60 and over will be at the expense of $200 per annum for the privilege of going without a wife.

ONE reason why some people are not so wicked as others is because they haven't had so good a chance.



A new man can be made, out of one that's "used-up," bilious and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It starts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, and builds up flesh and strength. It's the only Blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promises—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

"Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery."

CHRISTMAS DAY.

WHAT'S this hurry,
what's this flurry,
All throughout the house to-day?
Everywhere a merry
scurry,
Everywhere a sound
of play.
Something, too, 's the matter, matter,
Out-of-doors, as well
as in,
For the bell goes clatter, clatter,
Every minute—such a din!

Everybody winking, blinking,
In a queer, mysterious way;
What on earth can they be thinking,
What on earth can be to pay!
Bobby peeping o'er the stairway,
Bursts into a little shout;
Kitty, too, is in a fair way,
Where she hides, to giggle out.

As the bell goes cling-a-ling-ing
Every minute more and more,
And swift feet go springing, springing,
Through the hall-way to the door,
Where a glimpse of box and packet,
And a little rustle, rustle,
Make such sight and sound and racket—
Such a jolly bustle, bustle—
That the youngsters in their places,
Hiding slying out of sight,
All at once show shinging faces,
All at once scream with delight.

Go and ask them what's the matter—
What the fun outside and in—
What the meaning of the clatter,
What the bustle and the din.
Hear them, hear them laugh and shout
then,
All together hear them say,
"Why, what have you been about, then,
Not to know it's Christmas Day?"

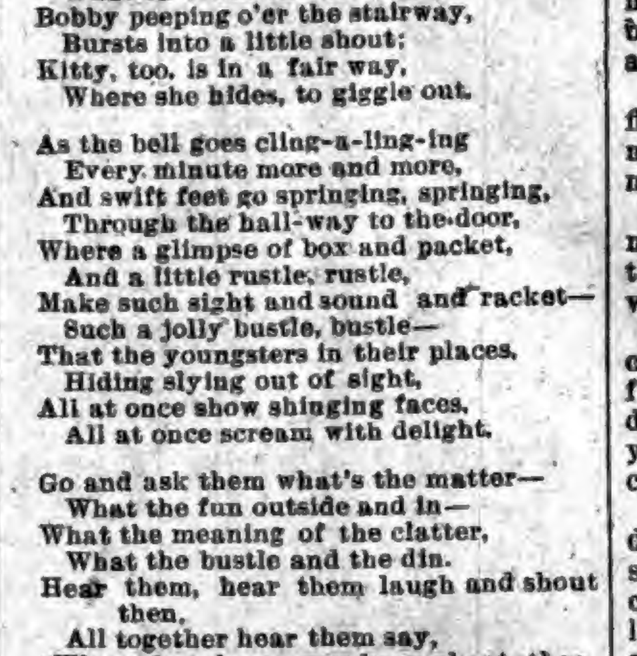
FILSEY



"I RECKON this is goin' ter be er buster," said old Uncle Billy Botsworth as he came into the family sitting-room of the old farm house with a load of wood on his shoulders. With a crash he deposited his burden on the spacious hearth, where a huge fire was already blazing, and began to pile on the long, dry sticks of beech and hickory until in a few moments a perfect sheet of flame was reoring up the wide-throated chimney.

Grandma Botsworth, who sat in her accustomed corner by the "jamb," busy with her knitting, made no reply, while Uncle Billy proceeded to remove his coat, hat and boots, and, having filled and lighted his pipe, sat down to enjoy himself. Outside a furious snow storm was raging, and already the earth was heavily carpeted with white. Presently his two sons, Jacob and Milton, came in from doing up the chores, and like their father, were soon divested of caps, coats and boots, and seated before the rousing fire talking over the events of the day.

A little later Mrs. Botsworth joined them, and then the family circle was complete. No, not complete, either; a daughter was missing. Three years ago this Christmas eve she had gone out from the parental roof to marry the man she loved, but whom her father had forbidden some time before to enter his doors. But Mary had gone; and she and her husband, a poor mechanic, went out West to build up for themselves a home and fortune. After they were married, a day or two before they were to start for Dakota, Mary and her husband drove to the old home, where she got out of the buggy and started to go into the house to say good-by. She did not ask nor expect forgiveness from her father for what she had done; but she knew her mother and her brothers still loved her, and would gladly have her come to see them. So she just had her hand on the latch, and, with tear-filled eyes, was taking in the dear and familiar surroundings, when her father, coming round the corner of the house, saw her.

"Don't yer come in here," he yelled, hoarsely. "Don't step your foot inside 'o that gate, Mary Ellen Botsworth. You're no darter o' mine. Take yer hatchet-faced paint-slinger an' git."

For a moment she stood as if stunned at his words; then, without a word, turned and went to the buggy. Her husband helped her in, and then, standing up and shaking his whip at Uncle Billy, said: "Bill Botsworth, if you wasn't my wife's father, I'd thrash you till you couldn't walk for a week. You ob'ect to me for a son-in-law only because I am poor; but I'll see the day I can buy an' sell you 's if you was black, darn you."

Here Mary laid her hand on his arm and said, "Stop, Will; it won't help things any to quarrel; let's go."

It was well that Will heeded her advice, for old Uncle Billy had started for the buggy with murder in his eye; and there is no telling what might have happened had not Milton and Jacob at this juncture made their appearance and urged him to be quiet.

So Mary went from home an outcast; and, as the buggy disappeared around the bend in the road, Milton turned to his father, and, with tears in his eyes, said, reproachfully:

"Pap, you oughtenter have done it."

And Mrs. Botsworth, who had come to the door just in time to take in the affair, echoed her son's words:

"No, pap, you was too hasty," she added. "Mary Ellen was allus a mighty good girl; an', though I'd ruther she'd not a married Will Kenney, yet I hope the Lord will prosper them both."

"You are right, mother," said Jacob, the elder of her sons, "you are right, mother. 'Filsey' (the nickname the boys had bestowed upon Mary when she was a toddler) was the best girl in Indiany; kind an' lovin', an' a sister worth the havin'."

As for Uncle Billy, seeing his whole family up in arms against him, he vouchsafed no reply, but turning, strode rapidly in the direction of the barn.

From that time on he had never spoken his daughter's name. And although he knew that mother and the boys got occasional letters from her, yet he never by sign or inquiry showed that he ever thought of her, or had the slightest interest in knowing whether she was dead or alive.

But on the Christmas eve that I have introduced him to your notice, he sat by the fire thinking; and his thoughts were of her. He had long ago admitted to himself that he was too hasty when he drove his only daughter away from his home; but he still remained silent. At each family reunion, always held on Christmas day, he had missed her. And as the coming one was to be held at his house, and his brothers and sisters, with their families, would be there, he, with some bitterness of feeling, was brooding over the fact that, through no fault of his, he reasoned, the pleasures of the day would be marred. Everybody missed Mary; the children of his nephews and nieces would ask for her and talk about her, despite the admonitions they had received to the contrary. As he was busy with his thoughts, gazing the while moodily into the fire, and now and then punching up the fore sticks in a spiteful sort of way, Grandma Botsworth suddenly spoke up and said:

"Tomorrer'll be another white Christmas. This makes two on 'em right hand runnin'. Three years ago was a mighty mild winter, and we had a green Christmas that year."

Here the old lady paused and heaved a sigh. No one said anything and she continued: "I recolleck now there was more buryin's that year in the Bald Hill buryin' groun' than there has been since all put together."

"Yes," assented Mrs. Botsworth, reflectively, "a green Christmas allers makes a fat graveyard, they say, an' I never knewed it to fail."

"I reckon it'll be good sleighin' tomorrer," observed Uncle Billy, "an' all the folks'll come over in the bobs. Eh! what's that?"

The exclamation with which he concluded his remark was caused by the furious bark of old "Maje," the watch-dog, the sound of voices in the front yard, and what seemed to be the cry of a child in fear.

The two boys started for the front door, while the remainder of the family sat intently listening and wondering who could be their visitors. They had not long to wait; for a minute latter the sitting-room door was flung open and Jacob strode in, bearing in his arms a bright and lusty 2-year-old boy. Almost snatching the wraps from about it, and holding the little fellow up, he shouted: "Pap, look at your grandson; Filsey's come, an' this is her boy."

"The devil it is," roared Uncle Billy, springing to his feet, with a face as black as a thundercloud. "Take him away; I don't want ter see him."

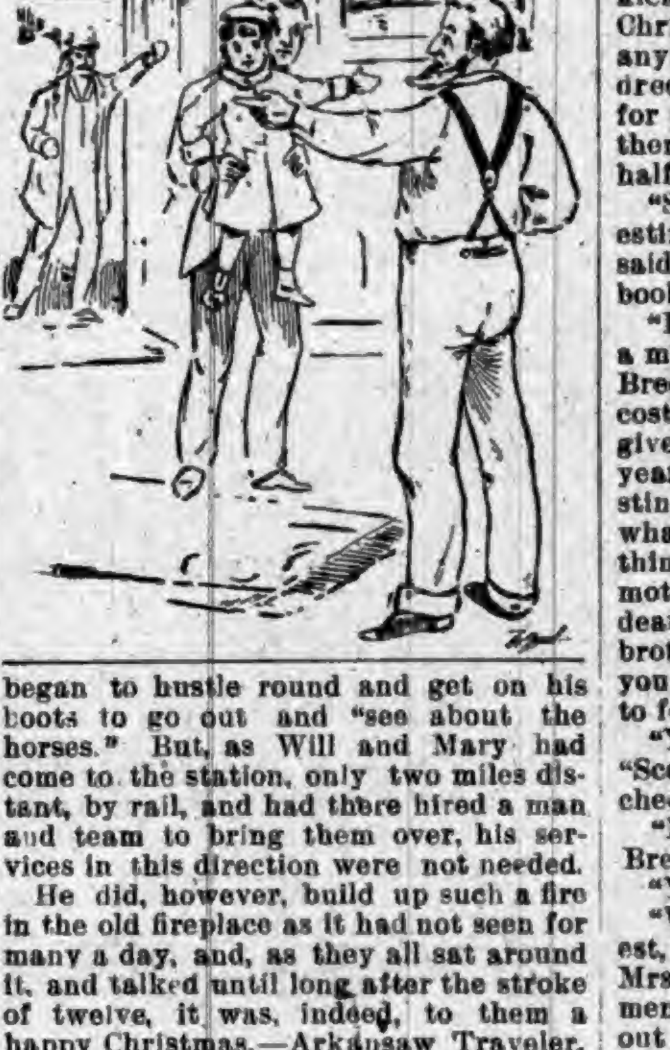
"Hold on a minute," shouted a clear, strong voice in the doorway. It was the son-in-law who had spoken, and who stepped into the room, his figure erect and eyes blazing with anger. "Hold on a minute, I say," he continued; "I want a word, Bill Botsworth. I can buy and sell you. I am a rich man, but you don't have to own me fer a son-in-law on that account. As for me, I can get along without you. But Mary here wanted to come back and see her mother and all of you once more, and I said she should; and, more than that, I said you should treat her and baby right, or I'd make you; and, by thunder, I'll do it! Understand me, I ask no favors for myself; but for this poor girl here, that still loves you, but who wants to come home only for a little while, I will speak for, and fight for, too, if necessary." Even while he was talking, mother and daughter were weeping in each other's embrace, and Grandma Botsworth, rising with difficulty from her seat, laid her hand on her son's shoulder. "William," she said, "now's as good a time to give in as ye'll ever have. If Mary an' Will can afford to forgive you, I don't see how you can help forgiven' them. Come now, son, do right."

For an instant he stood struggling with his passion, then love conquered. extending his hand to his son-in-law, he said: "Billy, I knock under; I've made a mistake an' am sorry for it. Daughter, come here."

With a glad cry Mary put her arms around his neck and kissed him again and again.

"There, there, child!" the old fellow murmured, in a voice husky with emotion, "it's all forgot now, an——"

But he did not finish the sentence. And, while Mary was kissing grandma and all were silently crying for joy, he began to hustle round and get on his boots to go out and "see about the horses." But, as Will and Mary had come to the station, only two miles distant, by rail, and had there hired a man and team to bring them over, his services in this direction were not needed.



He did, however, build up such a fire in the old fireplace as it had not seen for many a day, and, as they all sat around it, and talked until long after the stroke of twelve, it was, indeed, to them a happy Christmas.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE.

It Was a Sad One and Cost a Brave Engineer His Life.

We were coming up through Missouri on the afternoon before Christmas last year. It was terribly cold and bitter, and the snow lay deep on the tracks. There were dozens of men on the train with Christmas bundles, dozens of women with Christmas packages, and as the afternoon waned and we passed station after station the people dropped off one by one until only a dozen of us were left. Soon after leaving a small station we all noticed the singular action of the train. For a mile or two we would be hauled along like lightning and then the speed would slow down to fifteen miles an hour without apparent reason.

One of the passengers who lived in a town fifteen or twenty miles ahead of us, and who had a dozen or more parcels piled up on the seat, soon began to fret and fume.

"Isn't he going to get us there before midnight?" he growled as the train slowed up. Then, as the speed increased until we seemed to be flying, he continued:

"He'll have us off the track! That engineer is surely drunk! Some one ought to hunt up the conductor."

When we had run ten or twelve miles in the manner described the conductor came through our car on his way forward. He had an anxious look on his face, and did not stop to answer questions. Before he was out of the coach, however, there was a terrific crash, the forward ends of the coaches were smashed and splintered, and then we rolled down an embankment and brought up in a field.

It was God's mercy that every man and woman was not killed outright, but, strangely enough, none of the passengers were even badly bruised. When we had extricated ourselves from the wreck we went forward to the engine. It was off the track, on its back, and under the broken wheels and twisted and bent machinery lay the engineer and fireman, both dead.

Some one crept into the broken window of the cab to shut off the steam, and when he reappeared he had a package with the engineer's name on it. Inside was a toy horse, three or four wooden soldiers, a whistle, and other childish playthings. He, as well as others, had some one who was eagerly expecting Santa Claus.

We had run into the rear of a freight train which was taking a siding to let us pass. We were just fifty seconds on her time. As the trainmen gathered to rescue the bodies from the wreck one of them took a paper from the dead engineer's hand. It was a telegram received at the last station and read:

"Fred was burned to death this noon! Mary."

Then we accounted for the wild running of the train—for what had before been a mystery. There was the Santa Claus gifts for the dear boy at home; there was the telegram blasting all hopes—destroying all visions of happiness—shattering in one moment a thousand plans for the future. And men gathered closer and wiped away tears and whispered:

"And who now can comfort the motherless widow! What a Christmas the morrow will bring her!"

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Mr. Breezy Gets Just the Sweetest, Nicest Present in the World.

"WHO would think it!" said Mrs. Breezy, taking up a piece of fancy work and sitting comfortably in her rocking chair. "It is only a few weeks to Christmas."

"Is that all?" asked Mr. Breezy, deep in his newspaper.

"Yes, only a few weeks," said Mrs. Breezy. "The time will fly away before we know it, and I have hardly thought of presents. I have so many to make, too. Now you are elected, I suppose you won't grumble, as you usually do at this season of the year. There isn't any excuse for your saying that you can't afford to give me a few dollars for presents this year. It's high time I had a little money to commence with, too. Suppose you let me have a check for a hundred dollars in the morning, and——"

"A check for what?" asked Mr. Breezy, looking up suddenly.

"Only a hundred dollars to start with," said Mrs. Breezy, putting her thread a little through her work.

"A hundred dollars to start with?" ejaculated Mr. Breezy. "Start what?"

"That's all the attention you ever pay to anything I say," said Mrs. Breezy. "I suppose you haven't heard a word I've been saying. Do put down that ever asting newspaper and pay a little attention to your wife for once in your life. I say you may give me a check for a hundred—a hundred and fifty dollars in the morning for Christmas"—

"You just said a hundred," said Mr. Breezy.

"I knew you'd notice that," said Mrs. Breezy. "I know I said a hundred a moment ago, but I've changed my mind. The fact is, I should really have two hundred dollars"—

"My dear, if you keep raising the limit at this rate I shall have to draw out of the game"

"I don't understand your horrid gambling terms, and I wish you would confine yourself to respectable language," said Mrs Breezy, fumbling around in her work-basket for a particular shade of silk. "Two hundred and fifty dollars won't be any too much for"—

"I call," cried Mr. Breezy.

"There you go again," said Mrs Breezy. "For heaven's sake drop on—stop that slang You know you can well afford to give me a few hundred dollars for Christmas presents, and the man who has met with the luck you have this year in politics should not kick—object to giving his wife a little Christmas money. You wouldn't think anything of spending three or four hundred dollars on vile liquors and cigars for your—your constituents, as you call them, but when your wife asks you for half that sum——"

"Suppose we return to the original estimates and call it an even hundred?" said Mr. Breezy, pulling out his check-book.

"Do you suppose I can get along with a miserable hundred dollars?" cried Mrs. Breezy. "Why, your present alone will cost nearly that. Yes, I expected to give you a real handsome present this year, but if you are going to be so stingy, of course you will have to take what I can afford to give you. Then think of the children, and of dear mother, and of grandmamma, and my dear sister-in-law, to say nothing of brother Jack and cousin Harry, and your own mother. You don't want me to forget your own mother——"

"You hold over me," said Mr. Breezy. "Scoop the pot," and he threw down a check. "Fill her out to suit yourself."

"Do you really mean it?" asked Mrs. Breezy.

"Yes."

"Well, you shall have just the sweetest, nicest present in the world." And Mrs Breezy gave her husband a tremendous kiss upon the lips, and flitted out of the room with the check.

"The first time in this year," gasped Mr. Breezy, as he slowly recovered from his astonishment

Jimmy Surprised Them.

A few years back, when the large cathedral that adorns Brisbane was in course of construction, the collector for the building fund called upon a well-known mercantile firm for a subscription, but he was politely told that he should go to the rich people, who might be in a better position to "help the work along." "Go to Jimmy Tyson; he has more than any of us." (Up to that time "Jimmy's" name was never seen on any list for more than one pound.) "Well," said the collector, "as Tyson is a rich man, I will go to him for a donation." "Do," said the head of the firm, "and whatever he gives you we will guarantee you the same amount." The collector, a few days later, meeting Mr. Tyson, related to him what had taken place, and concluded by saying: "So, Mr. Tyson, I do not know what amount the firm is going to give until I have your name on my list." "Well," said Mr. Tyson, in a gruff voice, "give me yer pen and ink and I'll give yees a bob or two." "Jimmy" wrote out a check for five thousand pounds and gave it to the astonished collector.

Easy or Impossible.

A remark imputed to Victor Hugo in reply to a young man, who asked him if it was difficult to write poetry, is both witty and true, but it is more witty than true.

"My dear sir," the poet is said to have replied, "it is either easy or impossible!"

But it is not always easy for true poets to write poetry. Homer nodded occasionally, and some other great poets have put forth most prosy poetry.

The Voice of the People

Reaches us—or should do so—through the ballot-box. This is the medium through which it ought to speak in clarion tones. But there are other means by which the people voice their sentiments, irrespective of politics, concerning matters of vital importance. Successful or unsuccessful are those popular admonitions as they are heard distinctly or faintly. But health, the grand desideratum, appeals to us all. The avenue is only cleared when the obstacles which bar its complete recovery are swept aside. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has for nearly a third of a century occupied the first rank among proprietary remedies for debility, dyspepsia, constipation, disorder of the liver and kidneys, and as an effectual means of conquering and preventing malarial complaints. Since the advent of "la grippe" it has also signalized itself as a cure of the complaint.

Why a Blue Rose Is Impossible.

A florist makes the assertion that a blue rose is among the impossibilities, but, while an explanation of this curious fact may be equally impossible, he fails to mention a very interesting law which governs the coloring of all flowers. A knowledge of this law would save many flower-growers hours of unavailing and foolish hope. The law is simply this: The three colors, red, blue, and yellow, never all appear in the same species of flowers; any two may exist, but never the third. Thus we have the red and yellow roses, but no blue; red and blue verbenas, but no yellow; yellow and blue in the various members of the viola family (as pansies for instance,) but no red; red and yellow gladioli, but no blue, and so on.—St. Louis Republic.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Home Troubles.

The many troubles in your household will tend to your edification, if you strive to bear them all in gentleness, patience, and kindness. Keep this ever before you, and remember constantly that God's loving eyes are upon you amid all the little worries and vexations, watching whether you take them as He would desire. Offer up all such occasions to Him, and if sometimes you are put out, and give way to impatience, do not be discouraged, but make haste to regain your lost composure.

Until recently the royal palace at Berlin has been lighted only by candles. Both the father and the grandfather of the present Kaiser were opposed to gas and would not allow it to be introduced into the palace. Emperor William has had gas put in, and is now arranging for electric lights.

Two Things
In Regard to Catarrh

1st, It is a Constitutional Disease; and 2d, It Requires a Constitutional Remedy.

These two facts are now so well known to the medical fraternity that local applications like snuffs and inhalants, are regarded as at best likely to give only temporary relief. To effect a permanent cure of Catarrh requires a constitutional Remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by purifying the blood, repairing the diseased tissues, and imparting healthy tone to the affected organs, does give thorough and lasting cure.

"I want to say that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a permanent cure for catarrh. After suffering with catarrh for many years, I was requested to take

"August Flower"

"I inherit some tendency to Dyspepsia from my mother. I suffered two years in this way; consulted a number of doctors. They did me no good. I then used your August Flower and it was just two days when I felt great relief. I soon got so that I could sleep and eat, and I felt that I was well. That was three years ago, and I am still first-class. I am never without a bottle, and if I feel constipated the least particle a dose or two of August Flower does the work. The beauty of the medicine is, that you can stop the use of it without any bad effect on the system. While I was sick I felt everything it seemed to me a man could feel. I was of all men most miserable. I can say, in conclusion, that I believe August Flower will cure anyone of indigestion, if taken with judgment. A. M. CORRESPONDENCE

WATERLOO.

Bert. Butler is home for the holidays, at rest.

Mr. Daniels of Hillsdale, Mich., spent last Sunday in Waterloo.

Mrs S. Edge came over from Auburn last week, and spent two days here.

Mrs. W. A. Patterson who has been visiting relatives in Elkhart, returned home Wednesday.

Lucy Harper has been canvassing the town, selling a variety of beautiful fancy work articles, the handiwork of her aunt and suitable for Christmas gifts.

Miss Blanche Davidson has been canvassing here for the sale of a fine work, large, beautifully bound, numerous and fine illustrations, and thick, fine paper, of course, with beautiful type. The title we have forgotten, but she has been successful, and has many subscribers.

The Methodists are having jubilee services this week. Their church debt is about paid, and they have good cause for celebrating the occasion. Services will be held in the M. E. church every evening this week. The sermon each evening will be preached by a different minister, from abroad.

When every avenue is open to women as at present, and the advancement made in every direction so rapid as to be wonderful, and a single decade will show that those who do not at once start in the race will be left far behind. Why will any be so short sighted as not to see the wrong they are doing themselves? Not that a knowledge of domestic duties should not have due prominence, and be thoroughly understood, and valued as it should be, but this should not be the whole aim in life. Your correspondent feels strongly upon this subject, and would like to say to every girl in the land, do not throw away your chances.

Miss May Davidson, one of the graduates of the high school last summer, is giving music lessons to a class of eight. She is acting wisely in this, and any girl upon leaving school, who does not make a start for herself, and to be independent, makes a great mistake, as sooner or later she will discover. She should also have the determination to make the most of every opportunity for improvement in every way. This applies not alone to girls who have no prospects in the form of wealth coming to them through parents or friends. Wealth especially in this country often "takes to itself wings and flies away." Every girl needs the discipline that the course indicated gives affecting not only her character, and future life, but even her bearing in the active, self-reliant business manner shown.

CORUNNA

Dall. Bowers removed last week to Elkhart. We are sorry to loose so good a citizen.

George Miles looks happy over the advent of a new baby girl in their home. The mother is not getting along as well as could be hoped at this writing.

Rain and plenty of mud. Alas, where is our sleighing. Alas, for human hopes they are scattered to the winds and naught is left but the bare ground.

We wish to correct an error in our last in regard to the final dedication of the Disciple church, instead of the last Sunday in December, it will occur the first Sunday in January.

The party held in honor of I. Jepson, of Eden, O., at the residence of his uncle, Mr. Osborn, on last Thursday eve, was a grand success, and all were highly entertained. He returned to his home Monday.

A Christmas entertainment will be held in the Christian church, and a Christmas tree is being prepared. All are invited to bring their presents and they will be well cared for and bestowed upon the rightful recipients.

Rev. Patee preached at the Christian church Monday eve. The sermon was of unusual interest and should have been listened to by a crowded house instead of the small audience. Rev. Roberts of Kendallville, occupied the pulpit Tuesday eve.

The Liberal brethren closed their protracted effort of two weeks with four conversions. There were three additions to the church. We are sorry that there were not more to turn from the broad way that leads to destruction, but thankful that some would come.

The peanut social at Mr. Kuaners' last Friday eve was enjoyed by all. Tom. Orr received the prize for finding the most peanuts, which had previously been stowed away in out of way places, and in the way places, for that matter. Lydal Pattee received the booby prize for finding the least.

The radicals of the U. B church held a meeting here last week which resulted in the subscription of at least $1,500 for their new church which will be commenced as soon as a suitable lot can be bought. They expect to build the finest church in town, worth about three or four thousand.

Although the roads are bad, our little town is full of teams, and business is prospering in every branch. The creamery and mill running have something to do with this, and it is hoped that there will be more new enterprises started, as this is a very good location for most any kind of business.

BUTLER.

Warm weather and muddy roads make business dull.

J. A. Campbell and wife will spend the holidays in Toledo and Tiffin, O.

George Train is reported better, but his improvement is supposed to be only temporary.

William Scovill who lives on the Jesse Rose farm is erecting a very nice farm dwelling and it is nearly completed.

The M. E. friends continue their revival effort but results are not reassuring. Preparations for their Christmas entertainment continue and will be one of rare importance.

Father Jacob Gunsenhouser and his aged wife are quite feeble this winter. They are nearly of an age and about 85. Their daughter Sarah and her husband William Tustison are caring for them.

Our Wind Mill Co. are having a very prospering business this year and the stock holders who so generously put up $1000 for the purpose of putting the concern on its feet are looking anxiously for a small return from their generosity.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

The influenza is found in a number of families.

Our people begin to look for a muddy winter as in the past.

J Carper has his new house completed. J. Dove did the carpenter work.

We learn that Milt Carnahan is buying up all the fat hogs and sheep that are for sale.

We see that William Kruse took home some Ohio furniture for housekeeping. We wish him success.

We hear there was to have been an oyster supper at P. Lochner's last Saturday night for the benefit of their minister, Rev. Banks.

The literary and debating society at Lockwood's school house was organized on last Thursday night, and will be held on Thursday evening of each week.

There was a quarterly meeting held last Saturday and Sunday by Elder Clay at the Hopewell church, and we hear of a good attendance. On Sunday the Elder preached a splendid discourse.

The Jackson township Sunday school convention which was held at Auburn Junction on Sunday Dec. 6th, was more successful than any convention held in the township for some time, considering the stormy weather and bad roads. We believe that each school in the township was represented, or had a representative there. The next convention will be held at the Lockwood school house on the first Thursday in June, 1892.

The night watch at Eckhart's carriage factory has had quite a siege of sore throat in his family. Several of his children were down with it but are now both better.

Hugh Antwerp has moved to Garrett, where he has been employed in the B. & O. shops. We miss their pleasant faces as they go from among us. Mr. Masters will occupy the Antwerp property.

Gas Addition has improved considerably this fall in the way of building, repairing and painting. There is talk of a school house being erected in this part of town. It is greatly needed on account of the great number of small children on this side of the bridge.

NOTICE.

All accounts due A. Lewis & Co., must be settled before Jan. 1st, 1892. Those remaining unpaid will be given to an attorney for collection. A new set of books will be opened for 1892 and the old ones must be closed.

Coming Thursday Dec. 24th.

Dr. Fruth will make another of his regular visits to Auburn, Thursday Dec. 24th, and as usual he may be consulted free of charge in his parlors at the Swineford House. The doctor is becoming so well and favorably known in our community that it is hardly necessary to more than mention the date of his coming to insure a large crowd at the Hotel eager to avail them selves of his superior skill. Those who are incurable are frankly told so. Some who think their troubles are of a trifling nature are found by Dr. Fruth's peculiar methods of analysing disease conditions to be not only a dangerous condition but beyond human power to control. Likewise many who have doctored for years, even until they have given up the cherished hope of a cure in despair and resigned themselves to a miserable existence are speedily and permanently returned to health, especially is this true in diseases of the nervous system. To those who have become discouraged we would say by all means visit the doctor and obtain his opinion if you have not already done so. Dr. Fruth being the chief examiner of the largest medical and surgical institute in the world makes his opinion worthy of your especial consideration, and the Institute which was chartered by a special act of the legislature of the State of Illinois, show you the confidence which the people of that state entertain of this distinguished physician, and the Institute which he represents.

The Two-State Ditch

The commissioners of Defiance county, Ohio, came over here last Friday to hold a joint meeting with our board, in the matter of the D. Hook, joint state ditch in Stafford township. The gentlemen are: David Miller, Jacob Karst, F. J. Clemmer. Mr. Miller was president of the board then, but Mr. Clemmer takes his place this week. The latter lives near Hicksville, and is quite a young looking man to be serving his fifth year on the board. The others are elderly gentlemen, and reside at Defiance. All seem to be very intelligent men, and thoroughly "business." After they submit the matter to their own engineer, and take such other action as the laws of Ohio demand, there will be another meeting with our board. We are pleased to know that they were greatly gratified by the courtesies they received here, and the two boards parted with mutually favorable impressions.

The Kirmess.

It was a fine affair, and a success in every way. The booths were elaborately decorated, so as to represent the months of the year, and in each there was something to sell for the benefit of the church. One of the great attractions was the log cabin with its reminders of the old days. Then there was the marching, the fine, the queer and wild costumes, the lunches, etc., all of which called in a crowd of spectators. It was such a success on Friday and Saturday evenings, in spite of all else going on, that it was continued over on Monday afternoon and evening. The total receipts were nearly $180, and after paying all expenses, they will have about $160. That is encouraging. The ladies of the M. E. church, and their helpers, the gentlemen of the same faith deserve great praise. Nor should we forget Mr. Kiblinger, whose large storage room of the factory, was donated for their use, at a busy season.

Strength and Health.

If you are not feeling strong and healthy, try Electric Bitters. If "La Grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on liver, stomach and kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with sick headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Large bottles only 50c, at Robbins & McCord's drug store. 6

THE republican papers are fond of saying that the tariff gives better wages to labor. But tariffs are not for laboring men. From the very first, all who asked "protection" were the proprietors, not the laborers. And to this day, no interest is considered when a "protective" tariff is before congress, but the interest of capital. Notice this fact, that when the McKinley bill was pending in congress, an amendment was offered providing that the workingmen should get the benefit of the increased tariff taxes, but the republican majority voted it down.

REPUBLICANS, as we have often shown were two-sided and altogether deceitful. A few years ago, every one was "pizen" that would not accept prohibition as the true doctrine, and that every republican was a temperance man. Now look at what the Lafayette Courier a strong republican paper said about two weeks ago: "Before another republican convention meets anywhere, some arrangement ought to be made in advance for the appointment of standing committees, with special instructions to muzzle, abduct and dump into a bottomless pit every sad-eyed individual who attempts to gain admission to such a gathering with a temperance plank in his pocket."

Commissioners' Court.

The commissioners have had a busy session, and got along very well. As they did not adjourn till last evening, we cannot give a complete report of the ditches, roads, etc, till next week, when the allowances will be published. Freeman Bear, was granted exemption from paying poll tax and working roads; C. P. Glazier, superintendent of the County Home, filed his annual report; Auditor Coffinberry filed his quarterly report for the county; Jerry M. Ervin was appointed a constable for Keyser township. The following persons received license to sell liquor: In Waterloo, R. Till, C. M. Meek, W. F. Shaver, J. D. McAnally; in Butler, B. A. Haskins, Stiefel, Chambers & Straus; in St. Joe, C. A. Weabler; in Garrett, Chas. Hoick, J. N. Ritter, Hahn & Widamer, H. Riccius, L Wherley; in Auburn, E. Eldridge.

Save Your Eyes.

Don't ruin your eyes, by wearing improper glasses, or those not properly fitted. Get an experienced and skillful man to fit them to your eyes. So wait till C. J. Porter, the Waterloo optician, comes to Auburn. He will be at the Hollister House, the first Tuesday in each month. Don't forget the date.

At the October meeting of trustees and commissioners in Indianapolis, they resolved to stop assisting traveling tramps pay fare to another place, etc. unless on investigation it was found they were worthy. They will also keep a record of each case. It is believed if all trustees could do this, the state would be saved a vast sum.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones. Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Robbins & McCord's drugstore. 6

The Hicksville News says that according to the Dispatch, no one over in this state likes our new assessment law. The best contradiction for this, is the word of the Editor of the Dispatch, who admitted, as we stated last week, that it is the best law we ever had.

Wonderful Cures.

WATERLOO, IND., May 27, 1876.

I hereby certify that I have been afflicted with erysipelas. It broke out on my side and extended half way around my body. I had called on two of the best physicians of the place to no effect. I finally called A. Y. Rosenbury and his treatment caused the sores to heal, and the third treatment was sufficient to cure me. This took place about four months ago, and I can say I have felt no effects of the disease since.

MISS MAGGIE MARSH.

The story goes that the poet Whittier once lent a volume of Plato to a neighboring farmer, and when the book was returned, asked, "Well friend, how did thee like Plato?" "First rate," said the farmer, "I see he's got some of my ideas."

She Committed Suicide.

Mrs. F. C. Boe, at Watkins, left this letter: "My husband—Forgive me if I cause you trouble, but I suffer so. You do not know what these long, wakeful, wretched nights are to me, and I am so tired, darling—the pain will never be better. It is not easy to take my own life, but I have been sick so long. Good bye, my husband, I love you—your wife.' This is but one of thousands that gives up, instead of using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and become speedily cured of their wretchedness. Go to F. E. Davenport an elegant book and trial bottle free. 6

Baby choked in his sleep one day.
Only a harmless choke, 'twould seem;
But Majorie settled it, in her way,
"I spect," she said, "he swallowed a dream."

The Doctors are Guilty.

Grave mistakes are made by physicians in treating heart disease. The rate of sudden deaths is daily increasing. Hundreds become victims of the ignorance of physicians in the treatment of this disease. One in four persons has a diseased heart. Shortness of breath, palpitation and fluttering, irregular pulse, choking sensation, asthmatic breathing, pain or tenderness in side, shoulder or arm, weak or hungry spells, are symptoms of reliable remedy. Thousands testify to its wonderful cures. Books free. Sold by F. E. Davenport. 6

Some of the "trouserings" exhibited in the windows of the "importing tailor" are so loud that you can almost hear them pant.

WATERLOO, IND., June 6, 1886.

This is to certify that I was afflicted with rheumatism in my arm and after suffering for weeks, under treatment of one of our best physicians, without receiving any benefit, I called on A. Y. Rosenbury and got better right along before which time I could not move a finger, and I thought I would lose my arm entirely. This was three years ago and I have had no symptoms of rheumatism since.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1857—Continued.

Mr. Houghton continued to maintain his popularity and prominence in municipal affairs and was appointed a committee to draft specifications for inside finish of the school house.

Sealed proposals were then invited to be opened July 11. At this date but one proposal had been filed and that by William A. Lowry. He offered to lay the second floors and to do the inside work of the lower story for $775. The contract was awarded him. Steps being added, $10 additional was allowed. O. C. Houghton, Brandt and Dickinson were constituted a board of supervisors of the work. Lowry was to receive one-half payment on execution of the contract and the remainder on completion of the job.

The best he could do, he saw that he could not finish by contract time and as Houghton before had been compelled to do, he asked an extension but it was not only denied him but on settlement, he was docked the sum of $50, for alleged loss sustained by the delay. To this arbitary action Lowry did not submit and a suit at law followed in which the authorities were worsted and the town a loser.

W. A. Lowry besides house building did considerable work on bridges, sometimes as an employe, at others as principal. He lived where now D. Y. Husselman resides, when the writer made his acquaintance. No one could desire a better neighbor. never was a more faithful workman. About 1873, he was drowned while attempting to drive through a canal near Delphi, this state. His body was brought home and buried with Masonic rites by the Auburn lodge.

His widow survived him till March, 1882. Of four children, Georgia married Loraine Spach, Dora married James Brubaker, and they went west.

Berry J. Lowry learned the printer's trade, became foreman and,then part proprietor of the DeKalb Republican, which never before knew greater popularity and prosperity than when his interest was identified with it. Later, he followed his vocation at Charlotte, Mich., with will-earned success. He is now a resident of Howard City, Mich, publishes the Howard City Times and is postmaster of the city. Berry is another of the sons of DeKalb, who have honored their birthplace and richly deserve its honors.

Elmer Lowry learned telegraphy,and commands high wages; although straying far, he occasionally returns to Auburn, to visit the boys who grew up with him.

There is one class of town ordinance which has effectually done its work so far as our streets are concerned; but like all progressive measures, it took time and money and courage to bring it about.

In 1857, the swine, little and big which had hitherto roamed at will over the town sharing pasturage on vacant lots with the cows and disputing the walks with the townspeople, were restrained from the freedom of the streets. The action was premature and abortive but it marked a growth of healthy public sentiment. A stray hog upon a street, to day would be under ban and run the gauntlet of a score of worth and worthless dogs that peril the lives of children and disturb the silence of the night. The final stage in our beautiful town has not yet been reached as long as the keeping of swine in malodorous pens is permitted within the lines of the corporation.

The county treasurer, E. W. Fosdick resigned his office near the close of his term on Sept. 9th, and C. P. Hare, of Auburn was appointed to fill the vacancy, and when Jacob Helwig was elected in October following, Mr. Hare continued in the office as his deputy.

Evidencing the fact that the old residents of the county seat had not lacked in the reward of thrift and enterprise, Messrs Sprott, Miller, Ralston and Finke gave bond in the sum of $40,000, as sureties of Mr. Helwig.

Of these, Mr. Finke still lives to enjoy the wealth accrued from past labors and fortunate landed investments, and examples the stability and certainty of real estate holdings secured at trifling cost.

Denied access by railroad to foreign markets, no reason was thought to exist why Auburn and vicinity should not have the convenience and advantage of a home market by the manfacture and supply to farmers and townspeople of meal and flour.

It was believed that a steam flouring mill would be a paying investment for persons having experience in the business and would meet proper encouragement.

In this belief, John C. Slagle, Nathan Johnson and Russel Bumpus having entered into a co-partnership under the firm name of Johnson, Slagle & Co., on the 7th, day of February, 1857, purchased of William, Oakley of Connecticut, for the sum of $150, an acre and a half of ground outside the south limits of the town plat, east of and adjacent to the Ft. Wayne wagon road and contracted with O. C. Houghton to erect thereon the building for a steam flouring mill.

A. Wheelock and Joseph McKay were proprietors and operators of what was known as the Ruffner steam saw mill, near the Lintz farm in Richland township.

This firm contracted to supply first quality of poplar lumber at $8 per thousand feet from their mill to enclose the building, delivered on the ground, and fulfilled their contract

The framed timbers were large and heavy and the raising called for considerable help which as usual was freely given for no one thought of refusing when assistance was needed.

The cost of the mill as near as can be learned completed, was about $6000. It had two run of stone and the mill was put in working order under supervision of Mr. Bumpus who was a millwright as well as carpenter.

Nathan Johnson was miller for a number of years and the enterprise proved more advantageous to the public than to the projectors. Bumpus sold his interest to James Griswold toward the close of the year. In 1858, Slagle sold to Stephen Ford who the same year sold out to Houghton and Amos B. Park; and Griswold, to L. Bowers and J. Draggoo. Thus one after another the old company left the firm and the mill had passed into new hands.

During 1861, '63 and 64, the Sheets brothers, Christian and Michael bought out the several interests of all the parties and ran the mill profitably till 1868, when they sold to Mr. Johnson for $6000 and two years later N. Tarney and J. B. Shaffer became owners at $5600. For a number of years the Grosh Brothers owned and ran the mill, and recently Messrs Sprott & Rickel have become proprietors and they made such repairs and changes of machinery as will render the Auburn Flouring Mill capable of producing flour which will stand the test of excellence in any market. Thus the old mill which materially, aided Auburn during a critical period of her history, again comes to the front to go forward with the town on the swelling tide of prosperity.

John W. Miller.

Rev. John W. Miller, well known all over this section, as a citizen and minister of the gospel, died last week, Dec. 16. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sophronia Simon, at Goshen. The funeral was on Friday, Dec. 18, at the Christian church in Kendallville, the sermon being by Rev. Wm. Waltman, a friend from early days, as they had been on intimate terms for thirty-two years, and Mr. Miller had long ago, asked this favor of his companion in the ministry. The sermon was very affecting, and moved the vast audience by its feeling eloquence. The funeral was in charge of the masons. Mr. Miller was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, Dec. 25, 1815, so that had he lived till to-morrow, the present Christmas, he would have reached the ripe age of 76. When but a boy he moved with his parents to Seneca county, and there in 1834, he was united in marriage to Hulda Brown. In 1847 he came to Indiana, locating in Allen county, but soon settled in DeKalb, which has been his home since. In 1858 his wife died. In 1860 he married Elizabeth Rice, who survives him. In all, he was blessed with fifteen children, eleven by the first marriage and four by the second. All but one are living, one only having preceded him to the grave. His son, Ex-Treasurer, L. J. Miller. of this place, with his wife and his sister, Mrs. I. M. Johnson, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Simpson Johnson, attended the funeral.

Mr. Miller was one of the most widely known of the early pioneer ministers of the gospel, and when in his prime was an eloquent and powerful speaker. He was a man of sterling qualities, not showy, but sound and earnest and honest. It was to such as he, that the early churches owe their success, and society will long feel the impulse for good, that these sturdy pioneer evangelists left on the country and times in which they lived. Father Miller is gone, but by no means forgotten.

How's All 'e Folks?

That is what a boozy tramp said Saturday evening, as he pushed his way into the editor's residence. Mrs. B had responded to a gentle rap at the door, and opening it, saw a fairly well dressed stranger, who politely said, "Good evening." She asked if he wished to see Mr. B, but he pushed by her through the half open door, and planting himself with his back to the glowing stove, calmly asked, "How's all 'e folks?" The lady told him he would do well to get out—that he was not wanted there, "Oh, no, I'm an old soldier" said the tramp as he weaved back and forth in an unsteady way. He was again told he was not wanted, and he made the same reply as before, that he was an old soldier. Somewhat alarmed, and seeing a man passing, the lady of the house called him in. It proved to be trustee Robert Reed. As he came in she explained that there was a drunken man in the house who refused to go, but the drunken brother promptly added, "I guess I better go," and started, Mr. Reed said, "How did you get in here sir?" "Walked in," said the cheeky tramp, as he walked out, turning at the door and bidding his unwilling hostess a polite "Good evening." Mr. Reed escorted him away, but later he dropped into the M. E. parsonage, where Mr. Wooton's folks gave him something to eat. Before coming to Mrs. B.'s he called on A. B. Richards and finding that gentleman at home, he was more humble, and asked for food, adding, "I am a republican." Mr. R. said, "No, you have too much of the democratic platform in you." That settled him, and he left, for "our house." He had earlier, called at Mrs. Culbertson's, on South Main, and there asked for food, as he was "an American citizen." He was told to get his food where he did his drink, and he toddled away. And now the good housewives lock their doors, and it is difficult for the late-staying husband to get into his own domicile.

Ground Sinking Under a Pennsylvania Town—Ran Into a Landslide—A Bank Robbed—A Thousand Massacred—To Explore the Amazon.

Calamity Threatened.

The ground in the vicinity of the Gaylor Slope, at Plymouth, Pa., began to settle suddenly the other day, and in less than six hours the surface to the extent of two or three acres was broken up and caving in. The big breaker house of the mines are breaking up and may fall at any moment. The engine, oil house, and storage rooms, surrounding the breaker, are gradually sinking, and the machinery is being removed as fast as possible by gangs of men, who work in great danger, as the surface may drop and engulf them at any moment. The house of a miner, named Richard Glace, which began to sink late in the afternoon, is now in ruins. Glace and his family escaped in safety. The officials of the mines are unable to explain the sinking. The town is greatly excited.

Answered the Telegram Himself.

The banking firm of McManus & Sons, of Chihauhau, Mexico, was robbed of $13,500 recently. H. Chariton, the telegraph operator of the town, and a man named Silverberg were concerned in the job. The firm received a telegram ordering them to pay to Silverberg $13,500 and signed by the Merchants' National Bank of St. Louis. McManus & Sons refused to pay the money until they had telegraphed the St. Louis bank about it. In the course of a few hours an answer was received that it was all right. Chariton had destroyed the bankers' telegram and waited a seasonable time, when he answered the message himself. Silverberg was arrested a short time afterward, but Chariton has thus far eluded the police.

A Thousand Massacred.

Brussels special: A dispatch has been received at the Catholic Mission at Ghent from Father Rutgos, the Vicar Apostolic of Mongolia, stating that Father Minn, a Chinese priest, and a thousand native Christians were massacred by the rebels during the recent troubles in Northern China. The dispatch stated, however, that all the Belgian missionaries in the disturbed district and all the Belgians connected with their work were safe, and that assistance had arrived which would prevent further danger for the present at least.

Judge Higgins Not Guilty.

Judge Higgins has been acquitted of the charge of murder at Sedalia, Mo., though there was no attempt to show that he did not fatally shoot his friend, Thomas B. Price, in a quarrel that occurred on a railway train last spring. The men differed on a political argument and the dead man slapped Higgins, who discharged his revolver through his coat pocket, inflicting the fatal wound. The jury was out but a short time, and but one ballot was taken.

Ran Into a Landslide.

Passenger train, No. 8 on the Lehigh Valley railroad ran into a landslide at Rockport, Pa. Michael Lavelle, an engineer on the Central railroad, of New Jersey, who was riding in the cab, was killed. The engineer in charge escaped. George Weaver, the fireman, was fatally injured. Weaver lives at Wilkesbarre. The passengers were badly shaken up, and some slightly bruised. The train was running at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour.

Shot in Church.

During the services which were being held in the People's Tabernacle at Denver, an unknown man entered and took a seat near Mrs. Uzzell, the wife of the pastor. As he sat down a revolver was discharged from his pocket and shot the lady in the leg, inflicting a serious though not fatal wound. Great excitement resulted, as the shooting occurred in the midst of the church services. The shooting was entirely accidental.

To Explore the Amazon.

The Bureau of the American Republics is informed of the organization at Rio De Janeiro of a company with a capital of $5,000,000 for the purpose of exploring the natural resources of the Amazon. It is intended to establish colonies on the upper branches of the Amazon and afford means of transportation to market for a region that has heretofore been practically unexplored.

Smooth Shaw.

J. G. Shaw, a notorious burglar, serving a double term of ten years from Cuyahoga and Franklin Counties, Ohio, escaped from the State Prison by cutting his way through the roof and lowering himself to the ground outside the walls with a rope. He had placed a dummy in his cell cot, and was counted "in" while he was hiding in the attic.

The Cherokee Strip.

Word has been received that the Cherokee Council and the United States Commission have agreed upon the sale and purchase of the Cherokee strip for the consideration of $9,000,000.

Made Millions in Whisky.

Henry C. Gibson, the well-known millionaire whisky distiller, died at his home in Philadelphia. He leaves a fortune estimated at $20,000,000.

Murder at Buchtel, Ohio.

At Buchtel, Ohio, Thornton Sampson shot and instantly killed John Lynch. Both parties are well known young men.

Students and Police Fight.

San Francisco special: The steamship City of Pekin, brings Chinese advices that the United States steamer Palos, was at Man King during the Chinese military examinations, which lasted from November 6 to 11. There were 5,000 students present. During the examinations a conflict occurred between the students and the police, growing out of the arrest of two students for smuggling. One of the prisoners was killed while resisting the officers. A Government commission is investigating the affair.

Diamond Robbery.

One of the boldest robberies ever perpetrated in Pittsburgh, Pa., occurred at 9:15 the other night, when thieves broke in the plate glass window of W. Wilson's jewelry store, at 61 Fourth avenue, and stole $4,000 worth of diamonds. The robbery must have been carefully planned, for there was not a hitch in its execution. It appears that at the above hour one of two thieves blockaded the store door from the outside with a long stick. When this was accomplished his pal smashed in the plate glass window with a railroad coupling pin, grabbed a tray containing twenty-four solitaire diamonds and ran away. A policeman, half a block away, heard the crash and ran to the scene at once, but the robbers were not to be seen. Mrs. Wilson, wife of the proprietor, and a saleslady, were in the store at the time and ran to the door when they heard the noise, but could not open it until the blockade was removed. The thieves have not yet been apprehended. The police and detectives are working on the case.

Dies On the Gallows.

Wm. E. Fitzgerald was hanged in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio. At 12:03 a. m. the drop fell. The murderer's neck was broken and he was pronounced dead in thirteen minutes. He murdered Police Officer William B. Freed, at Youngstown, Mahoning County, May 14, 1891. The crime although a cold-blooded one, was not in the strictest sense of the word premeditated. Fitzgerald was a professional burglar and all round thief. He had stolen a sealskin sacque in the pocket of which was nearly $100 in money from a private residence and was making way with his booty when Officer Freed attempted to arrest him. A running fight between the two ensued with pistols being used by both the officer and the fugitive. Fitzgerald was finally cornered near the outskirts of the town and turning, shot the officer dead. He was immediately arrested and confined in jail and was tried for his crime and convicted.

Her Feet Burned by Fiendish Thieves.

About 7 o'clock the other evening three masked men forced an entrance into the residence of Miss Phoebe Wise, a wealthy maiden lady residing on the outskirts of Mansfield, Ohio, and bound and gagged her. In order to compel her to divulge where she kept her money they burnt her feet horribly. She was compelled at the point of a revolver to give up all the money there was in her house, which consisted of only a few dollars, as she keeps a large amount in the bank. A gold watch and chain were also taken.

Miss Wise says that one of the fellows was drunk, and another wore a black beard. From their conversation while ransacking the house she is convinced that they are residents of Mansfield, and well acquainted with her circumstances. A vigilant watch is being kept up by the officials, who think they can secure the perpetrators of the inhuman crime. Miss Wise is suffering terribly from her burned feet.

Cap'. Parker Rescued.

The steamer Del Norte has arrived at Chicago from Coos Bay with Capt. Parker and five of the crew of the bark, General Butler, which was abandoned in a sinking condition off Cape Blanco. The survivors say that the bark left Port Gamble, Nov. 28, with nearly 1,000,000 feet of lumber, consigned to Chicago. When the bark, as previously reported, sprang a leak during the gale of Dec. 3, and the men were ordered to take boats on the 6th instant, their haste was so great that they were unable to provision the boats except with a few biscuits and some water. The bark was then only a hundred miles off shore, but the force of the gale was such that it was three days before those of Capt. Parker's boat could land and the suffering from hunger and exposure was terrible. The boat under Mate Willoughby, also containing six men, has not been seen since it left the bark and it is feared they all are lost.

The New League.

The National League and American Association have consolidated and formed a twelve-club base-ball league to be known as the National League and American Association of Professional Ball Players. Nick Young was elected President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the new league, and Zach Phelps was chosen as solicitor. The headquarters will remain, as in the old League, at Washington. The Board of Directors was drawn by lot, and was composed of members equally from the Eastern and Western circuits. The members are Brush of Cincinnati, Von der Ahe of St. Louis, Hart of Chicago, Soden of Boston, Von der Horst of Baltimore, and Scanlon of Washington. The cities composing the League are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Baltimore and Washington in the East, and Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Louisville in the West.

Dynamite Explodes.

Leadville (Col.) special: While some workmen in the Busk mine were drilling out an unexploded shot the drill struck the dynamite. A terrible explosion followed and the following three men were instantly killed: John Malley, John Starbrek, and Charles Olson. Frank Yeskoe, and William Goodwin were seriously injured and were brought into the city. Malley was the foreman of the laborers, who number seven. It was by a lucky chance that the other two escaped uninjured. Malley's head was blown entirely off, and his arms and legs were severed from the trunk of his body. Starbrek was mutilated beyond recognition, but his companions identified the remains by his clothing. Olson was also terribly mangled. The accident was similar to one that happened last month, when three men were killed and four injured.

Chili Plotting.

A special cable dispatch from Valparaiso says there is certain knowledge as to the existance of a plot either to set fire to the United States legation or the adjoining house, in order to furnish a pretext for a mob to enter and sack the legation and house of the refugees.

A Washington special says: There is a feeling here that the Chilian affair is fast approaching a crisis. The reply of the Chilian Government to the demand of the United States for an apology is expected in a few days. An order full of import has been issued at the Navy Department. It is to the effect that hereafter the movements of naval vessels shall not be given out by the department. This is regarded as not only highly significant, but as a proof that the naval authority is fully expecting a serious outcome of the Chilian affair.

Chili Must Retreat.

A special from Callao, Peru, says: The United States steamship Baltimore will leave for San Francisco immediately. All on board are unreserved in their expression of indignation over their treatment at Valparaiso and express the hope that Congress will support the President in his demand for proper reparation. The tone of Minister Matta's dispatch in reply to President Harrison's message is regarded with astonishment here. The general opinion seems to be that the relations of the two countries are so strained that Chili must retreat or else a conflict is inevitable. It is thought that Chili intends to stand by Minister Matta. It is a well-known fact here that Chilians are trying to enlist men for their fleet.

Burned to Death.

Pittsburgh special: Gertrude Rankle, the 17-year-old daughter of Charles D. Rankle, of Knoxville, Pa., a suburb of this city, was burned to death by the explosion of an oil lamp. Miss Gertrude was seated on her father's lap at the moment mending his gloves. Without warning the lamp on the table in front of her exploded, deluging the girl with the burning fluid. Mr. Rankle was also painfully burned, but managed to extinguish the flames that were fast consuming his daughter. The house caught fire and was badly damaged. Mr. Rankle and his daughter were removed to a neighboring house where the young lady died in terrible agony. The father is prostrated.

Attack a Train.

Brazil (Ind.) special. CAUSED BY OVERWORK.

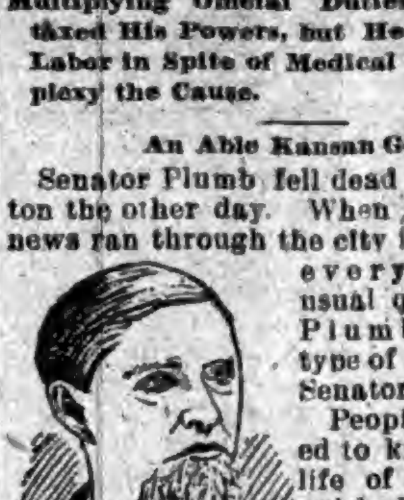
SENATOR PLUMB SUDDENLY STRICKEN DOWN.

Multiplying Official Duties Had Overtaxed His Powers, but He Continued to Labor in Spite of Medical Advice—Apoplexy the Cause.

An Able Kansan Gone.



PRESTON B. PLUMB.

Senator Plumb fell dead in Washington the other day. When this startling news ran through the city it interrupted everywhere the usual quiet routine. Plumb, that sturdy type of the Western Senator, has gone.

People were shocked to know that the life of the distinguished Kansan had been snuffed out in a moment. Flags were soon at half-mast. It was the talk in the streets, at the hotels and in every home, to the exclusion of other topics, for Plumb had, in a senatorial service of fourteen years, become one of the best-known figures in Washington. Death came from apoplexy, the result of exhaustion of the brain. It was a clear case of overwork and inattention to the laws of nature.

The Senator had been known for years as the most energetic, hard-working member of the Senate. A year ago he began to fail. Physicians warned him that a continuance of his labors meant death, but he refused to heed their warning. He continued to work with the energy of a steam-engine, and, when still apparently in full vigor and with many years of life before him, he died. A few of Mr. Plumb's most intimate friends knew that he had been ailing for some time, but none were prepared for the worst. He had been in the Senate last week and appeared to be as well as ever. He attended to his duties with his usual briskness and vigor. A few days ago he said to a Senate employe who congratulated him on his appearance that he was younger than the employe who was his junior by twenty years. As evidence of his vitality he doubled up his forearm. His biceps muscles were hard and compact. Notwithstanding his activity and his own assertion of his vigorous health he had been complaining of sleeplessness and vertigo. He complained of persistent pains in his head, impairment of memory and growing inability to choose his ideas in proper and appropriate words. The Senator had previously been remarkably fluent of speech and his words came so freely that he was the terror of stenographers.

When the terrible intelligence was conveyed to the invalid wife of the dead Senator at their home in Emporia, Kan., she seemed like one stricken to the death and for a time her life was dispaired of, owing to her feeble state of health. She, however, rallied and is now bearing up under her crushing grief with a fortitude wonderful to behold. But one of her children was at home, her daughter Mary, and she was sick in bed. Miss Ruth was in Topeka visiting and was immediately summoned. The other children are in Pennsylvania—Amos H., the eldest son, at Philadelphia under treatment for a nervous affection, and the two youngest, Preston B., Jr., and Carrie, attending school at Nazareth.

Senator Plumb was born in Delaware County, October 12, 1837, so that he was in his fifty-fourth year at the time of his death. He was not a college graduate, but left the common schools for the printer's case, and in pursuance of his vocation as a journeyman printer, in 1856, in the bloody days of the history of the newly organized territory of Kansas, walked into that territory, and with the vigor and energy which has brought his life to an end the young man plunged at once into the thick of the political strife which then was waging over the slavery question. He went to the front and soon became a member of the Leavenworth constitutional convention of 1859. He was admitted to the bar in 1861, when the place of his adoption became a State of the Union; served in the Legislature in 1862, was Chairman of the Judiciary Committee and subsequently Reporter of the Supreme Court. When the war broke out he entered the army as second lieutenant in the Eleventh Kansas Infantry and served successively as captain, major, lieutenant colonel of the regiment and was commissioned a colonel of the regiment in August, 1862. After the war Mr. Plumb returned to Kansas, was elected a member of the Kansas House of Representatives, and in 1876 was chosen United States Senator to succeed James M. Harvey, Republican. He took his seat in 1877 and has represented his State as a Senator ever since that time. His term of office would have expired March 3, 1895.

It is settled that Gov. Humphrey of Kansas will appoint a successor to Plumb. A prominent lawyer of Topeka says that a year elapses before the next Legislature is to meet, and so an extra session must be called at once. Other authorities say, however, that the Governor must make an appointment to be effective until another Legislature meets in regular order. In this case several possibilities are spoken of. Those most frequently mentioned are: Ex-Governor George T. Anthony, ex-Congressman E. N. Morrill, and Chief Justice Albert H. Horton. Other names mentioned are: S. R. Burton, a young attorney of Abilene, who was a bitter opponent of Ingalls; ex-Congressman S. R. Peters, of Newton; George R. Peck, General Solicitor of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company; J. K. Hudson, editor of the Topeka Capital; and ex-Gov. Thomas A. Osborne, Hayes' Minister to Brazil. The Legislature which will elect a successor to Gov. Humphreys' appointee convenes in January, 1893, and will be elected next fall. There will be no hold-overs either in the lower house or Senate.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Chicago's Mail Robbery.

What glee these incidents of daily life in the Western metropolis must occasion in New York!—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

The robbery of a mail wagon in the streets of Chicago suggests the idea that the World's Fair city is still a wild Western town.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Chicago owes it to herself to check this new development of highway robbery by the prompt apprehension and severe punishment of the perpetrators.—Toledo Blade.

This is a new field of operation of the "road agents" that offers much profit and good chances of escape as well as all the facilities of city life for a home.—Milwaukee News.

What wonder that our cousins over sea, contemplating the World's Fair, ask if there will be any danger from Indians! They will take fresh alarm when they read of the robbery of a mail wagon in the streets of the city of the Fair.—Toledo Bee.

The thieves who are gathering in Chicago seem restless and eager for business. They can't wait for the great fair. Five daring highwaymen took possession of one of the largest and richest mail wagons last night and went through it. Even the big bul dog on the driver's seat was so shocked and surprised that he made no resistance.—Louisville Post.

It is the impossible which happens. Nobody would have believed that a mail wagon could be robbed in the heart of Chicago, and yet this is just what has happened. It was a regular Jesse James exploit, with none of the regulation features omitted, and the driver meekly returned to the postoffice with a big bulldog by his side, apparently as panic-stricken as himself. Verily, there is no telling where a robbery may strike next.—Indianapolis News.

Theosophy's New Priestess.

Mrs Annie Besant reports a boom in the theosophy market. Now is the time for persons long on theosophy and short on common sense to unload.—St. Paul Globe.

Blavatsky worked out the mystic lead before she died, and her successors have not been able to do much in that line. The mahatmas should come forward and prevent theosophy from plunging into still greater depths of occultism.—Spokane Review.

Mrs. Annie Besant is firmly convinced that etheric vibrations will result in making it unnecessary to use the cumbrous machinery of wire and rail to transmit news. Mrs Besant is again in America cheerfully willing to make this claim among others equally revolutionary which she advances concerning theosophy.—Omaha World-Herald.

The arrival in this country of Annie Besant, the high priestess of theosophy since the death of Mme. Blavatsky, will undoubtedly endow the centers of theosophical discussion with renewed life. Since the death of the ponderous madame the examples of astral manifestations and the alleged proofs of etheric communications in which she professed to believe have become wofully less.—Albany Argus.

Lost Her Case.

The English juror seems to be on the side of the man in the divorce suit.—Nashville American.

The actress, "Miss" St. John, shared the fate of "Lady" Russell in failing to secure a divorce.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

Miss St. John has lost her divorce suit, but perhaps the free advertising she has gained squares the account.—New York Recorder.

In England Miss Florence St. John was refused a divorce (alimony) just as Miss Gladys Evelyn was. They should both come to Cincinnati.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Now Miss St. John has been refused a divorce. The English courts seem to use the same scales in weighing actors and members of the nobility.—Detroit Free Press.

Florence St. John, the English actress, has lost her suit for divorce. The testimony showed her to be very much worse than her husband, if such a thing were possible.—New York Advertiser.

ROYAL RANGER RALPH;

—:OR:—

The Waif of the Western Prairies.

BY WELDON J. COBB.

CHAPTER XII.

INEZ.

The appearance of Darrel Grey at the camp of the Indians was a theme of considerable wonderment to Ranger Ralph.

To the young scout, however, it had resulted most naturally, and he was amazed and delighted at his success in the imposition he had undertaken.

When he had knocked the savage at the river insensible, he had boldly determined to assume his identity temporarily, and penetrate to the camp of his enemies.

The venture was a perilous one, but it seemed as if fate favored its execution.

Darrel had soon donned the apparel of the unconscious savage, and his war-paint enabled him to finally present the appearance of a genuine Modoc warrior.

He had staggered to a spot where several savages were quarreling over a keg of liquor, and amid the excitement of the hour, no one seemed to notice him particularly.

Several times he was addressed in the Modoc language, but he feigned a maudlin drunkenness, and only responded with a few incoherent mutterings.

Thus it was that he entered the camp where Ranger Ralph was a prisoner.

His rescue of the scout has already been seen by the reader.

So far he was entirely successful in his movements; but Darrel saw that his imposture must sooner or later be discovered.

He did not, therefore, return to the same band of Indians from whom he had rescued Ranger Ralph.

Instead, he wandered into the main encampment and determined to locate, if possible, the tent in which Inez Tracey was held a captive.

He found that a large number of the Indians and two of Despard's band had gone south on the expedition against the emigrants.

It was when near a large tent that the sound of familiar tones awakened his immediate attention.

Instantly he recognized one voice as belonging to Dyke Despard.

He was addressing his associate Vance, and he asked:

"Then Danton and the others have gone?"

"Yes," replied Vance. "They will attack the emigrant train, secure our share of the booty, meet the others of the band and come at once to Lone Canyon.

"Good. Now then, as to our movements?"

"Well?"

"We must leave here at once."

"For Lone Canyon?"

"Yes."

"And the girl?"

"Get Trailing Fox to go to the wigwam for her."

"Then I will get the horses ready?"

"At the edge of the camp, yes. The Indians may be suspicious if they find us leaving them, but the Fox will aid us, as he is friendly to us."

"All right."

Darrel withdrew as Vance seemed about to leave the tent.

He knew that if he acted it must be at once.

He hurried in and out among the wigwams, and at last paused before one of them.

It was where an old squaw sat before a smoldering camp fire.

Glancing beyond her Darrel saw the form of a woman lying on some buffalo skins.

"It must be Inez," he murmured, I wonder if I can pass the old squaw unobserved."

The latter was nodding drowsily as he stepped toward the tent. She roused instantly at his advance.

Immediately Darrel resumed his role of drunkenness. He had a flask of liquor in his pocket and this he extended toward the woman. She seized it eagerly.

Darrel muttered some incoherent words about Shadow Snake. The squaw seemed to comprehend that the chief had sent him to the place, and did not attempt to stop him as he walked boldly into the tent.

Upon the rude Indian couch lay Inez Tracey.

Her eyes were wet with tears, her face pale and alarmed. She started to her feet with a cry of terror as the pretended drunken Indian approached her.

"Ugh! pale face come with me!" he uttered.

She followed him from the place silently, despairingly.

He led her, not toward the center of the camp, but through its purlieus, anxious to reach the open country beyond.

Every nerve thrilled with the intensest emotion as he realized that the rescue was nearly assured.

The Indians whom they met paid no attention to them. Poor Inez, fearing some new captivity, seemed about to faint away.

"Courage!"

She started at the fervent, unexpected word.

"Walk straight on," he breathed, hurriedly. "We are not yet safe."

A half-suppressed cry of joy broke from the girl's lips.

"Darrel—Mr. Grey," she cried; "oh! can we escape?"

"Yes, yes. Follow me faster."

"Stop them!"

The words came from behind them and caused Inez to utter a startled cry. Darrel seized her arm and made for a near thicket.

Coming toward them were Despard, Vance, and several savages.

"Discovered!" cried Darrel, despairingly.

Instantly he was surrounded.

"What are you doing with that girl?" demanded Despard, gruffly.

"Ugh! Shadow Snake's orders," grunted Darrel.

"A lie!" shouted Despard. "Here! Where is the Wolf? This man is no Indian, but a spy. He stole the Wolf's identity, and is spiriting the girl away."

Angry, menacing faces confronted the young scout. One savage sprang before him with an uplifted tomahawk.

At a glance Darrel Grey recognized him. It was the Modoc warrior whose garb he had stolen at the river a few hours previously.

The young scout was in a position of terrible peril.

CHAPTER XIII.

AT THE STAKE.

Inez Tracey uttered a frantic, frightened cry as she saw the tomahawk of the Indian uplifted over the head of the disguised Darrel Grey.

The latter, overcome completely with chagrin and dismay, seemed for the moment bewildered at the disaster that had appeared at the time of apparent success.

"Spare him! Do not kill him! He is my only protector—my friend!" she cried, wildly.

Inez endeavored to spring forward and intercept the blow of the irate Trailing Wolf, but Despard caught her roughly.

"Ha! I begin to understand this," he muttered, a jealous light coming into his evil eyes.

"The young fellow who ran away with her, eh?" ejaculated Vance, Despard's companion.

"Yes. Hold!" cried the outlaw leader to the savage. "The Wolf shall have his revenge at the stake—at the torture. Seize him and bring him to the chief's tent," ordered Despard.

With a sullen, lowering brow, the Indian whose identity Darrel had stolen cast aside the tomahawk.

At the same moment Darrel Grey realized his position and recovered from all his bewilderment.

He comprehended that to remain inert, to impassively fall into the hands of his foes, meant certain death amid their revengeful numbers.

Inez's frantic endeavor to save him thrilled his very soul with joy and courage as he recognized her love and devotion.

It inspired him to think beyond the present. A prisoner, he would be helpless to aid her. Free, he might yet outwit his foes.

He surprised savages and renegades alike by a sudden movement. They adjudged him a thoroughly baffled and defeated victim. They were therefore totally unprepared for the desperate rush he abruptly made.

"Courage, Inez! you shall yet be rescued," he shouted.

Then he sprang forward, overturning two of the savages and darting straight in the direction of the horses of the camp.

The outlaws did not follow him, but the group of excited, yelling Indians started in hot pursuit.

Inez stood clasping her hands in terror.

"Oh! they will capture and kill him," she cried.

Despard laughed hoarsely.

"Ha! In love, eh?"

She flushed in indignant resentment at Despard's coarse tones.

"Coward! Assassin!" she breathed, her eyes flashing abhorrence and aversion upon her dreaded captor.

"There will be one less lover in a few moments," continued Despard. "Girl, you struggle vainly to escape my power. I have too many friends and allies."

"See here, Captain!"

Vance had touched the outlaw's arm.

"Well?" inquired Despard.

"We are wasting valuable time here."

"That's true. Let us move at once. We can take advantage of the confusion to leave the camp."

"Shall I get the horses?"

"Yes; and bring them to the river beyond the camp. Go ahead; I'll meet you there. You come with me."

Dyke Despard make no pretense of gentleness as he seized Inez's arm roughly. He forced her to accompany him away from the Modoc camp.

At a thicket near the river he paused to await the arrival of his accomplice, Vance. His eyes glowed with the malice and triumph of a villain as he noted Inez's deep distress.

He was angry and jealous at his discovery of her evident preference for a rival.

"Girl," he hissed, as he bent toward her, "if you are listening for some token of your lover's escape, abandon the thought."

Inez was silent and dropped her eyes to veil their evident expression of anxiety for the fate of the man she had learned to love within the past few hours.

"He is doomed," continued the merciless Despard. "Even if he eluded capture for a brief time, he would soon be found. Then the stake—the torture."

Inez shuddered at his heartless words.

"If you want to be sensible," pursued Despard, "you will save yourself and others trouble. It will be wise for you if we understand each other perfectly now."

"I understand you only too well, miscreant," cried Inez.

"Hard words will not help your case any," replied Despard.

"No name is too hard for your cruel nature."

"You will soon change your tactics, my girl, if I'm not mistaken," remarked Despard, menacingly. "You are completely in my power. In a few moments we leave the Indian camp. Do you know where we are going?"

Inez did not deign to reply.

"I am going to take you to a retreat so safe and isolated that no friend will ever penetrate to it—of which even the savages are in ignorance. Between it and civilization is a safe barrier of savage hordes, friendly to my designs. Trusty friends and strong walls of rock surround me. There you will be my prisoner—secure, with no hope of escape. There you will be my wife."

"Never!"

Despard laughed confidently.

"We shall see," he taunted. "Oh, you will soon tire of playing the indignant role. Do you hear that?"

Vengeful, triumphant cries from the direction of the Modoc camp told the anxious Inez that her worst fears were confirmed.

They seemed to announce that her brave protector, Darrel Grey, had fallen a prisoner into the hands of his murderous foes.

She buried her face in her hands in mute anguish, while Despard peered from the thicket, as two savages, superbly mounted, dashed by toward the camp.

A minute later Vance appeared. He was riding a horse and leading two others.

"Quick! we had better start at once," he said.

Inez knew that it was useless to struggle against her powerful foes, and was soon in the saddle.

Despard retained hold of the check-rein of the horse she rode. Vance kept close to the other side of the steed.

"The camp moves south," remarked the latter, as they proceeded on their way.

"When?"

"At once. Two messengers from Shadow Snake just arrived after them."

"And the pretended Indian—the lover of this girl here?" queried Despard.

"He is captured, and the Modocs will celebrate their departure from the camp by burning a victim at the stake."

A hollow moan issued from Inez Tracey's lips. She rode on, her head buried on her breast, her mind agonized as she pictured the sufferings of her brave rescuer.

The heartless Vance had indeed told the truth when he affirmed that Darrel Grey was again a prisoner of the Modocs.

When the young scout had dashed away from his savage foes, he hurried toward the horses. He felt assured if he reached there he could secure a steed and escape.

The warning cries of his pursuers, however, attracted the attention of others in the camp.

The Modocs came rushing from every direction, and he was finally hemmed in on all sides. He made a desperate resistance, but was overpowered.

The triumphant savages bore him toward the very spot where the ranger had recently been a prisoner.

With mocking words they tore his disguise from him and secured him to a tree.

Just then there was a sudden commotion. As Vance had stated to Despard, the couriers from Shadow Snake had arrived. Soon the camp became a scene of bustle and excitement.

Darrel observed that a change of camp was meditated. He also learned that this fact would only precipitate his doom at the hands of his enemies. One of them approached him finally.

"Paleface try to make Indian out of self," he muttered. "Ugh! Great Modoc! We see if paleface die like Modoc."

It was only when the last preparations to leave the camp had been made that full attention was bestowed on the captive. Some of the savages were already leaving the spot. Several of them, however, held a brief consultation near the smoldering camp fire.

Finally they seemed to have decided on his fate. The young scout paled, but betrayed no fear as he saw them gather wood and pile it about the tree where he was. They redoubled his bonds with stout thongs that would not burn easily.

The wood and branches were piled high about him, the savages uttered wild, revengeful cries, and then a blazing faggot was placed under his feet.

A dense volume of smoke choked and blinded Darrel, and he closed his eyes despairingly. He was menaced with a horrible, lingering death.

The savages left the spot and hastened after their departing comrades.

The last to leave, glancing back at the burning pile at the tree, uttered a fierce yell of savage delight as he saw the flames encircle the form of the devoted young scout.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Brave Boy.

Some years ago, says the author of "Big Game of North America," three children who lived near Olympia, Washington, were returning from school, when Walter, the eldest, a boy of 12, noticed what he thought to be a large yellow dog trotting in the road behind them. They paid no attention to it, as large mongrel dogs of this color abound everywhere in the vicinity of Indian camps, but went playing leisurely along.

Suddenly the youngest, a chubby chap of 6, who was behind his brothers, came running to the front, and a moment later the animal, seen now to be a cougar, sprang over the heads of the two astonished boys, seized the little fellow in his mouth, and with a spring vanished in the bushes.

The elder brother did not stop to deliberate. He had for a weapon only an empty bottle, in which he had carried milk for his dinner, and with this he rushed into the bushes. His little brother was lying prostrate, grasping a small tree with both hands, and holding on with the strength of despair, while the cougar, his fangs luckily imbedded only in the child's clothing, was trying to break this death-like grip.

With a scream, Walter threw himself on the animal, beat it over the head with the bottle until the glass was shattered in fragments, and then, with the ragged edges of the bottle's neck, he endeavored to cut out the cougar's eyes.

At last the cougar, with a yell of rage, dropped his hold on the child and ran up a tree near at hand, while the heroic boy, lifting his brother in his arms, carried him into the road, and fell fainting upon him.

Meanwhile the other brother had fled screaming up the road, and fortunately met two men who had been chopping near by. As soon as he had told the cause of his fright, they rushed on, to find the little hero senseless, still tightly grasping the neck of the broken bottle.

The cougar's victim was too much horrified to speak, but pointed to the savage beast, lying on a limb in full view. One of the men had a pistol, and with a few shots the animal was killed.

Grandmother's Pantry.

A correspondent of the Youth's Companion, who evidently has a "sweet tooth," waxes eloquent over the goodies made by our grandmothers, who, as he truly says, had few cook books, but knew how to cook. He writes feelingly and well, but if he is a married man it is, perhaps, fortunate for him that his letter is printed anonymously.

It is long since some of us have seen any of the crullers of which we were so fond when grandmother made them.

She used to make, also, a toothsome little seed-cake, fragrant with caraway and anise seeds, with sugar on top, the like of which we have not seen since we used to slip into her pantry, and help ourselves out of the old blue stone jar in which they were always kept.

There was another and larger stone jar on the same shelf, in which she kept those big, puffy, twisted and braided doughnuts that neither looked nor tasted like the degenerate doughnuts of the present day.

Sometimes we chose a cooky instead, a cooky "as was a cooky;" not a thin, wafer-like, dry cooky, like the cookies of this generation, but a full inch thick and almost as large as a saucer—a cooky to delight the heart and still more the stomach of a hungry boy.

You remember, too, the big brown turnover with your initial on it. In these days of elaborate and unwholesome dishes you have never tasted anything better than that turnover.

You found many things in your grandmother's pantry that you never find anywhere now. And, perhaps, with the exception of your own mother, you have never found any one so kind and patient and generous as grandmother herself was.

Brayed Himself to Death.

Henry Boren, living near Jackson, Tenn., lost a fine jackass yesterday in a remarkable manner, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. A year or two since he purchased the animal for $400 in Middle Tennessee. A few days since he purchased another, which he brought home yesterday. It at first resented the intrusion of the new-comer, and as soon as the latter arrived on the premises became terribly enraged, and let forth a bray so loud, so long, and so deep that it echoed and re-echoed throughout the surrounding country. Passion and jealousy moved him to the one supreme effort that cost his life. A blood-vessel burst, and the blood flowed in a stream from his nose and mouth. The crimson tide could not be stanched, and the unhappy animal lay down and died. His place will be filled by the new arrival, but the memory of that awful bray will go down among the traditions of the Tenth District.

The Woman Bicyclist.

Belva Lockwood was the first woman to ride a bicycle in Washington and she was ridiculed and jeered by the multitude, and the regulation anathema of "unsexed woman" was hurled after her by the old fogies of conservatism. Now Mrs. Lockwood can ride the length of Pennsylvania avenue and not a masculine head would be turned. Custom makes laws as inexorable as those of the Medes and Persians. A bicycle tournament has just been held in that city, and the wives and sweethearts of the boys rode their bicycles beside them, and the crowds looked on and approved. The world "do move," and the wheels help it along.

And lifted her lips in a pouting way,
And—he did the rest.

"Drinking in the beautiful scenery, my dear," he replied a little thickly.

Living Upon Locusts.

A correspondent, writing upon the locust plague in North Africa, says: "In reference to the diet of St. John the Baptist, who lived on locusts and wild honey in the wilderness, there are Sunday-school teachers who cannot believe that any one would voluntarily live on such food, and, therefore, say that the 'locust bean,' the fruit of the crab tree, is meant by the writers of the New Testament. I can only reply that the locust cricket, the acrydum pelerinum, order orthoptera, variety Saltatoria—the flying sauterelle of Africa—is sold at a halfpenny per pound in the market place of Biskra (which is the second oasis from the north in the Sahara), and that there it is cooked by boiling with salt and water, as shrimps are boiled here. I myself have little doubt that it is more nutritious than the latter, because in March, when the insect is gathered and dried, it is as full of albumen as an egg."

No Animal Magnetism.

Dr. Pinel of Paris has found that hypnotic patients obey the phonograph as readily as they do a living speaker. He therefore discards the whole theory of animal magnetism.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure
The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon: if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

The letters pertaining to New Mexico, closed last week, and we feel sure our readers are grateful to the writer, Mr. Frank Rose, for a great deal of valuable information about the country, dressed up in so attractive a manner. And we have no less doubt, but the people of the territory, and the railroad lines, that did so much to make the trip pleasant, will feel that their kindness and considertion are properly appreciated. And our legislators at Washington, are especially interested in what Mr. Rose says at the close, in regard to the admission of the Territory as a full state at an early day.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DEKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY....DECEMBER, 24, 1891.

GEN. PALMER, the new democratic senator from Illinois, is the only major general from the north, in that body.

THE famous picture, "Angelus," that the owner claimed he paid $110,000 for, it appears was so sold only on paper. Not a cent changed hands.

IF, AS high tax advocates claim, the McKinley raise in tariff made things cheaper, why did not this cheapening break the manufacturers up?

STEVE ELKINS, of unsavory record was appointed secretary of war last week, to succeed Proctor, who is made a U. S. senator. This is such a pure administration.

"BLAINE won't run;" "Blaine will run," is the way the daily papers, have it—varying each day, like the weather we have been having. Well, who cares whether Blaine runs or not? No democrat surely.

Now Germany wants reciprocity with Brazil. Soon all the nations of the earth will be ashamed of this cutthroat protective tariff business and go in for reciprocity on the democratic plan with all nations,

NEW president for Switzerland last week. W. Hauser of Zurich elected to fill the vacancy caused by resignation of Wilti, who got mad because his congress refused to sell their central railroad to German capitalists.

NEW building and loan association, the Tri-State, incorporated at Ft. Wayne last week. Capital one million. The fee they had to pay the state was $392. New democratic law makes capital pay. Dispatch ought to notice this.

JUDGE WOODS was made one of the new U. S. judges last week, by Harrison. This pays for his services in clearing 'blocks-of-five Dudley." Harrison may be a "good and pure man," but he knows a political friend when he sees him.

SENATOR PLUMB of Kansas, died suddenly at Washington Sunday noon. Overwork caused it. The governor will have to appoint a new man. He had been in the Senate about fifteen years and was an able man, one who will be missed.

BURK, the man who rendered his name infamous about fifty years ago, by making a living stealing dead bodies and selling them, died recently at his home in England. He gave a new word to our language. Bodies so stolen and sold, were said to be "burked."

Two families in Alabama, all intermarried within the last five years. Five daughters in the Wright family married five sons in the Johnson family. Then Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Wright died, and now, Mr. Johnson has married Mrs. Wright, and the families are united.

FOSTER, secretary of the treasury, in his report says 27 per cent. of all our foreign trade is with Great Britian, and that our trade with her equals 55 per cent. of our trade with all Europe. Why don't Blaine negotiate a reciprocity with Great Britian, if it is such a fine thing, and not spend so much time praising reciprocity with the small countries that have but small trade?

THE Detroit Free Press, speaking of the two democrats Harrison has appointed on the new U. S. court says:

> Naturally enough the most manly and praiseworthy thing that President Harrison has done since his election, is the one for which Republican organs are condemning him. They kick hard and high because two democratic judges were recently named by him, yet they have only words of praise for the political tricksters, Judge Wood and Steve Elkins.

Court.

It started up on Monday with a whirl. Uncle Jerry Plum again holds the reins over the six good men and true, who constitute the grand jury and it is not often in any county, that an ex-sheriff can hold this place at the hands of his son. Uncle Jerry has had plenty of experience. Uncle Jimmy Latson, also, has his strong right hand ready to grasp the trial jury by the collar, and shove it back into that little room, where they so often have to sweat all night long. The judge was on hand looking fresh and vigorous though he just concluded court at Angola Saturday. The charge he gave the grand jury sounded like business and may prove of great interest to some chaps who have been having "fun" to an extent not authorized by the revised statutes of 1881. The new prosecutor was at his post and wide awake, and most of the legal fraternity were on hand early. Waterloo was there in force in the persons of W. H. Leas, C. M. Phillips, J. F. Shuman, and later, Gen. Blair. All seem busy. The three U. B. church cases have been dismissed, as they were settled in the supreme court in favor of the liberals, and all costs paid. The court decided that T. J. Saxton should have custody of his child. Paul vs B. & O. for damages was in Angola court last week. where Paul received judgment $10,000 against the B. & O. & Chicago Ry., but it may not be worth anything, as the rolling stock that hurt him, is the B. & O. company. D. Anthony and Martin Lock have started a case each against the Lake Shore road. Divorce case of Susan vs Samuel Rohrabaugh dismissed. The Whitley court house case comes on next Monday. Court will adjourn from to-day noon till Monday.

Our Member.

Judge McClellan was recently interviewed at Washington by a reporter for the Press, and we slip the following portion of what he finds the outlook to be. The reporter says:

> "Representative McClellan, of Indiana, is exceedingly interested in the reports which are coming from Indiana regarding the development of an anti-Harrison feeling in that State. "There is no doubt," he said yesterday, that these reports are true, for the opposition to Harrison had its inception in my district. Considerable ill feeling over the appointment of a Postmaster at Fort Wayne, and which seems to have had a very proper foundation, has been nursed, while my predecessor, Mr. White felt aggrieved at the manner in which he was ignored by the present administration. Just before I left home an anti-Harrison meeting was held at Indianapolis, at which some seventy prominent Republicans of the State were present, and since then they have perfected their organization."
>
> "Can Harrison secure the delegates to the nominating convention?"
>
> "I do not believe he will get a solid delegation, alteough all the office-holders down to the fourth-class postmasters will unite to pull him through. Even if he gets the delegation I do not believe he can carry the State. In other words, Harison's nomination means that Indiana will go Democratic. The discontented Republicans generally favor Gresham, if Blaine is not a candidate, but they are for anybody except Harrison "
>
> "Will Gov. Gray be a candidate for a place on the Presidential ticket."
>
> "I think he will."

Auburn's Soldier Boys.

We have always had a warm side for the "old soldiers," and now we want to say a good word for the "young soldiers," the soldiers of the present and the future. We mean the young gentlemen who are organizing a company of national guard. They have already the names of 54 desirable young men, whose ages run from 18 to 23, who have signed the enrollment, and will be ready to muster under the laws of the state, as soon as the proper steps have been taken. They have already notified the adjutant-general of the state and expect the matter will be finished at an early date. We hope to see it a success, and that we will have a company that will not merely count so many on the rolls, but will be active and interested in the work they undertake. It takes earnestness and some hard work, and a good deal of perseverance to be a good militiaman, and we hope, and believe, that these good qualities will not be lacking. A good company will always be under good control, whether on parade, or "at home" in the armory. A soldier, even in peace, should have a proper pride in his calling, and make himself proficient in all things, and always ready for any duty. Let us have such a company.

Free Bus and Baggage.

The B. & O. as we noted last week, have been delivering freight free from the Junction, to up town business men. Now, they are going a step further, and have arranged to give free bus fare, and free baggage from here down to the Junction, to all who buy tickets over that road, at the uptown office. When we consider the mile and a half from the hotels to the Junction, we can see what a liberal offer this is. The B. & O. surely deserves the good will of the traveling public. It might be well to add that since starting the free freight delivery about a month ago, their business at this point has had a wonderful increase. In this age of sharp competition, corporations, like private business men, must be widewake or get left.

At the Demorest Medal Contest last Friday evening at the Presbyterian church, the prize for best speaking was awarded to Master Frank Northam The medal was not given, as the number of contestants was only four, when five were required. The lucky lad got a fine book.

Mrs. S. B. McManus of Lima, Lagrange county, is in the city, a guest of her sister, Mrs. P. D. West. Newspaper men will remember Mr. McManus who was formerly one of the "guild," and a writer of ability. Some of his dialect poems will compare favorably with J. Whitcomb Riley's or Pfrimmer's.

Judge McClellan came home from Washington Sunday evening. He is engaged on the great Whitley county court house case—a case between the contractor and their board of commissioners. We presume he will not return to Washington till holidays are over, as no work will be done there till then.

There was a young man in town Tuesday who wanted to see his best girl, who is at W. D. Rickel's, and meeting Mr. R. he nervously asked "if his dog was cross." Mr. Rickel assured him that the dog in question was the most mild mannered canine in town and thus re-assured, the young man started east over Seventh street bridge. But, "Faint heart, etc."

By this time, we presume our subscribers have each received "Sunshine," our Christmas gift, and we hope they will be pleased with it. Should it fail to reach any they should let us know. In addition, the COURIER sends holiday greetings of good will and friendship to each and all, wherever it goes, from Boston to San Diego, from Minneapolis to San Antonio—a Merry Christmas to all.

Miss Hattie Dickinson, who has taught in our school with marked ability and success for three or four years, retires this week and will return to her home in Waterloo. We have had no more faithful and conscientious worker in our schools, and she carries with her the good will of the patrons of the school and of the school board and regrets of all. We hope her future may be as successful and pleasant as her work in our school has been.

Sheriff Plum had a little fun with "Dr." Blair, who pulls teeth without loss of life The Doctor was here Monday, and the sheriff wanted to serve a little summons on him. But the Doctor "wasn't willin," and the sheriff went up to the Lake Shore depot to look for him. He was just going out of sight up the track. The sheriff got his rig out, drove to Waterloo and in the target house waited the weary "footsteps" of the walking doctor. He soon hove in sight, and as he reached the target house, the sheriff stepped out and collared him "without pain."

H. A. Winslow asks us, how it happens that his almanac has a solar eclipse put down for Dec. 18, or three days from full noon. We have not seen the almanac, but feel certain there is a mistake somewhere. The full moon is not given to eclipses of the sun. This eclipse must be like popular tooth pulling, "without pain."

Art Steel and James Eldridge were over at Garrett last Sunday, and spent the day with Dr. M. W. Johnston. They report Dr. J. getting along nicely, with a good practice in dentistry. He surely will make a success of his profession, for he has had a long and thorough training, both in the study and the practice.

W. H. McNagny, one of the leading attorneys of Columbia City, was up here Monday, to attend court. He is interested in the suit about their new court house. It was brought here by a change of venue. Though he did not say so, we believe he will be a candidate for congress in the coming race, and should the choice fall on him, we feel that it would be an honor worthily bestowed.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—"Mystic Cure" for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. Daniel Heckathorn brought his engine down here, a short time ago, from the mill this side of Hudson, where it had been in use since 1867. After nearly a quarter of a century of use, he thought it might be well to have it overhauled. He took it to the Auburn Foundry & Machine Works, and at an expense of about $25 has it in good shape, about the same as new. The long time it has been used speaks well for Mr. Heckathorn's good care of it, as well as the good work of the Bass Machine Works where it was made.

Mrs. Guy Plumb writes from Easton, Md., and encloses subscription for next year. Thanks. We have ordered "Sunshine" sent to her. She still has an interest in the welfare of Auburn., and adds: "We are having lovely weather here, no winter as yet. The roads are very dusty and we have doors and windows open all day. All well here, and we hope the Auburn friends are also, though so many miles away. We are very much interested in Auburn news, and each week, on the arrival of the COURIER, we are never too busy to sit down and hear what the COURIER has to say for Auburn, and all the old home friends. Best wishes to yourself and family and wishes for a merry Christmas."

David Clock of Huron, Ohio, editor of the Erie Co., Reporter published there, was here this week the guest of Joseph Rainier and other friends. He was formerly a resident of Newville and remembers many of the older people there. He is a cousin of W. B. Clock, who used to reside here, and staid last Sunday with the family in Bryan. He confirms the sad news of the death of Mrs. Clock, rumors of which had reached here.

R. C. Baxter showed us this week a copy of the Moore Journal, published at Moore City, Oklahoma, not far from Gurthie. Baxter will be remembered by our older people, as one of the teachers of this and Steuben county, in the early days. Later they resided at Indianapolis, and now are in Oklahoma, where they have valuable property interests.

"Y. Y. Z." in the Ft. Wayne News, evidently thinks himself smart in writing a whole letter in order to get a "gird" at Hon. Free Kelley's "voice." From what he says, we presume X. Y. Flemming or M. A. Morrison, who are seeking the place. Possibly Mr. Kelley would be a better man, but the reasons X. Y. Z., gives are silly.

Wheelbarrow gone astray. Rev. W. L. Meese found a wheelbarrow loaded with stovewood standing at his door next morning after Hallowe'en. He don't know who brought it there, but after waiting some time, he very sensibly used the wood, and now has the wheelbarrow left, and the owner can have it by calling and paying for this notice. That is a fair offer, and we hope someone will get back his property.

After vacation Miss Nellie Buckley takes charge of the Intermediate department in our public schools, the place held for several years by Miss Hattie Dickinson who now retires from the work. Miss Buckley has been teaching in Smithfield township so far this year, and we learn that the trustee, J. O. Blake, expresses himself well pleased with her work there, and regrets to lose her from his able corps of teachers. She has been a pupil in the High school here, graduating in good standing last year, and with the ability and devotion to work that have always characterized her, we have he doubt she will succeed now.

Hudson Real Estate Office.

Rickel & Sprott, our able and experienced real estate men, have established an agency at Hudson, and one of them will be in that town all the time from now on. The new impetus given to business along the line of the new road will make a lively demand for their services and they have put themselves fully into the field. There will be a great deal of buying and selling of town lots, farm lands and other property, and their great experience will make their services valuable to all who wish to purchase, or who have property to sell. They are careful business men, and thoroughly familiar with every detail. Parties will do well to secure their services. Call at their office either at Hudson or in Auburn, under the Farmers Bank, or write to them.

Holiday Displays.

Never in the history of Auburn have we seen such a profusion of holiday goods, or such beautiful displays. Every show window where such things have ever been sold is full of lovely things, and many establishments that never before dealt in such goods, have them now. The three drugstores, Davenport's, Robbins & McCord's and the Physicians' drugstore all show fine lines of everything possible for the season. Indeed it would be utterly beyond our space to name them. Two of our hardware stores, Kiblinger's and Brown, Culbertson & Boland's, have rare displays of goods that are not only useful and beautiful, but valuable. F. J. Yesbera has lovely silverware, watches and all things in the jewelry line, as well as musical merchandise, At the Reading room, Spangle, is showing fine jewelry and goods of that line while opposite, but in the same room J. I. Chaney has his musical store, many of the articles being especially suitable to the holiday trade. These two men make a good team in that location. In grocery stores, there is an unusual effort made for this sort of trade. The Two John's, Gibson's, Hoff's, Kruger's and Hebel's have fine showings, especially in candies, fruits, crockery, glassware, and thousands of things one can never name, In dry goods, Harter's big room is a vision of loveliness, so is that of Schaab & Bro., and of Mrs. Jones.

The two furniture stores are full of goods always popular for holiday gifts, things that commend themselves especially to those who take a practical view of Christmas gifts and wish to do a needed act while doing a friendly one.

The Union bakery has a fine display of display of candies, etc.

Charlie Lung has a nice display in both windows.

People who don't think "the star-spangled banner" good enough and "Hail, Columbia!" and "Yankee Doodle" the right kind of music had better move to some other country. Every loyal American citizen will applaud the Chicago police that "hauled down the red flag" of anarchy and compelled the unfurling of the Stars and Stripes.

THE most dull imagination must have received a flip at the announcement last week of the discoveries at Chillicothe. The bringing to the light of day of the armor-encased skeleton of the hero who was buried six hundred years ago with his mouth full of great pearls is an incident which appeals not alone to the historian and the archæologist, but which arouses the interest of whoever has imagination or curiosity. The romancer and the poet will not be slow to take advantage of this new light upon the mysterious Mound-Builders, and who knows what literary inspiration may not come from it.

ONE of the most alarming results of the trial of the Earl Russell case in London has been the doubt which certain of its revelations have cast upon the heretofore well-received works of Mrs. Alexander and "The Duchess." These authoresses have given us to understand that the conversation between earls and countesses has always been marked by the courtesy of the courtier and the dignified eloquence of royalty. It seems, however, that during the exigencies of domestic disagreement countesses are in the habit of using profanity in order to express freely their opinion of their husbands. As there is no other appropriate place for French realism, it might be applied to the English aristocracy, in the hope that the ultimate result would be mutual destruction.

SOUTHERN farmers are considering the subject of limiting the area for the growth of cotton. They assert that cotton will impoverish both land and owner if its cultivation is persisted in. Even if the acreage is decreased on the old cotton plantations it will not decrease the crop, for in the Mississippi Valley, in Arkansas and in Texas new lands are being planted in cotton. The movement for diversified crops, though long agitated, does not seem to make much headway in the South. Yet instances of its benefits are not wanting. An Alabama paper the other day mentioned that a farmer had come to town with seventy-five dozen of eggs and seventy-five chickens. He sold them for $30 cash. A friend came in the same day with a bale of cotton which he sold for $30, but he had to pay out a part of this for guano.

OUTRAGES by policemen upon defenseless persons have become so frequent in New York that the drastic remedy applied a few days ago by a magistrate was fully needed. An officer arrested an aged and respectable woman, who has long earned a living by keeping a stand for the sale of newspapers, and took her before a justice, where he made oath that she was drunk. As these magistrates too often do, the justice accepted the word of the officer without question and committed the woman to the workhouse for nine months. But the case got into the newspapers; witnesses came forward to prove that the woman was not intoxicated, and the further investigation then had resulted in the discharge of the woman and in the holding of the officer to answer a charge of perjury. Whatever may be the final end of this case, it ought to remind policemen everywhere that it is their duty to be as cautious in making affidavits as in the use of their clubs.

WELL, now! Did you ever? A finicky young Chicago schoolma'am, with the sweet name of Mabel Merrill, has struck a blow which threatens the fabric of American independence and the ostracism of the odoriferous onion. The children came to her school-room with breaths that smelled strong as a high-holer's nest, and the faint, delicious, just-barely-suggestive odor of eau de cologne which permeated the atmosphere surrounding the æsthetic young teacher wasn't in it. The onion, which Noah Webster naively says belongs to the genus allium, and then quits right there, reigned supreme. The children's breaths sallied forth, percolated the ozone until further percolation was impossible, and then dropped in chunks upon the floor with a dull, sick——, etc. The children were sent home, and then commenced the fun. An irate father interviewed the superintendent, and after a hard fight came off with flying colors. Miss Mabel's action was pronounced an excess of authority, and at present the children are at liberty to carry their vociferous breaths to school with them. Mighty is the onion!

How Monkeys Sleep.

"Do you know," said the monkey man at the Zoo, "that few people ever saw a monkey asleep? I suppose there are people who imagine they never do sleep, as they are usually alert in the presence of visitors."

This drowsy air had exerted its influence upon a sleepy, mustached monkey, and the delegate had a good view of the sleeping beast. He lay upon his shelf, upon his back, with his arms thrown carelessly about; but the pretty feature was the position of the long tail. It was curled about the body, and just under the head it made a double curl, and upon this soft roll rested the monkey's head—a pillow fit for a king.

"When alone they always use their tails for pillows," said the keeper, "but if two or more sleep at the same time they huddle close together, resting their heads upon one another."

CHEAP TO FOREIGNERS.

TRUSTS SEND THEIR SURPLUS ABROAD.

Another Wage Reduction in a Protected Industry—Eli Perkins and the American Economist—Proposed Tariff Reform—High Prices at Home.

How Prices Are Kept Up.

When the manufacturers of harvesters were holding meetings for the purpose of considering the best ways and means of consolidating their interests in the form of a "trust" J. R. Rusk, the Secretary of Agriculture, who is a stockholder in one of the companies which entered the "trust," said in an interview in the New York Tribune: "An investigation will show that this same combination is now selling, or offering to sell machinery in Russia, Australia and other wheat-growing countries at a lower figure than they do in this country." That this system of selling cheaper to foreigners than to our own farmers is adopted by other manufacturers of farm implements, is shown by Mr. A. B. Farquhar of York, Pa., one of the largest manufacturers of agricultural machinery and implements in the United States. In May last, Mr. Farquhar, in replying to a letter of inquiry written to him by the Home Market Club of Boston, said: "In reply to your favor of the 16th inst., I have to acknowledge that our firm sells implements and machinery through Mexico, South America and Africa at prices from five to ten per cent. less than they are sold for in this country."

This system of favoritism to foreigners is characteristic of the trusts in this country. Trusts are formed by manufacturers in the same industry for two purposes. 1. To limit and control productions, and 2. To control prices, and thus prevent competition. The ultimate aim, to accomplish which trusts are organized, is to increase profits. Whenever they fail to gauge the extent of the home demand and have on hand more of their products than the home market will take at the high and arbitrary prices they fix, the trusts' resort to exportation to dispose of their surplus. In foreign markets they must meet the prices at which their competitors in their countries are willing to dispose of their productions. Since the prices which prevail here under our tariff are higher than in other countries for the same products, the trusts give what is known as special export discounts on home prices to foreign buyers. These extra discounts are in most cases a combination of two forms. In order to prevent the foreign buyers from selling their goods in this country again, the trusts pay the freight to, and put the goods on board ship at the port of exportation. This of itself is equivalent in most cases to a liberal discount. In addition to this they also give a special discount on home prices varying all the way from five to twenty-five per cent.

In some cases the trusts go further, and agree to lay the goods down at the wharves in the foreign port, paying all the freight. This is the system adopted by the glass trusts.

How the trusts operate to keep up prices here and to sell their surplus abroad, so that it will not interfere with their home trade, is well illustrated by the history of the American Ax and Tool Company, commonly known as the "ax trust." The first meeting of the manufacturers of axes was held in Buffalo in February, 1890. At a subsequent meeting in March the trust completed its organization. The trust is composed of the following companies:

Hubbard & Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

Douglas Ax Manufacturing Company, East Douglas, Mass.

William Mann's Ax Works, Lewiston, Pa.

Johnsonville Ax Manufacturing Company, Johnsonville, N. Y.

H. Knickerbocker's Works, Ballston Spa, N. Y.

Peerless Tool Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

Romer Bros. Manufacturing Company, Gowanda, N. Y.

Lippincott & Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

Underhill Edge Tool Company, Nashua, N. H.

The Globe Ax Company, Boston, Mass.

Carpenter & Co., Jamestown, N. Y.

"The Buffalo Ax Works, owned by G. W. Francis—in all twelve companies.

As soon as the trust was organized it raised prices, as the following from the Iron Age for March 27, 1890, shows: "The general feeling among the trade is that the ax-makers have formed a very strong 'association,' and have complete control of the market, or so nearly so that the outside makers will have scarcely any appreciable effect on the prices. It is found that scarcely any orders can be placed with outside manufacturers who are not under the control of the American Ax and Tool Company. The trade will do well to note the changed condition in this line of goods as regards the higher prices now ruling, and the strong probability of their maintenance for some time to come. On first quality goods an advance is now made of $1.75 to $2.25 per dozen."

This advance has been well maintained. Before the trust was formed plain axes of the best brands were selling at $5.25 per dozen. They now sell at $7 per dozen.

So far as concerns the home market the trust has been successful in that it is able to get at least $1.75 more for a dozen axes than the manufacturers who formed it were able to get before. It has been able to do this by its complete control over production here.

And now as to the way it disposes of its surplus abroad. In its foreign trade the trust is represented by branch houses in New York. Thus the branch which exports its products to the Spanish countries of South America is under the charge of G. P. Maleza.

The makes of axes known to the trade as the "Ohio," "Yankee," and "Kentucky," which the trust sells in this country for $7.00 per dozen, are offered by Maleza for export for $6.00 per dozen delivered on board ship. Other brands and shapes are sold at similarly low prices.

By putting their products on board ship, and getting the bill of lading, the trust is able to prevent home buyers from taking advantage of its low prices to foreigners.

What is true of the manufacturers of all classes of agricultural implements, and the ax trust is true of other trusts depending on the tariff for their existence, and using the protection thus given them to swell their profits by high prices at home.

Doubtless that apostle of high protectionism, Mr. R. G. Horr, who is employed by the New York Tribune to tell the farmers how good a thing the McKinley tariff is for them, will say of this, as he did of the statement of Mr. Farquhar, that it is "an abominable free trade falsehood."

Another Wage Reduction.

To the list of protected industries which have reduced the wages of their workmen, the New York Mills Cotton Company, at Utica, N. Y., must now be added. The President of the concern is W. Stuart Walcott, and the Treasurer is Samuel R. Campbell. Both are ardent and active Republican politicians, and devout disciples of McKinleyism. Mr. Walcott has long been credited with aspirations to the State Senatorship from his district. Mr. Campbell is the son of the late State Senator Samuel Campbell. He is a liberal contributor to Republican campaign funds, and in Presidential years generally equips one or two campaign clubs at the mills.

On Saturday notice was posted in what are known as the lower and middle mills of the company that a reduction in the wages of the weavers would take place on December 7. The former schedule was 77 cents for weaving a cut of fifty-five yards of shirting, and each weaver had charge of four looms. The new schedule makes a different scale, and provides that the weaver shall operate five and six looms instead of four. The new prices are 70 cents per cut for an operative who has charge of four looms, 66 cents a cut where five looms are operated, and 62 cents a cut for six looms. The average operative can get two cuts a week from a loom. Under the old schedule the average weekly wages of weavers was $6.16. Under the the average weaver will earn new scale $5.60 a week working at four looms.

This reduction makes a bleak outlook for the weavers just at the beginning of winter, and the warmest indignation is expressed by them. The weavers say they cannot run six six looms because the cotton is poor, and some of the operatives are inexperienced. They insist that four looms are as many as they can handle. It is said that many of the best weavers will have to seek employment elsewhere. At any rate the new arrangement will compel the dismissal of from one-tenth to one-fifth of the four or five hundred weavers, and harder work or smaller wages will be the lot of the rest.

One operative summed up the situation in this fashion: "We will say you are paying a man $1 per day for sawing wood at the rate of a cord a day, and it is all he can do, and you say to him that hereafter you will pay him $1.50 per day if he will saw two cords."

Perkins and the American Economist.

In their search for powerful advocates, our high tariff friends have found the truthful Eli Perkins, and we understand that his services have been engaged by the American Protective Tariff League for the campaign that will close in November next. His first argument was published in the Tariff League's Bulletin, otherwise known as the American Economist, of the 4th inst.

The subject of his first argument is chicory, and the Tariff League places at the head of the essay this title: "The Birth and Growth of a McKinley Industry." "I suppose," says Mr. Perkins to the editor of the Tariff League paper, "that you don't know what chicory is." This is almost as bad as saying that the Tariff League's editor "doesn't know beans." Eli explains that it is a vegetable which "tastes like coffee" and then he goes on as follows:

"To get to the story. When they were putting the tariff on different things last year, and got down to 'C,' they came right on to chicory.

"'What's chickory?' asked Major McKinley.

"No one was able to tell anything about it, except that we paid $5,000,000 every year to get what was used.

"'Well, what shall we do with it?' asked several Congressmen.

"'Why, if we can't raise it,' said McKinley, 'and the people want it, we will let raw chicory come in free, but we will put a protective tariff on manufactured chicory. We will try and bring the manufactories to America if we can't raise the stuff.' And so the tariff went on to manufactured chicory.

"Suddenly I noticed a great stir among the chicory importers

"'Why, this McKinley bill has raised the dickens,' they said. 'We can't import ground chicory any more from France and Germany. We must make it here.'

"So they wrote and telegraphed the foreign chicory manufacturers that they must hurry up and bring their chicory factories over here. And, sure enough, there was a stampede from Europe."

We interrupt here the easy flow of Mr. Perkins' narrative to make a few remarks. We shall not question the truthfulness of his assertion, that neither Mr. McKinley nor any other member of the Ways and Means Committee knew what chickory is, although they knew, so Mr. Perkins says, that "we have been sending out about $8,000,000 to Germany every year for this little article." But we must say that the book of statistics which Perkins uses is not in accord with the one published by the Government. In the latter the report concerning the value of chicory imported is as follows:

IMPORTS OF CHICORY.

Chicory root, ground or unground, burnt or prepared	$201,802	$231,600

There is some difference between $8,000,000 and $231,600, but we cannot expect that a genius like Eli Perkins will permit himself to be fettered by facts.

It will be noticed also that when the members of the committee "got down to 'C'" and "came right on to chicory," they decided to "put a protective tariff on manufactured chicory." Here again Perkins's book of statistics has misled him. The duty on manufactured chicory was not changed by the McKinley act. In the old tariff it was 2 cents a pound, and in the new one it is the same. Perkins must have been misinformed about the "great stir among the importers." They told him that they couldn't "import ground chicory any more" because the McKinley bill "had raised the dickens." But, as we have said, the duty on ground chicory was not changed.

There was a change, however, with respect to raw and unground chicory. The duty on this had been 2 cents a pound, and the McKinley bill took it off. Perkins says that, under the provisions of the McKinley act the farmers are all beginning to raise chicory. That is to say, the removal of the duty on raw chicory gives them so much protection against the raw chicory of "France and Germany, where it is grown with very cheap labor," that they are very anxious to take hold of the industry. What does the Tariff League say to this?—New York Times.

Mercantilism and McKinleyism.

E. Benjamin Andrews, President of Brown University, defines mercantilism in his excellent book, Institutes of Economics, as follows: "This (the mercantile system) neglecting agriculture magnified other businesses, and commerce in particular, yet, regarding money as the most real form of wealth, insisted that in order to profit by trading a nation must have the 'balance of trade' in its favor, work mines, tax imports, subsidize exportation, and conduct its whole policy with the view of amassing the greatest possible hoard of the precious metals. To this end ubiquitous governmental regulation of industries was necessary, with privileges and monopolies to all inland business deemed important, also encouragement to domestic shipping, discouragement to foreign. These notions, while more explicit in France, were common to all Europe, and determined the character of economic and international politics for centuries."

Were one asked to write a definition of McKinleyism one could not do better than to substitute for mercantilism the word McKinleyism in the above definition.

It was not until about 1775 that the statesmen of England saw where the blind worship of mercantilism was leading them. Adam Smith did more to open their eyes than any other person. At the dawn of the present century England began those reforms of her fiscal system which have made her the greatest manufacturing and commercial nation in the world. The abolition of her absurd and narrow navigation laws was the first step, the second being the free importation of raw materials for her manufacturers. The last great measure of reform was the removal of such import duties as favored the few to the detriment of the many.

On the other hand, the French carried mercantilism to its logical conclusion, and refused to discard it when its disastrous effects were becoming apparent. The result was the French revolution. The masses in France had been so robbed and plundered on all sides that they rose in their power and swept the royalty and aristocracy out of existence.

With these examples before the people of the United States, will they longer tolerate McKinleyism—the chief results of which are tariff-protected monopolies and trusts, which, unless checked, will bring about the same results.

Proposed Tariff Reform.

Congressman William J. Coombs, of Brooklyn, has prepared the following resolution concerning customs duties to be offered in the House of Representatives at the opening session:

Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means be directed to prepare and present to this House a bill for the collection of revenue and other purposes substantially upon the basis and principle of the following propositions:

The bill shall have four schedules as follows:

Schedule A.—To be composed of articles free of duty, including all raw materials necessary in the manufacture of goods.

Schedule B.—To be composed of articles which by their nature should not pay a duty exceeding 10 per cent.

Schedule C.—To be composed of articles, principally wine, spirits, tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, and upon which a duty must be charged sufficient at least to protect manufacturers, who pay a tax under our internal revenue laws. Also, of a few well-defined articles of luxury, which will bear a rate of at least 40 per cent. ad valorem.

Schedule D.—To be known as the schedule for the protection of labor, and which shall be made up from time to time in the manner herein specified.

All articles not covered by the preceding lists shall be grouped and known as "unspecified," and shall have a uniform rate of ad valorem duty as provided hereafter.

The bill shall also provide that as soon as Congress shall ascertain the amount of money necessary for the conduct of the Government for the current year, it shall submit a report to the same, deducting therefrom the following items:

(a) Surplus remaining over from preceding year.

(b) Estimated income from internal revenue.

(c) Estimated income from Schedule B.

(d) Estimated income from Schedule C.

(e) Estimated income from Schedule D.

(f) Estimated income from all other sources.

Which amounts being deducted from the amount to be provided for, the expenses of the Government will leave as a result the amount to be raised by import tax on all "unspecified" articles.

It shall, in its report to Congress, estimate the gross value of such importations for the current year and the percentage of duty necessary to be levied on the same in order, as near as may be, to realize the amount ascertained as above.

The bill shall also provide that in case any manufacturer or manufacturers of goods or merchandise included in the class of "unspecified" shall find that the item of labor cost, including the use of machinery, of his productions in this country shall exceed that paid by the manufacturers of the same class of goods made in foreign countries, he may present sworn proofs of the same to the committee, with the demand that such articles shall be entered on Schedule D. If, upon examination, the committee find that the statements are correct, or if they find that any difference exists in favor of the foreign manufacturer, they shall cause the article or class of articles to be entered upon Schedule D. with a specific duty equal to such difference, always provided that the article is not protected by letters patent issued by this Government.

Starch Trust Profits.

In spite of the fact that its capital is heavily watered, the Starch Trust, or as the high tariff organs choose to call it, the National Starch Manufacturing Company, pays good dividends, as the following from the Financial and Mining Record, a high tariff organ shows:

"The National Starch Manufacturing Company have declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 6 per cent on the second preferred stock, payable Jan. 1, 1892. The company paid the usual 4 per cent dividend on the first preferred stock on Nov. 1, last; also the semi-annual interest on their bonds due at that time, and set apart the amount required for the sinking fund. The company's finances are in good shape, and the prospects for the coming year are very favorable."

In addition to the heavy expenses which had to be paid to those who organized it, and to the defunct concerns to keep them from competing with it, this showing on the part of a trust whose jobs in the McKinley tariff were among the most flagrant in the whole bill, is very favorable.

First Street Railway.

The first street railroad chartered in this country was the New York and Harlem, but now known as the "Fourth Avenue," and the date of its charter is April 25, 1831, or sixty years ago. The patent was taken out in 1833 by John Stephenson, still living at the advanced age of 85 years, and bears the signature of Andrew Jackson, President; Edward Livingston, Secretary of State; Roger B. Taney, Attorney General; and John Campbell, Treasurer. The car is described as "a transition from the existing styles of coachwork, being the union of three Quaker coaches suspended on four short leather 'thorough-braces,' which afforded an ease of comfort not since excelled." Its picture represents it as a cross between an omnibus, a rockaway and an English railway coach. In addition to comfort this car had another advantage which is now beginning to be appreciated in the congestion of street traffic in large cities. It was divided on the inside into three compartments, each seating ten passengers, and the roof held two seats more, one at each end, capable of seating ten more. So we see that the "upper deck" feature is really as old as the first street car built. In those days it was supposed, as a matter of course, that the passenger was entitled to a seat, and forty persons was thought to be a fair load for one car. Nowadays in Chicago and New York such ideas are too antiquated for courteous consideration. Passengers are not given seats, but are lucky to get standing room. The rapid growth of cities has rendered intramural transit and rapid transit one of the serious problems of the age.

JAPAN BADLY SHAKEN.

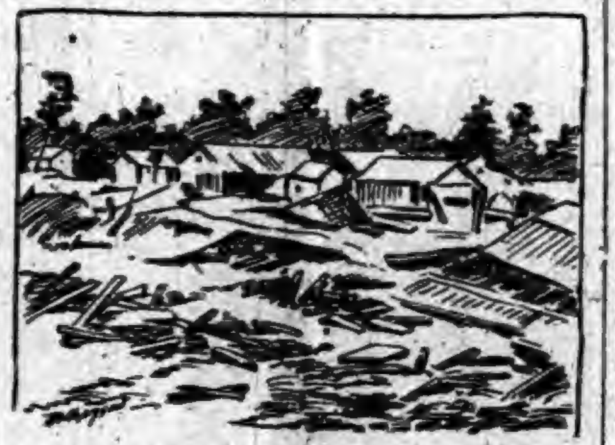
THOUSANDS KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

Houses Thrown Down and Whole Cities Wrecked—People Buried in the Ruins of the Buildings—Sketches of the Damaged Region.

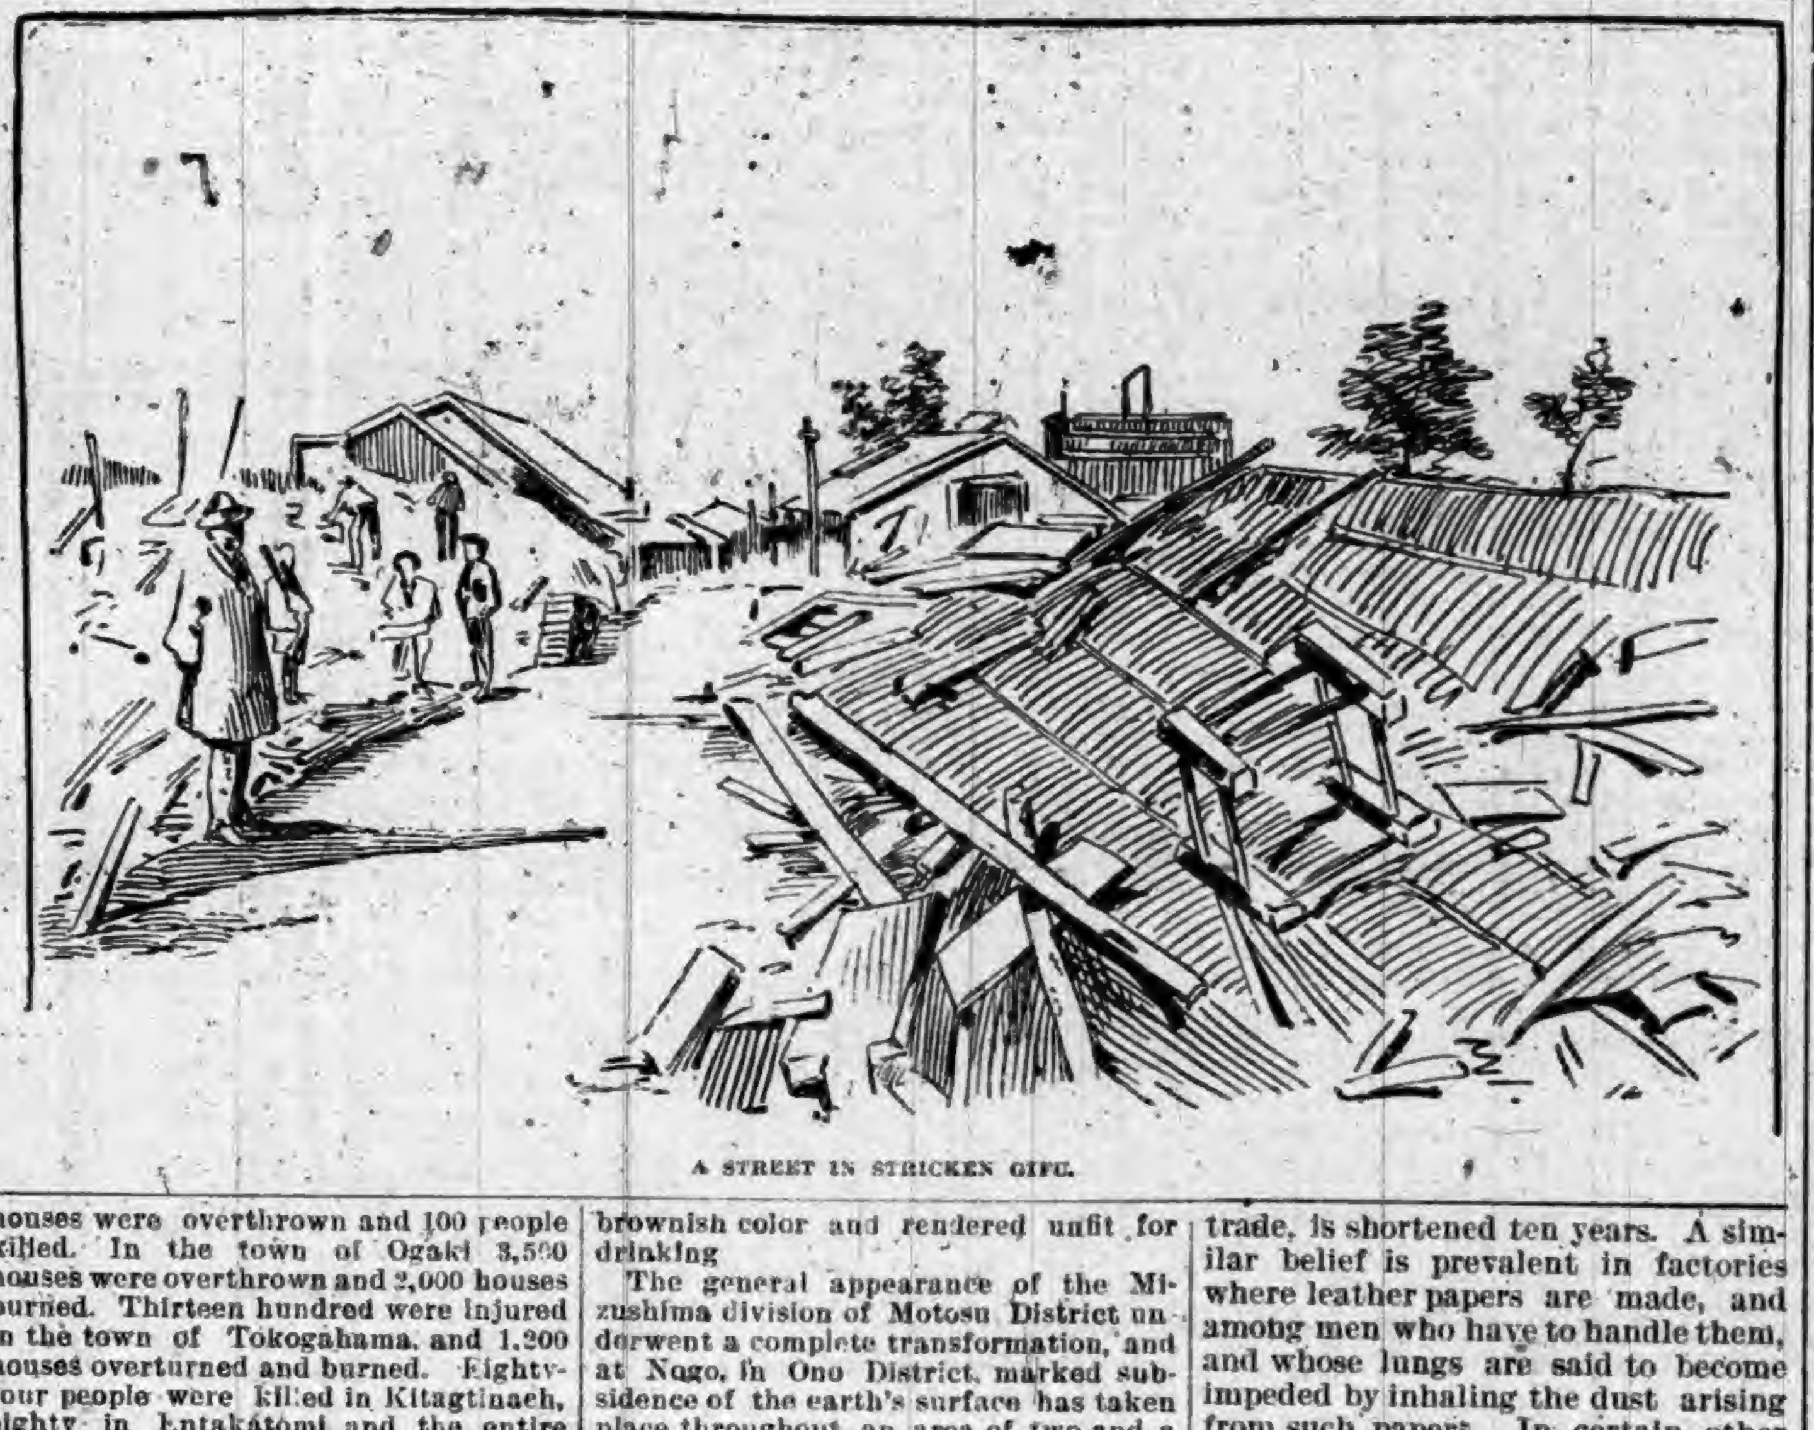
Description of the Devastation.

The terrible earthquake which visited the dominions of the Mikado Oct 28, 1891, was one of the most destructive of modern times.

The point of the central convulsion seems to have been not far from the geographical center of the country, some 150 miles west of Yokohama. There occurred a marked subsidence of the earth's surface throughout an area two and one-half miles in diameter. The bed of the river was raised six feet and nearly 200 miles of embankment were ruined. Newly formed geysers spouted mud for hours, a lake 600 yards long was formed at the foot of a mountain, and numerous yawning fissures opened at the feet of terrified men and women in the cities, while their residences were tumbling about their ears, and 4,000 people are reported to have been killed, many more seriously injured, 40,000 houses destroyed, and 200,000 rendered homeless. From Oct. 28 to No. 5 earthquakes still continued to be felt. It is estimated that 6,600 shocks, or more than one every two minutes, were felt. The town of Gifu, on the Tokaido Railway, with a population of 15,000 people, was almost entirely destroyed; 3,500 out of a total of 4,400 houses in the town were overthrown or burned, and 747 people were killed. In the town of Kane 600 houses were overthrown and 100 people killed. In the town of Ogaki 3,500 houses were overthrown and 2,000 houses burned. Thirteen hundred were injured in the town of Tokogahama, and 1,200 houses overturned and burned. Eighty-four people were killed in Kitagtinaeh, eighty in Entakatomi and the entire village destroyed. These towns in the three provinces, Ezozi, Mino and Owari, represent a total of 3,400 killed and 43,000 houses totally destroyed.

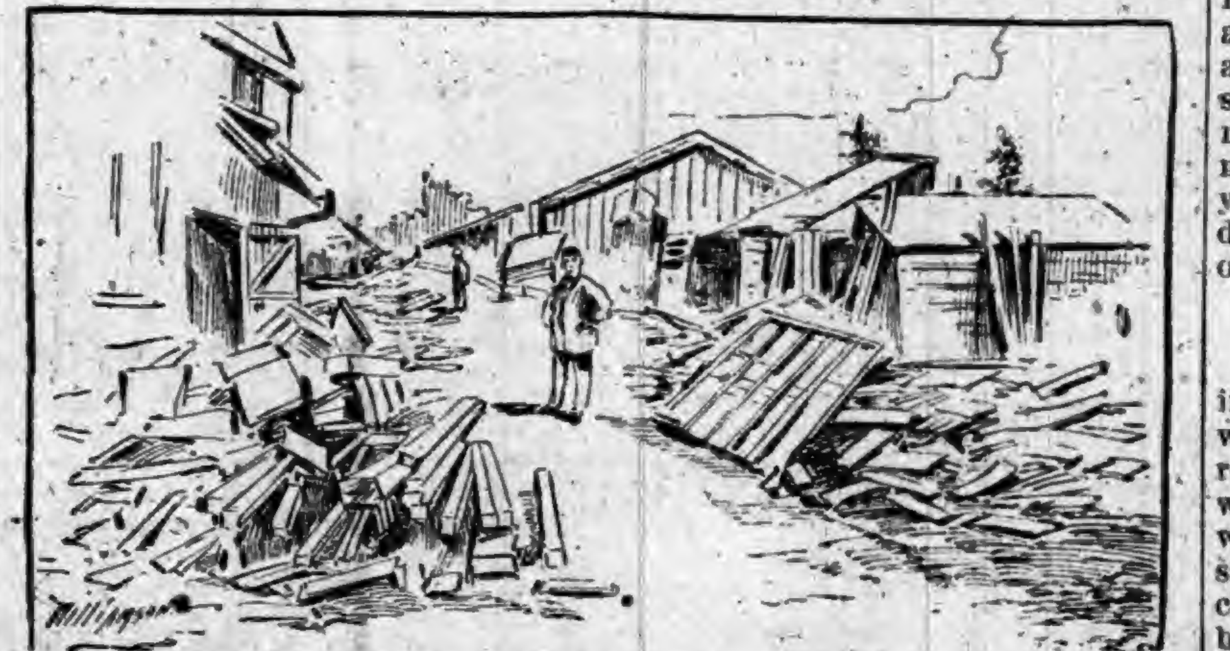


A DEVASTATED VILLAGE ON THE TOKAIDO, JAPAN'S GREAT COMMERCIAL ARTERY.



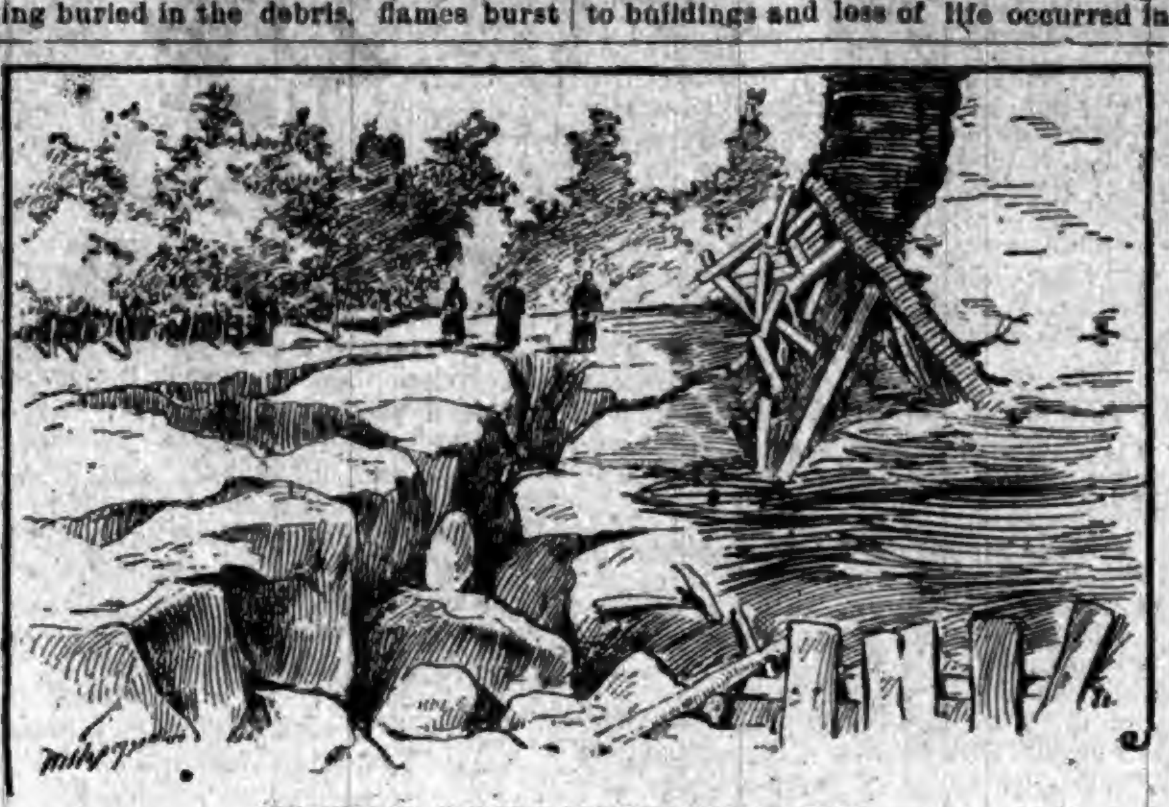
A STREET IN STRICKEN GIFU.

The town of Enagerio escaped lightly in comparison with the region west of there, embracing Gifu, Ogaki, and Kicto. A slight shock was felt at Nagerio on the night of Sunday, Oct. 25. On Wednesday morning forty Christians were assembled in one building of the Methodist Protestant school when a sound of distant rumbling arose and the building began to totter. The worshipers fled to the doors. One Christian and his wife were killed by falling bricks and tiles, and two other Japanese were so badly injured that they have since died. Of eight foreigners in the building Mr. and Mrs Van Dyke, missionaries conducting the meetings, together with one other person, were dangerously hurt. Out of doors the city was in an uproar. Wild shrieks, shouts, and innumerable noises filled the air, while every few moments came terrible thunder from the angry earth. Many of the streets were blocked with fallen houses and others were choked with people rushing to and fro. The chimneys of the Normal School went crushing through the roof and the building presented the appearance of having been bombarded. One story of the postoffice was ruined. The railroad station was destroyed and the Owari thread factory, large brick buildings, crashed in, killing hundreds of people. The old castle stood firm, but many gateways were demolished, and the brick court-house, for the military, was wrecked. Fires started in several portions of the city, but were subdued.



A STREET IN NAGOYA, NEAR THE BIMAGAWA RIVER.

Along the line of the Tokaido Railway, proceeding from Gifu to Kano, the latter place was found wholly in ruins, not a house remaining standing. The town of Kasamatsu fared like Kano, every dwelling being a mass of debris. Everywhere survivors were to be found digging out dead and wounded and fighting against conflagrations that broke out on all sides. Many survivors were so utterly confounded and terror-stricken that they could only stand staring vacantly at the scene of destruction. Day and night the work of carrying the wounded to Nagoya proceeded. A continued stream of body bearers passed along the railway, which was the only available route.



CREVICES IN THE VILLAGE OF TAMANOI MURA.

Shortly after the shock had leveled thousands of houses in Gifu, which seemed to be the center of the disturbance, and while hundreds of people were lying buried in the debris, flames burst from the ruins of the silk factory in Gifu and in a short time spread to such an extent that citizens were compelled to desist in their work of digging out the wounded and dying. By 8 o'clock in the evening every part of the town was wrapped in flames and the inhabitants, fleeing the town, took refuge in the woods.

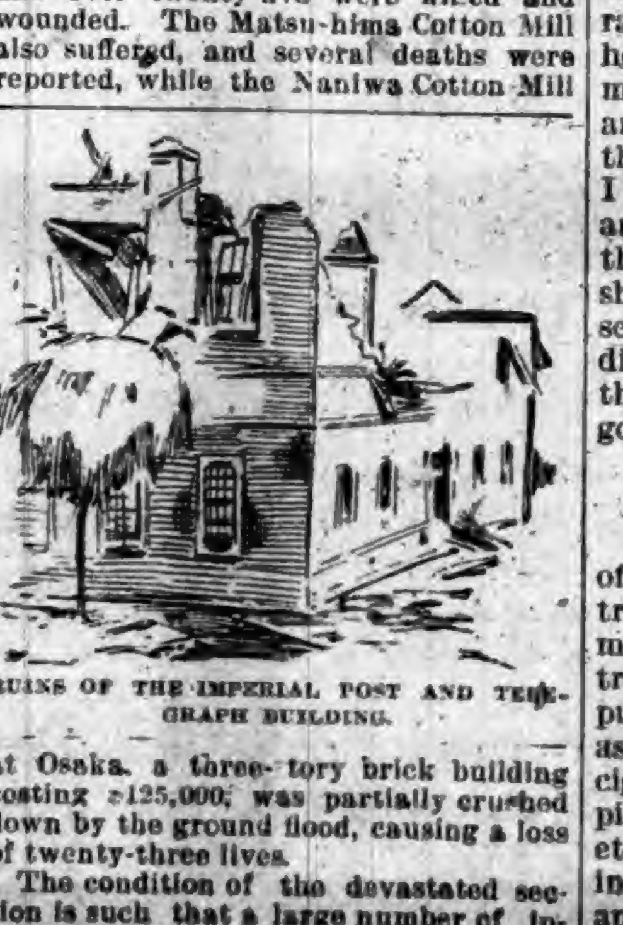
In the three towns which go to make up the city of Nagoya the loss of life is estimated at from 750 to 1,000. Fissures two feet wide and several feet deep were formed, the railway rails were twisted, iron bridges broken, river embankments sunk or crumbled, and fields flooded. The embankments of the Nagara, Kiso, Shouai, Gojo, and Niko Rivers were broken.

One hundred and fifty miles of embankment in the Gifu Prefecture alone will have to be rebuilt.

A lake 600 yards long and sixty yards wide was formed at the foot of Hakusan, a mountain in Gifu Prefecture. Big rocks beside Fongen Hill, Inaba Hill, and several other hills in Gifu gave way. Water sprang from cracks in the ground. The water in wells was changed to a brownish color and rendered unfit for drinking.

The general appearance of the Mizushima division of Motosu District underwent a complete transformation, and at Nogo, in Ono District, marked subsidence of the earth's surface has taken place throughout an area of two and a half miles in diameter. The bed of the River Neo, in the vicinity of Mizutomuro, was raised about six feet, and the rumbling of the mountain in that vicinity was heard at frequent intervals. Out of 700 temples in Gifu Prefecture more than one-third are totally destroyed.

Anything like a heavy rainfall would cause nearly the whole of Gifu to be flooded, and many months will be required to repair the river embankment. In some parts of the town soiling mud spouted out of the fissures to the height of ten feet. A majority of these geysers continued spouting over two hours at Osaka, which town also suffered greatly from earthquake. The Demso Cotton Mill was reported as having collapsed and over twenty-five were killed and wounded. The Matsu-hima Cotton Mill also suffered, and several deaths were reported, while the Naniwa Cotton Mill at Osaka, a three-story brick building costing $125,000, was partially crushed down by the ground flood, causing a loss of twenty-three lives.



RUINS OF THE IMPERIAL POST AND TELEGRAPH BUILDING.

The condition of the devastated section is such that a large number of inhabitants left those prefectures to obtain work elsewhere to support themselves. One hundred and fifty thousand people in one prefecture alone have applied for assistance.

Aside from the large donation raised for the sufferers by popular subscription, the Emperor and Empress made donations of $26,000 from the privy purse. Large quantities of food was also distributed.

The earthquake was the most severe experienced since the terrible catastrophe of '55 and must be ranked as a national calamity. The greatest damage to buildings and loss of life occurred in the prefectures of Achy and Gifu, in which nearly 4,000 people were killed outright and 4,000 seriously wounded. In those two prefectures there were 42,000 houses totally destroyed. The number of provinces throughout which the disturbances were strongly felt are thirty-one. The center seems to have been in Mino and Owari, but even as far south as Higo and Rikushu in the north the disturbance was sensibly felt.

Life-Shortening Occupations.

The Medical Age contains the following abstract from the Journal of the American Medical Association:

One of the curious features of modern life is the extent to which the most hazardous trades are overrun by applicants for work. The electric light companies never find any difficulty in obtaining all the linemen they need, notwithstanding the fact that the dangers of that kind of business have been demonstrated times without number. The men who work in factories where wall paper is made frequently joke one another over the tradition that a man's life, in this trade, is shortened ten years. A similar belief is prevalent in factories where leather papers are made, and among men who have to handle them, and whose lungs are said to become impeded by inhaling the dust arising from such papers. In certain other factories, where brass ornaments and fittings are made, the air is laden with very fine brazen particles, which are, when inhaled, especially irritating to the lungs. But one of the most singular advertised calls for employes that was ever printed appeared recently in a Connecticut newspaper, signed by a firm engaged in the business of building towers. It called for applicants only among those who are young, strong, and courageous, and closed by saying: "We warn all seekers for this job that it is of the most dangerous nature, and that few men continue in it more than a few years. In fact, it is almost certain death to the workman who follows this occupation."

A Valuable Rattle.

"I used to be a customs inspector in New York," said Robert Grosch, who is at the Occidental. "We had received advices that some diamonds were to be smuggled in, and one day when a passenger steamer arrived I saw a young couple with a small child and a suspicious-looking hand-bag which the mother carried. The husband went to another part of the steamship, and I stepped up to the young woman and told her I would have to examine the hand-bag. She looked startled and turned a little pale, I fancied, but said: 'All right, sir; just hold the baby, and I'll unlock it for you.' I took the little fellow in my arms, and shook the rattle which he had in his hand, and he laughed and crowed while his mamma opened the diminutive valise, and demonstrated to my satisfaction that it contained no dutiable goods. I searched in vain for the diamonds, and when my chief afterward learned that the baby's rattle, which I had shaken to amuse the child, contained several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds he discharged me, and that's how I happen to be selling dry goods."—Seattle Press-Times.

She Lost Her Smoking-Set.

A youthful countess, bearer of one of the most ancient titles in the Austrian nobility, recently having the misfortune to be despoiled of her treasures by thieves while traveling, publishes the following list of articles as stolen from her trunks: "One gold cigarette case, meerschaum mouthpiece, set in gold; an aluminum cigarette case, an Irish pipe, almost black in appearance, gold mounted, with an onyx mouthpiece; a silver match-box, a gold cigarette pipe, four plain cigarette cases in gold, silver, and platinum, and one set with diamonds and rubies." Rather a formidable outfit for a lady of high degree, suggestive of the prevalence of the smoking habit among women of royal walk and place.

A Herald of the Infant Year.

Clip the last thirty years or more from the century, and the segment will represent the term of the unbounded popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The opening of the year 1892 will be signalized by the appearance of a fresh Almanac of the Bitters, in which the uses, derivation, and action of this world-famous medicine will be lucidly set forth. Everybody should read it. The calendar and astronomical calculations to be found in this brochure are always astonishingly accurate, and the statistics, illustrations, humor, and other reading matter rich in interest and full of profit. The Hostetter Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., publish it themselves. They employ more than sixty hands in the mechanical work, and more than eleven months of the year is consumed in its preparation. It can be obtained without cost of all druggists and country dealers, and is printed in English, German, French, Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian, and Spanish.

John o' Groat's House.

John o' Groat's house stood on Duncansbay Head, the northeastern extremity of Scotland. The story about it is that it was an eight-sided building, with a door and window in each side, and an eight-sided table inside. It was so built by John that each head of the eight related families, of which his own was one, might be able to enter by his own door and sit at the head of his own table, the different heads of these families having been unable to agree as to which should take precedence when they assembled once a year.

An Antique Toad.

While a large fire-log was being cut up at the West-Shore Mills, Astoria, Wash., the other day, a large toad poked his head out of a hole that was exposed in the trunk by the saw. The log was the third from the butt of the tree, so that the creature must have been fully sixty feet up in the trunk, and the growth of the wood showed it had been confined there several hundred years. The toad hopped off and made its escape before the astonished workmen could secure it.

Photography of Criminals' Hair.

Dr. Jeserich has been making a special study of the photography of the hair of criminals, and in the case of the recent arrest of a Bertenese accused of murder the doctor promptly satisfied the police that the prisoner was not their man by the comparison of two hair photographs. Dr. Jeserich's ink photographs are said now to be among the most valued instruments for the detection of forgeries. Clever as criminals are, science seems to keep pace with them.

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog.

The Road and Special Road Tax are included in the first installment. The Poll and Dog Tax are divided equally between the two installments.

Taxes of 1891 are due the first day of January, 1892, and may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment must be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1862; the second installment on or before the first Monday in November, 1892. If the first installment is not paid when due both installments become delinquent. Ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue, by distress and sale of personal property.

The treasurer will not be responsible for the penalty and charges on delinquent taxes resulting from any omission of the person paying, to state definitely on what property, in whose name, and in what township or corporation it was assessed.

Persons owing delinquent taxes should pay them at once. The law is of such a character that there is no option left to the Treasurer but to enforce the collection of the delinquent taxes, however much he may regret to collect the same by the sale of property.

"The owner of property on the first day of April each year, shall be liable for the taxes of that year. The purchaser of property on the first day of April shall be considered the owner on that day."

Examine your receipts before leaving the office and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes, will occur on the second Monday in February, 1892.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days. We have 6,000 receipts to make and all can not be made the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipts will be made out for any party until they are ready to pay.

Assignees, Guardians, Administrators and others who pay taxes on property in trust, and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as individual estates, etc., are earnestly requested to settle such taxes before the last few days, as it requires considerable time to make the divisions and and separate receipts therefor. As the treasurer cannot know the location of each person's property, tax payers should designate the property on which they wish to pay taxes, and see that all property is specified on their receipts. If they have land in more than one township or town, or desire to pay taxes on lands not in their name, call the Treasurers attention to the matter.

REUBEN SAWVEL, Treasurer,

Mrs. Wm. Lockhart died at six o'clock Saturday morning. She has been suffering for some months with cancer, and, no doubt, death was a welcome release from intense and constant pain. Last week, Thursday evening, Rev. A. W. Lamport, of Wabash preached in the M. E. church, of this place. It was truly an intellectual feast to listen to so finished a sermon, and so perfectly delivered. Every word was chosen without hesitation or any seeming deliberation, yet always the one exactly suited for the place, and one that a better could not be substituted for. Mr. Lamport commenced his preaching in Waterloo and vicinity twenty years ago. Even then his sermons were well worthy of a full house.

Before adjourning the Board passed the following order, Lockwood dissenting:

Whereas, the Board of Commissioners (excepting Lyman Lockwood) find that an indispensable public necessity has for several years past existed, and still exists to employ persons to assist the county surveyor in the performance of work with which he is charged as such officer, in order to preserve from filling up, and from destruction, hundreds of miles of public ditches in this county, and to preserve the public health, and the court finding that it is a physical impossibility for the county surveyor to perform such work, therefore it is ordered that Daniel Hook be allowed the sum of $183; that Frank Scholes be allowed the sum of $108; that Byron Rainier be allowed the sum of $44; and that Dell N. Myers be allowed the sum of $54 for such work done, as per bills on file.

The Commissioners made their annual visit of inspection to the County Home, as required by law, and on Wednesday evening, adjourned. They meet Dec. 26, to receive final reports on ditches.

MERIT WINS. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Robbins & McCord, Druggists. 1

ALAS!

How wretched is the man who has fallen a victim to Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, or diseased Liver, with all the horrible attendants. Look upon the picture. Poor man, being tired of dragging out a miserable existence, he is the picture of despondency; altogether, he is rather a forlorn specimen. Do we pity him? Of course; but at the same time feel assured that in a measure he is to blame for the bad state into which he has fallen. A sure, safe, speedy and easy cure can be found in Simmons Liver Regulator—Nature's own remedy. No mercury or deleterious drugs, not unpleasant to the taste, and always reliable—just such a remedy as you can pin your faith to without a shadow of disappointment. Read the testimonial, don't take our word for it:

"I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator which gave me relief, without any interruption to business." J. HUGG, Middleport, Ohio.

JUDGE GRESHAM'S IDEA.
He is Opposed to Lawyers who Force their Services on Accident Victims.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Judge Gresham took occasion during the hearing of a lawsuit before him yesterday to give a severe lecture to a certain class of lawyers who, without solicitation, push their services upon people. The case was the suit of William McDowell against the Chicago and Northwestern railroad for $20,000 damages. McDowell was injured by the fall of a part of an overhanging bank of earth on the company's property at Waukegan last April. Subsequently McDowell was hurt in another accident and went to the hospital. Attorney Charles W. Monroe heard of the last accident and visited McDowell at the hospital to learn if there was any basis for a damage suit. Monroe then learned of McDowell's injuries while working for the railroad, and he took the case and brought suit. All this was brought out by Judge Gresham himself after he had questioned Monroe. "I don't say you were guilty of shoving your services on this man unsolicited," said the court, addressing Monroe, "but it looks bad, sir, very bad. If railroad trains run over people or injure them they should be held accountable for proper damages, but I don't like the way lawyers of a certain class have of rushing off to people as soon as they are injured and forcing their legal services on them. And the public does not like it either. Lawyers that do this sort of thing ought to be disbarred, and if I ever get one of them before me I will disbar him."

Fail to do Our Duty.

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty towards themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. Herbetcher, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from nervous prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is feeling like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remidies, declares that after three week's use of the Nervine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. Sold by F. E. Davenport. Trial bottle free. 1

Fell Dead.

These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Diseases." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symtoms: short breath; pain in side, smothering spells, swollen ankles, asthmatic breathing, weak and hungry spells, tenderness in shoulder or arm, fluttering of heart or irregular pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at F. E. Davenport's who also sells the New Heart Cure. 1

Wonderful Cures.

WATERLOO, IND., Feb. 2, 1891

This is to certify that my little boy had a breaking out all over his head from the time he was born till he was nine or ten months old and it baffled the skill of three of our best doctors. I then called A. Y. Rosenbury in and had him treat the case, and he soon began to improve, and soon got well. There has been no signs of the disease returning since that time. AMOS ZIMMER.

AUBURN AND VICINITY.

1857—Continued.

A notice in a newspaper of 1856, that Rev. J. T, Bliss would preach at the Presbyterian church on the following Sabbath recalls the fact that this clergyman had practically ceased to minister to the society in Auburn. He had founded the church and seen it grow to permanent self support and now gave way to a successor.

In the summer of 1857, Rev. Edward Wright was called to and took charge of the church and continued his ministerial labors until 1863.

Mr. Wright was on elderly man, precise in speech, scholarly and dignified. He was an able extemporaneous speaker, but on occasion his sermons were always elaborately prepared. He was the first school examiner, following the reduction from a board of three to a single officer; he was the first examiner to visit schools, was thorough in his examinations for licenses to teach and both himself and wife were highly valued for social qualities.

During his ministry at Auburn, the church session was composed of the following elders: viz, Wyllys Griswold., Dr. I. N. Chamberlain, P. B. Nimmons, and John Sommers. The two former had been elders from date of the organization of the church.

It is a pleasure to record the courageous efforts of an able and good man in the furtherance of great objects, and his zeal for his church, his interest in the public schools and his ardent love of country combine to make his name conspicuous and honorable in Auburn's history.

As the practically pioneer educator in this county, his course during his superintendency will be of interest to our teachers and it may be said that he at least began the foundations upon which others have successfully built.

Of all secret societies, masonry stands at the head in age, stability and purpose. The town is a small one in the United States that does not have its lodge; and in peace or war the brethren of the mystic tie are true to their great principles of fraternity in distress and charity to the needy of their great order. On May 28, 1857, DeKalb Lodge, No. 214 F. & A. M. was chartered and on June 5th, following Isaac Ayres acting on his appointment by S. D. Bayless, Grand Master of Masons in Inians, instituted the lodge and installed the following named first officers: Milton F. Pierce, W. M.; John Butt, S. W.; Alva O. Espy, J. W.; Aaron Wolf, Treas.; Eli. Weaver, Sec'y.; Joseph H. Ford, S. D.; James Barclay, J. D.; Wm. E. Rush, Tiler, and John Butt, James Barclay and A. O. Espy, trustees.

The lodge have held their meetings at various halls. For five years, they had the upper story of L. Bowers' building which stood on the S. ½ of Lot No. 66. They met in the Klotz and Ensley buildings rnd finally secured favorable quarters in the third story of the Case building, northwest corner Main and Ninth streets, where they have met for a number of years Their hall is handsomely furnished, portraits and masonic insignia adorn the walls and carpetings cross the floor. The lodge is in a prosperous condition and the present membership numbers sixty-seven.

The formal and impressive rites of burial have been performed at the obsequies of many departed masons of this lodge among whom were Wm. A. Lowrey, George H. K. Moss, Wyllys Griswold, John Butt and William Boughan.

Past masters in order of service have been as follows: M. F. Pierce, Joseph H. Ford, John Butt, Guy Plumb, J. H. Ford, G. Plumb, William A. Lowrey, W. E. Rush, James E. Rose, Frank E. Rose, Frank E. Davenport, who held the office, continuously from Dec. 22, 1874 till 1882, when J. J. VanAuken was elected for one year, then Mr. Davenport again served two years, followed by William Sheffer, Wm. H. Keeran, Joseph W. McKay and W. H. McQuiston, elected in 1890.

The present officers are: W. H. McQuiston, W. M.; D. Y. Husselman, S. W.; S. A. Rakestraw, J. W.; John L. Davis, Treas.; C. H. G. Jones, Secretary; J. H. Rowland, S. D.; W. F. Bloodhart, J. D.; W. E. Rush, Tiler; and J. J. VanAuken, Wm. Carr and James McClellan, trustees.

It will be observed that our aging townsman, who was Tiler of the lodge at organization thirty-four years ago is at present officiating in the same capacity.

The Big Kiblinger Factory.

It is a good time now, at the close of the year, to give our readers some idea as to the extent of the great industry that has grown up in our midst. Mr. Kiblinger reports his output for 1891 as follows:

Surreys..............................	321
Road wagons........................	642
Single top buggies..................	3,259

Making a grand total from Jan. 1, 1891 to Jan 1, 1892 of all jobs on wheels, 4,121.

During the year his books show he has paid out for hired labor, $24,107.85; crating lumber used during the year, 200,000 feet. The total weight of the output is 2,060,500 pounds. We might add that about ten days ago, he purchased another lot joining the south end of the south block of the factory on the east, that is, facing south on Ninth street, and has begun the work of putting a two-story brick thereon. He is putting in an engine to run drills, punches and forges, and will add a dynamo for electric lights to enable the factories to run on full time. His output the coming year will be not less than 6,000 jobs and he says the outlook for the trade was never better, and bids fair to be the banner buggy year. It will be seen from this that more men will be employed, also in the various departments. We feel like saying also a good word for the men, and especially for the blacksmiths, for the amount of work done, is simply astonishing.

Second Chapter of It.

Our cheeky tramp of whom we said a few unpleasant or pleasant things last week, invited himself into several other residences besides those we then named. He swung around into the south part of town, and on South Jackson. went into the residence of R. O. Baxter finding him at home. There, he wanted to get lodgings as he was a railway engineer. Mr. Baxter informed him he was not in the line of furnishing entertainment even to as honorable a set of men as railway engineers, and suggested that he go up town and find a hotel. The gentlemen of unmitigated gall, replied he would do so if Mr. B. would go along to show him the place. They compromised by sending his "trampship" off alone. Either before, or after his visit to Mr. Baxter, he had given Billy Murphy a call. Mr. M., was not in. As in other cases, when the lady went to the door to answer his knock, he shoved in past her and made himself at home. Mrs. Murphy was taken by surprise, and at once concluded there was not room enough in the house for two, and she took the outside. Mr. Tramp remaining comfortably near the stove, staid within. She called over to a neighbor, that she could see across the street, and after some further parley she got rid of her unwelcome guest, greatly to her relief. We believe that a chap claiming to be railroad engineer, slept that night at one of the livery barns. Our opinion is that the "same" was an old tramp printer who had that day called on us and not getting work or "grub stake" had taken this way to provide for his "bed and board." Our impression is, that in the creation of a tramp printer, providence don't need to make a full set of organs—just a big stomach, and the rest all cheek. It would be a waste of time and material to make more.

Interest to Housekeepers.

Inasmuch as several legislatures and boards of health have lately taken action respecting baking powders containing alum and ammonia. It will be of use to our readers to have an official list of such powders in order that they may be able to distinguish between them and the pure and wholesome cream of tartar article. This is not an easy matter, as most of the alum and ammonia compounds are not labeled as such, but frequently masquerade as "absolutely pure" cream of tartar powders. Our space will not admit of a complete list and we give therefore the powders in most general use, which are known to contain either alum or ammonia or both.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The Dardanelles strait, being the marine gate to Constantinople, is to-day the most anxiously guarded water way in all the world. This fact, in connection with the present polilitical situation abroad, gives universal interest to the illustrated paper upon "The Dardanelles Question and the European Equilibrium," by John Laird Wilson, in the Holiday (January) Number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. Amongst the other notable articles, all profusely illustrated, in this number, are: "The Sea Horses (Walruses) and their Chase," by Ernest Ingersoll; "Down the Rhone," by Professor MacMullen; "Fools are my Theme," by Mary V. Worstell; "Woman's Life in Turkey," by Olive Harper; "New York from a a Cble Car," by Virgina Duncan; "Angelica Kauffman," by Evelyn Moore; and "Stained Glass in America," by Roger Riordan. Joaquin Miller contributes an inspiring poem upon "Columbus," and there are short stories by Nelly Hart Woodworth, Charles G. D. Roberts, Mary A. Denison, and others.

WATERLOO, IND., March 20, 1890.

A. Y. ROSENBURY:

Dear Sir: "In answer to your inquiry concerning my lameness, for which you treated me about four years ago, I will state the facts that parties may judge for themselves. About four years ago I fell and hurt my back and right side very badly, for which I was treated by a good physician, but was not helped. I was so badly hurt that upon waking up in the morning I would lay for some time before I could turn over in bed, and could only raise up with severe pain, and after suffering in this way for a little over six months, you remember you manipulated the affected parts, laying your hands upon the same, and assured me that I would be well, in which I had at the time, no faith, and thought so little about the matter that I never referred to it in my own mind or others until about a week after, when I found myself gettidg out of bed and dressing without the least pain. I began to think about your remedy when you applied it and what you had said, it would cure me, I remember all about that, but could not realize when the pain left me or how I was cured, but like the blind man I knew that whereas I was lame, I was then well, and like him, I have stated the facts.

THE UNITED STATES

WON'T HARBOR MEXICAN REVOLUTIONISTS.

Death and Destruction to South Sea Islanders—Boiler Explosion—Another Smash Up—Actor Curtis' Crime.

UNCLE SAM

Won't Harbor Mexican Revolutionists.

San Antonia (Tex.) special: The situation on the border is becoming more serious, and it is believed that trouble will not be overcome without considerable bloodshed as the revolutionists continue to boldly organize their forces on this side of the border without any apparent fear of interruption by the United States military authorities.

Gen. Stanley, commander of this department, sent a number of dispatches to the direct post commanders along the border instructing them all to take the field with detachments of their forces and scout for the revolutionists. An order was also issued by Gen. Stanley for the United States troops D and K of the Third Cavaly, stationed at this post, to be prepared to leave for the scene of the trouble at a moment's notice. The transportation and other arrangements are now being made for them to leave here on a special train. They will be distributed along the border at different posts, thus strengthening the military guard. The order produced much excitement at the posts here. The only available force in the department not now in the field are the first companies of infantry remaining here. In addition to the increase in the military protection, the entire ranger force of the State is to be sent to the frontier.

WHAT OTHER SHIPS?

The San Francisco Evidently Expects to Meet Some.

A special from San Diego, Cal., says: The United States steamer San Francisco, which left San Francisco last week, has entered that port. The trip was made direct without stopping at Monterey as was expected. Rear Admiral Brown said:

"We shall stay in San Diego harbor until the Secretary of the Navy orders us away. We are ready to sail on three hours' notice, but may remain here three weeks. All depends on orders from Washington. The ship is equipped for a three years' cruise and we have one hundred rounds of ammunition for each gun, besides this we have three hundred or four hundred rounds for other ships.

"What other ships," was asked.

"Well, me may meet some other ships that will want some ammunition," was the only answer. From other sources it is inferred that the Charleston is now on her way from Honolulu to Acapulco and is to meet the San Francisco here and take on extra ammunition. The Baltimore is also coming north from Chilian waters and may want ammunition. While the officers refuse to state their future plans it is easy to learn that the vessel is ready for any emergency.

Death and Destruction.

Advices from the South Seas give startling news from the Gilbert Islands, in the Pacific, by the mission barque, John Williams, now at Samoa. It seems that just before the barque visited the group very severe weather prevailed, during which there were several tidal upheavals, the result, doubtless, of submarine disturbances. Tidal waves broke high over some of the islands of the group, causing great loss of life, and completely demolishing houses. At one island alone the Rev. J. W. Hills, of the London Missionary Society, writes no fewer than eighty lives perished. The Gilbert Islands, of the Kingsmill group, consist of fifteen islands of coral formation, all low, the highest land in the group not exceeding twenty feet, and are fast wearing away by the action of the sea.

Another Smash-Up.

A Union Pacific passenger train collided with a switch engine in the yards at Beatrice, Neb., completely demolishing both engines and telescoping the mail car. The switch engine was running down a side track. By some means the switch had been left open, and the passenger train, running twenty-five miles an hour, dashed into it. The engineer of the yard engine escaped by jumping. The others were badly injured. The passengers were badly shaken up but none seriously injured. The mail car took fire and considerable mail was destroyed before the fire was put out. Fireman Lusk is not expected to live.

Sam'l o' Posen.

San Francisco special: The lawyers defending M. B. Curtis, the actor, say that they shall prove that the police have all along known the man who shot Policeman Grant, but for reasons of their own do not care to bring him to justice. They declare that the breaking down of the identification of the pistol as Curtis' weapon is complete. Johnson, who first declared that he recognized the weapon, confesses that he perjured himself. Not one of the women, the defense say, who saw the shooting from across the street, are willing to swear that Curtis was the man whom they saw running away.

Conductor Paramore Avenged.

Unauthenticated reports from Leesburg, Fla., state that the negro who shot and killed Conductor Paramore on a train near that place has been captured and killed. More trouble is feared as the negroes are well armed and threaten revenge.

No Pardon for Harper.

The President refused to grant a pardon to Edward L. Harper, convicted and sentenced to ten years in the Ohio Penitentiary for wrecking the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati.

Boiler Explosion.

The boiler at William McCoy's mill, eight miles south of Richmond, Ind., blew up, killing Isaac Taylor, the engineer. Four other men had narrow escapes. The explosion was the result of the grossest of carelessness on the part of some one. The boiler had been condemned for two years, and was still kept in daily use. The pop valve was stuck. It is known the boiler had 120 pounds of pressure on, and it is not known how much more, but there is supposed to have been about 160 pounds.

A Lady Burned to Death.

Mrs. H. B. Stevens, of Chicago, met with a horrible death at Joliet, Ill. She was cleaning dress fabrics with gasoline when the stuff ignited and she was literally roasted to death. Every shred of clothing on the unfortunate woman was burned from her body and her flesh was burned black, so that the remains were unrecognizable. There was no fire in the room where Mrs. Stevens was at work, the nearest being in the third room, and the cause of the terrible catastrophe is a mystery. The shrieks of the poor victim attracted the people in the house immediately, but they were too late to render any assistance and she died in terrible agony three hours after the accident. Mrs. Stevens was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Ruline.

A FIRE'S FURY.

Chattanooga Blocks in Ashes.

A special from Chattanooga, Tenn., says: Flames were discovered in the immense retail dry goods house of D. B. Loveman & Co., corner of Market and Eighth streets. Almost instantaneously the flames burst from the windows of the building. There were about 100 girls in the store. The flames were discovered in the stairways. The store was crowded with ladies and they enacted a scene which defies description. After the stairways had been burned, two women, Mrs. Hurst and Mrs. Johnson, were seen at the second story window calling for aid. Around them the flames leaped and the heat became unbearable. The firemen were just running the big extension ladder up to the window when Mrs. Hurst leaped from the place of safety into the street.

The other woman was safely taken from the window. Mrs. Hurst was carried to her home. It is rumored that twelve other girls are buried in the debris, but there seems to be no foundation for the rumor.

The wind was blowing a perfect gale when the fire started and it spread rapidly until eight buildings had been consumed. The fire departments were miserably managed, the mismanagement being largely responsible for the spreading of the flames. The Cobweb clubrooms are wrecked and the Young Men's Republican Club and Chamber of Commerce are large losers. The public library was badly damaged by water and smoke, and two banks, the Fourth National and Southern Bank and Trust Company, are gutted. The loss will reach $1,000,000.

TELESCOPED,

With Death-Dealing Effect.

A shocking accident occurred at Hastings, N. J., on the New York Central between the St. Louis express and the Niagara Falls special trains. Several persons are reported killed and a number injured. Some place the killed at eight, while others claim that ten persons were crushed or scalded to death. The accident was directly the outcome of the collision which occurred earlier in the evening in the tunnel at Sing Sing. The accident blocked the road and trains were held at both sides of the tunnel. The weather was very thick and this prevented the trainmen on the St. Louis express from seeing the blockade in time to prevent the collision. The locomotive of this train crashed into the rear coach of the Niagara express and several cars, mostly sleepers, were badly wrecked. To add to the horror of the wreck the boiler of the locomotive of the St. Louis express exploded and the escaping steam did deadly work among the unfortunates, who were in the wrecked cars. The scene at the wreck was indescribable. The trainmen lost their heads and ran out in a frantic manner, peering into the wreck at those who lay within, groaning and dying, but doing very little work toward rescuing the victims. Owing to the excitement it was impossible to get anything like a list of the killed and injured. It is stated that a number of injured are likely to die.

NATURAL GAS.

An Important Decision by Judge Burson, of Wabash, Ind.

Wabash (Ind.) special: Judge Burson has rendered his decision in the injunction suit of Shirk against the Indiana Natural Gas and Oil Company and the Columbus Construction Company. Shirk, who claims to own a small strip of ground near the city of Logansport, obtained a temporary injunction against the companies before Judge McConnell preventing them from laying their pipes necessary to convey gas to Chicago. The plaintiff also contested the right of the defendant to condemn the lands of plaintiff to convey gas beyond the limits of the State to Chicago without supplying Indiana towns along the line.

Judge Burson rendered his decision, partly in favor of the defendants, holding that the restraining order may be so modified as to allow defendants to lay their pipes upon depositing $100 with the clerk of the court to be used, if necessary, to pay the cost of the removal of the pipes should the court, upon final hearing, amend the right herein granted. The case has attracted widespread attention, and if Judge Burson's decision is not amended upon final hearing, it will give the gas companies a clean sweep to the State line.

An Asylum in Flames.

A special from Pontiac, Mich., dated Dec. 27, says: The Eastern Michigan Insane Asylum has been burning since morning, when the north wing was discovered to be on fire. The cause is a mystery, as the fire started in a part that was unoccupied. Owing to this and the high wind the flames spread rapidly. The admirably organized fire department of the asylum was of no avail, but the fire department of the city, which arrived on the scene at 2 o'clock, and several hundred citizens, fought the fire heroically. It seemed for a time that before the day closed a tragedy would be enacted excelling anything in the history of the State. But the admirable discipline of the institution averted every calamity, except the loss of property which is very great. The patients were so quietly moved from hall to hall, and finally to the cottages apart from the main building that no one realized they were moving at all. There was no resistance or force used. The flames were confined to the three sections of the north wing and the administering part of the main building, containing the offices of the Superintendent, physicians, etc. They are wholly destroyed, except the walls, which are still standing. The loss will be about $250,000. At midnight the firemen are still playing upon the ruins, but have the fire completely under control.

A Horrible Accident.

A dispatch from Antwerp says that eighteen people were killed and thirty wounded by an explosion of dynamite in a vessel lying alongside the quay at that port. The vessel was a large lugger or two masted vessel peculiar to the French coast and was totally destroyed. Her name was Le Pilote.

The concussion was felt all over the city, and many people thought it was an earthquake. The roar and the shock were terrible, and many a face blanched with terror at the thought that perhaps the next moment houses would come tumbling into the streets. In a short time, however, the truth was learned. A French lugger named the Pilot, a part of whose cargo was dynamite, was discharging into a lighter lying along side. Suddenly there was a flash and a tremendous roar and the lugger was blown to atoms. The upper part of the lighter was shattered into a thousand fragments and the wrecked hull immediately sank. All of the twenty men who were employed on the vessels in the handling and stowing the dangerous material were either instantly killed or blown into the water and drowned. It is thought that a package of dynamite fell to the deck of the lighter and that the concussion caused it to explode.

Didn't Arrest Him.

An officer entered the colored Baptist Church at Crawfordsville, Ind., the other night for the purpose of arresting a colored man named Evans. The latter was in the church with his sweetheart, and when he saw the officer coming he ran to the altar steps and drew a razor. When the officer came within reach he sprang upon him and cut him severely. The negro then fled from the church, the officer firing at him as he ran. The first shot brought him to his knees, but he struggled to his feet and escaped. The greatest excitement prevailed, but the minister, who was in the middle of his sermon when the officer appeared, continued right along as if nothing had happened.

Blew Up a Hotel.

The Lafayette House, a frame hotel in St. Joseph, Mo., was badly wrecked by dynamite. The building was discovered to be on fire, and soon after the arrival of the fire department two dynamite bombs exploded in quick succession in one end of it. The entire front was blown out, and the house was otherwise badly demolished. The forty persons who were sleeping in the hotel had been aroused by the fire alarm and escaped injury. Several firemen narrowly escaped death. It is supposed the bombs were placed in the house and the structure set on fire by an enemy of the hotel keeper.

Her Revenge.

Prof. N. C. Dougherty, City Superintendent of Schools, of Peoria, Ill., while walking home, was approached from behind by a woman, who, without accosting him, fired two shots at him from a small revolver, the last of which passed through his right ear, and plowed through the side of his head. The wound is not dangerous, but Mr. Dougherty narrowly escaped death. The woman at once fled, but was arrested at her home by Sheriff Berry. She is a Miss Maggie Harrigan, a teacher in the City School. Lately she lost her situation, and attributed this to the Superintendent.

Found on the Banks of a River.

John J. Fallon, commercial traveler for Arbuckle & Ryan, seed merchants, left Toledo December 15, for Blissfield and other points in Michigan. After supper that evening Fallon went out of his hotel without his overcoat on. From that date nothing has been heard of him until the other night, when Mr. Arbuckle received a dispatch saying that Fallon's body had been found on the banks of the Raisin River, near Blissfield. Deceased was a temperate man, and in full possession of his faculties, and there is no known cause for his committing suicide.

Murdered for Fourteen Dollars.

The dead body of Frederick Spinden, which was found literally cut to pieces in the German Lutheran cemetery at Detroit, recently, was the means of revealing a most atrocious murder. The only motive so far as known is the fact that Spinden had $14 on his person when he left home to cut evergreens for Christmas trees, and the money is missing. The police have not yet found any clue to the murder. On the back of Spinden's head were eleven wounds. He was also stabbed in the throat, eye and ear.

Censures the Company.

Railroad Inspector McInarna has filed his report of the recent wreck on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago road near Lima, Ohio, in which three people were killed and a number injured. He states that the wreck was caused by a broken rail and a rotten tie. He censures the management of the road for not keeping the track in better repair, claiming that no track-walkers are employed.

Field Still Starving.

New York special: Edward M. Field still persists in starving himself. He has greatly alarmed his physicians and Warden Fallen has been instructed to give him whisky. The warden says Field seems to be dazed and that the only time his face shows any expression of interest is when the family physician, Dr. Lindley, calls.

Terrible Tragedy.

Eda Rutzen, the beautiful 17-year-old daughter of Armer Rutzen, living one mile south of Libertyville, Ill., was shot and mortally wounded by Thomas Dasson, a hired man in her father's employ, who in turn ended his own career with two bullets through the heart. Unrequited love was the murderer's excuse for the awful deed.

Surrendered.

Albert Halford, of Kentucky, who says that two years ago he forged the name of Fayette Hewitt to a draft for $2,500 and realized on the draft in Lexington, Ky., has given himself up to the police of San Francisco.

Frozen to Death.

The body of an unknown man was found about four miles southwest of Waverly, Neb. He was apparently about forty years old, neatly dressed and had only one shoe on. He had evidently frozen to death.

Collapse of a Bridge.

A new bridge being built over Fall Creek, near Indianapolis, gave way and the entire force of workmen were thrown into the stream. Seven were badly injured by the fall but none killed.

Fell Dead at Prayer.

Mrs. Victor Vagnier while attending the funeral services at St. Mary Catholic Church, Lancaster, Ohio, of John Himes, of Columbus, fell dead just as the congregation was kneeling at prayer.

BLOODY WORK IN ALABAMA.

They Rob a Merchant's Store, Burn His House, and Kill or Maim the Occupants.

The notorious outlaw, Job Sims, has returned to Choctaw County, Ala. Mr. John McMillan, a merchant of Choctaw County, was receiving a load of merchandise from the landing, and Job Sims leveled a Winchester rifle on the driver and made him unload the goods at Sims' house, and sent McMillan word he would burn his house and kill him. McMillan's house was guarded that night, but one night recently, at 11 o'clock seven of the Sims gang, all armed with Winchesters, fired McMillan's house and shot the occupants as they ran out. Charley Utsy escaped unhurt; Fluellen Utsy was shot, but not mortally wounded; John Kennedy, McMillan's father-in-law, was killed; John McMillan was shot three times and will die; the 12-year-old niece of McMillan was killed; a 10-year-old nephew was shot in the house and burned up; Miss Belle McKenzie, a school teacher boarding at McMillan's, was shot twice in the neck. The miscreants then opened McMillan's store, robbed it of what goods they wanted, and left it lighted up and open, scattering shoes along the road. Sims' daughters are dressed in men's clothes and armed with Winchesters at Sims' house, and are supposed to be part of the seven. A large body of men are after the gang, and will never stop until they catch them.

LEAD FOUND IN MISSOURI.

Important Discovery of Ore Reported to Have Been Made Near St. Joseph.

A valuable vein of lead ore was accidentally discovered about five miles east of St. Joseph, Mo. H. B. Cornell, a farmer, was hunting along the banks of a small creek, when he noticed a peculiar-looking mineral cropping out of a small ledge at the top of the bank. He made an examination and discovered what he believed to be lead ore. A sample of it was brought to the city, and, having been tested, is pronounced almost pure lead, the proportion of mineral being 94 per cent. A large quantity of it has been sent to St. Louis for assay, and if the report is favorable mining operations will be begun on an extensive scale. Mr. Cornell, on a second examination of the ledge, discovered that there was apparently an almost inexhaustible supply of the mineral in sight.

HE who thinks better of his neighbors than they deserve cannot be a bad man, for the standard by which his judgment is formed is the goodness of his own heart. It is the base only who believe all men base, or, in other words, like themselves.

A WOMAN cannot be altogether unhappy when the woman she has invited to supper asks her to write down her recipe for that cream pie.

A Very Common Want.

"Out of sorts," "distrait," "the blues," these are familiar appellatives for uncomfortable, undefinable sensations, accompanied with lassitude, nervousness, indigestion. Poverty of the blood, to remedy which an effective stomachic persistently used is the paramount need, is conclusive evidence that the system is insufficiently nourished because—and for no other cause where organic disease does not exist—the food is not assimilated. Re-enforce the flagging energies of the stomach, reform an irregular condition of the bowels, keep up a healthful secretion of the bile with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For over thirty years this popular medicine has supplied the common want of the nervous invalid, the dyspeptic and of persons deficient in vitality, an efficient tonic. To its power of imparting strength is attributable its efficacy as a preventive of malaria and la grippe. Thoroughly effective is it, too, for rheumatism, kidney complaint and neuralgia.

Greek as She Is Spoke.

In a letter to the Times "On Greek at the Universities," Sir George Bowen says: "I would venture to conclude with an appropriate anecdote which may help to enliven this somewhat dry subject. The late Bishop Wilberforce was wont to relate that at one of his ordinations he once had a candidate who was the son of an English merchant settled in Greece. When examined in the Greek Testament this gentleman pronounced in the Greek manner, which seemed strange to the Bishop, who exclaimed: 'Oh, Mr. ——, where did you learn Greek?' The trembling candidate faltered out, 'At Athens, my lord!' The Bishop added, 'I passed him without further question.'"—Toronto Globe.

PIKE'S TOOTHACHE DROPS Cure in one Minute.

Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. It only goes to prove what's been said: incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Other so-called remedies may palliate for a time; this cures for all time. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it conquers the worst cases. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell or hearing, watering or weak eyes, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are.

ROYAL RANGER RALPH;

—:OR:—

The Waif of the Western Prairies.

BY WELDON J. COBB.

CHAPTER XIV.

RANGER RALPH'S ADVENTURES.

We left Ranger Ralph in a very peculiar position of peril and excitement, an occupant of one of the wagons the outlaws had secured from the attacked emigrant train.

As has been stated, the scout believed that his presence in the vehicle was not known or even suspected.

He had crept thither, desperately wounded as he supposed, and while unconscious the wagon had started on its journey.

From what he saw and heard, the scout reasoned that Danton had met a new section of Despard's outlaw band near the emigrant train, and they were all now returning to the bandit's headquarters at Lone Canyon.

The plight was not a pleasant one to the ranger. He discerned great peril and trouble should Despard carry Inez to his mountain home. More than once the old scout had led the vigilantes to the place, only to suffer defeat. The canyon was nearly impassable when guarded by the outlaws.

Even were the girl rescued, it would be difficult to pass through the country infested by hostile Indians. Still, the scout was glad the plot now centered at Lone Canyon. Here he knew the hermit Walford lived.

The scout found that his wound, received at the onslaught on the emigrant train, while painful, was by no means serious. He lay securely hidden by the hay and straw in the bottom of the wagon, yet he could see his enemies on the seat and behind the wagon.

The course of the outlaws during the morning was over a prairie interspersed with trees. Toward evening they diverged to the mountains, entered Lone Canyon, and then followed the Pueblo River through the hills. It was just about dusk when the cavalcade halted at a place well known to the scout. As he peered from his covert he knew that he was in the vicinity of one of the hardest taverns in the territory. It was known as "Lone Canyon Tavern," and was kept by a man named Ditmar, who, surrounded by fugitives from justice and criminals, safely defied the law in this isolated place.

The entire party had stopped here, and their noisy tones and clinking glasses could be heard from the bar-room a few minutes later.

The scout was about to shift his pained, cramped position, and even meditated taking advantage of the gathering dusk to escape from the wagon, when he paused and listened.

Two men were passing the wagon and going toward the saloon. They were conversing, and he heard one of them say:

"I understand Despard is going to divide and leave the business."

"Yes, when we get up to the den," responded the other.

"There's considerable plunder to divide."

"I should say so. He got a lot from the emigrant wagons."

"In gold?"

"Clear money; yes."

"Where is it?"

"Maybe it's in this wagon."

"Not likely."

"Why not?"

"They don't leave gold lying around loose."

One of the men, as if impelled by some whimsical curiosity, had placed his hand over the backboard of the wagon. Groping among the hay, he uttered a startled ejaculation.

"Hello!"

"What is it?" asked his companion.

"There's some one in here."

"In the wagon?"

"Yes."

"Who is it?"

"Dunno, but it's some one."

"Let's have him out."

"No. That's Danton's business. I wonder if he knows who it is?"

"May be a friend of his. We'll tell him about it, anyway."

The scout foresaw that his discovery was only a question of time. He glanced toward the tavern and observed that several of the outlaws were hanging outside the place in full sight of the wagon.

"If I could only start up the horses around the ledge of rocks there, I would be out of range and could escape," he thought.

Ranger Ralph chirruped to the horses, and they instantly started. He had miscalculated what would occur, however.

The moment they turned the ledge of rocks the road led by a steep descent to the river. Unguided, and borne forward by the impetus of the wagon, the horses dashed down this declivitous pathway.

The scout sprang to his feet and started for the seat. A swing of the vehicle dashed him against its sides, and then he gave up all for lost; for the wagon pitched from side to side, lurched forward, fell over the side of the cliff, and went tumbling to the rocky bed of the river, sheer forty feet below.

The startled outlaws hurried after the wagon as they it start forward. They saw the catastrophe, and heard the horses neigh wildly in terror as they struggled in midair. Then the traces gave way. The steeds disappeared under the waters of the river.

The wagon struck the water, was submerged, and then with its living freight was borne from sight into the shadows of the canyon, down the swift current of the Pueblo River.

CHAPTER XV.

WHITE FAWN.

The smoldering camp-fire of the Modocs burned low, and the spot where the triumphant savages had fired the funereal pile a few minutes previous was silent and deserted.

At the place where Darrel Grey had been tied to the tree its charred trunk and a heap of ashes alone showed.

The least sanguine of the Indians would have sworn that their intended victim had certainly paid the full penalty of his temerity in visiting their camp.

Yet the young scout had escaped.

It was a marvelous combination of circumstances which led to his timely rescue.

He had abandoned himself to his fate, and adjudged a struggle utterly useless when the fire was lighted.

He saw the Indians disappear.

He saw the fire creep upward—a hideous, menacing serpent of flame—and gave himself up for lost.

Suddenly hope revived in his breast. His hands were loosed; he was forcibly dragged back from the tree, and he turned to greet his unexpected rescuer.

A dark, expressive face peered into his own, a pair of mournful eyes met his glance.

"White Fawn!" ejaculated Darrel, in bewilderment.

It was indeed the Indian maiden.

"Yes, it is White Fawn."

"And here? You rescued me. Ah, how can I thank you?"

"Eagle Eye forgets."

"Forgets what?"

"That he saved the life of White Fawn."

"But how came you here?"

"Because here was the Black Crow."

"Despard!" exclaimed Darrel.

"Yes, so the paleface calls him."

"He is your enemy?"

The eyes of the Indian princess flashed fiercely.

"He is, my most cruel enemy."

"Speak! What wrong has he done you?"

"Why would Eagle Eye know?"

"To avenge White Fawn's wrongs."

"You would do that?"

"Yes, for he has persecuted the friends of Eagle Eye."

"Come!"

The Indian maiden led Darrel to a spot near the river where they would not be discovered should the savages return. Then she told her simple, fateful story.

It seemed that a month previous she had been wedded at the camp of her father to the Jaguar, a chief of the peaceful Nez Perces.

The latter was to convey her to the reservation of his tribe, and left the wigwam of Shadow Snake loaded down with gold and jewels.

Dyke Despard and his men were to convoy them to their destination.

Instead, he robbed then killed the Jaguar, as White Fawn believed, and imprisoned her in the cave whence Darrel had rescued her.

Here she had been guarded by one of Despard's men until the return of the latter from Ten Spot. Then he had attempted to kill her, as has been seen.

Darrel asked the Indian girl why she did not go to her father with her story.

"Not till White Fawn is certain the Jaguar is dead, and until she has killed Black Crow," she replied, ominously.

Then she said: "White Fawn knows where Black Crow has gone."

"You do?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"To Lone Canyon."

"Is it far from here?"

"A night's journey."

"And you will guide me thither?"

"Yes."

Before an hour had passed Darrel knew that the intrepid White Fawn was a valuable and dauntless ally to his cause.

She seemed inspired with but one idea, and that was to confront the man who had wronged her so terribly.

White Fawn understood the country thoroughly, but they may slow progress. Many times they concealed themselves to avoid passing savages, and it was night when they came to the canyon where the stronghold of the bandits was located.

They skirted the gulch where the Lone Canyon tavern was situated, and descended into the wild gully beyond, that was desolate and isolated in the extreme.

The moonlight showed the river with the towering hills on either side.

"Look!" said White Fawn. "Yonder is one of the hiding places of the pale-faced renegades."

Darrel saw a dilapidated log structure which seemed to be built out from an immense cave in the mountain side.

"You think Despard is there?" he asked.

"Yes."

"And the girl?"

"Is his prisoner there, or near by. Remain here. White Fawn will soon return."

"Where are you going?" asked Darrel.

"To find out how many there are—to learn how we may reach them."

She was gone like a flash. The moments sped by and Darrel anxiously awaited her return.

He was standing on a ledge of rocks which jutted out over the river, and vainly scanned the scene for some indication of the presence of his foes.

Suddenly, to his right and inland, he saw a light flash.

He began walking toward it, clambered over a huge boulder, and was amazed to view a natural basin in the landscape which resembled an immense pit.

Its sides were almost perpendicular, and were overspread with vines and bushes.

The light moved across the open space at the bottom of this indentation. Apparently, it was a lantern carried by some person.

Darrel observed that the place was directly back of the elevation in which the log cabin was located. It was evidently a part of the abode of the bandits. As he stood regarding the lantern curiously it suddenly disappeared.

At the same moment, in leaning too far over the edge of the pit, he lost his balance and fell forward. Down, down he went, slightly breaking a very heavy fall by clutching at the vines and shrubs. He landed at the bottom of the pit, badly bruised and half stunned.

There was no way of climbing out of the place, and as he recovered his senses he endeavored to find some other outlet from his strange place of imprisonment. He finally groped his way to an opening that seemed to lead into the mountain side.

Undoubtedly, he reasoned, the man with the lantern had disappeared by this egress.

He crept along a narrow passage-way, and saw, some distance ahead, a glimmer of light. Darrel paused, as against its radiance he made out a large, cave-like apartment. Two men were standing within it.

One was Dyke Despard. The other was a man bearing a lantern in his hand.

"Well," the former asked, "is everything all right?"

"Yes, Captain."

"No spies or visitors since we left?"

"None."

"And the way of escape by the pit?"

"Is closed up until we need to use it."

"Very well. Now, then, as to your expedition down the canyon?"

"In search of the old hermit?

"Walford—yes."

Darrel started. He remembered that this was the name of the man to whom Tracey had left the fortune for Inez.

"I have located him."

"Good."

"It is about ten miles from here."

"Could you guide me there?"

"Readily."

"Is he alone?"

"Always."

"And not prepared for visitors?"

"He imagines no one knows the way to his abode."

Then we will make a visit."

"When?"

"To-morrow."

The two men left the place. Darrel followed them at a distance. Suddenly the light was shut out from his vision. A large stone seemed rolled into an aperture leading from the cave.

He approached it and peered beyond the edges. A cry of delight escaped his lips. In an underground apartment stood the object of his quest.

It was Inez Tracey, the girl he so devotedly loved.

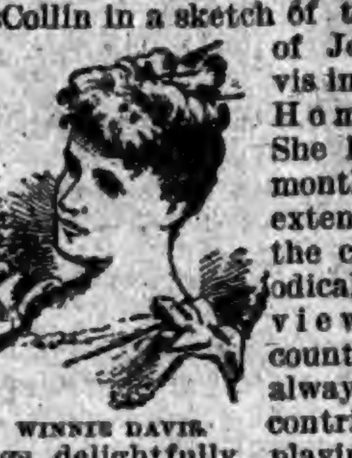
DAVIS' DAUGHTER.

She Is the Ideal Realization of Southern Maidenhood.

Miss "Winnie" Davis possesses not only the ability to make a profession of her artistic powers, but has developed also her literary powers to a practical extent, writes Alice Graham McCollin in a sketch of the daughter of Jefferson Davis in the Ladies' Home Journal. She has of late months written extensively for the current periodicals and reviews of this country, and is always a welcome contributor. She sings delightfully, playing her own accompaniments with charming simplicity. In appearance Miss Davis is even prettier than her portrait makes her. Tall, slender, fair-haired, with gray eyes of peculiar beauty, she is the ideal realization of Southern maidenhood. She has a sweet Southern voice and a manner which evidences the gentle, courteous heart beneath. Her mother bears tribute to her as "the best and dearest of daughters!" Her father when on his deathbed said that she had never disobeyed or given him pain, and without an exception every one who comes at all under her gentle refinement feels her to be a woman with

"Heart on her lips, and soul within her eyes,
Soft as her clime, and sunny as her skies."



WINNIE DAVIS.

Clever Collie.

T. Sidney Cooper, the English animal painter, says that he often made valuable studies in Cumberland, at places where Scotch droves halted with their cattle for the night. On such occasions, he often had a chance to see illustrations of an animal's intelligence, as well as of its physical perfection.

One day, when there was a pouring rain, a man consented to sit for me at the inn where I was staying. He brought his collie with him, and both of them were dripping wet; so he put off his plaid, and laid it on the floor by the dog.

I made a very successful sketch of the man, but before I had finished it, the dog grew fidgety with the wet plaid, and his master said, "Tak' it awa', mon, tak' it awa'!"

The dog took the end of it between his teeth, and dragged it out of the room.

After I had finished the drover's portrait, I asked him if he thought his dog would lie quiet for a time, as I wished to sketch him.

"Oh, yes, mon," he answered, "he'll do anything I say to him. Watch! Watch!" he called, and then "whustled" for him, as the Scotch say.

As the dog did not appear, we went together to look for him, and found him sitting before the kitchen fire, with the end of the plaid in his mouth, holding it up to dry. I expressed my admiration of his intelligence, and the master replied:

"Ah, he's a canny creature, sir! He knows a mony things, does that dog, sir. But come awa', mon; the gentleman wants to mak' your picture."

So we returned to my room, and the handsome collie sat for his portrait.

A Fatal Ring.

Round the neck of the holy virgin of Almudens, the patron saint of Madrid, for whom a fine new church is being built close to the royal palace, a very beautiful diamond ring hangs on a thin gold chain. The ring belonged to the late King Alphonso XII., and a strange history is connected with it, which may well appeal to the minds of the superstitious Spaniards. On the day of his wedding to Mercedes, the daughter of the Duke of Montpensier, the King gave the ring to the bride, who wore it till her early death. After the funeral the King gave the ring to his grandmother, Queen Christine, who died soon after. Infanta Maria del Pilar, the sister of the King, then became its possessor. She had worn it only a few days when she died. Then the ring became the property of the King once more, and he gave it to the sister of his late consort, Princess Christina, the youngest daughter of the Duke of Montpensier. Three months later the girl was dead. The King had now become aware of the unfortunate coincidences, and instead of giving it away again he himself wore the ring, till he also went to his early grave.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Don't complain when your husband wants you to stay at home with him in the evening.

Don't publish your domestic grievances abroad.

Don't scold any more than is necessary "to keep peace in the family."

Sit and Set.

The use of the words "sit" and "set" is well defined in the following example: A man, or woman either, can set a hen, although they cannot sit her, neither can they set on her, although the old hen might sit on them by the hour if they would allow. A man cannot set on the wash-stand, but he could set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object. He could sit on the dog's tail, if the dog were willing, or he might set his foot on it. But if he should set on the aforesaid tail or sit his foot there, the grammarians as well as the dog would howl. And yet, strange as it may seem, the man might set the tail aside and then sit down, and neither be assaulted by the dog nor the grammarians.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN
NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach AND Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

THE AUBURN COURIER

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY.

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....DECEMBER, 31, 1891.

DEMOCRATS and speaker Crisp are all right, and in harmony. Republican papers and a few democratic ones will do well to make a note of this.

THE prisoners at Michigan City, were given a big dinner on Christmas, all had two hours lay off. The new warden, Mr. French, is a newspaper man, and knows how to take men on their weak points.

COMMITTEES as made up by Speaker Crisp, are on our second page. Judge McClellan gets an important chairmanship, the first time our district ever had one. An article that we had not time to get in this week, will appear next.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

To the Democrats of Indiana:

The Democratic State Convention of 1890 directed the formation of a new State Committee in the month of January, 1892, and every two years thereafter.

The Democrats of each county are directed to meet in mass convention at the county seat of each county at 1 o'clock p. m., on Saturday, January 2, 1892.

Each county convention shall select delegates to the district conventions hereinafter named in the ratio of one delegate for every two hundred votes (and for any fraction of more than one hundred votes) cast in said county for Claude Mathews, Secretary of State, at the November election, 1890.

On Friday the 8th day of January, 1892, at 1 o'clock, p. m., the delegates selected for this, the Twelfth congressional district shall meet in Fort Wayne, and shall proceed to select, by a vote of the majority of said delegates, a member of the State Committee for such district.

The chairman and secretary of each district meeting shall forthwith certify to the secretary of the State Committee the names of the persons selected as members of the State Committee for such district.

On the 20th day of January, 1892, the State Committee so selecte will meet at the committee rooms in Indianapolis to elect officers and proceed with the work of organization.

By order of the Democratic State Committee.

CHAS. L. JEWETT, Chairman.
JOS. L. REILEY, Secretary.

From the above notice it will be seen that DeKalb County is entitled to 15 delegates to be sent to the district meeting to be held at Ft Wayne, Jan. 8. We hope to see a good turn out of representative democrats from over the county, so that good men may be chosen to act as delegates. The meeting will probably be at the Nicky & Gandy hall.

Notice.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to us will please call and settle the same by Jan. 1, 1892.

MRS. M. JONES & SON.

Indianians on Committees.

Speaker Crisp has announced his committees for this congress, and we give here the way the members from Indiana were fixed:

Bynum—Judiciary, eleventh census.
Shively—Ways and means.
Cooper—Mines and mining.
Martin—Invalid pensions (chairman,)
Brookshire—Revision of laws.
Patton—Mississippi improvement, military affairs.
Bretz—Irrigation of arid lands, education,

Johnson—Elections, enrolled bills.
Waugh—Agriculture, pensions. revision of laws.
Parrett—Pensions, territories.
McClellan—Election of president and vice-president, expenditures of the navy department (chairman.)
Brown—Elections.

From this list it will be seen that Indiana has fared very well at the hands of the new speaker, as well at least as she would, had any other man been given the place.

THE PRINCE OF AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS WORLD'S 1893
FAIR

The Saturday Edition —OF— The Chicago Herald

Is a handsome sixteen-page weekly newspaper, filled with the most entertaining reading that brilliant minds, well trained in every department of literature, can produce. It has the advantage of the fast-mail service and is delivered at the majority of postoffices on day of publication.

THE CHICAGO HERALD is the foremost journalistic champion of Western interests, and, believing that these are assailed by the protective tariff, it is an uncompromising opponent of a system that takes from the many to enrich the few. THE HERALD is broadly and progressively democratic in politics, but it is bound to no party, save as that party stands for principle and justice. Believing that the safety of the republic now demands a return to constitutional methods, to economy in administration, to the obliteration of war passions and to the summary defeat of the powerful interests that have allied themselves with the leaders of the republican party for the purpose of promoting selfish interests at the expense of the whole people, THE HERALD favors return of the democracy to power and will labor intelligently to that end.

A special feature of THE SATURDAY EDITION OF THE HERALD, and one to which much space is devoted, is the weekly record of the progress of the World's Fair, with fine illustrations. This alone makes it indispensable to those who intend to visit the fair, and to those who do not a comprehensive description will be the next best thing.

In addition to this THE SATURDAY EDITION OF THE HERALD contains a synopsis of the news of the week, full Market Reports, a Household Department, Completed Stories by popular authors, Book Reviews, "Gossip of the Stage," Base Ball, Turf and Athletic Sports, and last, but by no means least, the news of the world attractively presented and truthfully told. No better investment than a year's subscription can be made.

Elsie and Gertie Caruth, received a fine piano for a Christmas present.

Mrs. Mary Dickinson has returned from a visit with friends at Waterloo.

Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. Most people need to use it.

Mrs. Emily Dills and daughter Kitty, are in Ohio visiting friends at Findlay and Plymouth.

Subscriptions will be received for any periodical published in any country at City Book store. 50-2

Mrs. C. C. Shaffer went to Albion Friday to remain over Sunday, with the family of her son, Elza.

Mrs. E. E. Zent has been quite sick, so much so that her husband has been called home from Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy, of Albion, Michigan, were here over the holidays visiting their son Rev. Geo. Wade Healy.

See the fine holiday goods in Kiblinger's window. Then go inside and get a share of them. Nothing so nice.

The "Little Salesman" sells like hot cakes as do all the fine cigars made by Kessler Brothers in Auburn. Call for one.

Schaab & Bros. will close their store on New Years day from 3 to 7 p. m. All their friends are requested to make a note of this.

S. M. High managed to get into town Saturday, by driving part way, and then "walking in afoot." A good many others walked in "entire."

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hamilton and son of Butler, and C. L. Hamilton of the Kiblinger hardware, ate Christmas dinner with E. D. Beadle and wife.

G. W. Lewis was up here last week to put in Christmas with Cook Ford's family. He left a Christmas present for the COURIER for which he has thanks.

O. J. Swartz and wife came down from Coldwater, Mich., for a visit over Sunday. They report business up that way good, and we are glad to know they are prospering.

When you call for a cigar, remember to ask for the make of Kessler Brothers in Auburn, the Young America, Bill Head, K. & B. and the Little Salesman. All are popular with smokers.

Willard Pepple talks of going to Mexico soon to join his brother Samuel in that far off land. He has had experience in railroading, and as Sam. is an engineer on one of the Mexican railways, we suppose Willard will get a job with him.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Work came up from Ft. Wayne last week on a sort of a holiday trip. They attended Prof. F. M. Merica's wedding reception and the silver wedding of P. K. David, at Garrett, and spent Sunday in Auburn the guests of W. H. Keeran and wife.

A. B. Imus and wife have moved from DeSmet to Huron, South Dakota. He writes that though Huron did not get the state capital, "she got us for citizens." Well, that is some consolation anyhow. Huron is the nicest location for an inland city we ever saw, and we hope our friends will find it a pleasant home.

George Picker of Coffeyville, Kansas, came back for a holiday visit to the old home last week. He is looking well and we are glad to say is prospering. He resides near the town on a good farm, but follows his trade in town. He has had good crops, and a man can learn the exact state of things down there, by a good talk with him.

Christmas trees were abundant and beautiful this year. At the M. E. church there was a fine one, and a good time, and everyone went home happy. The Lutheran church also observed the season in this pleasant way. On Friday evening, the German Lutherans had theirs and we believe the other churches all observed Christmas in some way.

Rare music, both vocal and instrumental, and an elocutionist of the highest talent—it will be the best we have had. Opera House Jan. 6, under the auspices of the Junior class in our High school. Proceeds go to help the High school library. No citizen of Auburn can refuse to help so worthy a cause, especially as we will be so well paid in good music and recitations.

The Christmas exercises at the Presbyterian church last Thursday evening were very fine, the best we think they ever had. The pieces spoken and sung were selected with good taste and finely rendered. There was not much that could have been improved. The order was good, and the gifts were abundant and suitable. Many received valuable gifts from parents or friends, but most of this feature was a Sunday school and class affair. Pupils gave to teachers and teachers to pupils, and then there was a big snowball filled with oranges and packages of candy to be distributed to all. The officers, teachers and pupils, all deserve great credit.

We know they will have a most enjoyable meeting.

The pastor of the Lutheran church was greatly remembered by his Sabbath school class with a handsome set of oak chairs as a Christmas present. Class No. 4. can feel assured that it was highly appreciated by their unworthy teacher. Mortal tongue cannot express in words the gratitude of our hearts toward the class for this valuable and most useful present. It seems almost as though it was more than we deserved. These things cheer up the heart and life of a pastor. My class can rest assured that this act of kindness will not be forgotten and I trust I shall in the future be able to return the compliment.

Frank Borst had a peculiarly nice Christmas present, a case of celery sent by his father, in Cleveland, Ohio. The latter has a big celery farm near the city and the case sent is the nicest we have seen. Frank was also generous enough to divide his good fortune with his neighbors.

We have received from James A. Case, assistant statistician at Washington, an advance copy of the map used by the Interstate commerce commission, in which the states are grouped together in sets, for the convenience of that body. It certainly appears as if it would be very convenient.

John Shugers was off on a trip to Vincennes, Ind., and Danville, Ill., last week as well as to other places in that section. On coming home, he found two cousins, Frank and Henry Shugers visiting his people at the home here. They reside in Paulding Co. Ohio, and report that county in prosperous condition.

The concert at Library Hall last evening was attended by a large audience, a majority being more than appreciative and not a few were overly demonstrative. The entire company is composed of artists only. Mr. Van Osten's double Euphonium fantasia elicited roars of applause and was at once a rich and novel performance.—Times-Democrat, N. O.

A large assortment of jewelry, spectacles, pocket knives, shears, razors, pocket books, vases, toys, notions and novelties too numerous to mention, will be sold in the next few weeks at the City Book Store regardless of cost. There are many things that will make useful and beautiful presents for the holidays and it will pay anyone to examine. 51-53

Addie Lamport, daughter of Rev. H. M. Lamport now in Kendallville, reached here Monday afternoon to the great surprise and boundless delight of her little friends, Nellie and Delia Richards, as well as of older friends, for we were all all glad to see her. We should have said her father and Willie came along. Mr. L. had a day of greeting with the friends here, and the children will stay several days.

HATS! HATS!! And plenty of them. Ladies you who are not yet supplied, come and see them at once, and if you must be still more economical, bring your old trimming and have one trimmed for almost nothing. All trimmed hats sold one third off, also untrimmed. Come and see them. Children's hats a specialty. We know we can please you.

He claims he did a big lot of extra work on the basement not called for in the contract. It will be a hard fight.

EVERY man has a weak side. Every wise man knows where it is, and will be sure to keep a double guard there.

THE reading of the Congressional Record in the schools is calculated to teach the young idea to shoot—at the teacher.

MILWAUKEE'S bane and antidote are both before her. The enlargement of her breweries is followed promptly by the establishment of a Keeley Club.

DYNAMITE in the hand of spiteful people is becoming too much of a factor in our civilization, and this is a rather inopportune moment to ask for the pardon of Anarchist Neebe. The best and safest place for him is in the Penitentiary.

THE New York World does not like the idea of sending the old Van Rensselaer manor-house to Chicago. If it would assuage the poignancy of the World's regret at parting with this specimen of antiquated architecture Chicago might be able to send New York the Postoffice building in return.

THE man who makes money on a speculation has as disastrous an effect on the community as the man who wins a lottery prize. Every honest, hard-working man is ready to throw down his tools, and ready to join his fortunes to those of the fellows who loaf while waiting for stocks to rise and the lottery drawing to occur.

IF you are in the habit of carrying a revolver, quit it. This is not an age when innocent people are called upon to defend their lives every few moments. A great many men are behind the bars in the Penitentiary who would not be there if they had not carried a revolver around with them, which they used in a moment of drunkenness or anger.

PERSONS in health and desiring to continue so should at all times be cheerful and happy, and those who are sick should have their attention drawn as much as possible from themselves. It is by their faith that men are saved, and also by their faith they die. If a man wills not to die, he can often live in spite of disease; and if he has little or no attraction to live, he will slip away as easily as a child falls asleep.

WHEN a man finds out that he can never be a social success as an after-dinner speaker, that he can't dance, and that his singing is not generally admired, he begins to learn all sorts of tricks at cards. So great is a woman's admiration for a man who can make cards disappear in the air that the orator, the dances, and the singer are all envying him before the evening is over.

IF the Czar of Russia would disband his army, take the money required to support it and build that contemplated railroad 5,000 miles in length, and extending to the extreme eastern border of his dominion, he would stamp himself a greater monarch than Peter the First. He would lose nothing by it, either, for the rest of Europe, from very shame, would leave him undisturbed in the work.

THERE is a capacity in every man and woman, though it may often lie latent, to draw happiness from life in its various phases; and his or her entire welfare depends very largely upon the degree to which this power exists. To lose faith in it is to be blown about at the mercy of the winds and waves of life, and at last to be carried away by its current: but to feel it and exert it is to guide the helm and conquer the storm, and bring the boat successfully into port. The man who does this is not the mere pleasure-seeker.

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

Readers of the daily papers were recently shocked to hear of the asphyxiation at Chicago of two brothers named Fitzsimmons, who came from Buffalo. Many words of sympathy for the unfortunates were spoken. But now comes the news that the Fitzsimmons boys of Buffalo were bad men from Bitter Creek, and the only object of their sojourn in Chicago was to escape the clutches of the Buffalo police, who wanted them for robbing and nearly killing a prominent citizen.

THE large "cat mound" near Chillicothe, Ohio, which the Government has opened for relics to be displayed at the World's Fair, is contributing a rich historical collection of copper utensils and arms which may lead to more reliable conclusions as to the people who left these mysterious monuments in the Ohio Valley. Many of the implements found show an artistic workmanship among the mound builders which is superior to anything yet found in this part of America. It will be one of the most interesting historical collections at the World's Fair and may indicate to scholars that the Mississippi valley is one of the oldest homes of civilization rather than the newest.

THE terrible results from the visit of a crazy crank to the office of Russell Sage raises anew the question whether greater care is not requisite in regulating the sale of high explosives. We have stringent laws as to the sale and storage of gunpowder and kerosene oil and the dispensing of poisons. But the danger locked up in all these substances combined is not one tithe of that stored in the quantity of dynamite which almost any one can procure without any showing as to the use intended to be made of it. Clearly greater precautions are necessary in this regard.

THE Massachusetts Board of Managers to the Columbian Exposition has selected the old John Hancock mansion as its design for the State's house, with a garden of old-fashioned foliage in front, trees in the background, and a colonial fence around it. It will be constructed of Massachusetts granite and furnished after the style of a stately colonial mansion. It is further proposed to adorn its walls with portraits of the long line of Massachusetts' worthies, beginning with Winthrop and Endicott and ending with Garrison and Phillips, and with maps showing the growth of the State and its cities. This scheme, combined with the great educational exhibit proposed by the State, will give Massachusetts a prominent place in the State's representation at the Fair.

A NUMBER of New England country folk have been met lately by a demand for $15, being in each case the amount of a subscription to a book purporting to be a local family history of this or that neighborhood. The farmer when approached has to acknowledge the genuineness of his signature, and has a hazy recollection of a smooth tongued agent who called one day and questioned him about his business, his father and mother, and so forth, and got him to give an order for the book for which he is now called upon to pay. He is consoled by seeing in print a sketch after the following tenor: "Mr. Jehosophat Jones, is an old and respected resident of Woodchuck Corners. He has represented his town as poundkeeper for several years, and by close attention to business has accumulated a snug competence. Mr. Jones is the son of the late Jeremiah Jones, of Woodchuck Corners." The agent convinces him that this is cheap fame at $15, and that, as they have his signature, he must pay anyway. So, with a heavy heart, he turns over the $15. Afterward he turns over the leaves of the book to find that his neighbor Smith and that other man up the road, to whom he has not spoken in ten years, have equally good notices, and that the author of the work, like the sun, has beamed on the just and the unjust with complete impartiality—for $15. Then he mentally, and perhaps audibly, concludes that, after all, there is such a thing as paying too high a price for fame.

REPORTS from Europe and from various cities in this country indicate that la grippe is once more abroad and is doing considerable injury. It is not at all unlikely that what is too hastily called la grippe is merely the inevitable "cold" that afflicts everybody in muddy and muggy weather. It has been well established by science that atmospheric conditions materially affect the lungs. There is a cutler's consumption caused by inhaling metallic powder. There is masons' and quarryman's catarrh caused by breathing particles of limestone and chalk. In like manner there must be a smoke influenza everywhere so long as soft coal is suffered to pollute the air, not only with murky vapor but with soot that clogs the breathing apparatus and lodges its deposits in the throat and lungs. In long continued dry weather there is also a dust influenza, inflammation of the breathing apparatus by earthly atoms that infest the atmosphere. La grippe has never been fully explained. It was evidently epidemic and contagious. Influenza is epidemic in such weather as this, but is not dangerous. There is no need of panic about it. A few grains of quinine, avoidance of overheating drinks that insure subsequent chill, and recourse to sleep earlier than usual will speedily carry off its depression, provided people have sense enough not to get their feet wet in the dirty streets or to sit in draughts of cold air while the steam heater is doing its best to stew them. The prevailing mild temperature lures the unwary into going out without the extra covering previously made necessary by winter cold. If la grippe get the upper hand again its temporary rule will be due to individual carelessness.

Valuable Invention.

A new safety device for clearing obstructions from the track in front of electric cars, and especially for saving the life of any person whom the cars may run down, was tested in Boston last week. The fender, as it is called, consists of a triangular folding steel frame over which is stretched a stout rope netting. It is attached to the front platform and is the width of the car. When an obstruction is seen on the track the motorman releases the fender, which opens and spreads the net in front of the car, with the bottom of the frame about nine inches above the track, and so arranged as easily to catch and throw into the net any person standing on the track, no matter at what speed the car may be running. In the case of a person lying on the track or a child that the fender might pass over a projecting bar is struck and a big metal scoop is released and drops on the track in front of the wheels. This would pick up any object whatever, but not so tenderly as the net. A dummy of straw and sand was used in the tests and the results were highly satisfactory to the railroad men present. The device is equally good for cable cars.

COMPARING THE COST.

PRODUCING DRESS GOODS HERE AND ABROAD.

The Tin-Plate Industry Fraud May Now Be Exposed—Manufacturers Unite in a Trust to Suppress Competition in the Home Market—Tariff Shot.

Facts to Consider.

When Mr. Schoenhof was the United States Consul at Tunstall, England, he made a study of the comparative costs of producing dress goods in England and the United States. He was specially fitted for this work, having himself been engaged as a manufacture of textiles. Mr. Schoenhof shows clearly in the following that with free wool we can easily compete with England. He says:

"In dress goods a change seems to be taking place which favors the softer goods again, the same as in men's wear, against cassimeres, which had a run for quite a number of years. The trouble in dress goods is that one can seldom say from one season to another what class of goods will be in demand. Hence the domestic manufacturer with his limited market is always tossed about between the rocks of overproductions and of inability to supply the goods just in demand. In this the foreign manufacturer has an advantage. He originates fashions and designs for America as well as the rest of the world. He can turn his looms with ease and more readily than our manufacturers, partly because he works on a smaller and more scattered basis (in Germany and France a very large number of hand looms are still in operation) than our big concerns, and partly because he has the world's nations as his customers and is, therefore, not engaged with his entire force on one and the same class or style of goods. Importations will, for these reasons, always go on, whether we continue advancing the tariff or not, and the bulk will continue to be made here after increase or reduction of tariffs. Whether with a profit or without depends entirely on whether we happen to hit the thing in demand or not. That the labor cost plays no great part in this can be seen from a statement of comparative cost relating to dress goods of carded wool, so-called sackings. These goods are very extensively manufactured, and at present seem to have a run. They are of the flannel kind, and what applies to them in the manufacturing and cost would be applicable to that class of goods, too. In a slightly modified form this applies also to stripes or plaids. The principal difference here would be that the former are dyed in the piece, the latter in the yarn. But even this is an infinitesimal consideration in cost, as will be seen further on. The shuttle, of course, carries with equal speed and equal good will, whether freighted with colored yarn or yarn in the gray.

The goods in America are made from the wool up, carded spun, woven, dyed and finished in the mill. The English goods to which the comparison relates are made complete in the mill, except the dyeing and finishing, which is done by outside parties. I found the relations to stand thus:

Comparison of cost of 6-4 sackings, 6¾ ounces to the yard, calculated on the pound basis in:

	—Massachusetts.—			—England.—
	Labor,	Supplies, cents,	Total, cents.	Labor, cents.	Supplies, cents.	Total, cents.
Scouring, carding and spinning	4.8	1.14	5.9	4.	1.5	5.5
Weaving, reaming, burling, etc	9.62	.85	10.47	7.4	....	7.4
Dyeing	.8	1.1	1.9	....	....	8.
Fil'i'g and finish'ng	2.6	....	2.6	....	....	4.
Charges, etc	....	....	11.4	....	....	13.
Total cts.			32.27			37.9
Wool			70.			32.
Total			$1.0227			69.9

The general cost outside of the wool was stated by the manufacturer as being covered by 33 cents a pound. In England the dyeing and finishing is higher, being done outside. The American dyeing cost has to be corrected, being higher than given in my report on these dress goods. I intimated then that some corrections might be necessary. What stands for the pound ought to stand for the yard price, which would make the dyeing cost in all colors, except navy and myrtle, to be 4.6 cents the pound, dress goods. Allowing for this difference there is still sufficient margin in the general cost to make American flannels and carded wool dress goods independent of foreign competition, were there no tariff whatever. The American weaver gets 2.65 cents per yard of these goods, turns out about 300 yards a week, and earns accordingly $7.95. The English weaver gets 7s 8d per piece of seventy-two yards, 2.56 cents per yard, turns out 105 yards on an average, and earns $2.71.

Both are paid by the piece at nearly the same rate. The American operator handles two looms, works harder and longer hours. The Yorkshire girls handle one loom and are satisfied with earning 12 shillings a week. Higher than 15 shillings their ambition seldom goes. This is the alpha and the omega, the question and the answer, in the problem of to day. This class of goods needs nothing so much as free wool to make it exportable. Manufacturers know this very well, and have been very outspoken at times about it. How could it be otherwise? The general cost of production, aside from wool, is somewhat below the foreign cost, but the wool costs more than twice as much as abroad. Regarding the wool question in general an American manufacturer and commission merchant writes me:

"English goods are invariably made out of a blend, and in this blend there are all the way from five to twenty different qualities of wool, each of which is associated with it, to give some desirable quality to the goods, either of texture, finish or price." "I am obliged nearly every week," he further states, "to refuse profitable contracts to make goods which would occupy considerable quantities of American machinery, simply because the raw stock and the experience of handling the same do not exist in this country. The importation of the former is prohibited by the tariff, and the tariff is likewise responsible for our inexperience in handling certain raw stocks, which have been excluded from this market for upwards of twenty-five years."

Here we have the whole difficulty. We have neither the experience in handling raw stocks, nor have we the stocks of wool required for the blending, because they have been excluded from the market for upwards of twenty-five years. Otherwise we could employ our cheap labor and working methods very profitably on orders now going constantly to foreign countries on account of the absence of these necessary requirements.

Cheaper to Foreigners.

Last week we showed how the axe manufactures united in a trust to suppress competition in the "home market, and how it sells axes and other tools at less prices abroad, and thus prevents any over-supply in the home market from depressing prices here.

The history of the National Saw Co., or as popularly known the Saw Trust, is similar to that of the Axe Trust. The principal members of the "Saw Trust" are: The Wheeler, Madden & Clemson Mfg. Co., of Middletown, N. Y.; The Woodrough & McParlin Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio: The Woodrough & Clemson Co., of Boston, Mass., and The Monhagen Steel Co., of Middletown, N. Y.

The trust has its main office in Reade street, New York. To home dealers it sends out a catalogue and a discount sheet, but furnishes exporters and foreign buyers with quite a different one. It shows even greater favor to foreign buyers than does the Axe Trust. A few illustrations will be sufficient to show this.

The lowest price at which the trust sell at wholesale their back champion tooth cross-cut saws in the United States is 26 to 28 cents per foot. The price quoted to foreign buyers for the same saw is 20 cents per foot, or over 25 per cent. less. Extra thick back saws are quoted to the home trade at 29 to 31 cents per foot, but to the foreign trade at only 22 cents per foot, or 26 per cent. below the home price.

The trust offers to the foreign trade, at equally advantageous prices, its circular, hand, panel and rip saws and saw tools. High tariffs are enacted to keep out foreign competition in the home market, and thus give domestic manufacturers absolute control over production and prices. What is more natural then than that manufacturers should form combinations to exact from home consumers all that the tariff allows?

The Tin Plate Industry.

Colonel Ira Ayer, special agent appointed by Secretary of the Treasury Foster to collect statistics on tin plate, has begun sending out requests for information on that subject.

He has recommended to the Treasury a system of reports to be made quarterly. Colonel Ayer explained that this work was being done in order that the Government might have information on which to act on that provision of the McKinley law which provides that on and after October 1, 1897, tin-plates and terne-plates lighter in weight than sixty-three pounds per 100 square feet shall be admitted free of duty, unless it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the President (who shall thereupon by proclamation make known the fact) that the aggregate quantity of such plate, lighter than sixty three pounds per 100 square feet produced in the United States during either of the six years next preceding June 30, 1897, has equaled one third of the amount of such plates imported and entered for consumption during any fiscal year after the passage of this act and prior to said Oct. 1, 1897, provided that the amount of such plates manufactured into articles exported and upon which a drawback shall be paid shall not be included in ascertaining the amount of such importations.

The statistics which Colonel Ayer is after include points on which to settle all the questions which may be raised under this section. He has recommended to the department for adoption a system of reports which prescribe that the forms of invoice shall embrace the brand, number of boxes, size, number of sheets per box, weight of box, total weight, quantity lighter than sixty-three pounds per 100 square feet and sixty-three pounds and over per 100 square feet. Statement from all the rolling mills showing the names of the manufacturers to whom sheet iron and steel have been sold will be asked for. The stamping companies will then be asked to make affidavits as to the amounts which have been stamped into articles and afterward tinned or terne-plated.

Mr. Ayer said lately that he had received reports from the "Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association of America," which gave the names of concerns engaged in making tinned plate and those which are preparing to do so.

"Will these reports be used in making the official statement to the Goverment?" he was asked.

"No, they will not," he said. "In making the report to the Treasury nothing will be considered except the sworn statements of the parties making the goods."

The list of concerns counted by the association as engaged in the "tin-plate industry" makes an imposing array—on paper. It includes twenty-three firms. An examination of this list, however, shows that the greater proportion are still doing a business in "futures." The total capacity of these plants, which are to be completed "soon" or which "propose to make tinned plates" is put down by the association at 300,000 boxes a week, which is regarded as a very comfortable figure by those whose enthusiasm on the subject has led them to earn the reputation of "tin plate liars." Closer examination of this same summary of the association shows that the statement is made that only five of the twenty-three concerns are actually making tinned or terne plates. These five on their own showing, have a capacity of 3,150 boxes per week, which is said to be barely enough for samples for use in the trade.—St. Louis Republic.

Tariff Shot.

When the McKinleyites claim that workmen in the textile industries in the United States receive higher wages than are paid in England, they confuse wages paid according to the amount of work done with earnings. No one doubts but that weavers and spinners in factories in the United States earn more than similar workmen abroad. This is because they work faster and accomplish more. That weavers are paid a higher price per yard in the United States than in England is untrue.

The price paid for weaving 6-4 sackings, 6¾ ounces to the yard, in Massachusetts, is 2.65 cents per yard, or,

[redacted]

In England a weaver is paid 2.56 cents, or [redacted] per yard for the same class of goods.

The American weaver turns out 300 yards per week, and earns $7.95 weekly.

[redacted]

On the other hand the English weaver turns out only 105 yards per week, and earns $2.71, or [redacted]

While the American weaver gets only 3½ per cent. more per yard, he earns each week over 190 per cent. more than his English competitor.

PRICES current in the Boston wool market last week contain matter for reflection for those deluded people who look upon McKinley as the friend and benefactor of the American sheep. In spite of the increased protective duties Ohio wools were 1⅛ cents to 3⅛ cents less by the pound than at the corresponding dates last year. Ohio XX wool is 30 cents a pound now against 33½ cents a pound at the corresponding time last year. Ohio delaines sold last week at 34½ cents a pound; the same wool sold last December at 36 cents, a decline of 1½ cents since McKinley undertook to regulate the blessings of Providence with his protective tariff panacea. Michigan clothing wool sold last week at 34½ cents against 36½ cents last year, a loss of 2 cents a pound, while Michigan X wool shows a decline of 2½ cents—from 29 cents last year to 26½ cents now. The demand for Ohio wool is reported dull, while the foreign wool markets seem to have an upward tendency. This reversal of what the McKinleyites expected to result from the increased duties may be partly explained by the fact that American wools are useless in many kinds of goods unless mixed with foreign wools. Whatever the cause it is hard to see how McKinley can look an Ohio sheep in the face.—St. Louis Republic.

THERE are an astonishing number of people in this world who had to live 100 years before anyone ever heard of them.

DURING a ball in the City Hall at English, there occurred a free fight in which all the males and many of the females took an active part. The dance, of course, broke up prematurely.

A novel wedding was that of John Manning and Miss Maggie Swope, which occurred in the show window of a dry goods store at Peru, Ind., the merchants paying the minister and furnishing a nice supper, which was eaten in the window and witnessed by fully a thousand people. THE toll-pikes in Delaware County are having a tough time of it, and recently several of them have been presented to the County Commissioners by dissatisfied stockholders. The farmers in many instances refuse to pay the fee, and several lawsuits have ensued. The other evening four farmers, John and Samuel Baell, Nelson Adams, and John McClean, were going to Muncie on the Granville pike. A toll-gate was pulled down and locked on them for refusing to pay the 3-cent fare. Samuel Baell hitched his team to the gate, pulled it down, and proceeded to Muncie.

Not Wholly Complimentary.

A certain Mrs. Malaprop, who lives in a large Eastern city, is noted for her skill in unconsciously embarrassing other people, while she herself remains perfectly at ease. Not long ago she was introduced to two sisters, young ladies who had long been known to her by name, though she had never met them.

"Now, my dears," she said, addressing them collectively, with her usual bland smile, and regarding them earnestly through her glasses, "I have often heard of the bright and the handsome Miss Ratcliffe. Now, I am so glad to meet you both, and I want you to tell me at once which of you is the bright and which the handsome one!"

On another occasion she was dining with her nephew and his young wife, who had just set up housekeeping. The dinner did not go off quite so smoothly as the young couple had hoped, and the cooking was by no means perfect. The hostess unwisely began to murmur apologies, and her husband joined in, half-laughing, with references to his wife's youth and inexperience.

"Don't say another word, my dear children," interrupted their kind-hearted guest. "I can assure you I've eaten a great deal worse dinners than this in the course of my life; a great deal worse. Yes," she added, meditatively, "I've eaten some pretty bad dinners, you may be sure!"

No Mean Foot.

A reporter saw a shoe at the store of the Cowles Mercantile Company this morning, made for a member of the fair sex, that for size caps the climax. The shoe is No. 23 and measures sixteen inches in length. Now, kind reader, don't jump at the conclusion that this is merely a ballroom slipper belonging to some Butler young lady. It isn't. Neither was it manufactured for Sam Oldham's best girl—in fact, for none of the fair daughters of our favored city. The shoe was made for the famed Miss Ella Ewing of Fairmount, Mo., who is only 18 years old and whose weight is 325 pounds. Her height is 7 feet and 10 inches, and she is said to be a robust sample of our Missouri maidens.—Rich Hill (Mo.) Review.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Slight Mistake.

A noted English bishop had for years nursed the fear that he would some day become paralyzed. On one occasion, at a dinner, he suddenly interrupted the guests at table by exclaiming that his worst fears had been realized at last; that he was paralysed in his right leg; that he had been pinching his thigh for some moments, and was unable to detect the slightest feeling. A lady sitting next to him assured him that he was mistaken, for it was her leg he had been pinching instead of his, the silk of the lady's dress being difficult to detect from the silk of the bishop's robe. He was cured.

Mrs. Scrimp's Gardening.

Old Friend—Did you have much of a garden this year?

Mrs. Scrimp (of Scrimpville)—No, it didn't amount to much. In the spring I gave a grand garden digging tournament, the young man who dug the most to have the pick of the girls for the evening, and it worked very well, but it cost me 'most two dollars for refreshments. Then I had a planting bee, and that wasn't so expensive, only the planting wasn't half done. Later on I tried to get up a weeding festival, but somehow the young folks sort o' lost interest, and I gave up gardening in disgust.—New York Weekly.

TURNER valued one of the pictures painted by him so highly that he always declared that he would be wrapped in it when he was buried. One day, he asked Chantrey, the sculptor, if, as his executor, he would carry out his wishes on that point. "No doubt," he bluntly answered. "I shall bury you rolled up in your picture, if it is one of the conditions of your will; and take you up the next day and unroll you."

THE tomato was originally supposed to have a peculiar effect upon the spleen—to make sour people of lovely disposition—and for this reason it was known to the ancient Spaniards as the love apple, by which name it is still known in many English speaking countries. The word tomato is derived from the original Latin word amo, to love, although we use it now as a Spanish derivative, tomato being a Spanish expression.

"August Flower"

What is It For?

This is the query perpetually on your little boy's lips. And he is no worse than the bigger, older, balder-headed boys. Life is an interrogation point. "What is it for?" we continually cry from the cradle to the grave. So with this little introductory sermon we turn and ask: "What is AUGUST FLOWER FOR?" As easily answered as asked: It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this; but this brimful. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. Twenty years ago it started in a small country town. To-day it has an honored place in every city and country store, possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country and sells everywhere. Why is this? The reason is as simple as a child's thought. It is honest, does one thing, and does it right along—it cures Dyspepsia.

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog.

The Road and Special Road Tax are included in the first installment. The Poll and Dog Tax are divided equally between the two installments.

Taxes of 1891 are due the first day of January, 1892, and may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment must be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1862; the second installment on or before the first Monday in November, 1892. If the first installment is not paid when due both installments become delinquent. Ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue, by distress and sale of personal property.

The treasurer will not be responsible for the penalty and charges on delinquent taxes resulting from any omission of the person paying, to state definitely on what property, in whose name, and in what township or corporation it was assessed.

Persons owing delinquent taxes should pay them at once. The law is of such a character that there is no option left to the Treasurer but to enforce the collection of the delinquent taxes, however much he may regret to collect the same by the sale of property.

"The owner of property on the first day of April each year, shall be liable for the taxes of that year. The purchaser of property on the first day of April shall be considered the owner on that day."

Examine your receipts before leaving the office and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes, will occur on the second Monday in February, 1892.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days. We have 6,000 receipts to make and all can not be made the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipts will be made out for any party until they are ready to pay.

Assignees, Guardians, Administrators and others who pay taxes on property in trust, and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as individual estates, etc., are earnestly requested to settle such taxes before the last few days, as it requires considerable time to make the divisions and and separate receipts therefor. As the treasurer cannot know the location of each person's property, tax payers should designate the property on which they wish to pay taxes, and see that all property is specified on their receipts. If they have land in more than one township or town, or desire to pay taxes on lands not in their name, call the Treasurers attention to the matter.

REUBEN SAWVEL, Treasurer.

Royal Baking Powder Has no Equal.

The Royal Baking Powder will make sweeter, lighter, finer-flavored and more wholesome bread, biscuit and cake than any other leavening agent. It is of higher strength, and therefore goes further in work and is more economical. All government and scientific tests go to show this. Royal Baking Powder as a leavening agent is absolutely without an equal.

RUSH MEDICAL COLLEGE, CHICAGO.

"As the result of my tests I find the Royal Baking Powder superior to all the others in every respect. It is entirely free from all adulteration and unwholesome impurity, and in baking it gives off a greater volume of leavening gas than any other powder. It is therefore not only the purest but also the strongest powder with which I am acquainted.

"WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.," Prof. of Chemistry.

CHICAGO COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.

"The Royal Baking Powder, which tests the highest in strength, is free from lime, alum, lime phosphates or other adulterations. Its superlative purity, the entire wholesomeness of its ingredients, the scientific manner in which they are combined, together with its much greater strength, make the Royal unquestionably superior to any other baking powder.

"H. D. GARRISON," Prof. of Chemistry.

Flossie Buchanan returned home from Auburn Saturday where she has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rush, the past week.

A serious accident occurred to Clyde Wasson on Christmas Day. Several men were engaged in rather a foolish game. They made a split in a stump and then inserted a wedge, and by striking the side of the stump the wedge would bound out. Ira Bone picked up the ax to strike and in swinging it the sharp side struck Clyde on the throat cutting a terrible gash. A doctor was hurriedly called, and eleven stitches were required to sew up the wound.

CONCORD.
(No. 2.)

We wish you all a "Happy New Year."

Mrs. Hennesy is at Fort Wayne this week visiting her sister, Mrs. Mattie James.

Charley Clouse has received a job as teamster at the Auburn mills and has gone there too work.

Miss Cora Draggoo, who has spent several months with relatives in this vicinity started Tuesday for her home in Mich.

Frankie Scott has recovered from his recent attack of scarlet rash. No other cases are reported in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Lotzenheiser was called to Logansport Friday by a telegram, announcing the serious illness of her son-in-law, Mr. Panton.

Protracted meeting still continues. There has been one conversion, but several more will probably go forward before the meetings close.

We wish to thank Mr. Barnes for "Sunshine" received last week, and would add that it is among the most valued of our Christmas presents.

James Draggoo is suffering with some disease of the head and is confined to his bed every forenoon. In the afternoon and evening he is able to be around, but feels and looks very badly.

Uncle Sam Wasson and wife who have been visiting relatives in Ohio for a couple of weeks, are expected home this week. Although well along in years Uncle Sam enjoys a car ride as well as the next one.

A member of the light fingered gentry entered the residence of James Hennesy on Monday and stole a silver doller. The family were all absent from home in the afternoon and it is not known who the thief really is.

Our teachers in this vicinity treated the school scholars right royally to candy and nuts before closing school for vacation. Miss Olive Moore presented each of her scholars with a handkerchief for a Christmas present, and Will Lake, teacher at Saylor's secured the services of a genuine old Santa Claus to treat his scholars.

Among the arrivals last week who are visiting friends at this place we noticed the following persons: Clyde Woodcox and family, Miss Vesta Moore and Miss Olinger, from Auburn Junction. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon from Garrett, Mr. and Mrs Bone and Bert Timmerman, from Auburn, Sherman Keller, wife and child, of Butler, and Gerry Wasson, of Churubusco.

Our roads have been very muddy and our sidewalks are very bad. So bad, in fact, that Dell Draggoo had to stop on his way home from church Saturday night and wait until the moon came up before it was safe to go on home. Dell remedied this difficulty, however, on Monday by hauling sawdust, and making a good walk along the worst places, for which he has the thanks of the church-going people.

ST. JOE

Will Curie and family are spending a few days in Ohio.

Mrs. H. W. Bowman entertained friends from Garrett Friday.

Mrs. M. Widney and little son Guy are visiting friends in the vicinity.

John Leighty, of Chicago, spent Christmas with his parents, J. D. Leighty.

E. M. Bishop, of the Hub, ate of the fat of the land at M. T. Bishop's Christmas.

We noticed the familiar face of our old friend G. W. Draggoo, of Concord, on our streets last Friday.

Postmaster Abel had all of his family at home the 25, and Jim looks younger by 10 years than he did before the fatted calf was killed.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty's mother and some other friends from Ft. Wayne partook of the Christmas turkey at the residence of J. D. on Christmas.

J. M. Grimm and G. W. Woodcox were at the Hub on Thursday of last week. J. M. was made a constable for Concord township. The evil doers, if there are any in St. Joe, want to look a little out as Jerry has blood in his eye.

It is said that the stealing of hard cider in and out of town has become quite common of late among some of the boys. One man here who makes a business of making cider vinegar, went to the expense of putting up a building especially for the purpose of keeping his cider away from theives, and keeps the same under lock and key. Imagine his surprise, when he found a nice young man in his cider house a few nights ago; the lock was not broken, but by the aid of a chum he had succeeded in getting in at a place left open for air, and when in was caught like a rat in a trap.

Hard cider and whisky in the form of boys and men had quite a serious riot here Christmas evening. As near as we can learn the affair happened in this wise: A couple of Butler thorough breds came down here during the afternoon driving a livery rig, and the boys were full of fire water and no doubt were spoiling for a fight, some words passed between them and Jim White, and Jim was struck with the butt end of a whip and knocked down. Later on, when the Butler cranks wanted to go home and after starting they were stopped in front of the residence of Sol. Barney and one of them either got pulled out or knocked out of the buggy and quite seriously hurt, but the boys managed to get to Newville where Dr. Bowman dressed the wounds. The Dr. says a knife was used and that one cut on the face was quite serious, and some of the boys who are said to have been in the fray are making themselves scarce.

Mr. Wallace Fisher and Miss Gertie Shutt came home last week from Springfield, O., and will remain during the holidays.

Louis Berry and wife have returned from Springfield, Ohio, where he has been engaged working at his trade during the past summer.

We have an idea that Sim. Maurer has some notion of learning the blacksmith trade from his frequent enterviews with the blacksmith's daughter.

At the M. E. church Friday evening there was a crowded house. A light-house covered with gifts for the little folks, and speaking, singing and a cantata was the order of the evening. The exercises were good, and enjoyed by all present.

Thursday evening a large congregation assembled at the Lutheran church to enjoy the Christmas service. There was a tree loaded with presents, for the children, also speaking and songs. An enjoyable evening was spent by all, who attended the exercises. After the exercises the ladies having prepared supper in the old church building, a social time was enjoyed, and was successful as a business venture.

Save Your Eyes.

Don't ruin your eyes, by wearing improper glasses, or those not properly fitted. Get an experienced and skillful man to fit them to your eyes. So wait till C. J. Porter, the Waterloo optician, comes to Auburn. He will be at the Hollister House, the first Tuesday in each month. Don't forget the date.

"He has such a benign smile," murmured the pretty girl.

Strong Witnesses.

Among the thousands of testimonials of cures by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, is that of Nathan Allisons, a well-known citizen of Glen Rock, Pa, who for years had shortness of breath, sleeplessness pain in left side, shoulders, smothering spells, etc, one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and one box of Nerve and Liver Pills, cured him. Peter Jaquet, Salem, N. J., is another witness, who for twenty years suffered with heart disease, was pronounced incurable by physicians, death stared him in the face, could not lie down for fear of smothering to death. Immediatialy after using the New Cure he felt better and could lie down and sleep all night, and is now a well man. The New Cure is sold, also free book, by F. E. Davenport. 2

In the manufacture of clothing nearly all cutting is now done by dies, as in the making of hats and caps, and one man does six times the amount of work done by one man in the old way.

Newspapers Endorse.

"Educators are certainly the greatest benefactors of the race, and after reading Dr. Franklin Miles' most popular works, cannot help declaring him to be among the most entertaining and educating authors."—New York Daily. He is not a stranger to our readers, as his advertisements appear in our columns in every issue, calling attention to the fact that his elegant work on nervous and heart disease is distributed free by our enterprising druggist F. E. Davenport. Trial bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine are given away, also book of testimonials showing that it is unequaled for nervous prostration, headache, poor memory, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, hysteria, fits, epilepsy. 2

By far the greater part of beet sugar is raised and consumed in Europe. It is now the sugar ordinarily used there, just as cane sugar is the sort almost universally used in America.

Wonderful Cures.

Two or three years ago, Dan. Thomas of Richland township had a severe attact of catarrh which kept on growing worse until his hearing was so effected that he could not hear in conversation or hear the dinner bells in the neighborhood ring at meal times. He went to A. Y. Rosenbury at Waterloo, who cured him entirely by the simple laying on of his hands. Mr. Thomas was treated three times and at present he can hear as well as ever and the catarrh is entirely cured. This statement came direct from Mr. Thomas.

A French scientist has perfected a device for obtaining oxygen from sea water by electric means, and carrying it to any part of a vessel to use as a disinfectant.

It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never Fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars free.
